Eight Candidates For Governor Invade City

It was difficult to get about Quincy without stumbling over a candidate in the September state primary election.

No less than eight potential Democratic nominees for governor showed up at the annual clambake put on by the Quincy Democratic City Committee and the Democratic Women's Club of Quincy and the Weymouth Fairgrounds.

They included State Secretary Joseph D. Ward, Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack, Jr., Auditor Thomas J. Buckley, Lt. Gov. Robert Murphy, Gabriel Piemonte, Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough, Endicott Peabody and Francis E. Kelly.

Rep. James R. McIntyre (D-Quincy) was toastmaster of the affair and Rep. Joseph E. Brett (D-Quincy) represented Gov. Foster Furcolo, who was seeking the nomination to oppose Republican Sen. Leverett Saltonstall.

Sen. Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy), the GOP candidate for sheriff of Norfolk County, was the guest of honor at a cookout at the home of Mrs. Claire Nelson of 32 Briggs St., Wollaston.

And George G. Burke, a candidate for the state legislature, told a house party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Barry, 31 Hunt St., Atlantic, that "a man should not run for public office if he is not qualified."

ANCIENT PUMPER CLAIMED

Richard Williams of Pompano Beach, Florida, a former Quincy firefighter, returned to his hometown to lay claim to ownership of Granite III, the 116-year old hand tub pumper in storage at the Houghs Neck Fire Station.

Williams said Granite III was purchased in 1844, not by the city, but with money raised by the call fireman of the old Granite Co. Williams' father was the last marshall of the Granite Co.

Impact Quincy Launches 'Sticker Shock' Campaign

During the Labor Day weekend, Impact Quincy's High School Peer Advocates and Program Coordinator will be launching their 2nd "Sticker Shock Campaign."

The goal of the campaign is to raise awareness of underage access to alcohol. The campaign targets young adults, ages 21-27 because data shows this age group to be the most likely to provide alcohol to minors.

The campaign is held in participating liquor and convenience stores selling beer and wine. These merchants will receive customer bags and refrigerator case cling stickers with a message about young adults thinking twice before purchasing for minors. According to Lt. Peter Turowski, Quincy Police Liquor Inspector and member of our coalition, the majority of Quincy licensees sell alcohol responsibly. We hope this campaign will continue to raise awareness around the issue of underage drinking.

In addition, for the first time, the campaign will also include a dozen Quincy pizza shops. The participating pizza shop owners will place stickers with the same reminder message on their take-out boxes.

Impact Quincy thanks the following Quincy licensees and pizza shop owners for their participation in the 2012 Impact Quincy Sticker

Dorothy Quincy Homestead Open Saturday

In celebration of Discover Quincy Days, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, a National Historic Landmark, will be open for public tours Saturday, Sept. 1, between 1 and 5 p.m.

The Homestead is located on Butler Road at the corner of Hancock Street in Quincy.

Visitors are welcome to walk in on their own or take advantage of the Discover Quincy Days' van transportation running from the Adams Academy (Quincy Historical Society). Tours will start on the hour and half hour beginning at 1 p.m. The last tour begins at 4:30 p.m.

All tours are free of charge, but a voluntary contribution is suggested.

Dating from 1686, the house is 326 years old. During the 17th and 18th centuries, this mansion was considered the grandest estate in Quincy. During the pre-Revolutionary War era, it was a meeting place for such patriots as Josiah Quincy, John Hancock and John Adams. It was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, the wife of John Hancock.

The Homestead is operated by the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts in conjunction with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR).

Groups may request a private tour on a date of their choice by phoning 617-742-3190 or emailing nsca-ma@verizon.net. The final public open house tour date for the season will be Sept. 15.

For more information, visit the Homestead's website: www.nscda.org/ma/quincy_homestead.htm

Antonio Pinzari Invents New Game, 'Wild Tallahassee'

Former Quincy Pointer Parlays Poker Into Business

By SCOTT JACKSON

Antonio Pinzari has turned poker into a business. He writes a monthly column for Ante Up magazine, hosts the Poker Wars Live radio show, founded his own academy for aspiring card players, and authored five books. Now the former Quincy Point resident is promoting a new poker game he invented.

Pinzari grew up on Grafton Street and his mother Eleanor still lives in the city. He graduated Quincy High School in 1965 and served as a police officer in Weymouth before moving to Florida in 1979 to play poker full-time. Poker came easy to Pinzari because he used math to figure out his odds at the table.

"I'm gifted in mathematics and it always comes easy to me," Pinzari said. "I'm primarily a seven-card stud player and the advantage for a player with mathematical skill is profound."

The 65-year-old's actual name is Bruce Paquette. He started using his late nonno's (grandfather's) name as a pseudonym when his first book was published to honor the man who was fundamental in his upbringing.

"He raised me, there wasn't a day in my life he wasn't there," Pinzari said. "When I wrote my first book I said I should put my nonno's name on it."

Pinzari decided to create a new poker game because business in Florida's poker rooms had grown stagnant. No-limit Texas Hold 'Em, a game popularized through televised tournaments and online play, intimidated casual players who could

"We run poker rooms in Florida that are very stagnant, players that don't have much skill are intimidated and don't go in," Pinzari said. "In Texas Hold 'Em, the next bet could be your last. It doesn't help the average player - it doesn't help the player with $200 in their hand."

So Pinzari created Wild Tallahassee Poker to bring casual players to casinos. The game starts with each player paying an ante, or initial bet, of $1. Everyone is then dealt two hole cards face down. In the round of betting that follows, players can bet $1 which can be raised to as much as $3. Following that, the first street is dealt, two communal cards left face up in the middle of the table. Another round of betting follows, under the same limit as the first round. Then another street is dealt,

The limit is raised after the final street is dealt. The initial bet for that round is $2, which can be raised to $6. A final card called the Wild Tallahassee card is then dealt, that card is a wild card. The final round of betting follows, with the first bet at $3 and the limit at $9. The player that can make the best five-card hand using his hold cards, one of the sets, and the wild card wins. An instructional video on the new game is available online at wildtallahasseepoker.com.

Working with the Isle Casino in Pompano Beach, Florida, Pinzari submitted his game to the Florida Department of Pari-Mutuel Wagering for review. The state approved the application, allowing the game to be played starting July 1.

Even after state approval, some players felt the odds

WILD TALLAHASSEE POKER made its debut on July 1 at the Isle Casino in Pompano Beach, FL. The same nine players spent six hours at the table playing the new game. "It's a social game," said game creator Antonio Pinzari. "No one gets mad at you."

were against Wild Tallahassee catching on. Critics were dismissive of the game because of the betting limits in place, and because wild cards are a rarity in casino poker games.

"A lot of people we're negative. They said no one wants to play a limit game because they're boring; no one wants to play with a wild card," Pinzari said. "But if you grew up playing poker you played with a wild card."

And at first the game didn't catch on because of bad timing. The Florida State Poker Championship was held at the Isle Casino from July 8 to July 30. Even though players from across the country flocked to the casino, they largely ignored Pinzari's new game while playing in assorted tournaments.

"For 22 days, there was not a whole heck of a lot of interest in a new game that was only seven days old [when the event started]," Pinzari said.

But interest in Wild Tallahassee flourished once the championship tournaments ended. More people started playing the game at the casino, which has started to host Wild Tallahassee tournaments. And people are having more fun playing it than they would other games like Texas Hold 'Em, which are seen as more cutthroat.

"It's a social game, no one gets mad at you and everyone cheers the Wild Tallahassee card," Pinzari said. "Texas Hold 'Em has robbed people of the chance to have that social event."

Pinzari's game has also won the support of world-renowned poker players. According to Pinzari, 1983 World Series of Poker main event winner Tom McEvoy, 2007 WSOP main event winner Jerry Yang, and two-time main event runner-up T.J. Cloutier have all endorsed Wild Tallahassee.

The Isle Casino has a 90-day exclusive period to operate the game. After that period ends on October 1, Pinzari will be able to license the game around the world. Representatives from casinos and poker rooms in states like Mississippi, Louisiana, California, and Nevada have already reached out to Pinzari.

"I'm surprised how much interest there is in the game," Pinzari said.

And the game could one day be played right next to Pinzari's hometown. Developers have proposed building a casino at Suffolk Downs in East Boston. Pinzari hopes to have his game played there, allowing Quincy residents to travel a short distance and play a game invented by a man born and raised in the city.

Children's Programs At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following programs for children:

Did you take the A-Z Reading Challenge this summer? Aug. 31st is the last day to turn in your A-Z Reading Challenge sheets so stop by the library with your sheets as soon as you complete the challenge.

Here are fun programs set for September:

Storytime with Cheryl

Join storyteller Cheryl Dunford for a family storytime full of stories, songs, rhymes and more for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult on Saturday, Sept. 8th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library. No registration required. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Book Clubs for Kids

Join us each month to discuss all kinds of books.

The Phoenix Book Club for children in grades 5-8 meets on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss a variety of books. The Club will meet on Tuesday, Sept. 11th at 7 p.m. at the Main Library. This month we will be discussing books we read this summer. Pick up a book for the October meeting, too.

The Night Owls Book Club for children in grades 3-4 will hold its first meeting in October. Check the library website for details.

Mad Science - Stunt Planes and Gliders

Stunt Planes & Gliders is a fun combination of practical and theoretical knowledge, and a great introduction to the basics of aerodynamics. The children will learn about the four forces that affect a plane in flight: drag, gravity, lift and forward thrust. They will witness, experience, play with, and use these forces to their advantage in the construction of incredible paper planes.

The workshop will be held Saturday, Sept. 15th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library. Registration is required. Beginning Tuesday, Sept. 4th, register online, in person or by calling 617-376-2411. Due to space limitations, this program is limited to Quincy residents. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Talk Like a Pirate Day

Stop by the library any time on Wednesday, Sept. 19th, International Talk Like a Pirate Day. Give us your best pirate impersonation and earn a piece of pirate gold.

Pirate Magic Show

Captain Robbie Bones will drop anchor here Saturday, Sept. 22nd at 10 a.m. Join the Captain for a laugh out loud show full of magic, juggling and pirates. Keep an eye out for the skunk cannon! This program is for children ages 4 and older accompanied by an adult, no registration is required. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Afternoon Explorers

Beginning Monday, Sept. 11th register for the Afternoon Explorers online, by phone at 617-376-1330 or in person at the Wollaston Branch. Registration is required and limited to Quincy residents.

Fall Storytimes

Weekday morning storytimes for children ages 4 months through 5 years old begin on Friday, Sept. 21st. The library offers several programs by age. Stop by the library or check our website thomascranelibrary.org for details.

Due to overcrowding registration will be required for Mother Goose on the Loose and Just for Twos storytimes. Registration will begin Tuesday, Sept. 11th.

Register online, by phone at 617-376-2411 or in person in the Main Library Children's Room. Registration is limited to Quincy residents.

WALTER and JUNE HOLMES

Walter And June Holmes Celebrate 72nd Anniversary

Walter and June Holmes of Quincy recently celebrated their 72nd wedding anniversary with their family.

Walter served in World War II in the Army Air Corps and was employed as a sheet metal worker for 44 years at B.R. Gale Co. in Allston before retiring.

June retired after 10 years as a home health aide for the Quincy Elder Services.

They were married by Minister Louis W. West on Aug. 14, 1940 in South Boston.

Born and raised in South

Boston, they have resided in Quincy and have six children: Larry Holmes, Joyce Doucette, Brian Holmes, Ronald Holmes, Patricia Castaneda and Scott Holmes. They also have 11 grandchildren, 9 great-grandchildren and 2 great-great-grandchildren.

Walter and June both love vacationing at Swifts Beach, Cape Cod with their family in the summer.

They also say they have loved life to the fullest and "being married all these years is surely one of God's miracles."

TALKING FASHION - Elisha Daniels of Boston recently visited the Kennedy Center and provided some tips on fashion. Using various accessories Elisha demonstrated how a woman can change up her wardrobe. She was assisted by her mother Ena Crowe of Quincy.

Day Trip Saturday To Grape Island

Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission will sponsor a trip to Grape Island Saturday, Sept. 1 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The trip departs from Houghs Neck in Quincy. Walk around the island, explore the foundations, enjoy the scenery and look for the exclusive beach plum.

Reservations are required. For reservations and more information, call 617-773-1534.

The trip is sponsored by the City of Quincy, Mayor Thomas Koch, and Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, Leo J. Kelly, chairman.

GREEN-RAINBOW PARTY BALLOT

There are no candidate names on the Green-Rainbow Party ballot.

Low Turnout Seen Here For State Primary

Next Thursday is also primary day for the Green-Rainbow Party but there are no candidates on that ballot.

This year's state primary is in stark contrast to primary day two years ago. That's when a host of candidates were drawn to four open seats: Congress, state senator, Norfolk County district attorney and state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District. The Democratic primary in 2010 also featured contested races for state treasurer and auditor. There was also a Republican race for state auditor.

Turnout two years ago was 28.43 percent in Quincy.

"Unlike two years ago, when there were open seats for Congress, Norfolk County district attorney and state representative seat (2nd Norfolk District), this year none of those seats are contested," Shea said in making his low turnout prediction.

Here's the list of the uncontested races and candidates on the Democratic primary ballot:

- Senator in Congress – Elizabeth A. Warren of Cambridge.

- Representative in Congress – Stephen F. Lynch of South Boston, candidate for re-nomination.

- Senator in General Court (Norfolk & Plymouth District) – John F. Keenan, 37 Hobomack Rd., Quincy, candidate for re-nomination. Keenan is seeking a second two-year term.

- Representative in General Court (First Norfolk District) – Bruce J. Ayers, 45 Williams St., Quincy, candidate for re-nomination. Ayers is seeking his eighth two-year term.

- Representative in General Court (Second Norfolk District) – Tackey Chan, 66 Meadowbrook Rd., Quincy, candidate for re-nomination. Chan is seeking his second two-year term.

- Representative in General Court (Third Norfolk District) – Ronald Mariano, 200 Falls Blvd., Quincy, candidate for re-nomination. Mariano, the House Majority leader, was first elected in a special election in December, 1991. He's seeking his 11th two-year term.

Voters in Ward 3 Precinct 3 in Quincy have been redistricted from the First Norfolk District to the 13th Suffolk District. They will continue to cast ballots at the Montclair School, 8 Belmont St.

In the Democratic primary, incumbent Martin J. Walsh, 12 Tuttle St., Boston, is a candidate for re-nomination in the 13th Suffolk District. He is seeking his 9th two-year term. There are no Republican candidates on the primary ballot for this seat.

Three Norfolk County government seats are also unopposed with all three Democratic incumbents seeking re-nomination.

They are:
• Clerk of Courts - Walter F. Timilty, of Milton, candidate for re-nomination. Timilty is seeking his third six-year term.

• Register of Deeds - William P. O'Donnell of Norwood, candidate for re-nomination. O'Donnell was appointed Register of Deeds in 2002 following the death of Paul Harold and was elected to a full six-year term in 2006. O'Donnell is seeking a second six-year term this fall.

• Norfolk County Commissioner (two seats) - incumbents John M. Gillis, 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy and Francis W. O'Brien of Dedham are seeking re-nomination.

Gillis, a former Quincy city clerk, was elected a county commissioner in 1992. He is seeking a sixth four-year term.

O'Brien was elected a county commissioner in 2004. He is seeking a third four-year term.

Besides the two-way race for Congress in the 8th District, the Republican ballot has only one other name on it: that is Sen. Scott Brown who is seeking a full six-year term. The Wrentham Republican and former state senator was elected U.S. Senator in a special election in January, 2010, filling the vacancy created by the death of Sen. Ted Kennedy.

Brown will square off against Democratic challenger Elizabeth Warren Tuesday, Nov. 6.

The other major race Nov. 6 is for the White House. Democrat Barack Obama is seeking a second term. He is challenged by former Massachusetts Governor Mitt Romney, a Republican.

Shea says the state primary will be the "calm before the storm" compared to the Presidential Election Nov. 6. The race for the White House and the U.S. Senate contest between Brown and Warren should attract some 72 percent of the city's registered voters to the polls, the city clerk said.

The last day to register to vote for the Nov. 6 election is Wednesday, Oct. 17. It is also the final day to change party affiliation but there is only one ballot Nov. 6.

Shea expects new voter registration will be brisk up until the final day Oct. 17.

"The Presidential race always brings people out. There are people registering today (Aug. 17) who think today is the last day to register to vote in November. But Aug. 17 was the last day to register for the state primary.

"We'll do more than 1,000 new voter registrations on the last day to register for the Presidential election," the clerk added.

Shea said the state primary election will cost $70,000 here. That covers election workers, police details and advertising. The state will pick up the cost of the ballots which is about $12,000.

Ribbon Cutting Ceremony At Newly Renovated Home For A Returning Veteran City, NHS To Mark Sept. 11 Day Of Service, Remembrance

Mayor Thomas Koch will join with Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore to mark the September 11 Day of Service and Remembrance with a ribbon cutting ceremony at a newly renovated home designated for a returning veteran and his or her family.

The ceremony will begin at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, September 11 by planting a tree at 51 Empire St., the site of a four bedroom home that has been fully renovated by Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore. At 11 a.m., Koch will cut the ribbon on the home, the renovations for which were financed by Quincy's federally funded HOME program as well as Community Preservation Grant funds.

"This project is part of an ongoing commitment by the City of Quincy to honor and provide for those who have served our country," said Robert Corley, executive director of Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore. "We thought September 11 was a fitting day to show our appreciation for the sacrifices the troops make on our behalf by officially opening this home, which will provide high-quality affordable housing for a returning veteran and his or her family."

The ongoing foreclosure crisis has hit returning veterans particularly hard, Corley said, because it has caused rents to increase at a time when veterans face a difficult job market. He said Neighborhood Housing Services will work with Quincy's Department of Veterans' Services to select a veteran's family to live in the home.

"We owe our veterans a great debt of gratitude, and providing this affordable housing for our returning heroes and their families is something that should make our entire community tremendously proud," Koch said. I wish to thank Neighborhood Housing Services and the many people who made this important project possible for all of their hard work."

The September 11th National Day of Service and Remembrance grew out of an effort initiated by 9/11 family members and support groups to establish a charitable service day as a way to honor victims, survivors and those who volunteered or otherwise responded in the aftermath of the attacks.

Montclair/ Wollaston Association Meets Oct. 4

Because of the state primary election Sept. 6, the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will hold their opening meeting Thursday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will take place at The Church of the Good Shepherd located at the corner of Harvard and West Squantum Streets.

The Association will not meet Sept. 6 so that members can participate in the election process for the state primary.

More details regarding the October meeting will be published in a future issue of The Quincy Sun.

BACK TO SCHOOL

A Message From School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro

QPS Staff Are Ready To Assist Families With School Concerns

Dear Parents and Guardians of Quincy Public Schools Students:

It is an honor to welcome back our students and their families as we start another school year.

As September quickly approaches, the staff of the Quincy Public Schools are busy with preparations. At each of our schools, the Principals and their office staffs will be ready to assist your families with registration, transfers, and any other concerns when the school offices reopen on Monday, Aug. 27.

The dedicated and talented professional staff of the Quincy Public Schools are excited about new challenges and are confident of a year filled with accomplishments. Over the summer, more than 200 teachers availed themselves of Professional Development opportunities to learn about new instructional strategies, technology for their classrooms, and curriculum aligned to the new Common Core State Standards. Major technology upgrades courtesy of Comcast funding have been completed at Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Sterling, and Point Webster Middle Schools, plus North Quincy High School. These purchases include 300 new computers (including the creation of six new computer labs), printers, seventy interactive whiteboards, eighty document cameras, eighty projectors, educational software, infrastructure upgrades for a new email system, website improvements, and ongoing technology professional development.

Our school buildings will be ready for the new school year, with upgrades completed in many buildings including newly retiled floors, repainted classrooms, refinished gym floors in six buildings, and repairs to building mechanicals including addressing electrical, plumbing, and heating issues. Security audits have been conducted at all buildings and new lighting and cameras installed where needed. Through the City's Capital Improvement Plan, fifteen buildings have had roofs replaced and masonry repairs completed and new windows will be installed at the Montclair Elementary School in time for the school's 100th anniversary this October. In addition to all of the preparation for this school year, construction is underway on the new Central Middle School, which is scheduled to open for the 2013-2014 school year.

The most meaningful factor in assisting students to have a successful school experience is the concern, participation, and involvement of their parents. In order to help your children attain their goals, we need your involvement, whether it be through attending parent-teacher conferences, volunteering in your child's school, and most importantly, reinforcing the importance of on-time school attendance, appropriate behavior and class participation, and completion of schoolwork. You can also stay informed through our website www.quincypublicschools.com or by following us on Facebook or Twitter (@QuincyPS).

As you enjoy the last few days of summer vacation, please note that the calendar for the opening week of school is different than in previous years. Your principal will be happy to answer any questions you might have related to the opening of school or feel free to contact my office at 617-984-8700.

The first day of school for Grades 1-9 is Wednesday, September 5.

Due to the state primary election, schools are closed on Thursday, September 6. This will be a day of Professional Development for all Quincy Public Schools staff at their schools.

School resumes on Friday, September 7 for Grades 1 through 12. Kindergarten students will attend an Orientation at their individual schools; each family will receive a postcard with information on this event.

The first day of school for Kindergarten and Pre-Kindergarten is Monday, September 10.

On behalf of all of the staff at the Quincy Public Schools, best wishes for a successful school year to you and your family.

Sincerely,
Richard DeCristofaro,
Ed.D.
Superintendent

School Transportation User Fee Policy In Place For Third Year

Quincy Public Schools reminds parents of elementary school children that a transportation user fee policy is in place for a third consecutive year.

The Transportation User Fee is applicable for Grades K-5 and has been used by several local cities and towns for a number of years. It was implemented in Quincy two years ago.

The cost of the program is $200 per student with a $400 cap per family. The fee applies to kindergarten through fifth grade students who live within two miles of the elementary school they attend. It also applies to fifth graders who attend the Point Webster and Sterling Middle Schools.

Students who live further than two miles from their respective schools will continue to ride the bus for free.

The transportation fee application also includes a fee waiver under the federal low-income guidelines for free and/or reduced lunches.

For further information including required documentation and online payment options, go to the Quincy Public School website www.quincypublicschools.com/ and/or contact the Transportation Department Office at 617-984-8964 or the Business Department Office at 617-984-8789.

Back-To-School Safety

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime
Prevention Officer

It's that time of year again. Time to send your children back to school. It can be a frightening time for parents, but if you prepare your child for the big world you may help save them from getting into trouble.

- Make sure your children are taking the safest route to school and friends' houses, one that avoids danger spots like alleys, new construction, and wooded areas.

- Encourage your children to walk and play with friends, not alone, and to stay in well-lit, open areas where others can see them.

- Don't hang a house key around your child's neck. It's a telltale sign that you won't be at home when they return from school. Put it inside a pocket or sock.

- Teach children to walk confidently and stay alert to what's going on around them.

- Encourage your children to look out for other kids' safety and report anything they see that doesn't seem right.

- Tell your children to stay away from strangers who hang around playgrounds, public rest rooms and empty buildings.

- Rehearse with children their full name, address, and phone number (including area code) and how to make emergency phone calls from home and public phones.

- Tell children never to accept gifts or rides from someone they don't know well.

- Check your neighborhood for areas that threaten children's safety, like brush in wooded areas, overgrown shrubbery, abandoned buildings, bad lighting, vacant lots littered with debris, no sidewalks or bike paths next to busy streets.

- Teach children to go to a store clerk or security guard and ask for help if you become separated in a store or shopping mall. Tell them never to go into the parking lot alone. Accompany your children to public rest rooms.

- Teach children no one, not even someone they know, has the right to touch them in a way that makes them feel uncomfortable. Tell them that they have the right to say "No" to any adult in this situation.

If you teach the above tips to your children, they will be better prepared to survive in this great big, sometimes crazy, world.

Six Quincy Students On Berklee Dean's List

Six students from Quincy have been named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at the Berklee College of Music in Boston.

They are:

Jack Sassenfeld, Samuel Small, Jahaziel Antonio

Arrocha Porras, Joyce Pui Chih Cheung, Ian Deutsch and Benjamin Johnston.

D.A. Morrissey Offers School Safety Grants, Training

Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey is starting the new school year by offering all of his communities up to $2,000 to make safety and security upgrades to their school facilities and inviting educators and administrators from across the county to his 2012 School Safety Summit in October.

"Our school security grant program was very well received last year, and we were able to fund projects in eight school districts to make their students safer," Dist. Atty. Morrissey said. "Last year, we offered $3,000 matching fund grants to support larger projects. This year we are funding $2,000 direct grants, which may open the door to some additional communities."

Morrissey approved all of the schools that applied last year: Braintree, Weymouth, Quincy, Sharon, Blue Hills Regional, Norfolk Agricultural School, and Wrentham. The grants funded secure entry systems, intruder alarms, security monitors and other capital improvements to the schools.

In the same email message providing the grant applications, the District Attorney asked area superintendents to "save the date" of Oct. 10 for the School Security Summit he is organizing at the Lombardo function hall in Randolph.

"We will be presenting experts on violent school intruder defense strategies, school district information sharing, protecting schools from explosives and arson and middle school behavioral concerns," Morrissey said. "Norfolk County is comprised of safe communities with safe schools, and it is imperative that educators and law enforcement work together to assure that they remain safe."

Again this year, Morrissey is appropriating money seized in drug arrests and forfeited in cases prosecuted by his office to fund the school safety grants. Forfeiture funds are also being used to host the School Security Summit.

"There is an appropriate symmetry in using assets seized from activities that make our schools and our students less safe, and re-directing those resources into making those students safer," Morrissey said.

Where Healing Begins

COMFORTABLE, COMPASSIONATE AND CREATIVE SERVICES

Dear World

My young son starts to school today. It's going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently. You see, up to now he's been king of the roost. He's been boss of the backyard. His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings. But now things are going to be different. This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure. It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans. It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow. To live his life in the world he will have to live in, will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him. Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know. But do it gently, if you can. He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true. But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero. That for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader. Teach him that for every enemy there is a friend. Steer him away from envy, if you can, and teach him the secret of quiet laughter. In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat. Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong. Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people. Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon. Teach him to listen to all men - but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through. Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he is sad. Teach him there is no shame in tears. Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success. Treat him gently, World, if you can, but don't coddle him, because only the test of fire makes fine steel. Let him have the courage to be impatient. Let him have the patience to be brave. Let him be no man's man. Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself, because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do. He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

Suggestions From The Better Business Bureau

Budgeting For Back-To-School Supplies

School bells will be ringing before we know it.

Now's the time to take advantage of annual back-to-school specials on supplies. Whether you plan to shop at your favorite retail store or in the drawers and closets of your home, Better Business Bureau recommends sticking to a budget to avoid the common overspending on school supplies.

According to the National Retail Federation, parents will be shopping carefully and making special efforts to save on supplies this school year. 31% of families say they will do comparative shopping online (compared to 29.8% last year), and they will use more coupons (38.7% vs. 36.9%), and cut back on extracurricular activities or sports (14.3% vs. 10.2%).

Many retailers offer back-to-school "freebies" to entice shoppers. Coupons, deals, and giveaways are always nice, but make sure you actually need the items first. There's no need to spend money on new crayons, colored pencils, and notebooks if all it takes is a good sharpening or tearing out a few used pages from the previous year.

BBB recommends considering the following when it comes to back-to-school shopping:

Take inventory. There's always that endless supply of makers, crayons and notebooks around the house. Reusing these items can save hundreds of dollars over the years. Consider repackaging, sharpening, and cleaning out older, gently used items before buying new ones.

Look for the deals. Some retailers' back-to-school specials are available for online and in-store purchase. Make sure to check out your local newspaper for deals. Oftentimes, retailers will put ads showcasing the special buy-one-get-one-free deals, and even coupled items like lunchboxes with backpacks to lure in customers. Shop sooner rather than later and save more.

Set a budget. Decide how much you are willing to spend per child, and include your children for a "teachable moment" on creating a budget. After taking inventory, create a shopping list and stick to it. This will help you avoid costly impulse purchases and ensure nothing is forgotten.

Shop during tax free holidays. Many states have tax-free days in August, which can mean significant savings. Be mindful of restrictions, either a dollar amount or on the type of item purchased. Most tax holidays include clothing and school supplies; some include computers and sports equipment, too.

Know what your child's school allows. Schools will often provide parents with a list of required items for the school year, which can help determine what you need to purchase. These lists are also available at many retail stores and on school websites. Additionally, many schools have specific dress codes, so keep these restrictions in mind before spending money on clothes the school may not allow.

Check for refund and exchange policies. Be sure you can exchange or return items purchased during this time period. Keep in mind some items may be non-refundable or have restocking fees associated with a return.

Send Kids Back To School With Healthy Meals And Snacks

The kids' backpacks are ready with notebooks, pencils and paper, but what's the plan for packing healthy back-to-school lunches?

The American Heart Association recommends packing a healthy lunch at home to ensure that kids get the nutrition they need without all the fat, calories and salt found in convenience foods and many school lunch meals. Too much salt, calories and fat can contribute to long-term health issues like obesity, diabetes and high blood pressure.

Today, about one in three American kids and teens is overweight or obese; nearly triple the rate in 1963. Among children today, obesity is causing health problems that previously weren't seen until adulthood like type 2 diabetes, high blood pressure and elevated blood cholesterol levels. (Source: 2011 American Heart Association Understanding Childhood Obesity Statistical Sourcebook)

Tips On Packing Healthy Lunches:

When packing a healthy lunch, try choosing from the rainbow of foods in your supermarket's produce department. Include foods that are red (red peppers, apples, tomatoes), orange (carrots, peaches), green (salad, celery sticks) and choose foods from the different food groups.

The Alliance for a Healthier Generation, founded in 2005 with the American Heart Association and the William J. Clinton Foundation, suggests including one serving of vegetables or salad and one serving of fruit (fresh, canned or dried all count); one serving of a low-fat or fat-free milk or dairy item such as a low-fat cheese stick, a yogurt cup, or some cottage cheese; plus one serving of meat, chicken, fish, eggs, peanut butter, beans or another protein source.

Pack healthy drinks such as water, low-fat milk or 100% juice with no added sugar. Beverages boxes frozen the night before can keep a lunchbox cool until lunchtime. Cut out the soda and energy drinks. These are filled with sugar, empty calories and provide little or no nutrition.

Sandwiches can be made on whole wheat bread, pita, wraps or flatbreads. Traditional luncheon meats are high in fat and sodium. When choosing luncheon meats; pick lean meats like turkey, ham or leftover chicken breast. Use reduced fat mayo or salad dressing or mustard to dress a sandwich and top with mixed greens or spinach for extra nutrients.

Not The Same Old Sandwich

Pack hummus with fresh veggies and whole wheat pita triangles or flatbreads for dipping. Hummus is a good low-fat protein source and is high in iron and vitamin C. Or try low-fat or fat-free cottage cheese with carrots, cherry tomatoes, fresh berries, or melon for a calcium-rich, high-protein lunch.

Salads topped with lean protein like hard-boiled eggs, beans or chicken are a great alternative to sandwiches and they help get kids on track with their daily vegetable servings. In a hurry? Buy bags of lettuce or pre-cut carrots or make extra salad for dinner then pack the leftovers for lunch the next day.

Didn't pack a lunch?

There are many options to choose from in the lunch line at school, some of them are healthier than others. Encourage kids to choose fruits and vegetables instead of French fries or chips and ask for grilled meat instead of fried. Check the school lunch menu and choose a healthier day for your kids to buy lunch.

Hungry after school?

When it comes to after school snacks, think energy, not fatty, high-calorie. Try baked potato or corn chips instead of fried. Keep a variety of salt-free nuts on hand for a high protein, essential fatty acid snack - but watch the portions. One-quarter cup of these high calorie nuts is a serving. Focus on fruits and vegetables. Cut them up for greater acceptance and serve plain or with yogurt, hummus or dip.

Stick to low-fat or light yogurt instead of the full calorie varieties targeted at children. To avoid artificial sweeteners, try fat-free plain yogurt mixed with fresh fruit.

Cereal is not just for breakfast. High-fiber, low sugar cereals are fortified with vitamins and nutrients. Pour a serving size and add low-fat or skim milk for a satisfying snack that most kids can get for themselves.

Not all granola bars are created equal. Choose whole grain granola bars that are low in fat and sugar - take a look at the food label and choose the ones that contain less than 1g of saturated fat per serving and are no more than 35% sugar by weight. Make sure there's at least 5 grams of protein.

Shop your local health store for pre-packaged snacks that are high in fiber and low in fat, sugar and calories.

MORE TIPS:

Back to school lunchbox strategies:

- Get lunch ready right after dinner when you're in the kitchen or the night before.
- Pack leftover dinners in lunch-size containers.
- Keep dressings on the side to prevent soggy lunches.
- Freeze healthy drinks to keep your lunch cool.
- Rinse and pack fruit & veggies in snack bags on Sunday night, so they're ready to go all week long.
- If you're buying convenience lunches or snacks, look for those with fewer than 100 calories and the least amount of sugar, saturated fat, trans fat and sodium.

• Kids eat more fruit when it's already cut up. Try oranges and Ginger Gold or Cortland apples since they're slow to brown.

For more information and recipes, visit the American Heart Association at www.heart.org/healthierkids.

Bins Collect Textiles And Raise Money For Schools

By EMILY TAFT

The City of Quincy and the Quincy Public Schools PTO's (Parent and Teacher Organizations) have teamed up with the Pembroke recycling company, Bay State Textile Inc., to raise money for the individual school PTO's by collecting textiles.

"What I like about this program is a lot of this stuff Good Will wouldn't take, so it would just end up in our trash," said Kathy Bowes, president of Citywide PTO. "They (Bay State) will take it, they don't care about the condition. The way I see it is we win three ways: it helps the environment, it helps the schools, and it helps the city."

Bay State placed drop-off boxes at each individual Quincy school this past May to allow for residents to drop off their unwanted textiles at their convenience. The company exports all the textiles they collect to developing countries. They pay $100 for every ton that is collected, and all the money raised will go back into the school PTOs.

"In the long run, Quincy can reclaim a modest percentage of these textiles. Based on national statistics and Quincy's population, every year the City of Quincy is discarding approximately seven million pounds of textiles," said Bay State Textile Inc. owner Paul Curry. "The city can save thousands of dollars in tipping fees and the schools can generate $100 per ton from Bay State Textile's collection program."

Bowes said that she believes most of the money raised will go towards sponsoring different field trips in the schools along with other things teachers want to do to enhance the learning environment in the classroom.

"We try to raise enough money every year to let the teachers do what they want to enhance the learning in their classrooms," said Bowes. "Each school will get money but some schools will end up with more than others because of how much is collected and weighed."

Bowes added that she is hopes they will be able to get the word out to not only the families of students but to the entire city so that the program will be long running one.

"We are hoping to get the word out to a broader range of people," said Bowes. "I am hoping that people will begin to make this a part of their lifestyles."

Curry said the summer months are usually slow for donations but he hopes with help from parents the donations will pick up, especially after schools reopen next week.

"We are looking to relaunch the program in September so we are able to generate revenue all year long. In the fall you will see a spike," said Curry. "We struggled at the beginning, but a big part of it is getting the word out there."

Almost any textile is acceptable to donate, from ripped jeans and dog chewed shoes to unwanted clothing or household linens, handbags, backpacks, and plush toys. All items - stained, torn, or old - will be recycled, so the condition of them, as long as they aren't wet, doesn't matter. According to the company's website, Americans throw away 16 billion pounds of textiles every year.

"Based on state and national statistics, 70 pounds per capita is being discarded on an annual basis. Only 15 percent is being reclaimed, reused, and or recycled," Curry said. "Eighty-five percent of this material is being lost to landfills or incinerators. This equates to 500 million pounds of textiles in Massachusetts alone being lost to landfills and incinerators every year. There is a worldwide demand for this commodity."

Available 24 hours a day, the three-foot wide by six-foot high white donation boxes are checked once a week during the summer months and will be checked two to three times a week, depending on the needs of each school, once the school year begins.

According to Curry, the company has collected over 44,000 pounds from the 19 different Quincy schools as of Aug. 18th. On average, Bay State Textiles has collected around 1,200 pounds from Quincy schools, the lowest being a little over 735 pounds and the top school collecting almost 5,000 pounds.

Curry said there are no immediate plans to remove the drop boxes, and that there is no time frame on how long they will remain at the schools, but by promoting the project the boxes could be there for a long time to come.

"We are keeping them there indefinitely," said Curry. "There has been no time frame put on pulling the bins. Bay State has no intention to pull the boxes as long as the mayor, superintendent, principals of all the schools and PTOs are happy we will continue the program."

"We hope to work with all interested parties to promote and educate the residents of Quincy on the benefits of textile recycling. We know with renewed effort Quincy will have a successful program and the schools/PTOs will have a new source of passive revenue for school programs. I think overall long term Quincy has great potential."

A MAJORITY of speakers at Tuesday's hearing, including St. John the Baptist Church Deacon Paul Lewis opposed the restaurant license at the License Board hearing. Lewis said the Tilted Kilt's attire and image ran counter to the church's beliefs.

QUINCY CHAMBER of Commerce Vice President Donna Mavromates told the Board the Chamber supported the proposed restaurant and said the commissioners should not consider the Tilted Kilt's uniforms when making their decision.

were Fire Chief Joseph Barron and Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele, the board's co-chairman.

Scheele said that he had done his research on the restaurant for the first meeting and said that he voted in favor but that the restaurant would have to close at 11 p.m., which is the same time restriction as what the Outback Steakhouse had when it was housed at 227 Park- ingway.

"I knew what the restaurant was, I did my due diligence for the first meeting," said Scheele. "I do not believe we are the moral police for every establishment in Quincy. I hear everything the residents are saying, but I vote in support of the Tilted Kilt on the same restrictions as Outback."

Duca said that after reviewing the laws and based on the testimony of the neighbors he had to vote against the license.

"The standard is clear. It places the burden on this court to determine that the premises are not detrimental to the educational and spiritual activities of the church," said Duca. "So based on the testimony that I heard tonight I am not able to support this."

Attorney Edward Fleming, who was representing the license applicant, said that they are disappointed with the board's decision and that his clients will have to review their options before moving forward.

SOME 35 STUDENTS recently took part in the Sterling Middle School's Summer STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Math and service learning) this summer. Here Christian Soto, Kayla McAuliffe, Ray Rodriguez, Michael Tervakoski and Caio Almeida learn about different species found in Blacks Creek at a visit to Quincy High School.

Over 35 Students Get Involved With Science, Technology, Engineering, Math

Sterling Middle School's Summer STEM A Success

Sterling Middle School's Summer STEM Program was a great success as more than 35 students attended this voluntary summer program which involved Science, Technology, Engineering, Math and service-learning.

Students maintained flower beds, vegetable gardens, school grounds, and the adopted traffic island off of Trafford Street.

Other projects included setting-up and creating a sundial in the back of the school and completing a composting area that will be utilized during the school year. Students constructed benches as a part of an outdoor classroom.

Program participants also worked with several business partners throughout the summer to learn more about future careers and work opportunities. They visited Quincy High School, met Principal Santoro and the Science Department about the many possibilities they will have in high school.

The Potting Bench of Braintree spent the day at Sterling Middle School. The day began with students doing yoga taught by Matt Mullen of the Open Doors Studios. Yoga was followed with a presentation by Allison Disher, a junior at Mass Art and Karen Disher owner of the Potting Bench. Allison Disher taught students how to make "Hammer" flower journals. At the end of the day each student had a beautiful flower journal and aloe plant. A special thanks to The Potting Bench for their creativity and generosity.

Park Department Arborist Phil Cosgrove came to Sterling and spoke to students about a career as an arborist and how to identify leaves from different types of trees. He donated a Sugar Maple Tree for Sterling students to watch grow and flourish.

Sterling students visited the New England Wildlife Center in Weymouth where they learned about local wildlife. The staff did a fantastic job communicating how humans impact the environment.

Meg Tabasco visited Sterling on behalf from the MWRA. She gave an exciting and informative presentation on the waste-water purification process.

The following day students visited the MWRA Pelletizing Plant. Carl Pawlowski led a tour highlighting how waste can be repurposed into fertilizer. Both Carl Pawlowski and Meg Tabasco gave students an in-depth look at the complexity of the waste, water and life cycle.

At the end of the program students hiked up Blue Hills. This gave students the opportunity to experience, explore and apply their knowledge to nature outside of an urban environment.

A special thanks to Sterling Middle School's staff of Susan Foley, Elise Higgins-Steele, Bob McGillicuddy, Stacey McGuire, Courtney Mitchell, Colleen Nichol, and Louis Venturelli who organized and taught students during this summer program about the importance of STEM and the community.

CARL PAWLOWSKI, a worker at the MWRA Pelletizing Plant in Quincy, leads Sterling students on a tour of the plant.

STERLING STUDENTS Shi Yu, Ray Rodriguez, Brendan Corbett and Rachel Xue feed the goat Penelope at the New England Wildlife Center in Weymouth.

MATT MULLEN of the Open Door Studios leads Sterling students in some yoga on recent morning.

QUINCY LEGION POST, corner of Revere Road and Mechanic Street in Quincy Center, is scheduled for demolition this week. Chain-link fencing surrounded the building on Monday.

Cornerstone Spared From Legion Post Demolition

By SCOTT JACKSON

Demolition of American Legion Post 95 building began this week, but the building's cornerstone will be saved and used as part of a remembrance to the Post.

The cornerstone was saved at the request of Arline Goodman. In June, the Revere Road resident reached a settlement allowing work on Town Brook to go forward. As part of the settlement, the city is obligated to create a commemoration to Post 95 that will be included in a park on the site. Earlier this month, Goodman asked the cornerstone be preserved in a letter sent to Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines.

Hines said he thought saving the cornerstone was a good idea that follows through on Mayor Tom Koch's pledge to memorializing Post 95. So the contractor responsible for demolition was instructed to preserve the granite cornerstone so it can be incorporated into the commemoration.

Goodman, whose late husband Carl was a past commander of the Post, said she was happy the cornerstone would be preserved and incorporated into the commemoration.

"I'm really glad that they are saving the cornerstone," Goodman said.

Goodman is still sad to see the Post be torn down; she's lived next to the building for more than four decades and is still a member of the American Legion Auxiliary.

"It's been my next-door neighbor here for 42 years,

GRANITE CORNERSTONE of the Quincy American Legion Post, at the suggestion of Revere Road neighbor Arline Goodman, will be saved and incorporated into a remembrance for Post 95, according to city officials.

I really feel sad about seeing it go," Goodman said. "Hopefully there will be a new location for the Post.

Demolition is expected to take two weeks, according to Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines. Precautions will be made to ensure no debris from the building finds its way into the Town Brook.

"We will put up fencing to make sure the debris doesn't end up in the brook," Hines said. "And the contractor will be more conservative in their methods."

The site will eventually be incorporated into a pocket park along the brook's new culvert. The park is still being designed; the city recently put out a request for proposals seeking designs.

Downtown redeveloper Beal/Street-Works purchased the Legion Post site for $600,000 plus $30,000 in fees earlier this summer. The land was then deeded over to Quincy, at no cost for to the city. Construction of the brook and the pocket park is expected to be finished by the fall of 2013.

GOOD AS GOLD...OR PLATINUM

If you love the look of silver, white gold, or platinum, you should know that palladium is fast gaining ground as the "fourth precious metal." This by-product of platinum mining has some advantages over its precious metal brethren, not the least of which is cost. While palladium is virtually indistinguishable from platinum to the untrained eye, it will not tarnish (like silver) or require re-plating (like white gold, which is covered with a layer of rhodium that can wear off). Moreover, this brilliant white precious metal is about half the weight of platinum and two-thirds the weight of 18-carat white gold, and its cost advantages over these precious metals are roughly commensurate with its weight advantages. Interested? Who wouldn't be?

We are convinced that palladium jewelry is a perfect choice between white gold and platinum. Browse our palladium jewelry selection located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. We are anxious to share with you our exquisite jewelry. Our staff endeavors to make your visits with us enjoyable and relaxing. Contact our store at 617-773-3636. Meatloaf Roll With Kale, Carrots

I've made a meatloaf roll many times and many ways, but for today's recipe I've used kale and carrots and this time a delicious sauce to go over it.

In this one, I've used ground turkey, but any favorite ground meat will do.

MEAT LOAF ROLL WITH KALE

1 pound ground turkey
1 egg
½ cup seasoned bread crumbs
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons ketchup (or any seasoning)
1 teaspoon curry powder (optional)
1 small onion (chopped)
For the filling 1 medium bunch of kale
1 carrot (shredded)
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 garlic cloves (chopped)

Cut the kale in small pieces leaving out the stem. In the hot oil, sauté garlic and add the kale and carrot until kale is fork tender. Set aside.

For the meat loaf, mix the egg and bread crumbs together, and then add all the other ingredients until firm to handle.

Place a piece of wax paper on a surface and add the meat mixture. On top of that add another piece of wax paper, and roll the mixture to a circle about ½ inch thick.

Remove the top piece of wax paper, and place the filling mostly in the center. Now with the wax paper on the bottom, roll the mixture into a log.

Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a 350 degree oven until done. (about 35-40 minutes)

FOR THE SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 tablespoons low sodium soy sauce
3 tablespoons sherry wine
¼ cup of water or stock

Melt the butter and oil. Add the soy sauce and sherry and blend. Add the water with about a teaspoon of flour and cook until slightly thickened. Pour over sliced meatloaf roll. Of course the roll is great without a sauce as well.

Quincy Bicycle Rides Sept. 2, 8

Quincy bicycle rides are set for Sunday, Sept. 2 at 12:30 p.m. and Saturday, Sept. 8th at 7:30 a.m.

Both rides begin at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center and will be held rain or shine. Rides are open to the public and are free of charge.

Participants may choose either a 10- or 20-mile route through Quincy and are encouraged to bring a water bottle and wear a helmet and bright colored clothing. The rides provide an opportunity to explore Quincy, meet other cycling enthusiasts, and experience the health benefits of cycling.

For more information, contact Joe Hern at 617-773-1919 or by email at jhern@jhermlaw.com

The rides are a result of the work Quincy residents have been doing to improve the conditions for bicyclists in Quincy and to promote bicycling as a means of transportation in the city.

The next public meeting for interested residents will be held Thursday, Sept. 27 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at Quincy City Hall. For more information, contact Nathan Piphio at 617-471-0258 or by email at bikingquincy@gmail.com.

Robin Moreira New Principal At Atherton Hough School

anticipation. I'm really looking forward to starting out a great year."

Moreira has 14 years of experience in the Quincy public school system, starting as a substitute and then getting her first teaching job at Lincoln Hancock Community School as a second grade teacher for six years. She then took a job as a literacy teacher at Charles Bernazzani School and Francis Parker School. Moreira then became an assistant principal at Parker while continuing to be a literacy teacher before she moved on to become the assistant principal at Atherton Hough while teaching second grade.

"I was able to get a lot of opportunities in Quincy," said Moreira. "I did a lot of professional development through Quincy. I never really thought of administration, but I always knew I wanted to be a teacher. Then when I was in the classroom at Lincoln Hancock, I could see that I loved teaching early literacy, just watching kids learn how to read, which made me go into the reading piece of it. As a literacy teacher, I was able to work with a lot more kids, and I could see that I was making more of a change, more of an impact."

Going into her third year working at Atherton Hough, Moreira will have to learn to wear many different hats as the new principal.

"I am probably most nervous about just the scope of the job, it's just so immense. You have to wear many hats," said Moreira. "Just knowing what to prioritize, and building a great team, where I know what to delegate and who to delegate to. You can't be everywhere, but the job lends itself that you need to be, so really just prioritizing and managing my time."

Moreira said that she would be even more nervous going into her new role without any experience as a principal but for a short time last year she was able to work as acting principal.

"I had a great opportunity to serve as acting principal for three months, which was just incredible. It was a great opportunity for me to see if it was something I wanted to do, and could do right now," said Moreira.

"Ultimately I realized that it's what I wanted to do. I just had a great experience doing it. Then when I came back into my classroom I just felt like I could do more. I could reach more kids. I could work with more teachers. I could work with more families by not being a classroom teacher, so then I applied (for the principal position). Having that experience, even though it was only for three months, it definitely makes it easier."

"The good thing is that I had that experience even though it was just three short months. I was able to establish a nice rapport with a lot of the families and the school's PTO (Parent Teacher Organization). I think with anything change is hard, it's a process and I hope they will see me as somebody who does bring experience. I bring a lot of experience with curriculum, and I got a lot of great feedback when I was acting principal. I think that they will just see me as a worker, and dedicated, and wanting to serve Atherton Hough, and put their kids first and continue to make it a great place."

Moreira said she will miss being in the classroom everyday and hopes to be able to visit the classrooms as much as possible.

"I absolutely will (miss being in the classroom)," said Moreira. "I want to be in there, and you hear principals say that, but I really want to make sure that stays a priority. I want kids to see that I am in the classroom, and I want to be a part of that, and for kids to know

I know what they're doing and that I care about what they're learning."

Moreira added that she has many ideas and plans for this coming school year, some that include traditions already made, and others that she hopes to become new traditions.

"We're slowly building up our technology," said Moreira. "I've been working with the PTO, even when I was acting principal, just really bringing that to the forefront that we need to spend our energy and resources on bringing more technology for the teachers. My head is spinning with ideas. It's just exciting to continue some of the traditions that have been here at Atherton Hough, but to also bring some new things in."

Another big project Moreira has been working on is getting the school's library fully functional so students will have an easier time borrowing books. Moreira said that after speaking with the school's PTO they decided to take the project on, which has been happening throughout the summer.

One thing that Greene did that Moreira said she would like to continue is having the parents involved in their child's education.

"I think that something similar that we both share is that parents are the kid's first teachers, and she actively sought them out to be involved at the school, and to be involved with their kids' education, so that is something I absolutely want to continue," said Moreira. "She was also very rich in the history of Houghs Neck and bringing that into the school, and bringing that culture in. I definitely want to continue some of those traditions."

Moreira said she hopes one day she will have the long career as principal just like Greene did, but even if that isn't in her future she said she knows she will always be working with kids.

"I definitely always want to be working with kids. I have always known that I wanted to directly work with kids, and that won't change for me," said Moreira. "I would love to be here for 22 years like Dottie, and I hope that happens."

Councillors Seek Info On Furnace Ave. Land Purchase

Question $485,000 Purchase Of West Quincy Property As Part Of Capital Improvement Plan

By SCOTT JACKSON

When the council returns from its summer recess in September, councillors will be asking for the Koch administration to explain the $485,000 purchase of a West Quincy property.

The city purchased the 43,480 square-foot parcel at 20 Furnace Ave. in April from realtor Daniel Flynn. The money for the purchase came from Mayor Tom Koch's $25 million Capital Improvement Plan (CIP). The City Council didn't take a vote on the purchase, something Finance Committee Chairman Joe Finn thinks should've happened.

"I think [Koch] is required to come before the council," Finn said. "I plan to ask for the administration to come before the council for this and for an update on the CIP."

Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Koch, said the mayor is eager to clarify the issue with councillors.

"This is a land purchase that was sought and discussed for several years as part of flood-relief plans for residents in this neighborhood, and it is going to make a real difference that is long overdue. We are very much looking forward to clarifying any issues councillors may have," Walker told The Sun Tuesday.

City Solicitor Jim Timmins contends the purchase was brought up when the CIP was discussed in the spring of 2011. Because of that, the administration didn't need the council to vote again, he said.

"It did go in front of the council as part of the presentation for the CIP," Timmins said. "We think that it was voted on by the council."

Finn said that he couldn't remember the purchase being specifically discussed. He added that if it was discussed, the administration should've come before the council for another vote when it was ready to buy the land.

"Nowhere in that (presentation), to the best of my knowledge, was there any reference to that site," Finn said. "One would think they would still need to come before the council."

Because they didn't seek council approval this spring, the administration could've run afoul of state laws that require approval for such purchases, according to Councillor Doug Gutro. Gutro said he intends to question the solicitor on that point, and on others he's received from concerned residents.

"I'm looking forward to it coming before the council," Gutro said. "I've received a number of calls and gotten questions on it."

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci represents the Furnace Avenue neighborhood. Palmucci said he remembered the purchase being discussed when the CIP was presented to the council. Even before that, there were different attempts to purchase the land — the first was led by then-Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis and another by neighbors who tried to use Community Preservation Act (CPA) funds to buy the land.

"This is a parcel of land that the neighbors attempted to get the city to purchase for flood relief purposes. It wasn't the first time this was on the table. It was always contemplated," Palmucci said.

Flooding has been an issue in the neighborhood, and Palmucci hosted a series of meetings, detailing ongoing flood relief efforts. During those meetings, city engineers did discuss the plan to purchase the Furnace Avenue property.

"This was well-known to myself and the residents of West Quincy; it was discussed on at least two occasions at public meetings," Palmucci said. "What's surprising is that some people are surprised by it."

Palmucci said that none of his colleagues on the council, except for Gutro, attended any of those meetings. Gutro couldn't remember whether or not it was discussed at the meeting, but said he wouldn't doubt Palmucci's account. Gutro added that he does think the project would be beneficial to the neighborhood.

"I don't have any doubt, especially if the ward councillor and neighbors think it will be a good flood control measure," Gutro said.

The price of the lot is also a point of contention. Despite the $485,000 sale price, the city assessor's office lists the property's value at $135,200. Timmins said the assessor calculates values using the Mass system, which uses citywide parameters instead of parcel specific ones.

Because of that, a separate appraisal was done before the purchase. That appraisal valued the site at $595,000. Several factors made the parcel more valuable than it's assessed value, Timmins said. Flynn purchased the land for $400,000 in 2007, and some engineering was done on the property after that. The parcel is also located just off of I-93, which further increased its appraised price.

"It's commercial real estate visible from the South-east Expressway so it had some value," Timmins said.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee was concerned that the land would be valued at only $135,200 when a realtor like Flynn purchased the land for almost three times that amount.

"I think there's a lot of data points here that don't make sense. The city council needs to get clarity," McNamee said. "I don't understand how someone who makes his living in real estate can buy a parcel of land for $400,000 and the city can value it for so much less. That makes me very concerned about how many other commercial properties are undervalued."

Finn and Gutro both said they'd fielded a number of calls about the differing values for the property.

"Some taxpayers think it's strange that there's such a drastic difference in the appraisals," Finn said. "One of the questions that needs to be answered is why the price difference."

"The final question is over the value of the land — the assessed value versus the appraised value versus what was paid," Gutro said. "It deserves an answer."

Palmucci declined to comment on the difference in values, saying he would need to review the appraisal documents first.

AAA: Gasoline Prices Unchanged

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts remain the same, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's Aug. 27th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.739 per gallon, same price as last week. Prices locally are up 18 cents over the past month.

The current price is two cents below the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.75. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.61.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 27 cents, from a low of $3.62 to a high of $3.89. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Flynn said he intended to develop the property when he purchased it five years ago. But neighborhood residents, citing flood concerns, opposed the project during the permitting process. Because he couldn't get permits, Flynn decided to sell the land to the city to allow flood control work to go forward.

"I tried to get permits for the building but the neighbors came out against me," Flynn said. "I decided it was in their best interest to let them do flood control."

Eventually, a pump station will be built on the lot, though funds for the station itself aren't in the CIP. Timmins said the site was chosen because it's located above the neighborhood's baseline and is paved but not further developed.

Significant Development At Marina Bay

By BRIAN McNAMEE
Ward 6 City Councillor

To keep residents informed of what promises to be a significant development proposal for Marina Bay here are some highlights of the presentation that was made to Marina Bay residents by the developer Aug. 22.

This entire development effort will take a number of years. For the first phase alone, permitting, design, and eventual completion of construction will take us out to 2016. Phase II will commence sometime in 2017.

This development effort will be a joint venture between Flagship Marinas, Redgate Development Consulting, and other limited partners. All development partners have extensive track records in high-end development with successful occupancy and lease results. Some of the projects mentioned were South Boston's Seaport World Trade Center, Clarendon Street Apartments, Fan Pier, and Copley Place. The demographic audience targeted by the development proposal is 25 to 35 year olds and "empty nesters".

The property to be developed under phase I will be the Ocean Club at Marina Bay. This parcel will be the site of 257 luxury apartments. There will be one building with two roof-top court yards at the second floor level. There will be one level of parking at street level and one level below grade. The buildings will be seven stories tall. Along the board walk commercial space will be available for restaurants, boutiques, and businesses that will support the needs of building residents. The building will be built in such a way that the architectural design will make it impossible to distinguish between the front or back of the building.

Phase II will commence sometime in 2017 and will include the two boat storage sheds that are next to one another across the street from the Ocean Club at Marina Bay. The second building will have 207 apartments and be thematically similar in design to the Phase I building.

All development for both phases I and II will be done within the existing legal envelope for Business C Zoning Districts. No dimensional relief is being sought.

The apartments to be constructed will be mostly studios and one bedrooms with a smaller number of two bedrooms. The apartments will range in size between 700 and 1,100 square feet. All apartments will be appropriately amenitized, and possess the highest standards of fit and finish to permit the developer the option to convert to condominiums at a later date. The rents are expected to be amongst the highest in the City of Quincy topping out at $2.50 a square foot. The projects affordable housing requirements are expected to be fulfilled off-site with the developer's contribution to the City's affordable housing trust.

The challenges that need to be addressed by the developer are numerous. For there to be a successful accommodation of all interests the public's input is essential. The Marina, Quincy's premier mixed-use development, is a very delicate economic "eco-system" with many diverse and competing interests. The various interests can sometimes clash and, at times, harmonize. No one wants to hurt or impair the economic success that has already been enjoyed by the Marina with an out of scale or poorly planned development effort.

The Development team needs to insure adequate parking for their parcels while, at the same time, not ignoring parking capacity that they once provided to the board walk. To proceed with narrow interests in this regard could hurt what makes the Marina a desirable place to visit and live – specifically, ease of access to the board walk and the businesses. The project's density and the traffic impacts need to be studied and understood fully before any permits are granted. This also includes traffic impacts that are expected to effect businesses and residents during construction.

Traffic, Security Concerns Aired At Marina Bay Meeting

are running quite nicely today at Marina Bay. They remain at the same level, or right around the same level of better than good, internally," said Warwick. "Externally the two pitch points leaving Commander Shea, the left turn that you make, and you hit some queuing there to get on the infamous Neponset River Bridge, that will remain pretty much like it is now.

"We are adding one to two trips there per minute, and it's a three percent change pretty much over all. It's that location that remains in a challenge condition. The other spot is Quincy Shore Drive when you make that right and that will remain in the same condition that you have today. There is a three percent increase at that intersection with our impact."

Some residents were concerned that renting the luxury apartments would cause security issues.

"Renting is no longer a dirty word. Renting is a thing of the future and it is here to stay," said Warwick. "Empty nesters are renting, the Y generation, the demographic of 25 to 35 year olds are renting. The rental market is really the only viable market right now, and we think we have one of the best sites to take advantage of that dynamic."

Marina Bay resident Gary Grey said he was concerned that there would be an increase in traffic and a lack of security that might come with the project.

"With all do respect we've talked to the Quincy police department before about traffic control and traffic enforcement, and the answer we've gotten back historically is that this is private property and it's not their responsibility," said Grey. "They do come down here periodically but it's a courtesy, not a requirement. So we are adding 600 new cars, my unit faces Victory Road, so traffic right now is a nightmare on Friday and Saturday nights, from not just The Tent but all the retail space, and you're adding new retail space, so the traffic (will be) enormous. It still looks like there is only one way in and one way out, and that's up Victory Road. So I am just wondering what the thoughts are around the security."

Warwick said that he believes the security would be better with the type of residents they plan to attract.

"Security is dealt locally with security cameras at every corner that will look down every side of the building; there is card reader access into the building. I think that security will be better with more density and more people, and the type of people we are attracting to our development," said Warwick.

"This will be a safer place than it is now because you are getting rid of something that attracts maybe other people to this area. So, I would bet you that it is going to be a safer place."

Harbor Side resident Karen Davis asked developers to look into being able to work with owners of the DCR Squantum Point Park lot to try and open it for longer hours and to more people.

"This is the white elephant in the room," said Warwick. "There are 800 plus spaces there. We have had a meeting with DCR and they're very open to ideas as far as activation. They want more people to come down and activate their park. They are very open to a lot of options out there."

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee said that the company shouldn't rely on the state owned parking lot for parking spaces.

"They cannot promise to the public that they can make this work on the back of a state owned parking lot," McNamee told the Sun in a phone interview after the meeting. "The DCR lot is a state asset that is there to encourage recreation in Squantum Point Park. It is not going to be easy for them to depart from their mission, which is environmental, and recreation."

"I am concerned about their over promising of parking relief as it relates to that lot. This project has got to stand on its own with out regard to that parking lot. They seem to be able to produce a plan that has parking supported for activities on their properties."

Overall, McNamee said he believes his constituents are receptive to the proposal, and they are happy with the company's willingness to solve issues.

"There seems to be some receptivity of the proposal. It is too early to say how they really feel considering it was the first night for them to really see the proposal," said McNamee. "The company has been approaching the situation with a spirit to solve common problems, a willingness to solve common problems. There is still a lot of planning that needs to be done."

Beal/Street-Works Appoints Jones Lang LaSalle Leasing Agent For New Downtown Office Space Selected

Beal/Street-Works, the partnership between The Beal Companies and Street-Works Development to co-develop 50 acres in Quincy Center, have appointed Jones Lang LaSalle as the exclusive leasing agent for the office and medical office space as part of the downtown's redevelopment project.

This component represents 1.1 million square feet of the 3.5 million square foot mixed-use urban revitalization in the heart of downtown Quincy.

The $1.6 billion redevelopment plan is a historic private/public partnership with the City of Quincy. A neighborhood of offices in five buildings, comprising approximately 700,000 square feet of retail, two new hotels, 1,400 residential units, and multiple new parking garages providing 5,000 public parking spaces, will all be anchored by an expanded public space, called Adams Green, and a new visitor's center that will highlight Quincy's role as the birthplace of two American presidents.

The 1.1 million square feet of new state-of-the-art green office and medical office space will be a destination for health care, life sciences, higher education institutions, and other office tenants.

According to officials associated with the redevelopment, all permits for the 50 acre and 20 city-block project are in place, infrastructure improvements are underway, and groundbreaking is expected to begin in mid-2013.

"The Quincy Center redevelopment is the right project at the right time," said the Beal Companies Senior Vice President Stephen Faber. "It represents a tremendous opportunity to give Quincy new life, and it is in our office program where we find the real exciting prospects for transformation."

"Rather than just putting up buildings, we plan to create an environment where medical institutions can utilize the latest in technology and consumer trends to redefine how they interact with patients. We look forward to working with Jones Lang LaSalle to realize this vision."

Street-Works Managing Partner Ken Narva added:

"Overall, our program will bring Class A office space to downtown Quincy, a market which has been underserved in the past. The possibility for connectivity between our two signature office towers will provide a potential floor plate of up to 60,000 square feet. We are excited to get this program underway with the expertise of Jones Lang LaSalle on board."

"Jones Lang LaSalle is excited to be partnering with the visionary team of Beal Companies and Street-Works on this marque assignment," Jones Lang LaSalle Executive Vice President Tom Kent said. "Beal Cos.' long experience in building and managing large scale properties throughout Greater Boston, combined with Street-Works expertise in high profile urban strategies, positions new Quincy Center for a bright and successful future. They have made important progress toward creating a vibrant mixed-use destination, and making the City of Quincy truly a 24-hour city."

O'Connell-Thomson Annual Basketball Tournament A Success

By SEAN BRENNAN

The 7th annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament held the weekend of Aug. 18-19 at the Quincy High gymnasium and at the Fenno Street Courts in Merrymount Park, once again showed that the Quincy community has not forgotten two young sons who tragically lost their lives the past eight years.

Played every summer for the past seven years, this two-day event, which features some of the best high school, collegiate and former basketball talent in the area is held in memory of John "Okie" O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two star athletes who graduated from North Quincy High School in 2002. This annual August tradition helps raise funds for memorial scholarships in O'Connell and Thomson's name to benefit recent high school graduates. It has also become a way for family, friends, former classmates, local businesses and total strangers to continue to do what they can to keep the memory of both men alive.

This year's tournament, according to co-organizer Dan Duggan — a former classmate/teammate of O'Connell and Thomson — raised close to $2,500, bringing the seven-year total to nearly $20,000, which will continue to be split between the scholarships funds each family has created at NQHS.

"This was our seventh year and it continues to be a gratifying event for us," Duggan said on Monday. He along with James Finn began this tournament as a way to honor their former teammates and friends. "We are a pretty established tournament these days and this year everything was better."

"It was really the best of both worlds," continued Duggan. "Because of rain on Saturday we had to move the first day of games into the QHS gymnasium, and thanks to School Committee Member Dave McCarthy and the Quincy High custodial staff, that day went off without a hitch. On Sunday we had a beautiful day and brought the event back outside to the Fenno Street Courts. We ended up raising (an estimate) $2,500."

Duggan acknowledged that the annual hoop tournament would not be possible without the support of local basketball players who are willing to give up a summer weekend to come to Quincy and play two days of games — there were 16, ten-members team competing this year — but the O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament would be nowhere without the support and generosity of local residents and businesses.

"The outpouring of local support really means a lot to us and I know it means a lot to their families," said Duggan. "We received support from the community through raffle donations and sponsorships and without that we could not have held such a successful event. This is a good cause and we are now rolling in our seventh year; we are going to continue doing it as long as we can."

The sponsors of the 2012 O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament included Mayor Thomas Koch, Atty. George Burke, City Councillor Doug Gutro, Norfolk County District Atty. Michael Morrissey, Chris Herren, Anthony Tufo, Jim and Flo Buhl, Dan Conway, Mike Mitchell, Gina Scanlan, the McGillicuddy Family, the Pizzi Family, the Narbonne Family, Patricia Downing, The Boston Herald, West Elm Variety, PJ Kennedy & Sons.

The Irish Pub, Bridget's Dance Studio, The Beachcomber, Seaport Boston Hotel, TD Garden, Sissy K's, JJ Foley's Café, Boston Beer Garden, Konditor Meister, Quincy Athletic Club, The Four's, The Chantey, Port 305, Granite Rail Tavern, Southside Tavern, Atlantic Beer Garden, The Playwright, The Whiskey Priest, O.B.'s Café, Salvatore's, Balducci's, Babycakes, Dairy Freeze, Kitty O'Shea's, Howl at the Moon, Tulsi Talan Loft, The Place, Clarke's at Faneuil Hall, Inner Peace Energies, TSNY Beantown, and Quincy's Real Deals.

This tournament's mission goal is to raise money for scholarship funds in memory of both men, but it also includes some serious basketball competition. The level of hoops continues to improve as the years pass as the O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament has turned into a coveted draw with teams coming to Quincy to be crowned champion.

"The level of basketball continues to get better and better," said Duggan. "We had current and former collegiate players here and there are always former high school players and current players who come out to compete."

This year Duggan and Finn had to scrap the women's tournament due to scheduling conflicts, but added a four-team high school bracket to fill that void.

In the men's event, there was a familiar team at the top of the podium when all was said and done. A team captained by Quincy-native David Jaehnig won the men's bracket. It was the fourth time in seven years that the former Boston College High School and Westfield State standout had led his team to the O'Connell-Thomson championship.

Jaehnig's team included Dennis Magaldi, Ian Jorgensen, Mark Jaehnig, Alex Loughnane, Derek Leab, Chris Kinback and Matt Devine.

Jaehnig's team, and actually every team, did not have an easy route to the title, as the tournament was always ongoing. Teams began playing games at 10 a.m. on Saturday and the finals were not held until late Sunday evening, which makes for a long weekend of hoops. It is ultra-competitive but every participant understands that the games are a small part of what the two-day event is all about.

"I continue to be impressed by the amount of players who give up their weekend to help this cause," said Duggan. "Everyone had a great experience but everyone also understands that what it is all about is keeping their memory alive."

New this summer was the inclusion of a four-team high school tournament. Teams from Quincy and North Quincy High along with a team from Boston College High School took part, and when all was said and done a team made up of Red Raiders took the top spot.

O'Connell and Thomson were basketball stars while playing for North Quincy. Thomson, a three-sport athlete in football, basketball and baseball, was killed by a drunk driver in 2004 while stationed in Mississippi as a his passing, Westfield State established the John "Okie" O'Connell Award, which is given annually to an outstanding student-athlete who best represents O'Connell's well known sportsmanship and athleticism.

The Quincy Vietnam Combat Veterans are holding their 1st annual Golf Tournament on Sept. 24 at Presidents Golf Course beginning at 7:30 a.m. Fee is $125 per person or $500 per foursome and includes breakfast, green fees, cart, prizes, and a lunch buffet at the Morrisette American Legion Post.

This group dedicates their time to honor the 48 men of Quincy who died in Vietnam, in addition to supporting all local veterans' activities.

If interested in playing, sponsoring a hole or tee box or just making a donation in memory of a veteran or donating a raffle please contact Larry Norton at lmnorton518@aol.com or Nancy Connolly at nancy1111cc@msn.com.

Recreation Department's Arts & Crafts Competition

CO-WINNER: SQUANTUM, "CONSTRUCTION MIKE WAZOWSKI"

The Quincy Recreation Department's annual summer Arts & Crafts display at City Hall Plaza saw a big turnout with a large number of ballots cast from both the playgrounds and the public. The city's youngsters, along with their Recreation Leaders, worked very hard creating their projects, which made for a close contest.

Once the final results were tabulated history was made. For the first time since the Arts & Crafts event has been held, there was a tie for both first place and fourth place. The co-winners were "Olympics" created by Forbes Hill, and "Construction Mike Wazowski," made by Squantum. "The Lorax," created by Faxon playground came in third place, and tying for fourth place was "Boston Sports Express," made by Heron Road and Marylou's Cup," created by Montclair.

Arts & Crafts Specialists Taylor Dennehey, Shelly Donovan and Ashley Kostka organized this summer's display.

The Recreation Leaders from Forbes Hill were Tyler Braun, Kara Reardon, and Colin Ryan, while participants Conor and Chris Donaghey, as well as Johnny Norton spent many hours creating "Olympics." Recreation Leaders from Squantum were Katelyn Layden, CO-WINNER: FORBES HILL, "OLYMPICS"

FOURTH PLACE: HERON ROAD, "BOSTON SPORTS EXPRESS"

Colin Shea and Dom Venuti, with participants Dawn Folan, Mikey Adamson and

Tim Layden helping to create "Construction Mike Wazowski."

Faxon's "Lorax" was created by Nick Cedrone, Maggie Will and Paul Martin under the direction of Recreation Leaders Nick Block, Emily Canavan and Seamus Keaveny. VOICE FOR HEALTH

CHILDREN BEARING HEAVY LOADS

While it is certainly commendable to see children who take their schoolwork seriously, a backpack overloaded with books poses certain health risks. Carrying around a pack that exceeds 15% of a child's weight causes poor posture and possible back pain, and may even lead to muscle strain and spasm. Habitually carrying a backpack by a single strap on one shoulder further complicates matters as muscles compensate for the uneven weight. A heavy backpack also compromises balance, which increases the risk of falls. Furthermore, excessive stress on the vertebral joints may lead to longer-term consequences that may arise later in life. With all this in mind, weigh your child's filled backpack, and make sure that it is being worn properly.

At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, our mission is to help sick and disabled children back to health through chiropractic care. For effective chiropractic care, call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and find the relief that chiropractic natural health care can give you. We are located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Children often neglect to hitch the belt strap on their backpacks, which is designed to transfer the load evenly to their hips.

Recreation's City Wiffle Ball Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department held its annual Wiffle Ball Tournament at the Montclair School in North Quincy back on July 27. Youngsters from across the city came together to showcase their skills, all with the goal of bringing the title of City Champion back to their respective parks. Sports Specialists Paul Carson, Eddie Grennon and Meg Therrien ran the event.

In the Midget Division, Beechwood and Squantum matched up in the championship round. In a highly competitive game that needed extra innings to decide a winner, it was Beechwood who scored first in extras and held on with great defensive play to claim the title. Matt Kelly (Beechwood) and Mikey Adamson (Squantum) both played well for the respective teams.

In the Junior Division, Forbes Hill played Fenno Street for the city championship. Connor Donaghey led Forbes Hill through a gauntlet of talented teams, including another team captained by his twin brother Chris, to reach the championship game, but in the end Kyle Murphy's seven first inning RBI and masterly pitching helped Fenno Street to the top.

In the Senior Division, Montclair battled through a tough field of teams to reach the final game, having to win two games in a row to beat the team from Forbes Hill. Underdogs from the start, Montclair took the first game in decisive fashion behind a dominant pitching performance by Kevin McDonald. But in the winner-take-all second game, Forbes Hill's Josh Helfrich put on an impressive pitching display that quieted Montclair and ensured victory for his park.

Racer Overcame Adversity To Reach Medal Stand Billy Allen Earned Bronze At OSY-400 Championship

Quincy's own Billy Allen captured a bronze medal at the 2012 Union of Motorboating Outboard Stock Yamato-400 World Championships back on Aug. 4 in Kriebstein, Germany.

The OSY-400 class is the most popular class of powerboat racing in the world. Allen and his fellow competitors utilized a 25hp (horse power) Japanese-built Yamato outboard racing engine on an eleven-foot plywood or composite hull. The entire rig combined with the driver, weighed in at less than 400 pounds and was capable of speeds over 65 miles per hour. At the World Championship competition, four separate heats of six laps were run with the drivers lowest scores being discounted for the final points standings.

In an event that featured racers from all corners of the globe – many whose boats were corporately and nationally-sponsored with full time staff and paid crews – Allen, the only American driver in the field, ran the fastest time in elimination heat A at 4:59.88 in a boat he built in his basement in Squantum, giving him the all-important pole position in heat 1 of the four-heat feature final.

Following a restart in the first heat of the World Championship, a heat that saw Allen out to a commanding lead before a crash between 2009 World Champion Miroslav Bazinsky from Slovakia and Igor Vallisa from Italy halted the race, Allen finished second behind defending champion Sten Kalder. Allen gave Kalder all he could handle in heat 2, but just didn't have enough as the Quincy native took a second straight second place finish with two heats to go.

Allen ran into some serious boat trouble in heat 3. Kalder, once again, took an early advantage over the field and Allen, slowing down a pin two to attempt to keep a tight corner, caught the front end of his craft in a wake and his boat went into a spin and barrel rolled sending him into the lake where he was struck by German driver Adrian Bernd who was rounding the corner near the middle of the pack. Although unhurt – the same couldn't be said about his boat – Allen was unable to compete in the restart and was seemingly out of the medal stand picture because of significant boat damage to the combings, airtraps, bottom and chine, but what the rest of the field failed to realize was the resilience and resolve of Allen and friends.

As Allen's U.S.A-Team boat was brought into the pit area, Allen and his crew, with the help of many of their competitors' crews, especially Germany's Team-33, began assessing the damaged hull. The decision was made to get the boat repaired and engine dried out and readied for heat 4 – luckily, the last heat was two hours later. With wood, generators, air compressors and power tools, Allen and friends went to work, and after completing boat repair and engine drying, officials were called to the pit and gave the go-ahead for Allen and his boat to compete in heat 4.

Starting on last grid, and needing at least a seventh place finish to reach the medal stand, Allen methodically began picking off boats one by one as the six-lap heat ticked away. With the finish in sight, he decided to the pass to gain the seventh spot to earn the bronze.

5th Annual Cochrane Road Race Sept. 9

The 5th Annual Officer Jamie Cochrane Memorial Road Race – a 10K Road Race/5K Fun Walk – will be held on Sunday, Sept. 9 at 10 a.m. sharp with registration from 8-9:30 a.m. at Adams Field, Merrymount Parkway. There will be a Free Kids Fun Run at 9 a.m.

The race is held every year in memory of Officer Jamie Cochrane "S6," an eight-year Quincy Police Veteran who spent most of his career in the Special Operations Unit. He was a kindhearted police officer who always went the extra mile. On Sept. 10, 2006, Officer Cochrane was killed was riding his motorcycle.

All proceeds from the road race/fun walk will go to various local charities.

There is a $25 entry fee and online registration can be done through Sept. 6 at www.racewire.com. The first 700 registrants receive a free race t-shirt. Pre-registration and bib # pickup will be held on Sat., Sept. 8 at Adams Field from 2-5 p.m.

The flat course, including three miles of beachfront road, is USATF Certified, and RaceWire will do official timing. Prizes will be awarded to all 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place division finishers.

Please mail your $25 non-refundable check, made payable to The Cochrane Road Race, to: Cochrane Road Race, PO Box 690268, Quincy, MA 02269-0268.

The Quincy Police Department and Eastern Bank sponsor this year's race.

Residents Walking In Annual Jimmy Fund Walk

Nineteen Quincy residents will walk up to 26.2 miles along the historic route of the Boston Marathon on Sept. 9 in the 24th annual Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk presented by Hyundai. They will be among the 9,000 walkers expected to participate with the collective goal of raising more than $7.5 million to support lifesaving adult and pediatric patient care and cancer research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

The Jimmy Fund Walk is the largest single-day participatory event benefiting the Jimmy Fund and Dana-Farber and has raised nearly $80 million since its inception in 1989 to conquer all forms of cancer. The Boston Athletic Association has supported the Walk for the past 24 years.

"Every year, the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk united thousands of people – from parents, neighbors, co-workers, cancer patients, cancer survivors, and young and the old – who share a goal to bring an end to cancer," said Ann Beach, director of the Walk. "Their dedication and commitment to fundraising for the event enables Dana-Farber to aggressively pursue its life-saving mission."

All walkers must raise a minimum of $300, and walkers 12 years old and younger have a minimum of $100. To register for the 24th annual Jimmy Fund Walk, to support a local walker, or to volunteer, visit www.JimmyFundWalk.org or call 866-531-9255; registrants can enter the discount code BOSTON for $5 off the registration fee.

The following Quincy residents have already signed up:

Bob Benn, Jillian Benn, Meron Bereket, Kathleen Brown, Katie Bryer, Jacquelyn Callahan, Julie George, Deirdre Kilcommons, Maureen Lacascia-Ng, Sarah Lewis, Lindy Morde, Jackie Murphy, Kevin Ng, Joseph Priscella, Denise Renaghan, Patricia Storer, Ray Theberge, Megan Therrien, and Laurel Wainwright.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might not like the sudden setback in your plans. But keep that headstrong Arian temperament in check and wait for explanations. Things will begin to clear up by week's end.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Enjoy the respite from your recent hectic schedule, but be ready to plunge into a new round of social activities. A new contact holds much potential for the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A trusted colleague has news that could change your perception of a current workplace situation. What had seemed unfair might prove to be highly favorable after all.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You still need to watch what you say and how you say it. What you assert as honesty, others might perceive as Crabbiness. Be patient. This difficult period clears up by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your Royallness needs time away from the limelight to catch up on things, from tidying your desk to making those calls you've put off. You're back in the center of things by the weekend.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Honesty is the best policy, of course. But you'll do better at achieving your goals if you can be less aggressive and more circumspect in how you phrase your comments.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your ability to maintain your balance in confusing situations continues to work for you. Stay on the steady course, one step at a time. The weekend shows improvement.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your indecisiveness could simply be your keen Scorpian sense warning you to be wary of making a commitment. Take this time to do a more thorough investigation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Good news: New information comes your way to help you make a more informed decision on how to deal with the opportunity that has opened up for you.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This is a good time to reinforce your self-confidence by acknowledging your good qualities to yourself. A lull in your social life ends by the weekend. Have fun.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to let those recently pent-up emotions flow more freely. Why not start by letting the people you care for know how you really feel about them?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Resist offers, no matter how well-intentioned, to help with a personal decision. Only you know what must be done, and you have the emotional strength to follow through.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for getting things done. You also have a gift for bringing people together in both personal and professional relationships.

OBITUARIES

Ellen Barbara DeWolfe

Retired School Teacher, Assistant Principal

Ellen Barbara DeWolfe of Langdon Place, Exeter, N.H., formerly of Quincy and retired school teacher and assistant principal, died Aug. 19.

Born Sept. 5, 1918 in Boston, Ms. DeWolfe lived and worked most of her life in Quincy.

After graduating from Quincy High School, she went on to earn a Bachelors degree from Bridgewater State College and a Masters degree from Boston University in Education. A beloved teacher, she taught and was an Assistant Principal in the Quincy School System for 50 years.

During her off time, Ms. DeWolfe was actively involved in her community, volunteering for the Quincy Historical Society and Rosie's Place among others. She was also an avid bowler and card player which she did often with friends.

When not in Quincy, she enjoyed traveling, journeying to every continent on earth. In her later years she moved to New Hampshire to be closer to her sister Eunice and her family.

She is survived by many nieces and nephews.

Private services were held at the convenience of the family.

Arrangements were made by the Funeral Brewitt Funeral Service, 14 Pine St., Exeter, N.H.

Memorial donations may be made to the Quincy Retired Teachers Association Scholarship Fund, 47 Sturtevant Rd., Quincy, MA 02169.

Work Incentives For Labor Day

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

This Labor Day, many Americans commemorate the fruits of their hard work by taking a day off from it. There will be gatherings and games, barbecues, and baseball. Labor Day was established in 1882, and it has become an American tradition to celebrate with family and friends.

For many Americans who receive Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability benefits, Labor Day can be a good day to think about the future. It may be that, in spite of your disabling condition, you would like to attempt to work. But perhaps you're apprehensive because you don't want to find out you're not quite up to the task and risk losing your benefits and critical medical coverage.

We have good news for you: our work incentives can help you go to work without the worry.

Work incentives include:

- Continued cash benefits for a period of time while you work;
- Continued Medicare or Medicaid while you work; and
- Help with education, training, and rehabilitation to start a new line of work.

For example, a trial work period allows you to test your ability to work for at least nine months without affecting your benefits. Beyond that, an extended period of eligibility allows you to work another 36 months and still receive benefits, depending on your earnings. If your benefits stopped because your earnings were too high, but you find that your disabling condition does not allow you to stick with the job, you're eligible for expedited reinstatement without having to complete a new application.

If you are successful at returning to work, but you fear the loss of your medical coverage, here's more good news. You can continue to get Medicare Part A for at least 7 years after your cash benefits end, and after that you can buy Medicare Part A coverage by paying a monthly premium. Through it all, you can opt to continue paying your Medicare Part B premium for that additional coverage.

In addition to these incentives, you also may be interested in the Ticket to Work program, which may be able to help you receive vocational rehabilitation, training, job referrals, and other employment support services free of charge.

This Labor Day, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/work to learn more. Or read our publication, Working While Disabled—How We Can Help, available at <http://www.ssa.gov/pubs/10095.html>.

Church Bake Sale To Benefit Local Homeless Children

Houghs Neck Congregational Church is seeking donations of baked goods for its upcoming bake sale to benefit Project Access, which provides assistance to the 180 Quincy Public Schools students who are homeless or in transition.

To be held from 2 to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 15 at the annual Houghs Neck Chowdapest at the community Maritime Center, the bake sale will help support Project Access's efforts to provide school supplies and backpacks to local children who are homeless or in transition. The program also pays sports participation and field trip fees for the children.

Donations of small baked goods — such as cookies, brownies and other dessert squares — are particularly appreciated. Cookies may be packaged six to a bag, while brownies or squares may be packaged four to a bag. Items that contain nuts should be clearly labeled as such for those who have food allergies.

Donations of baked goods may be dropped off between noon and 2 p.m. Sept. 15 at the Maritime Center, located at 137 Bayview Ave., Quincy. Monetary donations are also appreciated.

For more information on donating baked goods or the bake sale, contact Gayle Mackay at gaylemackay@comcast.net or Sue Rheault at 617-479-2311.

A Job Well Done

On Friday, Aug. 17, at approximately 3:05 p.m., Officer Scott Smith and his K-9 partner, Bruno, were en route to a detail on Whiton Avenue. As they drove south on Hancock Street at Granite Street, Officer Smith observed that traffic was stopped in all directions, yet there was no obvious reason why.

The officer then heard a male screaming incoherently. To his immediate left there was an eighteen wheel dump truck stopped and there was a male standing in the street near the driver's door. This male was screaming incoherently and flailing his fists in the air as he attempted to punch the truck.

At this point, Officer Smith made a u-turn and parked his cruiser, then yelled from the window to the suspect to get out of the street and walk to the curb area. As the suspect paused for a moment, Officer Smith began exiting his cruiser. Suddenly, the suspect ran directly at the cruiser, hitting the driver side door with both hands, pushing Officer Smith back into the seat as the door struck his left foot which was on the ground.

Officer Smith tried to reopen the door but the suspect, who was rambling incoherently, slammed it shut. The Officer ordered the suspect to step away from the cruiser, but the suspect began pounding on the window and the roof of the cruiser. The suspect was warned by the Officer that if he didn't stop immediately, the K-9 would be released and he may be bit. The suspect stopped and stepped back, which gave the officer a chance to exit the cruiser. The officer then removed his K-9 and faced the suspect, who had clenched his fists and took up a fighting stance, moving in the officer's direction.

Officer Smith ordered the suspect to stop or he would be bit. The suspect did not comply, so Officer Smith, concerned that he was about to be attacked, deployed K-9 Bruno to apprehend the suspect. K-9 Bruno went after the suspect, making contact to the suspect's right ankle above the foot, knocking him to the ground. As Officer Smith attempted to get control of the suspect to handcuff him, he continued to struggle, punching the K-9 twice in the head with a closed fist.

After the second punch, K-9 Bruno released the bite on the ankle and made contact with the suspect's right arm. At this point, with assistance from a passing civilian, Officer Smith was able to handcuff the suspect. Once handcuffed, K-9 Bruno released his hold and was returned to the cruiser. Additional officers arrived on scene moments later.

The suspect was transported to the station where he was treated by Fallon Ambulance X-Ray 2. His injuries did not require hospital treatment.

The suspect, a 20 year-old Weymouth resident, was charged with assault and battery by means of a dangerous weapon (car door), assault and battery on a Police Officer, disorderly person, resisting arrest and assault and battery on a police dog. After booking, photos were taken of the dog bites. It was at this time that the suspect told officers that he also had a bite to his left inner thigh.

Nice Work . . . and thanks to the citizen for stepping up and jumping in to help the officer!

QUINCY POLICE OFFICER Ralph Radzevich retired last week, after 15 years. The officer began his career in Community Policing, working in the Quincy Point area. He created "Cooking with Ralph" as part of a youth outreach program in the elementary and middle schools. Chief Paul Keenan described Officer Ralph as a "people person, who strived to make his community better. He was certainly be missed." In the photo, Officer Radzevich stands at the roll call podium as the traditional honorary Supervisor at his last roll call, with Chief Keenan in the background. Good luck Ralph!

"Of course we are disappointed that the board based their votes purely upon the attire of the wait staff," said Fleming. "Right now it is too early to say what we will do, I have to review the options with my clients there are many different options to look at. We have to make a quick decision on whether to appeal the decision."

Fleming said his clients, Waxy's Quincy LLC, have the option of appealing to the ABCC and the superior court, along with other options of changing location or having a different concept.

The board originally voted in favor of the license during a July 17th meeting, but after some review realized that St. John's church, which according to Shea is 534 feet from the proposed restaurant, was not informed of the meeting.

During the two hour hearing over 20 residents spoke to the board voicing their opinions on the restaurant and the attire their waiters and waitresses would be required to wear. The Tilted Kilt - a Las Vegas based restaurant chain - has been likened to a "Scottish Hooters" with wait staff dressed in short plaid kilts and bikini-like tops.

Seventeen people spoke against granting the license, three spoke in favor, and one person spoke as a neutral party, along with a number of different letters that Shea read into the record that were against granting the license. One petition against the license was signed by 398 citizens.

During the meeting, various elected officials, clergy members, and concerned residents spoke. Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, whose ward borders the proposed restaurant, said a vast majority of constituents he'd heard from opposed the Tilted Kilt.

"I have heard and had a lot of emails, telephone calls, in person conversations with folks residing in this district and the opposition is overwhelming," Croall said. "The folks feel that [the way] it was presented initially was sort of deceitful because they were never afforded the opportunity to participate in the License Board hearing."

On top of that, Croall added that the Tilted Kilt's message was the polar opposite of what St. John's preaches.

"We talked about the major religious stakeholder in St. John's," Croall said. "Now here's an institution that's out there promoting love and tolerance and concern for other people and we have a potential applicant whose motif is quite the contrary. I received a phone call this morning from a resident of 45 School St. who had the opportunity, and I use that word loosely, to watch the Tilted Kilt commercial. In her words, and I quote, 'I almost fell out of the chair.'"

St. John's Deacon Paul Lewis also spoke out against the proposal. He said the Tilted Kilt ran counter to the church's beliefs, and shouldn't be located so close to it.

"It goes counter to what our beliefs [are]," Lewis said. "Not to give you a lesson in CCD, but as Christians we believe in the love of God and love of our neighbor and the commandments that God gave us. This is a distortion of why God gave us sex. It's all over the place, but we don't want it in front of St. John's Church."

Lewis was joined in opposition by Fort Square Presbyterian Church Pastor John Culp. Culp said Quincy would lose its soul if it allowed Tilted Kilt to open in the name of promoting business.

"I serve a fellow whose name you know very well - his name is Jesus," Culp said. "Jesus once famously asked 'what shall it benefit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his soul?' I think you can ask a similar question of a community."

Speaking in support of the proposal was Quincy Chamber of Commerce Vice President Donna Mavromates. She read a letter from chamber President Dean Rizzo, saying the board should ignore the restaurant's image in considering the application.

"A great deal has been publicly noted about the name of the restaurant and the proposed attire of the restaurant's staff," the letter read. "This should not be a determining factor in your decision to grant a license. It is important that the Licensing Board applies the same standards and regulations to the Tilted Kilt as it does do to other similar venues in the city."

Thank you Rep. Ron Mariano for protecting quality care and healthcare jobs.

The more than 47,000 healthcare workers of 1199SEIU in Massachusetts want to say thank you to Majority Leader Ron Mariano for ensuring that the recently passed Healthcare Cost Control legislation:

- Protects and expands access to vital community hospitals and health centers
- Allows healthcare workers to access training opportunities to improve quality of care—while preparing for the healthcare jobs of the future
- Provides a strong voice for the healthcare workforce during the legislation's implementation

Thank you to Majority Leader Ron Mariano for listening to frontline caregivers and for standing up for patients and consumers. Our community can be proud of the impact that Majority Leader Ron Mariano had in crafting this important legislation that supports quality healthcare and jobs.

City, Police New Contract

The city and Quincy's police patrol officers have agreed on a new three-year contract that includes conservative salary increases and creates new savings by limiting pay incentives and allowed sick time for future officers, Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday.

The contract will provide raises of 1 percent, 2 percent and 2 percent over its three-year term that starts retroactively on July 1, and it cuts in half the City's obligation to pay for an education incentive known as the "Quinn Bill" for any new officers. The contract also reduces the number of allowed sick days from 18 to 15 and eliminates longevity pay until 20 years of service -- with both provisions affecting newly hired officers.

In a statement issued Tuesday, Mayor Koch cited the contract as another product of an ongoing

Polls Open Today For State Primary

A turnout of about 10 percent of the city's registered voters were expected to go to the polls to cast ballot's in the state primary election today (Thursday).

Polls were open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at polling precincts throughout the city.

There were only two contests to be decided Thursday:

- In the Democratic primary, there was a two-way race for Governor's Councillor between incumbent Christopher Iannella, Jr.

of Boston and Stephen F. Flynn of Hull. The candidate nominated on Thursday will face no opposition in the final election Nov. 6.

- On the Republican ballot, there were two candidates vying for the GOP nomination for Congress in the redrawn 8th District. The city of Quincy is part of that new district. The candidates are Joe Selvaggio of Boston and Matias Temperley of Penn Street in Quincy.

The winner of the Selvaggio-

Gutro, Laforest Resolve At Next Meeting Councillors Seek Status Of Tide Gates, Procedures

By SCOTT JACKSON

In the wake of June flooding that forced the evacuation of 30 homes in a Merrymount neighborhood, city councillors are calling on the administration to detail any changes made to its tide gate policy and procedures.

Tide gates on Blacks Creek had been left open during a storm on June 3rd, and around 11 p.m. the creek overflowed onto Lafayette, Armory, and Putnam Streets.

At-Large Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest will introduce the 'Flood Prevention, Management, Maintenance, and Accountability Resolution' at Monday's council meeting asking the mayor's office to explain how they would prevent a similar flood from occurring in the future.

"We want to find out what was done in terms of protocol, procedures, and training," Gutro said. "I can't imagine the administration hasn't reviewed their policies and procedures — this is an opportunity for the public and the council to hear [those changes]."

The resolution also calls for the administration to create a list of all tide gates in the city, including details on their present condition as well as their repair and possibly replacement schedule — the tide gates on Blacks Creek, for example, are due to be replaced as part of the Mayor Tom Koch's $25 million Capital Improvement Plan.

"We're looking for an inventory of tide gates," Gutro explained. "How many are there in the city, and the location and condition of each."

In May 2008, engineering firm Woodard & Curran created a similar list on all the cities pump stations; the resolution calls for a listing of tide gates comparable to that list.

The 2008 report included information on five storm water pump stations, identified as Alrick Road, Appleton Street, Division Street, Hollis Ave, and the Strand. Gutro and Laforest's resolution calls for an update on any efforts to fix any deficiencies identified in 2008 report; Under the CIP, funds were allocated to repair the Alrick and Division pumps.

"Those stations received some cash," Gutro said. "We want to know what's the status of the work."

Additionally, the resolution asks the mayor's office to list any storm water pumping stations in the city not in the report, and the condition of those.

Gutro Wants T To Explain Plans For Center Garage

Councillor Doug Gutro wants the MBTA to explain its plans for the Quincy Center train station after the structure's garage was closed earlier this summer.

The station's six-story,

872 space parking garage has been closed since July 4 after engineers found the structure to be unsafe because of water damage and concrete deterioration. The Red Line and Commuter Rail terminals below the garage were found to be safe and remain open. Gutro plans on introducing a resolution at Monday's City

MSRLC Voter Registration Drive Sept. 11-12

The Metro Suburban Recovery Learning Community (MSRLC) will host a voter registration drive Tuesday, Sept. 11 and Wednesday, Sept. 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the second floor lobby of the Quincy Mental Health Center building, 460 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

The non-partisan drive will offer registration assistance, information about voting rights for those with mental illness, voter education materials and information about polling locations, transportation, and other election day resources.

MSRLC members, Department of Mental Health (DMH) clients, and the public are encouraged to use this opportunity to register.

Wednesday, Oct. 17 is the last day to register to vote for the Presidential Election Tuesday, Nov. 6.

According to MSRLC, the focus of the voter event is educating and empowering individuals with mental illness.

"Mental illness is often characterized by isolation and withdrawal," MSRLC Program Coordinator John Piselli said. "At the MSRLC, we actively encourage the development of an informed civic-minded individual. We want people with mental illness to have an active voice in their community and government."

South West Neighborhood Meeting Sept. 13

South West Quincy residents are invited to attend the first meeting of a proposed neighborhood association Thursday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Amelia Della Chiesa School Community Room, 100 Brooks Ave., Quincy.

Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes will be the guest speaker.

Residents will discuss the possibility of organizing a neighborhood association.

Hughes represents this area of Quincy after the city's wards were redistricted last year.

All area residents in Ward 5 are welcome to attend and meet Hughes.

Light refreshments will be served.

• On Sept. 13, 1814, Francis Scott Key pens a poem, which is later set to the music of a popular English drinking tune called "To Anacreon in Heaven." In 1931 the song becomes America's national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner."

of the United States is imposed. Registration of men between the ages of 21 and 36 began exactly one month later. There were some 20 million eligible young men - 50 percent were rejected in the first year for health reasons or illiteracy.

• On Sept. 10, 1897, a 25-year-old London taxi driver named George Smith becomes the first person ever arrested for drunk driving. A true breath test didn't come along until 1931 with a device called the Drunkometer. It involved a blow-up balloon and a tube filled with a purple fluid (potassium permanganate and sulfuric acid). Alcohol on a person's breath changed the color of the fluid from purple to yellow; the quicker the change, the drunker the person.

• On Sept. 12, 1953, Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy, the future 35th president of the United States, marries Jacqueline Bouvier in Newport, R.I. Seven years later, the couple would become the youngest president and first lady in American history.

• On Sept. 15, 1978, boxer Muhammad Ali defeats Leon Spinks at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans to win the world heavyweight boxing title for the third time in his career, the first fighter ever to do so. Ali left the sport permanently in 1981.

Famous Political Speeches

How well do you know famous speeches in American history?

The coverage of the Republican and Democratic National Conventions sparked an idea to write a column featuring excerpts from famous political speeches in American history.

There were a lot to choose from but we were able to narrow it down to six. The speeches are considered famous for their message and for their place in history.

At the end of the column, we'll reveal who made the comments and when.

There are also excerpts from two speeches in American history that were never delivered for obvious reasons. We'll also give the background on these two speeches - when they were intended to be given and by whom.

The text of these speeches appears in a book titled Lend Me Your Ears - Great Speeches in History selected and introduced by the late William Safire, well-known American author and longtime political columnist for the New York Times.

A few hints:

All speeches are from the 20th century but the list below is not in chronological order. Also, all speeches were delivered on American soil but one is by a leader of another nation.

Admittedly, the first one is a tough but there are some easy ones, too.

Good luck.

1) "The Democratic Party stands for the people. The Republican Party stands, and always has stood, for special interests. They have proved that conclusively in the record that they made in this 'do-nothing' Congress."

"The Republican party candidates are going around talking to you in high-sounding platitudes trying to make you believe that they themselves are the best people to run the government. Well now, you have had experience with them running the government. In 1920 and 1932, they had complete control of the government. Look what they did to it!"

2) "Together, a president and the people can make a difference. I have found that faith still alive wherever I have traveled across the land. So let us reject the counsel of retreat and the call to reaction. Let us go forward in the knowledge that history only helps those who help themselves."

"There will be setbacks and sacrifices in the years ahead. But I am convinced that we as a people are ready to give something back to our country in return for all it has given us. Let this be our commitment: whatever sacrifices must be made will be shared - and shared fairly. And let this be our confidence at the end of our journey and always before us shines that ideal of liberty and justice for all."

"... For me, a few hours ago, this campaign came to an end. For all those whose cares have been our concern, the work goes on, the cause endures, the hope still lives and the dream shall never die."

3) "It is my duty, however - and I am sure you would not wish me not to state the facts as I see them to you - it is my duty to place before you certain facts about the present position in Europe."

"From Stettin to the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic, an iron curtain has descended across the Continent. Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe ... all these famous cities and populations around them lie in what I might call the Soviet sphere, and all are subject, in one form or another, not only to Soviet influence but to a very high and in some cases increasing measure of control from Moscow."

4) "The oath that I have taken is the same oath that was taken by George Washington and by every president under the Constitution. But I assumed the presidency under extraordinary circumstances never before experienced by Americans. This is an hour of history that troubles our minds and hurts our hearts."

"... I believe that truth is the glue that holds government together not only our government but civilization itself. That bond, though strained, is unbroken at home and abroad ... My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare is over."

5) "We observe today not a victory of a party but a celebration of freedom - symbolizing an end as well as a beginning - signifying renewal as well as change. For I have sworn before you and Almighty God the same solemn oath our forebears prescribed nearly a century and three quarters ago."

"... Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and success of liberty."

6) "This is a day of national consecration."

"I am certain that my fellow Americans expect that on my induction into the presidency I will address them with a candor and a decision which the present situation of our nation impels. This is preeminently the time to speak the truth, the whole truth, frankly and boldly. Nor need we shrink from honestly facing conditions in our country today."

"This great nation will endure as it has endured, will revive and will prosper. So, first of all, let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself - nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror that paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance."

Excerpts from two undelivered speeches

1) "In this administration also it has been necessary at times to issue specific warnings - warnings that we could not stand by and watch the Communists conquer Laos by force, or intervene in the Congo, or swallow West Berlin, or maintain offensive missiles in Cuba. But while our goals were at least temporarily obtained in these and other instances, our successful defense of freedom was not due to the words we used, but to the strength we stood ready to use on behalf of the principles we stand ready to defend."

"... We in this country, in this generation, are - by destiny rather than choice - the watchmen on the walls of world freedom. We ask, therefore, that we may be worthy of our power and responsibility, that we may achieve in our time and for all time the ancient vision of 'peace on earth, good will toward men.'"

2) "Fate has ordained that the men who went to the moon to explore in peace will stay on the moon to rest in peace."

"These brave men, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, know that there is no hope for their recovery. But they also know that there is no hope for mankind in their sacrifice."

"... In their exploration, they stirred the people of the world to feel as one; in their sacrifice, they bind more tightly the brotherhood of man."

"For every human being who looks up at the moon in the nights to come will know that there is some corner of another world that is forever mankind."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1954 postcard published by the Mack Truck Company showing one of the dozens of trailer trucks in the Howard Johnson's fleet. Beginning with a small ice cream shop in Wollaston in 1925, the Howard Johnson's Company had 400 restaurants in 1954. These trucks operated from regional commissaries and distribution centers to keep the restaurants supplied. Even though most of the restaurants were owned by franchisees they had to buy all their products and supplies - over 700 different items - from Howard Johnson's. In 1954, the company expanded into the motor lodge business. Twenty-five years later when the company was sold there were over 1,000 restaurants and 500 motor lodges. Many of the motor lodges still have the Johnson's name, but there is only one restaurant remaining. These once familiar trucks are also long gone. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

McIntyre Proposes Naval Base As NASA Headquarters

Rep. James McIntyre proposed that the nation's space agency (NASA) locate its headquarters in the city at the Squantum Naval Air Station.

In a letter to Sen. Edward Kennedy, McIntyre noted that the site had "all the necessary pre-requisites for the space station," including transportation links to water and rail. Additionally, he pointed out the site's proximity to the scientific and technical personnel in the metro Boston area.

McIntyre said that locating NASA in the city would offset the federal government's failure to maintain full employment in the region because of lack of contracts at the shipyard.

GROSSMAN OFFERS TO PAY FOR HOSPITAL'S EXPANSION

Reuben Grossman, former member of the hospital board of managers, offered to pay for two additional floors to the proposed new wing. He said that the three-story addition was shortsighted and that a five-story addition would provide the 72 rooms that were needed immediately.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said that the estimated cost of the extra two stories was $248,000, more than the $10,000 gift offered by Grossman. He said that a change in the plans could delay the needed expansion of the X-ray department, nursery and obstetrical units that would be contained in the new wing.

SHEA TAKES OUT NOMINATION PAPERS

City Council President Charles Shea took out nomination papers for mayor this week, days before the filing deadline. However, he made no announcement concerning his candidacy. The only candidates filed for mayor were incumbent Della Chiesa and Louis Caruso.

Meanwhile, George Smith, Jr., of Anderson Rd., filed papers for Ward 5 councillor, with school committee candidates Alice Kowalcik, Huckins Ave, and William Nesti of Safford St., filing papers.

READERS FORUM

Ward 5, City-Wide Topics Of Concern

Editor's Note: The a copy of the following letter written to Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes was submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication.

Dear Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes:

These are some of the Ward 5 and city wide topics I hope to discuss with you when you come to Fenno House.

- Could you and Councillor Doug Gutro introduce an appropriations bill to purchase senior crossing signs for all pedestrian traffic crossings used by seniors throughout the city? Similarly, to purchase American with Disabilities Act bump pads for such crossings. I have seen such pads in residential areas where there isn't as much traffic as on Hancock Street. The pads I have seen are a dark brown color; bright yellow would be much better. Traffic Engineer (Jack) Gillan could give you a cost estimate.

- The Wollaston Theater has been recently purchased. Have you contacted the owner as to his plans for the theater?

- There was some discussion of licensing and charging fees for donation bins in the city in order to control the proliferation of bins in the city. I note that more bins have been added to in the parking lot of Hannafords in North Quincy. Are there any such controls in place?

- Have there been any rehab plans announced for the Quincy Center MBTA parking garage?

- I note that the development of Quincy Center is concentrated at the City Hall area and the far end of Hancock Street in downtown. What are the plans for the area in between?

- Recent developments threaten the location of the Quincy Historical Society in the Adams Academy building. Any thoughts on purchasing the building? If the building were to be purchased, the society could use extra space by building an addition to the building. Not only for its library sake but to provide for a climate controlled facility for document storage.

- Any progress in fund raising for the granite workers museum?

- Sometime ago, there was a news article about a truck being stuck under the Red Line bridge crossing Furnace Brook Parkway. A number of trucks have been stuck there. A neighbor stated it was a joke because of all the incidents.

I emailed a copy of the article to Rep. Bruce Ayers. He in turn contacted the legislative liaison for State Department of Conservation and Recreation which is responsible for signage on Furnace Brook Parkway. No signage warning of a low bridge and its height has appeared on the bridge.

As that bridge is in Ward 5, could you take action in this matter?

- When is the demolition of the old Quincy High School slated to take place? Any notion as to what will take its place?

QHS Football Boosters Thank Roxie's, Gennaro's

The Quincy High School Football Boosters would like to thank Roxie's and Gennaro's Eatery as we approach another season.

We cannot start the football season without sending out our gratitude to thank you, for helping us with the deli meats and pasta parties that fed all of our players

- What is the progress in the renovation of old City Hall and Coddington Hall?

- Have there been any actions in the City Council or its committees affecting Ward 5?

- Has the city government considered a program for energy audits for city residents given the apparent effects of climate change we have seen this summer?

I look forward seeing you sometime in the future at Fenno House.

SACRED HEART PARISH recently completed its innovative, sixth annual "Children's Choir-Fest," a weeklong program for children in grades two through eight. This year, 24 children participated in an experience filled with fun, prayer, singing, food, learning, crafts, performance, and even liturgical bingo and a scavenger hunt throughout the church building. The 2012 theme was "Christmas," and centered on the Mark Patterson musical, "Light of the World." Crafts featured puppet making, candle holder decorating, and Christmas pasta wreath creations. Prayer was an important component, with the children attending Mass with the parish community on Monday and Friday, and celebrating the Church's sung Evening Prayer on Thursday evening. The week culminated in a Friday afternoon performance of the musical, along with the singing of a memorable tune from each of previous five years. Following the presentation, the children and their families and all concert-goers were invited to a "make-your-own-sundae."

New Biography Discussion At Adams Academy

Author Harlow Unger On 'John Quincy Adams' Sept. 13

Author Harlow Unger will discuss his new biography, John Quincy Adams, at an event co-hosted by Adams National Historical Park and Quincy Historical Society, Thursday Sept. 13 at 7 p.m., at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

John Quincy Adams served as sixth president of the United States, senator, ambassador to England and Russia, secretary of state, and congressman. In his youth he was witness to key events of the American Revolution and in his senior years, he was a leader in the fight against slavery. Unger's is the first full-length biography of Adams in several years and is the first book intended for a popular audience that expresses a growing historical appreciation of his central role in the development of the early nation. In Unger's words, Adams was "a towering figure in the formative years of the United States."

Unger has written extensively on the American Revolution and the Early Republic, including highly-regarded biographies of James Monroe and Patrick Henry.

John Quincy Adams is his 20th book. A book signing will follow his talk.

The public is welcome to attend. There is no admission charge.

Rev. Vincent Crouse Chaplain For ENC Adult, Grad Studies

Eastern Nazarene College has named Rev. Vincent L. Crouse to the newly created position of full-time chaplain for the college's Adult and Graduate Studies division.

In his new role, Rev. Crouse will serve in ENC's Office of Spiritual Development and Church Relations, providing pastoral and spiritual care to the students, faculty and staff of the Adult and Graduate Studies division, also known as the LEAD program. He will begin his new position in late September.

"Due to the growth we've experienced in the LEAD program, it became clear that there was a need for a full-time chaplain," said Rev. Dr. Corey MacPherson, vice president for Spiritual Development and Church Relations. "Vince's pastoral heart and experience, along with his administrative leadership and connections with area churches and social service agencies, make him an ideal chaplain for ENC's growing Adult and Graduate Studies division."

A Quincy resident, Rev. Crouse most recently served as assistant district superintendent for the New England District of the Church of the Nazarene. He previously served as pastor at Nazarene churches in Brockton, Danvers and Malden, Mass. as well as in Claremont, NH. He has also served as assistant director/admissions counselor for Malden Hospital's Psychiatric Institute.

Active in the community, Rev. Crouse has taught English as a Second Language and been involved with both The Open Door, Inc. and Christians United for Renewal and Evangelism. From 1996 to 2006, he was a member of the board of directors for Brockton Neighborhood Health Center, serving as its president from 2001 to 2004.

An alumnus of Eastern Nazarene College, Rev. Crouse received a bachelor's degree in Psychology and Religion from the college in 1982. He went on to receive a master's degree in Counseling from Northeastern University and a master's degree in Sacred Theology from Boston University School of Theology.

Montclair/ Wollaston Association Meets Oct. 4

Because of the state primary election today (Thursday), the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will hold their opening meeting Thursday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will take place at The Church of the Good Shepherd located at the corner of Harvard and West Squantum Streets.

The Association will not meet Sept. 6 so that members can participate in the election process for the state primary.

More details regarding the October meeting will be published in a future issue of The Quincy Sun.

Chicken Cutlets With Corn Flake Crumbs

A family favorite around our house is a cutlet coated with corn flake crumbs instead of the usual bread crumbs. My mother always used them years ago and would crush the corn flake cereal until they turned to crumbs.

But now we don't need to do that, but in a pinch, we certainly can make them the same way if we want.

Today's recipe is for chicken cutlets with a lemon sauce. I've used boneless, skinless thighs, but any kind of chicken, veal, or pork can be used. They are baked, not fried.

CHICKEN CUTLETS WITH CORN FLAKE CRUMBS
4 chicken thighs
1 egg beaten with a little milk

Salt and pepper to taste

Enough corn flake crumbs to coat

In the egg and milk, place the chicken and then onto the corn flake crumbs coating them generously. Place on a well greased cookie sheet and bake in a 350-degree oven turning once until golden brown. (I use a paper plate for the crumbs for easy clean up.)

FOR THE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon or so of vegetable oil
Juice of one lemon
1 teaspoon flour mixed in ¼ cup water

Heat the butter and the oil. Add the lemon juice and the water with the added flour. Cook until slightly thickened. Pour over cutlets when serving.

Ann's Blueberry, Banana Bread

Blueberries are so plentiful these days, and we always think of either blueberry pie or cup cakes, but today's recipe is very different. It's for a banana, blueberry bread that was given to me by my niece Ann -and so delicious as you will find.

When I make anything with bananas, the really ripe ones are the tastiest.

BLUEBERRY, BANANA BREAD
1 ¼ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup butter or margarine
2/3 cups sugar

2 eggs

2 mashed bananas

1 small container of blueberries (rinsed thoroughly)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees, and grease a loaf pan.

In a bowl, put the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt. Set aside.

Mix the butter and sugar until fluffy, and then add the eggs and mix well.

Add the flour mixture and beat until blended. Add the mashed bananas, and mix until smooth. Fold in the blueberries and then place the batter into the loaf pan.

Bake for one hour or until toothpick comes out clean.

Laura Linney Narrates; Voiceovers By Tom Hanks, Paul Giamatti

ANHP To Host Quincy Premiere Of New Visitor Center Film Sept. 21

Many historic sites offer a brief orientation film to acquaint visitors with the site's offerings and historical significance. Few, if any, such films feature an all-star voiceover cast including Tom Hanks, Laura Linney and Paul Giamatti.

On Friday, Sept. 21, Quincy's Adams National Historical Park will host a free "red carpet" premiere to debut its new visitor center film. To be held at 6:30 p.m. in the auditorium at Quincy High School, the premiere will begin with a public reception featuring refreshments prepared and served by students enrolled in Quincy High's culinary program.

At 7 p.m., the program will feature the first public presentation of Enduring Legacy, a 25-minute original film that chronicles four generations of the Adams family, beginning with President John Adams and continuing through the pivotal events in the lives of President John Quincy Adams, grandson Charles Francis Adams and great-grandson Henry Adams.

"For the first time in its history, the Adams National Historical Park will have a film that provides visitors with an orientation to four generations of the Adams family," said Caroline Keinath, the park's deputy superintendent and project director for the new film. "Our goal was to develop a film that presented the ideas of the Adamses and their contributions to the history and development of the United States."

About the film

Enduring Legacy grew out of a desire to provide visitors with an introduction to the park that would go beyond the two Adams presidents.

"The film is about the experiences, contributions and sacrifices of the entire Adams Family to the United States of America," Keinath said.

Produced and directed by Peter Argentine of Argentine Productions, the 25-minute film features local actors portraying members of the Adams family on screen — with voiceovers and narration provided by Academy Award-winning actor Tom Hanks (providing the voice of Henry Adams) as well as Academy Award nominees Paul Giamatti and Laura Linney, who reprise the voices of their characters John and Abigail Adams from HBO's acclaimed miniseries, John Adams, based on David McCullough's Pulitzer Prize-winning book. Hanks produced the HBO miniseries.

Recalling Linney's highly acclaimed performance as Abigail Adams in the miniseries — and her oft-expressed interest in American history — park staff explored the possibility of her participation as the voice of Abigail Adams. Following Linney's acceptance, Hanks and Giamatti were contacted about portraying Henry and John Adams.

Rounding out the vocal talent are Edward James Olmos as the voice of John Quincy Adams and Edward Herrmann as the voice of Charles Francis Adams.

Enduring Legacy opens with self-appointed family historian Henry Adams recalling his childhood days on the family farm in Quincy. The film spans 200 years of Adams family history, chronicling key events including the Boston Massacre, the American Revolution and the presidencies of John Adams and John Quincy Adams. The film also highlights the Treaty of Ghent that ended the War of 1812, the Amistad incident, the Alabama Claims — a dispute for damages by the United States against Great Britain arising from the Civil War — and other important events in which the Adamses played a significant role.

"It was a challenge to condense 200 years of Adams history into such a brief film," director Peter Argentine said. "HBO had nine hours to tell John Adams' story, and we had just 25 minutes to cover four generations!"

While some scenes were filmed at other historical parks — including the Salem Maritime National Historic Site, Minuteman National Historical Park and Old Sturbridge Village — much of the footage was shot at the Adams National Historical Park as well as in locations in Quincy.

"We are thrilled to see the debut of this film in Quincy," said Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park. "This great city, this very American place, is alive with the spirit of the Adams family."

Keinath agreed.

"You can't tell the Adams story and not talk about Quincy," she said. "We filmed in Quincy — and we are premiering the film in Quincy — so that the Adams story is anchored by a sense of place, as the Adamses were."

'Chowda Fest' Sept. 15

The Houghs Neck Community Council will host its eighth annual "Chowda Fest" Saturday, Sept. 15 from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Maritime Center in Houghs Neck, 137 Bayview Ave.

The "chowda fest" will feature at least two dozen homemade recipes from local restaurants and individual contestants.

Admission is $5 for the all-the-chowder-you-can-eat event.

During the event, the annual "Mayor of Houghs Neck" Award will be presented.

Proceeds will support local youth programs of the Houghs Neck Community Council. Individuals and restaurants interested in entering a chowder should contact Brian Laroche at (617) 786-1637 or blaroche@comcast.net.

THE QUINCY CHAMBER of Commerce has Quincy city street maps available. The maps indicate street name and location, as well as other important sites and attractions. They are free and Quincy residents and business owners may pick them up at the Quincy Chamber offices located at 1400 Hancock St., Quincy City Hall, the City of Quincy Licensing Department, The Quincy Sun, National Historical Parks Visitors Center and other business locations throughout the city. For more information or to request a city map, call the Quincy Chamber at (617) 471-1700.

QSO Open House Sept. 18

Quincy Symphony Orchestra will hold its first Open House Tuesday, Sept. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

Anyone interested in learning more about QSO can come to an open rehearsal at the open house Sept. 18.

This is open to the whole community, music students, people interested in joining the QSO, families wanting to hear how a rehearsal is conducted, and anyone who would like to join the guild or our boosters club.

QSO rehearsals are not usually open to the public. There will be music for those who want to play with the orchestra and refreshments for the intermission. This evening is not for auditions, but they may be arranged by contacting the orchestra at quincysymphony.org.

The QSO also held a board meeting recently as it begins its 59th season.

Two new board members were elected:

Kumu Gupta (2 Seasons QSO Guild Member) and Maxine Frutkoff (Brockton Symphony Orchestra Board member).

The QSO will hold its first concert of the new season in November.

Church Bake Sale To Benefit Project Access

The Mission Committee of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will once again host a bake sale during the Chowda Fest at the Maritime Center on Bayview Avenue.

The Chowda Fest will be held Saturday, Sept. 15 from 2 to 6 p.m.

This year's sale proceeds will once again go to Project Access. Project Access is a program in the Quincy Public Schools which provides support to the dozens of children who are homeless and attend local public schools.

Project Access supplies backpacks and school supplies for each child and pays all required fees (such as fees for sports or field trips).

Bakers who would like to help can bake cookies and squares that sell best. Package cookies six to a bag and squares or brownies, four to a bag and be sure to label anything with nuts.

Items may be dropped off at the bake table between noon and 2 p.m. on the day of the Chowdafest.

Non-bakers who would like to help may make a donation or purchase something at the bake sale.

For more information on Project Access, go to this website: <http://quincypublicschools.com> Questions - please contact Gayle at gaylemackay@comcast.net.

Sacred Heart Parish Oktoberfest Dinner Sept. 21

The monthly dinner committee of Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, will host an Oktoberfest Dinner Friday, Sept. 21 at 6 p.m. in the parish cafeteria.

The menu includes cream of carrot soup, chicken and pork schnitzel, homemade potato pancakes, chowchow, sweet and sour red cabbage, coffee, tea and soda. Dessert will be baked apples.

Cost is $7.50 per person or $20 per family with children age 12 and younger.

Reservations are needed and may be made by calling Sacred Heart rectory at 617-328-8666 no later than Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 19.

Proceeds benefit Sacred Heart Parish's new hymnal fund. The next planned event is the parish's fourth annual "Dine Around" Saturday, Oct. 27, and is hosted in parishioner homes.

For more information on either of these events, contact the Parish at 617-328-8666 or visit www.sacred-heartquincy.org.

Alpha Course At Fort Square

The Alpha Course, a 12-session practical introduction to the Christian faith, aimed especially at non-church goers and new Christians, will begin Sept. 12 at 6:30 p.m. at the Fort Square Presbyterian Church, 16 Pleasant St., Quincy.

Call Anna at 617-471-6806 or Bert at 617-328-1882 to register and to find out all the details.

Quincy Residents Walking In Memory Of Young Girl

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy resident Stacy Myers will be walking 26.2 miles Sunday to raise money for the Jimmy Fund by participating in the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk.

Participating in the walk is a first for Myers and she said it wouldn't be her last.

"This is my first year doing this, and the first walk I have ever done," said Myers. "I decided to do it because I think it would be good to do and it is for such a great cause. I will definitely do it again next year."

Myers said that she has been training and walking long distances to gear up for the walk that goes the entire route of the Boston Marathon.

"My sister and I have been training together," said Myers. "It's nice to have a walking buddy. It's nice to walk that distance when you have someone to talk to the whole time. I have been walking a lot, but I haven't done a full 26 miles yet. I am kind of nervous about that."

Myers is a part of a seven-person team that is walking in memory of a young girl who died of leukemia just days before the walk last year. The team goal was to raise $2,100 and so far they have raised over $2,300. Myers set an individual goal of $300, which she said she passed quicker than she expected.

"I didn't know I would get it (the goal) right off the bat," said Myers. "But, people can continue to donate up till Nov. 1st to either myself or the team."

Myers said a big part

READY TO WALK - Stacy Myers of Quincy holds her number as a participant in Sunday's Boston Marathon Walk to benefit The Jimmy Fund.

of the reason she decided to participate was not only to show her support to the young girl's family but to her sister who has walked in the fundraiser before.

"I supported my sister last year when she walked," said Myers. "I wouldn't be involved in it this year if my sister hadn't done it last year. It's important to me to be a part of it, and to be able to support others who will be there. It's great to be able to help raise money for a greater cause."

Since 1989, the walk has raised $80 million to support patient care and research at the Dana-Farber Institute. There are four different routes participants can choose from. Myers and her team chose to walk the Boston Marathon route, which starts at the Hopkinton Center School in Hopkinton and finishes at Copley Square in Boston. The walk begins at 5:30 a.m. and participants have until 7 p.m. to cross the finish line, and crossing the finish line is a goal Myers hopes to accomplish.

"My goal is just to finish," said Myers. "I'm excited, I think it will be fun. Just knowing that we will be doing this for those less fortunate is what will keep us going."

Myers is the membership development associate for the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. To make a donation to her walk, stop by the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, 1400 Hancock St. Suite 1A, or visit the team website, <http://www.jimmyfundwalk.org/faf/search/searchTeamPart.asp?ievent=1000775&lis=1&kn tae1000775=C6B69EE5CE5E47719BE28434A4FB6DB8&supId=0&team=5148551&cj=Y>.

Council meeting asking for documentation on the condition of the garage and train station. In a phone interview, he faulted the MBTA for not commenting on the structure publicly since the garage was closed.

"Since the closure there hasn't been a transparent dialogue to say 'this is what we found,'" Gutro said.

Another part of the resolution calls on MBTA officials to address their plans to either refurbish or rebuild the 41-year old Quincy Center Station. Though it's not part of the $1.6 billion redevelopment of the downtown, Gutro said work on the station is critical to the city's future.

"It's absolutely crucial — the redevelopment of that will be as important if not more important than some other aspects of the project,"

Gutro said.

Gutro added that many first-time visitors to the community, whether they intend to settle down in the new Quincy Center or shop or work there, would take the Red Line or Commuter Rail. For them, the train station is the first impression they'd get of the area.

"It's the first view they have of Quincy Center and the city of Quincy as a whole," Gutro said.

Gutro, who commutes to work on the MBTA daily, said he's noticed that the parking lot at the Wollaston station has been filling up about an hour earlier than usual since the garage closed; North Quincy's lot hasn't been affected. But he suspects the strain on other lots could increase soon as college students return to class and summer vacations come to an end.

Dear World,

My young son starts to school today. It's going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently. You see, up to now he's been king of the roost. He's been boss of the backyard. His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings. But now things are going to be different. This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure. It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans. It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow. To live his life in the world he will have to live in, will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him. Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know. But do it gently, if you can. He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true. But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero. That for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader. Teach him that for every enemy there is a friend. Steer him away from envy, if you can, and teach him the secret of quiet laughter. In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat. Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong. Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people. Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon. Teach him to listen to all men — but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through. Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he is sad. Teach him there is no shame in tears. Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success. Treat him gently, World, if you can, but don't coddle him, because only the test of fire makes fine steel. Let him have the courage to be impatient. Let him have the patience to be brave. Let him be no man's man. Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself, because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do. He's such a nice little fellow, my son!

Working For Work Inc.: A Life-Changing Experience

Students Help Adults With Disabilities And Learn A Lot About Themselves, Too

By EMILY TAFT

For three Quincy residents, working at Work Inc. in Dorchester turned out to be more than just a summer job.

It was a life-changing experience they will never forget.

"It's been a great summer experience. It has totally changed my perspective on individuals with disabilities, completely," said Molly McCarthy, a Quincy resident and a member of Work Inc.'s Urban Youth Program. "I wish everyone had this experience, because it would totally just change their perspective."

McCarthy is one of five students who participated in the Urban Youth Program at Work Inc. this summer. From June until late August, the students start their days at 8 a.m. learning all areas of taking care of individuals with disabilities and attending and helping in the many different programs Work Inc. offers. The program is aimed towards creating opportunities for diverse youth to learn about careers in human services.

"I like working with the school kids but my second favorite thing would have to be Day Habilitation," said North Quincy High graduate and one of the Urban Youth Program members Jia Ming (Amy) Gao. "They have a lot of fun over there."

Work Inc. is nationally recognized as a pioneer in developing community based programs for individuals with disabilities. They are the leading agency in New England that provides the skills and support services needed to help people with disabilities achieve their career goals. Today they serve over 800 individuals with all types of disabilities with a number of different in house programs as well as many programs outside of their Dorchester residence that allow individuals with disabilities to learn how to work and grow. Also included in the facility are a number of different job programs that allow individuals with disabilities to work and earn a paycheck while attending other Work Inc. programs.

Work Inc. works with different companies to help employ individuals with disabilities. Some of those companies allow for the work to be done right at the Work Inc. building. Companies such as the Christmas Tree Shop employs individuals with disabilities to build the chairs they sell in their stores. Local company Bountiful Pantry employs individuals to make and pack soup mix ingredients they sell.

"We have a 70 percent unemployment rate for individuals with disabilities," said James Cawley, Work Inc.'s Community Relations and Development coordinator. "Very often people's sense of identity is tied to their job. We train a lot of people to be custodians. The whole John F. Kennedy Library facility is done by people with disabilities; the Rose Kennedy Greenway, all the landscaping is done by people with disabilities. It's the only group that anyone of us could join at any time."

Gao said that she has learned a lot about individuals with disabilities and about herself while working in the urban youth program.

"It really helped me learn a lot of new things that will help me in my future life and in my future career," said Gao. "In here you learn how to interact with different people. A lot of people have misunderstandings about people with disabilities. After working here, I have realized that they are just like us, and they work really hard to enjoy their lives."

Students worked in three main areas at Work Inc.: in Day Habilitation, the Vocational School as well as in the Boston Public and Randolph Public Schools.

"Working with the school kids is my favorite part," said McCarthy. "I think it is a great experience because in that position I get to teach them things like preparing for a job. This past week I showed them what to do during an interview. We did skits, one-on-one interactions, and role playing."

Gao said that the most rewarding part of her work was seeing a smile on the individuals when they realize she understands what they are trying to say.

"Throughout most of their lives people don't take the time to try and listen to them and what they are saying," said Gao. "When they see that we really want to listen and know what they are saying it makes them so happy, and they don't mind repeating themselves because they want to be able to get what they want or are thinking across."

For North Quincy High School senior Richard Carrasquillo, the job has been something he didn't want to end.

"The hardest part about my job is having to go home at the end of the day," said Carrasquillo. "This job has made me appreciate my abilities more and made me understand different disabilities. My outlook on things have changed for the better.

"I am more understanding of individuals, and it is so rewarding to see them happy."

Stroke, Osteoporosis Screenings Here Sept. 14

Residents in Quincy can be screened to reduce their risk of having a stroke or bone fracture Friday, Sept. 14 at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

The health screenings will be hosted by the Quincy Council on Aging and Life Line Screenings.

Stroke is the third leading cause of death and a leading cause of permanent disability

- 80% of stroke victims had no apparent warning signs prior to their stroke

- Preventive ultrasound screenings can help you avoid a stroke

- Screenings are fast, noninvasive, painless, affordable and convenient

Screenings identify potential cardiovascular conditions such as blocked arteries and irregular heart rhythm, abdominal aortic aneurysms, and hardening of the arteries in the legs, which is a strong predictor of heart disease. A bone density screening to assess osteoporosis risk is also offered and is appropriate for both men and women.

For more information including the cost for screenings or to schedule an appointment, call 1-877-237-1287. Pre-registration is required.

Montgomery, Marshall Perform Tonight

Blues harmonica legend James Montgomery and Bruce Marshall will perform an acoustic set at Louis, 1259 Hancock St., Quincy, tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. No cover charge.

Montgomery and Marshall have been a duo since 1994. They have shared the stage with BB King, Steven Tyler, Edgar Winter, Peter Frampton, John Hiatt, Jonathan Edwards, Brad Whitford, Jon Poussette-Dart and others.

QPAC To Special Ed Meeting Sept. 13

The Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education (QPAC) will hold a general meeting Thursday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St.

This is an open, public meeting.

A QPAC volunteer will be available to parents and guardians at 6:30 p.m. to offer individualized assistance and support.

For more information, contact Jill Gichuhi, QPAC President, at 617-653-7846, jillgichuhi@gmail.com, or visit www.quincypac.org.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

SEALING FANS

Parents should remember that young children have enough difficulty summoning the manual dexterity needed to properly clean their teeth. Of particular concern are the nooks and crannies in the biting surfaces of the back teeth where food and plaque may be difficult to dislodge. To help in the effort to prevent decay from gaining a toehold in these hard-to-reach areas, the dentist may prescribe "dental sealants." As their name implies, these plastic coatings cover tooth surfaces with a hard material that is impervious to decay. The procedure is painless and simple, requiring only that the targeted area be prepared with acid solution, coated with a thin layer of plastic, and dried with a special curing light.

Brushing twice a day and flossing daily helps prevent tooth decay and gum disease that can lead to tooth loss. Preventive dentistry is our goal for every patient. It involves daily care, good nutrition, and periodic check-ups and cleanings that maintain good dental health already achieved. Oral health is a long-term commitment we share with each patient. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Dental sealants, which are also recommended for adults in some cases, have been in use since the 1980s.

City, Patrol Officers Agree On New Contract

cooperative effort between the Administration and the City's nearly 2,000 employees, who agreed to major contract changes and a total overhaul of health care plans in the last several years that saved millions of dollars and scores of jobs amid an historic economic crisis.

Police patrolmen voluntarily accepted two years of wage deferrals on their previous contract.

"This is a tremendous group of police officers that cares very deeply about the community it protects on a daily basis, and because of that commitment, we were once again able to come together, roll up our sleeves and agree on a contract that is fair to our officers and fair to our taxpayers," Koch said. "Our police have worked together with us every step of the way through an unprecedented series of challenges, and I am grateful for all of their efforts."

Terrence Downing, president of the Quincy Police Patrol Officers' Association, could not be reached for comment before the Sun went to press Tuesday afternoon.

The Quinn Bill education incentive, which has faced cuts in state funding in recent years, will be maintained at current levels for all current officers, but new hires will be paid half as much for earning associate's, bachelor's or master's degrees. The new incentive structure will be a 5 percent salary increase for an associate's degree, a 10 percent increase for a bachelor's degree and a 12.5 percent salary increase for any officer earning a master's degree.

Current officers receive longevity payments after 5, 10 and 15 years of service. In the new contract, there will be no longevity payments for new officers until after the 20th year of service. In addition to salary increases, the contract includes about a $150 annual increase in the uniform allowance for officers.

The administration's negotiating team is continuing to work with other unions on new contracts, and the City budget approved in June for the current fiscal year includes a set amount for anticipated salary increases.

The one percent police raise this year is "well within the $800,000 that was allocated for raises in the new budget," Mayoral Spokesman Chris Walker said.

Pedestrian Killed On Quincy Ave.

By EMILY TAFT

The Quincy Police Accident Reconstruction team in conjunction with the District Attorney's office is investigating a fatal pedestrian accident that occurred Aug. 30th on Quincy Ave.

Geoffrey Smith, 44, a resident of Father Bill's & MainSpring, was crossing the street at 135 Quincy Ave. when an out-of-state driver hit him at around 4:22 p.m.

According to Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan, officers arrived to find Smith with a head injury in the middle of the street. He was pronounced dead at Boston Medical Center.

The driver, Scottie Foster, 46, of Taylor, Michigan was also taken to Boston Medical Center for treatment. According to Keenan, Foster has not been charged.

Keenan: First Senate Term Fast-Paced, Productive

By State Sen. JOHN KEENAN

As someone who grew up in Quincy, attended Quincy public schools, and bought a home and raised my family in Quincy, it has brought me great personal and professional joy to work on behalf of hometown, first as a city councilor at-large, and now as your state senator.

I have a personal interest in helping ensure the City of Quincy remains a desired place to live, work, and recreate. We all benefit when our neighborhoods are filled with families, when our business districts and commercial parks thrive, and when we maintain Wollaston Beach and the Blue Hills Reservation and all of our natural resources located in between.

Although being elected state senator meant I felt an obligation to step away from the City Council, I have been able to remain an advocate for the city at the State House.

The first bill I filed as state senator was legislation needed to allow the Downtown Quincy project to move forward. This bill made the project eligible for the state's urban renewal district program, which gives the city more direct control over the redevelopment effort, while also allowing the city to shift the costs of the redevelopment to the developer and then use different assessments and tax programs within the district to cover the city's expected costs. It also allows the city to maintain property rights over planned public parking garages contained within multi-story, mixed-use buildings. I gave my first speech from the floor of the Senate — my "maiden speech" — in support of this bill, and it was signed into law on May 26, 2011.

The City of Quincy is one of the first municipalities to qualify for the state's Infrastructure Investment Incentive (I-Cubed) Program, which provides financing for public infrastructure projects that will directly spur private development. I-Cubed money can't be used to pay for new roads, sidewalks or utility lines in the hopes of attracting new businesses; rather it is only awarded to communities with deals already place. The bonds are then paid for through the increased state tax revenues the new development generates.

During Senate debate on economic development legislation that passed last month, I advocated for a change to the I-Cubed program that would allow the income taxes paid by the workers building the new infrastructure, and the sales taxes collected on the materials used, to count towards those new state tax revenue requirements. Fortunately for the City of Quincy, this change was included in the new law. Although all sides agree that the Downtown Quincy project should generate significantly more tax revenues than needed, this change further reduces the city's risk of having to pay back any I-Cubed money.

In addition, the Legislature last year approved a $5 million grant for the city that will help pay for the Town Brook relocation project.

As vice-chairman of the Senate Committee on Bonding, Capital Expenditures and State Assets, I was pleased to be able to support sending a record amount of state aid back to the City of Quincy for road and sidewalk repairs. In both 2011 and 2012, the city received $1.94 million in so-called Chapter 90 money — an increase of more than $430,000 from previous levels. I was also able to secure language in a transportation bond bill requiring the state to make improvements to the Route 53/Howard Street/Quincy Avenue intersection. This intersection has been plagued for years by bad pavement conditions and poor lane markings. As use of this intersection will likely increase during construction of the new Fore River Bridge, improvements are critical.

During my time as chairman of the City Council's budget committee, I learned how important state aid is to the city's budget. As a result, I am pleased that the Legislature was able to send back a record amount of Chapter 70 school aid. The City of Quincy will receive $23.6 million in school aid this year, a 20% increase over two years ago. However, the city this year will only receive $18.2 million in general government assistance, which is a still below pre-recession levels. Hopefully, as the state's economy continues to recover, and with the Lottery taking in record profits, that will change next year.

This year's state budget also includes a $50,000 grant for the Quincy Fire Department's hazardous materials response team. Considering the oil tanks off Southern Artery, the MWRA's Nut Island facility, Twin River Technologies, and other industrial facilities in the city's boundaries, it is important that the city's emergency responders have the proper training and equipment.

One of the city's main attractions to commuters and businesses is its easy access to buses, trains and ferries. It's for this reason that I worked hard to preserve public transportation within the city. However, this is going to remain an issue until a long-term funding plan for the MBTA is approved to prevent the regular threat of service cuts and fare hikes. I am also in regular contact with the MBTA about the status of the Quincy Center parking garage. I support the MBTA's closing the garage due to public safety concerns, and I also believe the closure provides a promising opportunity. The Mayor, the City Council, the legislative delegation, and the MBTA are all working together to make sure any improvements to, or reconstruction of, the Quincy Center garage fits within the greater Downtown Quincy redevelopment effort.

Part of my responsibilities as state senator is to advocate on behalf of home-rule petitions, or legislation endorsed by the Quincy City Council. One of these pieces established a new voting precinct at 1000 Southern Artery, one of the city's largest senior living complexes. I also backed legislation that would reduce speed limits in certain neighborhoods down to 25 miles per hour, and would set aside any utility company fines awarded by the state to city ratepayers into a special fund to compensate those with verifiable property losses. I have also worked with the Council and the utilities to address the issue of double poles in the City, pushing the utilities to remove them more quickly.

My first term in the Senate has been fast-paced and certainly interesting. I have been very fortunate to work on the above issues with the other members of Quincy's legislative delegation. The efforts detailed above were successful because of the combined commitment of representatives Bruce Ayers, Tackey Chan, and Ron Mariano. I look forward to working with Rep. Martin Walsh, who will begin representing the Montclair neighborhood in January.

Every morning, as I walk down the State House's historic marble hallways, past the portraits of our state's historic figures, I take a moment to appreciate the opportunity entrusted to me by the voters of Quincy, and the rest of the Norfolk and Plymouth Senate district. It is because of that appreciation that I will continue to work hard on your behalf.

JUMPING OFF THE BAND WAGON

For the most part, the selection of a wedding band should be a simple matter. As the name suggests, it is largely a question of choosing one's favorite precious metal and expressing it in the shape of a band. On the other hand, some brides-to-be have other ideas, the most dramatically lavish of which is the kaleidoscopic wedding band. This new take on wedding bands features interlaced cabochon settings with any number of colored gemstones arrayed in both natural and geometric patterns. Along with traditional white diamonds, these bands of gold or platinum are layered with yellow diamonds, pink sapphires, rubies, garnets, emeralds, and other fine colored gemstones. They are, in essence, gemological fireworks displays that celebrate marriage.

Extraordinary kaleidoscopic wedding bands are becoming increasingly more popular. We have a knowledgeable and professional staff that will work with you to choose the best wedding bands, with consideration to her style, the size of her finger, the size of your setting, and your budget. 2012 HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL PREVIEW

Season Opener Friday At Veterans Memorial Stadium Versus Boston Latin

North Quincy: Staying Healthy Is The Key

By SEAN BRENNAN

North Quincy head football coach Jim Connor has found himself walking a fine line this preseason.

On one hand, Connor has had to push, challenge and try to get the most out of his team as he prepares the Red Raiders for Friday night's season opener against Boston Latin (Veterans Memorial Stadium, 7 p.m.); yet on the other hand, Connor doesn't have a large number of players to choose from, which means he has needed to rest several two-way starters and allow the numbers he does have to be get healthy and ready to go.

"Our numbers," he said, "are down again. We have to slowly build our numbers back up."

"We started (preseason practice) high and we (now) have a lot of guys beat up and hurt, so we need to get a lot of guys back out on the field. The key is we have to stay healthy; our numbers are better but not great. Last year we were around 30 (varsity players) and this year we are around 35. That isn't great, but it is at least a step in the right direction," Connor added.

Fielding a team last year that was short on depth, but not on heart, North Quincy opened the season with five straight non-league defeats. The Red Raiders lost to Boston Latin (7-6), Oliver Ames (33-7), East Bridgewater (47-0), Arlington (3-0), and Archbishop Williams (27-20) before finally cracking into the win column following a 28-22 overtime victory over Patriot League foe Middleboro. After dropping back-to-back decisions to league powers Duxbury (40-7) and Hingham (28-6), North Quincy slipped past Silver Lake, 27-21 before losing to Whitman-Hanson, 42-9.

The Red Raiders finished the season on a high note. North Quincy ran away from Quincy 27-17 on Thanksgiving to finish 2011 at 3-8 overall.

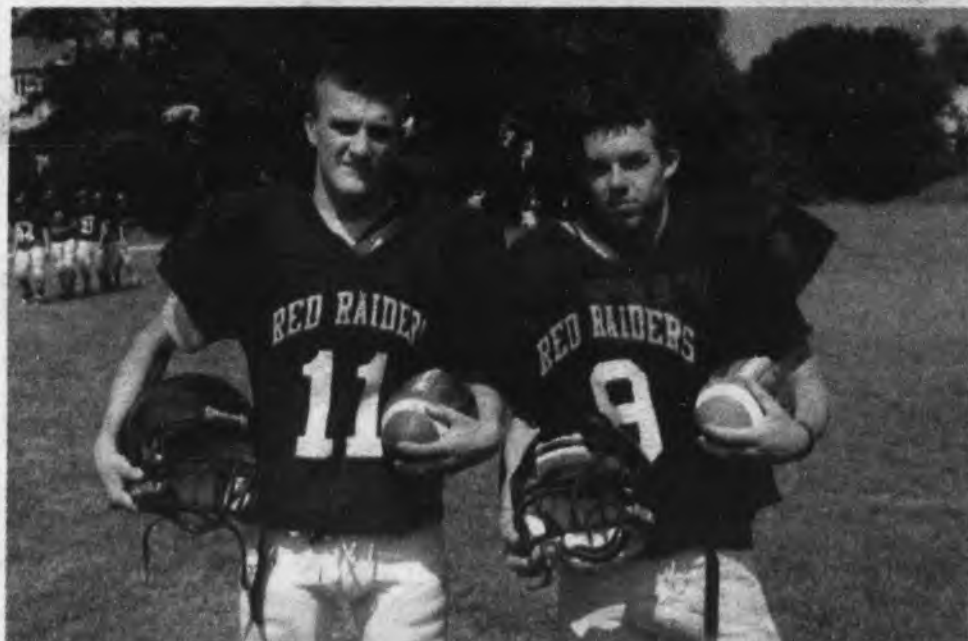

This season, thanks to an increase in student enrollment numbers at Quincy High, the Red Raiders will be playing as a member of the Patriot League's Fisher Division – otherwise known as the small school division – after years of playing in the Keenan Division (big school division). The most obvious benefit of this switch is that North Quincy will no longer have to play reigning Division II Super Bowl champion Duxbury.

2012 HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL PREVIEW

Presidents 2012 Season Opener 7 p.m.
Friday Night At Cohasset High School

Quincy: Banking On Experience & Depth

By SEAN BRENNAN
Experience breeds success. At least that is what Quincy head football coach Bill Reardon is banking on when his Presidents open the 2012 season at Cohasset High School on Friday night at 7 p.m.

Last season is one everyone associated with the program would like to forget. Quincy started the year with back-to-back losses to non-league Cohasset (33-16) and Canton (26-12) before squeaking past non-league Plymouth South, 20-16. Unfortunately, injuries and inexperience led to a mid-season five-game losing streak that saw the Presidents lose to non-league Malden Catholic (14-7), and Patriot League opponents Hanover (20-0), Pembroke (17-9), Whitman-Hanson (29-8), and Scituate (20-0) before the team rebounded with a 21-12 victory over Middleboro.

Quincy lost to North Quincy 27-17 on Thanksgiving to finish the fall at 2-8 overall.

But this year Reardon has a team that is not only experienced in the Quincy way, but is also very deep, which hopefully will lead to a faster start and ultimately more success.

"What I am looking for out of these guys, and a lot of them do have the experience of playing last year, so what I am hoping for is that we pick things up quicker as the season moves along," said Reardon. "Last year we had kids who hadn't played before and we had to go with a big learning curve, so I am hoping for a quicker start."

The Presidents will be tested early during the non-league portion of the schedule. Quincy opens with Cohasset before hosting Canton on Sept. 14. Back-to-back home games with Plymouth South and Durfee are followed with an away game at Malden Catholic. It is a grueling beginning — but not unfamiliar — for a team with high expectations.

"Our non-league schedule is pretty much the same, but we added Durfee, so we will have 11 games this year instead of ten," Reardon noted. "We are very familiar with teams like Cohasset and Canton, so hopefully that, along with our experi-

Summer Concert Rocks Adams Field

Several hundred people came out to Adams Field Aug. 30 to enjoy a free, end-of-the-summer concert sponsored by Mayor Koch and the City of Quincy.

The family-friendly event featured two well-known Boston area bands: "Dalton and the Sheriffs" and "The Joshua Tree." The idea for a concert was first presented by Keith Asack, owner of the Quincy-based recording studio, Keep the Edge Studios.

Music by the "Dalton and the Sheriffs" reflected a pop-country sound and was very well received. "The Joshua Tree" is a more established band that has a following of its own which helped draw people to the concert.

"Based on the turnout that we had and the great feedback, this is something that we will definitely look forward to doing again next year, perhaps on an even bigger scale," said Chris Walker, spokesman for tourism arm of the Quincy Chamber, was a co-sponsor of the event.

Open Friday At Home Versus Cambridge NQ Girls' Soccer: Locked In For 2012 Fall Season

By SEAN BRENNAN

A realistic goal for the North Quincy girls' soccer team this season is for a return trip back to the state tournament after qualifying last year on the strength of a 9-9-3 record. The ultimate goal, and one that head coach Paul Bregoli sees as attainable, is winning an outright Patriot League championship.

Bregoli believes this possible for several reasons. His program returns all seven of its top scorers off last year's team, including four-year players in seniors Shannon McCleary (11 goals, two assists in 2011) and Liz Kelly (four goals, seven assists). Add in the return of senior defenders Jaclyn Scuzzarella and Lauren Campo, themselves four-year varsity players, as well as forward Danielle Paschall (two goals, four assists), and midfielders Caitlin Bulger and Kayla Surgue (four goals, two assists) and North Quincy looks to have a solid and battle-tested senior core.

Going down the grade level reveals even more promise. In the junior class

Delia Devane, Abby Smith (goal, six assists), Arianna Viscione and Haley McKay bring with them big game experience and know-how to work within the North Quincy system, while in the sophomore class Bregoli has a trio of dynamos in Kiera Forde (five goals, three assists), Courtney Campo (four goals, seven assists) and Sydney Chang ready to wreck havoc on the Patriot League.

North Quincy does have a major question mark at goalkeeper, but Bregoli has two options at his disposal in senior Christine Kelliher and sophomore Rachel O'Driscoll.

Looking even further down the pipeline reveals that North Quincy has a freshmen class coming in that could push the overall team success even quicker up the league charts. Included in this group are Marissa McGue, Julia O'Donnell, Molly Donahue, Kara Carchedi, Hailey Houlihan and Allie Coleman.

"We have a pretty good nucleus returning off last year's tournament-qualifying team," said Bregoli last week. "The team returns its seven top scorers from last year and so far in pre-season we have done a nice job of scoring goals. It starts with the senior class and especially McCleary, Kelly, Scuzzarella and Campo, but we also have a strong returning underclassmen core that should only continue to improve."

"This team should have no trouble finding a way to be able to score, but we may have some trouble keeping the ball out of the net," continued Bregoli, "but for the first time in a long time we have team depth and a deep bench. Competition is always good because it pushes everyone to get better."

"Playing time could be an issue," added Bregoli. "I have a lot of good players this year."

One small change for North Quincy girls' soccer in 2012 is their move from the Patriot League's Keenan Division to the Fisher Division — from so-called big school to small school division. But, unlike, say football, this change doesn't mean as

A True Teammate

RYAN MANNING, a six-year Squantum Storm veteran and current eighth-grader and team captain, will miss most, if not all, of his last season with The Storm after breaking his wrist on Sunday at the QYFL Varsity Jamboree, but he is still hoping to get back on the field in time for the playoffs. Ryan has volunteered to help out the coaches during his healing and rehabilitation and he will also serve as an assistant youth coach with The Storm's freshman team. According to Franchise Holder Bruce Marquis, it is impossible to explain how much Manning's devotion to Storm football has meant, but suffice to say that he has been one of the most dedicated, hard-working, conscientious and team-oriented players to ever wear the uniform. Look for Ryan on the sideline at Storm games on Sundays this season, proudly wearing his #90 uniform. Picture from left to right are Coach Steve Striffler, Ryan Manning and Coach Michael Killilea.

much. Sure, North Quincy now doesn't have to face the likes of Duxbury, Whitman-Hanson, Silver Lake and Hingham twice (they will play them once each), but the Patriot League is always tough no matter what division you sit in; every game will be a battle.

"The league is always tough and every game will be a grind," said Bregoli. "Our main goal is to qualify for the state tournament, again. We lost to Falmouth 2-0 last year and want to get back and make some noise. But I don't think it is unrealistic that we could go out and win the Patriot League outright."

The Red Raiders have Cambridge (twice), Malden (twice), Latin Academy, East Boston, and Quincy on its non-league schedule.

North Quincy opens the 2012 season on Friday with a 3:30 p.m. home game against Cambridge.

5th Annual Cochrane Road Race Sept. 9

The 5th Annual Officer Jamie Cochrane Memorial Road Race — a 10K Road Race/5K Fun Walk — will be held on Sunday, Sept. 9 at 10 a.m. sharp with registration from 8-9:30 a.m. at Adams Field, Merrymount Parkway. There will be a Free Kids Fun Run at 9 a.m.

The race is held every year in memory of Officer Jamie Cochrane "S6," an eight-year Quincy Police Veteran who spent most of his career in the Special Operations Unit. He was a kindhearted police officer who always went the extra mile. On Sept. 10, 2006, Officer Cochrane was killed while riding his motorcycle.

All proceeds from the road race/fun walk will go to various local charities.

There is a $25 entry fee and online registration can be done through Sept. 6 at www.racewire.com. The first 700 registrants receive a free race

t-shirt. Pre-registration and bib # pickup will be held on Sat., Sept. 8 at Adams Field from 2-5 p.m.

The flat course, including three miles of beachfront road, is USATF Certified, and RaceWire will do official timing. Prizes will be awarded to all 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place division finishers.

Please mail your $25 non-refundable check, made payable to The Cochrane Road Race, to: Cochrane Road Race, PO Box 690268, Quincy, MA 02269-0268.

The Quincy Police Department and Eastern Bank sponsor this year's race.

IS YOUR CHILD PACKING ON TOO MANY POUNDS?

As children and parents get ready for the new school year, it bears mentioning that backpacks that are either too heavy or worn incorrectly pose a risk of injury. In fact, about 6,000 school-age children experience backpack-related injuries in this country annually. To avert such injuries, parents are urged to choose lightweight backpacks that extend no further down than three-quarters the length of their child's back. It should also feature two wide, padded shoulder straps that the child should use to avoid putting too much strain on one side of his or her body. A waist strap also helps better distribute the pack's weight. Most importantly, a loaded backpack should never exceed 15 percent of the child's bodyweight.

How much does your child's backpack weigh? What can chiropractic health care do for your child? Why do millions of parents bring their children to Doctors of Chiropractic every year? Chiropractic's purpose is to remove interferences to the natural healing power running through the body. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we can help you and your children enjoy life without pain. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. For unsurpassed chiropractic care for all members of your family, please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. If a child has to lean forward to carry a backpack, it is too heavy. "We carry Airpaks" that take up to 50% of the load off the spine and shoulders. Call for more information.

However, there are still challenges to overcome.

"You think at first the change in divisions is going to help, but it is a balanced league," Connor said. "Duxbury is at the top tier and then there are teams that are in the lower (tier), but it seems like it is one up and one down, and everyone else is just hanging around the middle."

"There are going to be no weeks off, but at least we don't have to play Duxbury. Right now they are outstanding and amazing things need to happen to have us or another team beat them just because it is hard to stop a program that is going so well right now."

"The difference in the small school division (Fisher) is that we don't have Duxbury, but, again, it is balanced," added Connor. "There are no guaranteed wins or losses and that is what is exciting."

If the Red Raiders want any chance of making noise in league play then a fast non-league start is mandatory. North Quincy will have revenge on their minds on Friday versus Boston Latin. In the season opener last year, the Raiders had a game winning, last-second 27-yard field goal attempt blocked in the 7-6 loss. The following week the Raiders have a rematch with Oliver Ames; the Tigers advanced to the Division III Super Bowl last fall before losing to Concord-Carlisle. In Week Three North Quincy travels to Sharon, while Week Four sees the team at Arlington.

After a bye week on Oct. 5, North Quincy jumps right into Patriot League action with a home game versus Middleboro. A road game at Scituate (Oct. 19), a home game with Hanover (Oct. 26), and back-to-back away games at Whitman-Hanson (Nov. 2) and Pembroke (Nov. 9) precede the 80th annual Thanksgiving Day clash against Quincy on Nov. 22.

Who To Watch For

Anyone who watched last year's game against Quincy saw a North Quincy offense that controlled the game by running, and running, and running the ball. The Red Raiders called 50 plays from scrimmage and each time quarterback Andrew Minton handed the ball off to Walter Hannon (16 carries, 103 yards, TD), Marquis Chase (25, 179, three TDs) or Antoine Allen (4, 43).

North Quincy racked up 317 yards of total offense behind their running game and a dominant performance from its offensive line in the 27-17 win. This fall, the Red Raiders have Minton back at quarterback and return Don Sharp, Vinny Tran, Matt Deagle and Mekhi Pearson along the offensive line, so expect more of the same this season, just with a different cast of running backs.

Expecting to see time out of the backfield will be a five-man rotation of Allen, Kevin Pappadopolous, Zack McLaren, Cole Barrett, and Eddie Guinto.

"Andrew Minton is back as my starting quarterback and on the offensive line we actually return most of our starters, so we are in good shape there," said Connor. "In the backfield I'll have a little bit of a platoon. I have five guys that should be seeing some snaps. That will be Pappadopolous, McLaren, Barrett, Allen and Guinto."

"When you get your starting quarterback back and he can control the game and the pace and you have basically the same offensive line back no matter who your running backs are you are going to be OK," Connor added. "Running the ball is one of the keys to success this season."

When Minton drops back to pass look for him to target seniors Essien Benjamin, Shawn Thomas and first-year player Matt MacPhail. Benjamin is expected to see time at tight end and split end with Thomas rotating in and out at the tight end position, while MacPhail will start on the opposite side of the field at the split end. Allen is also going to be used in a variety of skill position spots.

"Allen is a special athlete so he will be all over the field and MacPhail is an excellent athlete who has been playing outstanding in preseason," said Connor.

On defense expect to see a number of two-way players. Carrying the leadership role at linebacker will be Pappadopolous and McLaren, while Allen, Guinto, Benjamin and MacPhail will start in the defensive backfield and Sharp, Tran and Deagle will be starters up front on the defensive line. According to Connor, he is feeling good about his defensive backs but sees needed improvement in the run-stop game.

"Running the ball is key to our offense, but stopping the run is the key on defense," he noted. "We had a wakeup call in a scrimmage against Abington and we realized we really need to work on stopping the run."

With such a high number of two-way starters, North

Quincy needs to stay relatively healthy. In an ideal world there would be no injuries, but Connor realizes that this is unrealistic, which is why the team's backups will play an important role in North Quincy's success this season.

"I feel good about our starters," Connor said. "If you could tell me that all my starters would be healthy all season I'd feel pretty good about where we are. But having said that no football team ever in history goes a season injury-free; that's unrealistic. It is now a matter of the backups being ready to step in if we have an injury to a two-way player."

Quincy & North Quincy: Changing Divisions

By SEAN BRENNAN

What's that old adage; you get what you pay for, right?

Well, thanks to a new(er) Quincy High School, and the increase in students choosing to attend the city's high school on Coddington Street, the Presidents' football program is moving from the Patriot League's Fisher Division (small school) to the league's Keenan Division (large school) when the fall season kicks off on Friday night.

North Quincy, as a result, will play this season as a member of the Fisher Division after several years of battling in the always-tough Keenan Division against the likes of four-time state champion Duxbury.

The realignment means that Quincy will be playing the aforementioned Duxbury (Oct. 19), Whitman-Hanson (Oct. 12), Scituate (Oct. 26), Hingham (Nov. 3), and Silver Lake (Nov. 9) in league action following a difficult non-league schedule, which includes Cohasset (Friday night on the road), Canton (Sept.

14), Plymouth South (Sept. 21), Durfee (Sept. 28), and Malden Catholic (Oct. 5).

North Quincy will now play Patriot League opponents Middleboro (Oct. 12), Scituate (Oct. 19), Hanover (Oct. 26), Whitman-Hanson (Nov. 2), and Pembroke (Nov. 9) following a non-league schedule that includes Boston Latin (Friday at home, 7 p.m.), Oliver Ames (Sept. 14), Sharon (Sept. 22), and Arlington (Sept. 28).

ence will lead to a quicker start."

After Quincy maneuvers its way through the first month of the season another challenge awaits them once Patriot League play begins on Oct. 12. Thanks to a steady increase in student enrollment at Quincy High, the Presidents have been moved from the Fisher Division (small school) into the Keenan Division (large school), which means familiarity goes out the window. And standing in the room as lead dog is defending Division II Super Bowl champion Duxbury.

"(The divisional switch) is based on enrollment," explained Reardon. "For starters, to do well in the Keenan Division, we need to stay relatively healthy. No team is going to stay 100% healthy, but if our big guns can stay healthy that will do a lot in terms of at least giving us a chance."

"Duxbury is obviously tough," added Reardon, "but every team in this league is tough. There are no off weeks, so we have to prepare for that."

The Presidents start league action at Whitman-Hanson and follow that game with home tilts against Duxbury (Oct. 19) and Scituate (Oct. 26). An away game at Hingham on Nov. 3 and a home game with Silver Lake on Nov. 9 lead into the 80th annual Thanksgiving Day game against North Quincy.

Who To Watch For

Starting at quarterback this fall will be senior captain Andrew Schaaf. Last fall, Schaaf and since graduated Curran Jorgensen battled for the top spot throughout preseason, so the Presidents' signal caller should be prepared to handle the rigors of the position.

It won't hurt that Quincy returns three key starters on the offensive line in seniors Richard Turpin, Paul Nigro and Jackson Lam. Add in first-year starters Matt Ko-zowski and Junior Meade and Quincy might just have the recipe for success in the trenches.

"We will have Schaaf at quarterback and on the line we return team captain Rich Turpin, Nigro and Lam to go along with Meade and Kozlowski," said Reardon. "We have some other guys who are still battling for playing time along the line; competition and depth is always good at that position."

In the backfield, Quincy will have to make due without the services of since graduated all-league running back Reggie Cesar, but the Presidents will lean on the production of captain Peter Cedrone at fullback and all-league returnee Jalen Green at tailback. This 1-2 punch should make opposing defenses stand up and take notice, while at the same time give Schaaf enough time and space to throw the football.

When Schaaf does decide to let it fly he will be throwing to wide receivers Jaquan Harris and Alex Heffernan - both returning starters, while at the tight end position junior Matt Hines has the potential to be a productive player.

"We have potential on offense; we have speed and experience, but what is it they say about potential," Reardon asked. "Potential means that you haven't done anything yet."

On defense Quincy looks strong up the middle. Led by two-way players Jackson Lam and Peter Cedrone at linebacker the Presidents expect to be stout against the run. Joining Lam and Cedrone at the position will be junior Alex Alexandre. In the defensive backfield at safety returning starter Viet Doan will be lined up next to fellow senior Tim McDonald, while at the corners expect to see Harris and senior John Cherwek take the majority of the snaps.

"The one kid I really hope is going to play well for us is Jackson Lam," Reardon noted. "He is going to be a guard and middle linebacker for us. If he is playing well we are doing well. He is the glue on defense. Kind of like in baseball you want to be strong up the middle, and I think we will be at linebacker and in the defensive backfield."

"Our front four (defensive line) is a little bit of a work in progress," added Reardon.

On special teams Green will revise his role from last season as the team's primary punter, but the feel good story of preseason camp has been the development of kicker Thomaz Silva. According to Reardon, Silva is representative of the new Quincy High - an environment that places emphasis on the changing cultural shift in the city.

"Thomaz is really what Quincy High is all about," said Reardon about his second-year Brazilian kicker. "We are so diverse with our cultural backgrounds. He didn't speak English two years ago and now he is one of the guys and we love having him."

As is the case every fall when football teams take to the practice fields, this year's Quincy team has a personality of its own. For Reardon, as he begins his fifth season as head coach - and his 17th year as a member of the QHS football staff - he isn't quite sure just yet what type of product he has at his disposal. All he knows is that so far he has liked what he has seen and everyone is ready for the season to get underway.

"In terms of this preseason stuff you organize it a certain way with certain things you want to accomplish," he said. "At this point I feel like I have a better handle on the kinds of kids I have but saying that, each year the kids are different and each team takes on a different personality. You have to try and fit and teach the new personalities and I feel better about how it has gone this preseason. But we will have to see how it translates on the field."

Quincy's History-Making 11-Year-Old Baseball Team Honored By Mayor Koch

By EMILY TAFT

The players of the Quincy Youth Baseball's 11-Year Old American travel team were recognized Aug. 29th by Mayor Tom Koch for making local youth baseball history when they became the first Quincy team to win the 2012 Cal Ripken New England Championship on Aug. 13th.

"We just wanted to take a moment to acknowledge your accomplishments," Koch said to the 12 players. "We want to let you know how proud we are of you as individuals and as a team. We are proud of each of you for the way you conducted yourselves on and off the field."

The players along with their coaches received commendations, baseball shaped cookies, and a gift certificate to Villa Rosa to celebrate with a pizza party. In return the team presented the mayor with a baseball signed by each of them and one of their baseball hats.

"We are very proud of the boys. All 12 boys participated and were key in each game," said Coach Mark Free. "It has been a great experience and a great journey for all of them."

The team finished with a 6-1 record at the New England Regional, including five straight victories. They defeated Cranston, Rhode Island to win the title. Koch asked the boys what their favorite moment was and they all agreed it had been when they won the championship.

"This is a great moment for these kids. I don't even think they realized what they have accomplished,"

Norfolk County Registry Of Deeds New Website

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds recently unveiled a new website, announces Register William P. O'Donnell.

The new site features many helpful links. Visitors to www.norfolkdeeds.org will find a link for first time homebuyers, foreclosure assistance, homestead protection, addresses of local food pantries, and local assessors' homepages to list a few.

"In addition, our new appearance is being rolled out with the more gradual debut of our new public search engine which allows real estate professionals and members of the public to comb through a database of close to 220 years of Norfolk County Land Records," O'Donnell said.

"Easy and reliable access to these land records is vitally important to property ownership in our county and the economy in general" noted O'Donnell, "so we are slowly allowing the public to utilize the new search engine in tandem with the original version all the while refining the new version's capabilities based on users' feedback and comments."

To further assist the public as well as real estate professionals in conducting computer assisted land record research using the Registry's new website Register William P. O'Donnell will host an informational seminar on Thursday, Sept. 13 from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

The program will include a brief presentation, written reference materials, and hands-on exercises. There will be opportunities for both basic and advanced questions and answers.

There is no charge for the seminar, but anyone planning to attend is asked to register by calling Alicia Gardner at 781-461-6104 or by email to agardner@norfolkdeeds.org.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County.

The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Conway's Kristen Morse Earns RELO Designation

Kristen Morse of the Jack Conway Relocation Division was recently received her RELO Certified Coordinator designation.

Morse is a specialist in outgoing referrals helping Conway Country customers to relocate anywhere in the world.

"I am so proud of Kristen for getting her certification," said Dawn Stevens, director of Conway Relocation. "The RCC designation signifies that she has the knowledge and ability to provide exceptional service to our relocating buyers and sellers."

The RELO Certified Coordinator exam is offered through the Leading Real Estate Companies of the World (LeadingRE), an international relocation network of 140,000 sales associates in the U.S. and abroad. The curriculum is available to all professional relocation specialists who are dealing with incoming or outgoing referrals.

"I'm very glad I took the course, not just for the credential, but for the knowledge I gained," said Morse. "I learned a lot about how to better service our customers and work cooperatively with companies all around the world."

To contact Morse, call 781-871-0080, ex. 330.

O'Donnell To Hold Office Hours Here Sept. 20

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will hold Office Hours in the Second Floor Conference Room at Quincy City Hall at 1305 Hancock St. on Thursday, Sept. 20 from 10 a.m. until noon.

Register O'Donnell and members of his staff will be on hand to answer questions about the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. The Register will have information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act as well as on-site work stations that can provide in real time the status of your mortgage discharge, a print out of your deed or a demonstration of how Registry technology works.

No appointment is necessary.

This is a community outreach initiative sponsored by the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. It is Register O'Donnell's goal to provide a convenient way for residents to learn more about how the Registry serves Norfolk County while conducting Registry business closer to home.

Although Registry staff cannot provide legal advice, they will be able to answer basic questions, provide general information, take a document for recording and assist in filling out Homestead Declaration Forms.

Seacrest Marine Services, Bay Pointe Marina Sold To Dallas-Based Firm

Suntex Ventures, the Dallas-based owner and operator of marina properties, in conjunction with Harrison Street Real Estate Capital, the Chicago-based real estate private equity firm, announces the acquisition of the Bay Pointe Marina and Seacrest Marine Services in Quincy.

Bay Pointe Marina is a multi-faceted marine property that consists of 6.97 acres of upland with 258 wet slips that can accommodate vessels up to 200 feet. Bay Pointe Marina contains a first-class amenity base consisting of a full-service marine repair company; renowned restaurant, The Inn at Bay Pointe; winter dry storage; and fuel dock.

This transaction marks the third acquisition by Suntex Ventures in 2012, including Saylorville Lake Marina near Des Moines, IA and Crosswater Yacht Club on Lake Travis in Austin, TX.

Suntex Ventures now owns and operates a portfolio of 12 marinas and one marina loan with a total value of approximately $150 million.

School's Open - DRIVE CAREFULLY

With schools reopening in Quincy this week, AAA New England offers the following tips to keep kids safe this school year:

1. Slow down. Speed limits in school zones are reduced for a reason. A pedestrian struck by a vehicle traveling at 25 mph is nearly two-thirds less likely to be killed compared to a pedestrian struck by a vehicle traveling just 10 mph faster.

2. Eliminate distractions. Children often cross the road unexpectedly and may emerge suddenly between two parked cars. Research shows that taking your eyes off the road for just two seconds doubles your chances of crashing.

3. Reverse responsibly. Every vehicle has blind spots. Check for children on the sidewalk, driveway and around your vehicle before slowly backing up. Teach your children to never play in, under or around vehicles—even those that are parked.

4. Talk to your teen. Car crashes are the leading cause of death for teens in the United States, and more than one in four fatal crashes involving teen drivers occur during the after-school hours of 3 to 7 p.m. Get evidence-based guidance and tips at TeenDriving.AAA.com.

5. Come to a complete stop. Research shows that more than one third of drivers roll through stop signs in school zones or neighborhoods. Always come to a complete stop, checking carefully for children on sidewalks and in crosswalks before proceeding.

6. Watch for bicycles. Children on bikes are often inexperienced, unsteady and unpredictable. Slow down and allow at least three feet of passing distance between your vehicle and the bicycle. If your child rides a bicycle to school, require that they wear a properly-fitted bicycle helmet on every ride. Find videos, expert advice and safety tips at ShareTheRoad.AAA.com.

Police Log Correction

An entry in last week's Police Log was misidentified. The incident listed Aug. 20 at 10:17 a.m. at 400 East Squantum Street should have been classified as an assault and battery, not an armed robbery. The Sun regrets the error.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, Aug. 26, at approximately 5:50 a.m., Officers A.J. Carthas and John McGowan were dispatched to Rawson Road on a report of two suspicious people in a driveway. Upon arrival, the officers searched numerous driveways and located a male suspect known to them from numerous incidents and arrests in Quincy, for various crimes including breaking and entering into homes and vehicles, receiving stolen property and drug charges.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officers noted that the suspect's eyes were "pinned," his mannerisms were slow and lethargic, appearing to be under the influence of some type of narcotic. When asked what he was doing in the driveway, the suspect, with slurred speech, responded, "What are you talking about?"

A search of the immediate area uncovered a back pack located at the end of the driveway approximately 15 feet from where the suspect had been stopped. The back pack was unzipped and inside there was two sets of headphones, DVDs, a wallet, sunglasses, two iPods, a cell phone and a cell phone protection case. At this time, Officer Carthas interviewed the caller who said that he saw the suspect stumbling in his driveway and then around his vehicle. The caller said that there was only one suspect in his driveway. Due to bulging pockets, the suspect was searched, uncovering a digital camera first. When asked if the camera was his, the suspect said, "You are not going to pin any of this sh# on us." Other items in the suspect's pocket were a pink wallet, 3 packs of trident gum, a GPS, an iPod watch and another iPod. The suspect was placed in a cruiser pending further investigation.

Officer Carthas powered up the GPS and found the "home" address listed as Beach Street. Once again, Officer Carthas asked the suspect if any of these items belonged to him. The suspect stated, "Just take me to your little station and book me. I don't mind doing the time - I just can't wait to see what you try to pin on me." Officer McGowan stood by the suspect while Officer Carthas went to the Beach Street address to check for physical evidence of a crime, namely, a vehicle that appeared to have been entered.

Officer Carthas found a minivan parked in a driveway with the driver's side sliding door wide open. After noting that the minivan appeared to have been ransacked, the officer met with the owner who confirmed the theft of the GPS, then identified the GPS as his. The victim then confirmed that all the items found in the back pack and on the suspect were his. Officer McGowan checked this area and found a brown wallet, another GPS, a pair of sunglasses, and a set of keys on the ground. A license in the wallet had the address of the victim who lived on Hollis Avenue. He also found a set of keys on the ground.

Sgt. Daniel Guarente went to Hollis Avenue and found a vehicle had been entered, so he contacted the owner who confirmed he was missing, his wallet, sunglasses and GPS unit. While at the Beach Street location, Officer Carthas noticed a white Dunkin Donuts box truck parked nearby on Muirhead Street. As the officer approached the van, he observed papers and items that came from the truck, which was open. The officer was unable to contact an owner, however, at 3:30 a.m., the van owner reported the theft of his van from Marshall Street. The owner admitted that he left the van unlocked with the keys above the visor. Officer McGowan, using the keys found on the ground earlier, started the truck up.

The suspect, a 26 year-old Quincy resident, was transported to the station where he was booked. During the booking process, the suspect inquired, "How many people got arrested?" At the station, Officer McGowan met with the victim of the van theft and showed him some of the items recovered but still unclaimed. The victim identified the black protective phone case as his, which was in the truck and found in the backpack on Rawson Road. The cell phone found in the back pack was uncharged, so Detective Pacino charged it. The suspect earlier denied it was his, but once charged, text messages and phone calls proved that the suspect owned the phone. Detective Pacino attempted to interview the suspect, who refused to talk, but did say, "I'm not a stool pigeon." Based on the totality of circumstances, the suspect was additionally charged with, "Motor Vehicle Nighttime and Receiving a Stolen Motor Vehicle." This life time criminal has once again been taken off the streets. As for the second offender, there was no evidence the suspect was working with anyone else and that he is known to work alone. Nice Work!

OBITUARIES

Kathleen Cameron

Member Of St. Chrysostom's Church

A funeral service for Kathleen Cameron, 92, of Wollaston, a volunteer with the Camp Fire Girls, was held Wednesday in St. Chrysostom's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. Cameron died Aug. 28 at Quincy Medical Center.

A resident of Wollaston for 66 years, she recently had lived at The Fenno House Assisted Living Center.

She was born in Plymouth, England.

During World War II, Ms. Cameron worked for the British Admiralty in Bath, England where she met her future husband, Lawrence F. Cameron, an American serviceman stationed nearby. After the war, they moved to Wollaston where "Larry" ran Cameron Sporting Goods near the old Wollaston train station.

She volunteered with the Camp Fire Girls, the South Shore Association for Retarded Children, and the South Shore Mental Health Human Rights Committee.

She was an active member of St. Chrysostom's Church where she taught

KATHLEEN CAMERON

Sunday school and served on St. Mary's Guild.

She was preceded in death by her husband Lawrence F. Cameron Jr. who died in 1974. She is survived by her son Hugh Cameron of Quincy, daughter Beverly Sheena Cameron of Embudo, New Mexico, son Donald Cameron and grandson David Cameron both of Portland Oregon.

Interment was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Gateway Arts, 60 Harvard St., Brookline, MA 02445.

Mary Lou Obst, 74

A Mass of Christian Burial for Mary Lou Obst, 74, of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 30 in Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Ms. Obst died Aug. 27.

A graduate of Boston City Hospital School of Nursing, she was a member of Proparvulus. She was a retired registered nurse, having worked at Quincy City Hospital.

She is survived by her cousins in Nova Scotia, and her devoted longtime friends Rose Ciccolo and Janet Swenson.

Interment was in Forest Hill Cemetery, Boston.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Dolan Funeral Home, Milton.

Damaso Emerito Gomez, 60

Automotive Teacher

A funeral Mass for Damaso Emerito "Dan" Gomez, 60, of North Weymouth, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Sept. 1 at St. Jerome Church, North Weymouth.

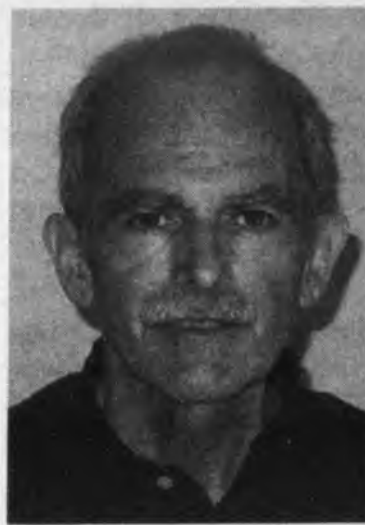

Mr. Gomez died Aug. 28.

Born in Spain, he immigrated to the United States at the age of 13. He was educated in Quincy schools and was a graduate of Quincy High School. He had lived in Weymouth for 26 years and previously in Quincy.

Mr. Gomez was employed as an automotive teacher at the Universal Technical Institute in Norwood and also enjoyed sports, especially soccer and bicycling.

He was devoted to his family.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
A change that you'd hoped for is down the line. But you still need to be patient until more explanations are forthcoming. Continue to keep your enthusiasm in check.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
Your social life expands as new friends come into your life. But while you're having fun, your practical side also sees some positive business potential within your new circle.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
Your workplace situation continues to improve. Look for advantages you might have missed while all the changes were going on around you. That trusted colleague can help.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Resist the urge to hunker down in your bunker until things ease up. Instead, get rid of that woe-is-me attitude by getting up and getting out to meet old friends and make new ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Now that you're back enjoying the spotlight again, you should feel re-energized and ready to take on the challenge of bringing those big, bold plans of yours to completion.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
A former friend would like to repair a relationship you two once enjoyed. Your positive response could have an equally positive impact on your life. Think about it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
Resist making impulsive decisions. Stay on that steady course as you continue to work out workplace problems. Be patient. All will soon be back in balance.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
You might feel confident about taking a promising offer, but continue to be alert for what you're not being told about it. Don't fret. Time is on your side.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
People dear to you might be planning a way to show appreciation for all you've done for them. Accept the honor graciously. Remember: You deserve it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Congratulations. Your self-confidence is on the rise. This could be a good time to tackle those bothersome situations you've avoided both at home and at work.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
You feel obligated to return a favor. (Of course, you do.) But heed advice from those close to you and do nothing until you know for sure what's being asked of you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Your loving reassurance helped revive a once-moribund relationship. But be wary of someone who might try to do something negative to reverse this positive turn of events.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a wonderful matchmaker who can bring people together to form long-lasting relationships.

Furnace Ave. Purchase Discussion Tabled

By SCOTT JACKSON

Questions over the $485,000 purchase of a West Quincy parcel remain unanswered after Councillor Joe Finn tabled a planned discussion of the issue at Monday night's City Council meeting.

The lot at 20 Furnace Ave. had been purchased by the city in April with funds from Mayor Tom Koch's Capital Improvement Project (CIP). The City Council didn't take a separate vote on the purchase - the administration maintains another vote wasn't needed since it was discussed when CIP was presented - causing Finn and other councillors to question the purchase in interviews with The Sun and other newspapers last month. But Finn, Finance Committee chairman, objected to a planned discussion Monday night.

"Under the rules of this body I wish to object to

Christmas Parade Theme Contest

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee announces the Christmas Parade Theme Contest is underway.

The Committee is seeking public nominations for the theme of this year's parade set for Sunday, Nov. 25.

The parade theme plays a significant role in float preparation for the annual event and is an important step in planning of each year's parade.

The contest is open to everyone. The winner will receive a gift and be invited to ride in a convertible in the parade on the Sunday after Thanksgiving.

All entries must be received no later than Friday, Sept. 28.

Entries should be mailed to Christmas Festival Committee, One Merrymount Parkway, Quincy, MA 02170.

City Remembers 9/11 With Vets Home Dedication

By EMILY TAFT

City officials, residents and veterans gathered at 51 Empire St. Tuesday to remember 9/11 and dedicate a newly renovated four-bedroom home for a returning veteran and family.

"Quincy is a place that cares," said Normand Grenier, president of the Neighborhood Housing Services. "We remember those who have given their lives for our country."

The ceremony included a tree planting, the unveiling of an engraved stone next to a flag pole outside of the home inscribed, 'Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore salutes those who have remembered the sacrifices of our veterans,' a ribbon cutting, and a moment of silence to remember those lost on 9/11.

Among the elected officials who attended the ceremony were Mayor Thomas Koch, state Sen. John Keenan, state Rep. Tackey Chan, Councillor Michael McFarland and Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest.

Also present was Gail Huff who represented her husband, U.S. Sen. Scott Brown. She presented a flag that flew over the U.S. Capitol.

today is so important and so wonderful," said Huff. "The City of Quincy is an example, a model, for the rest of the state and country."

The City of Quincy HOME Funds and the Community Preservation Funds provided the funding for the project. The house, which was a one story home before renovations, is the first of many housing projects for veterans to be done throughout the city.

"The men coming back from war have a heavy bag to carry," said Henry (Hank) Bradley, former director of the City of Quincy Department of Veterans' Services. "They will still have war in

Identified As 26-Year-Old Whitman Male Suspect In Presidents Hill Break-Ins Still At-Large

By SCOTT JACKSON

Police have identified a suspect in a series of Presidents Hill burglaries but he remains at large as of Tuesday.

At 2:06 a.m. on Aug. 31, police were called to Roselin Avenue after a resident reported a burglar was in their house. According to Quincy Police Capt. Michael Miller, the department made a 'significant response that night' and within a half hour the police stopped and talked to a man in the neighborhood. Miller said police now think he's behind the burglaries because his explanation for being in the area was suspicious.

"The reason we believe he's a good suspect was the reason he gave for being there didn't add up," Miller said.

The man, identified only as a 26-year old white male from Whitman, is also on probation. But police let him go that night because he had no items on him that could be linked to the crime, though he may have been carrying stolen cash that couldn't be traced.

"The person didn't have any items that were suspicious," Miller said.

Police received more calls from the neighborhood starting 6:30 a.m. as other residents woke up to find their houses had been broken into. The suspect was linked to three burglaries on Monroe Road, one on Glendale Road, and another on Whitwell Street. In each house either cash or jewelry was taken.

The suspect had agreed to speak with Quincy detectives last Friday, Sept. 7, but he skipped that meeting according to Capt. John Dougan. Miller said that the suspect hasn't been linked to any crimes since that night.

"He is not tied into any subsequent activity," Miller said.

QPAC To Special Ed Meets Tonight

The Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education (QPAC) will hold a general meeting Thursday, Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at Quincy High School, 100 Coddington St.

This is an open, public meeting.

A QPAC volunteer will be available to parents and guardians at 6:30 p.m. to offer individualized assistance and support.

Home Energy Assessment Presentation At Kennedy Center Sept. 26

John Sullivan, manager of Energy, Waste and Recycling at the City of Quincy Department of Public Works, will be at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St. on Wednesday, Sept. 26 at 10 a.m. to discuss the city's recent partnership with Next Step Living to encourage households in Quincy to have home energy assessments in order to access Mass Save incentives.

A primary strategy to achieve this goal is to encourage residents to upgrade the energy efficiency in their homes through weatherization and heating system replacements and renewable energy installations. In order to identify and prioritize these projects, as well as make the necessary work more affordable, the program will connect residents with FREE energy assessments and rebates through the Mass Save residential energy efficiency program.

Those interested in attending this event should call the Quincy Council on Aging at (617) 376-1506.

You have a mortgage. And a decent amount of equity. You also have high-rate credit card debt, maybe an equity loan payment, an auto loan, student loans or other debts that you would love to combine into one loan at today's still low rates...fixed and guaranteed for the next 15 years. That's what you get with a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. Some people like this idea because it makes life simple and streamlined. For others, it's a fresh start and a real weight off their back. Either way, it can be a very smart idea. Is it right for you? Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com (Have another loan or term in mind? Call us. We may be able to help.) Frank Bellotti Court House Dedication

Frank Bellotti's distinguished public service career that included serving in two state Constitutional offices will be capped off later this month when the Quincy District Court House is officially renamed "The Francis X. Bellotti District Court House."

If there's a sound track to be played during this festive occasion Sunday, Sept. 23 at noon, organizers may want to strike up that old Frank Sinatra tune "My Way."

Because through all his political ups and downs, Frank Bellotti has always done it "his way."

Exhibit A:

As the state lieutenant governor, Bellotti challenged fellow Democrat and sitting governor Endicott Peabody for the 1964 Democratic gubernatorial nomination. He defeated Peabody by 27,000 votes but narrowly lost to Republican John Volpe in the general election by only one percentage point or 23,000 votes.

That foray for the highest elective office in state government is a political footnote in U.S. history. Bellotti is the only lieutenant governor to challenge a sitting governor – of either major political party in any state – in a bid for their party's gubernatorial nomination.

"It hadn't happened before and it hasn't been done since," says the spry 89-year-old today.

Bellotti's political career spans five decades. There are have been major victories – like his successful out-of-no-where win for lieutenant governor in 1962 and disappointments, including three failed attempts to secure the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in 1964, 1970 and 1990.

But through it all he has maintained a dry wit and sense of humor.

"They always said I did things that nobody else has done but the most important thing I did was lose three times for governor," he muses.

Bellotti's decision to enter political life came in 1958 when he ran for Norfolk County District Attorney as a Democrat in a then staunch-Republican county. In retrospect, that loss would later help propel Bellotti to lieutenant governor in 1962 and a decade later to state attorney general.

"I had run for district attorney in 1958 and I came closer than any (Democrat) had ever come but I still lost by 19,000 votes. But as time went on, people kept writing about it as if I had lost by only two or three hundred votes. I was going to run for D.A. again in 1962 but I looked at it and I said I can't win. This is still a Republican county.

"When I decided to run for lieutenant governor (in 1962), John Gillis, Dick Koch and I were sitting in my car right by the old courthouse on Coddington Street. That's when we decided I'd run for lieutenant governor and I had never held office."

Bellotti went all around the state – visiting little towns and hamlets seldom frequented by candidates – and this well-organized grass-roots effort pulled off a big upset and put Quincy on the state political map. He shocked the Democratic party establishment at the convention in Springfield by lining up more than enough delegates to be on the ballot. He defeated fellow Democrat Herbert Connolly in the primary by nearly 100,000 votes. In the final election, Bellotti polled more than a million votes defeating Republican Francis W. Perry and two other fringe candidates.

Two years later, he made his first of three attempts for governor. At that time, the term of office for lieutenant governor and governor was only two years. After 1964, the term was lengthened to four years.

Bellotti made another bid for governor in 1970 but he finished third in a four-way race. Democrat Kevin White would lose the general election to Republican Frank Sargent.

Four years later, in 1974, Bellotti made a triumphant return to state office winning the race for attorney general. He was re-elected in 1978 and 1982 but did not seek re-election in 1986.

As attorney general, Bellotti is credited with instilling professionalism among his staff. He championed civil rights and served as the President of the National Association of Attorneys General (NAAG). In 1981, NAAG unanimously voted to award Bellotti the prestigious Louis C. Wyman Award recognizing the most outstanding attorney general in the U.S.

When political newcomers ask him for advice, Bellotti points to his 12 years as the state's chief law enforcement official.

"When I got elected attorney general, I decided what I was going to do is exactly what I thought was the right thing to do and not what was politically right. If I was wrong and you could change my mind, I had no problems changing it. I did that for 12 years and I was so comfortable.

"When I was lieutenant governor, I was so worried about what's politically right and politically wrong. If you do what you think is right, you may get people pissed off when you do it but they'll trust you in the end and that's what I generally had was trust.

"People didn't always agree with me all the time. I was probably too liberal for a lot of people but I always did for 12 years – which I didn't do as lieutenant governor – what I thought was the right thing to do and not the politically right thing to do."

He says he is very proud of his former staff. Many continue to serve in public life.

"People who worked for me while I was attorney general about 40 of them became judges. They're all doing well. We have a reunion every year or two. We always have 200 come back from all over the world.

"They all have a commitment to public service and they all say it's the best job they ever had. They'll be affecting things long after I'm gone."

Bellotti was among that wave of new Democrats back in the 1950s. While he has a great story about John F. Kennedy, it was not JFK who influenced him to become a Democrat.

"When I grew up my mother worked for 18 dollars a week when men were getting 30 dollars. That's what I was always a women's right advocate because I thought it was a family issue. I got about everything I ever had – the G.I. Bill, all of those things – were all Democratic programs."

He said the late John McCormack, the longtime Bay State congressman who served as U.S. Speaker of the House, also influenced his decision to become a Democrat.

"When he was Speaker of the House, he used to campaign in the wards for me. I loved John McCormack and I liked Jack Kennedy, too. I campaigned with him when he ran for the Senate. I remember he helped put up some of my signs at the Quincy Armory."

JFK, Bellotti says, was so different that the likes of him will probably never be seen again.

"I don't think anyone really understands how different Kennedy was. He's the only guy who made me feel in awe. I will never forget I went to one of his fundraisers and he had 6,000 people in the Commonwealth Armory. Kevin White and I are sitting one chair apart – the chair that Jack Kennedy will sit in.

"When Kennedy came into the room, it looked like he had a halo around his head. I'm not kidding you. I said to Kevin White, 'He really looks like a President.' And Kevin White says to me, 'He looks like the answer to everything in the world.

"Whether you liked him or not," Bellotti continued, "JFK had something that was different. I don't think it will ever be repeated. I sat beside him and he was talking to me and he was friendly but I so uncomfortable because I was in such awe of him. He's the only guy that's ever affected me that way and I've been with all the Presidents – Carter, Bush, Reagan. I've met them all and I've talked to them all and nobody came close to what he had."

Still practicing law today, Bellotti has long been considered one of the best-prepared and most tenacious litigators while exhibiting judges, court personnel, opposing counsel, witnesses and clients with respect.

The court house dedication will really bring Frank Bellotti's career full circle.

"Until I was elected attorney general (in 1974), that court house was a very important part of my life. I tried my first case there and I've tried hundreds of cases (criminal and civil) in that court. There were some great judges there like Mrs. Halloran, Judge Mulhal and Walter Prince. They had some great people there.

"Because (this court house) was such a part of my professional life, that makes it very personal."

Bellotti thanked state Rep. Ron Mariano, the House Majority Leader, and Rep. Brian Dempsey, the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, for introducing the legislation that lead to the name change.

The longtime Quincy Democrat will be the second person in Massachusetts to have a municipal or county courthouse name in his honor. The other is former Sen. Edward Brooke whose name appears on the Boston Municipal Court House.

There will be a lot of tributes Sept. 23 when the Francis X. Bellotti Court House is dedicated.

Should be some great stories, too.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN old postcard from the Harvard Aeronautical Society's 1910 aeromeet in Squantum, 102 years ago this week. Over $60,000 in prizes were offered for the newly developed propeller driving aircraft to set records at the meet, only the second to be held in the United States. Other contests attracted a human powered helicopter, two mankites and this propeller driven dirigible piloted by Cromwell Dixon who was only a teenager. He was to fly this balloon from Squantum to Beacon Hill, but he mistook the Christian Science Mother Church as the dome of the State House and lost the contest. The aeromeet attracted over 20,000 visitors to Quincy, including President William Howard Taft. The 500-acre airfield that was set up for the meet later became Denison Airport and then part of the Squantum Naval Air Station. It is now the site of The Moorings at Squantum Gardens and the Kennedy Senior Center. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Francis X. Bellotti Quincy Court House A Special Honor

The news that the Quincy Court House is to be renamed to honor former Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti is something I think is very special to do.

I thank state Rep. Ron Mariano for spearheading the effort to make this happen. Like Mariano, I too count myself as a long time friend and have always considered Frank Bellotti my political mentor. I was only 10 years old when he ran for Norfolk County district attorney. Only 14 years old when he was elected lieutenant governor.

As someone who grew up in St. Phillip's Parish in Roxbury, I found myself steeped in politics. James Michael Curley came from my parish and so too did Bellotti. We both lived off the streets that bordered Harrison Avenue. My old state representative was Charlie Iannello who once gave me a puppy as I passed by his doorway. Politics back then was never abstract, it was real. Iannello wasn't just a name on the ballot. He found people jobs and housing and if you needed a pair of shoes, he had them too in all sizes and colors. He served us by living with us which could also be said of Frank Bellotti.

I first met Bellotti as a young campaign aide while I was in college back during his failed 1970 gubernatorial campaign. He also should have been elected attorney general in 1966 before a last minute apparent smear sent him to defeat.

In 1974, he was elected attorney general and served for three terms. His tenure as attorney general was stellar. He made one final attempt in 1990 to run for governor but winning that office eluded him forever.

He was a warm and caring individual. He was a good lawyer. He became known as a great attorney general. He was the face of working class Democrats. He never resorted to negative campaigning and always ran above board. He said what he meant and meant what he said.

It is not often that a public building is named after someone who is still among us. His son Michael Bellotti sounded real thrilled about this honor bestowed on his father and talked about how it isn't everyday that a courthouse is rededicated in honor of someone.

Frank Bellotti is someone special and I will be at the Sept. 23 ceremony and renaming of the courthouse in honor of the life and work of Francis X. Bellotti.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 22, 1776, in New York City, 21-year-old Nathan Hale, a captain in the Continental Army, is executed by the British for spying. Before being hanged, legend holds that Hale said, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." There is no historical record to prove that Hale actually made this statement.

• On Sept. 18, 1793, George Washington lays the cornerstone to the United States Capitol building. The building would take nearly a century to complete, as architects came and went, the British set fire to it, and it was called into use during the Civil War.

• On Sept. 23, 1846, German astronomer Johann Gottfried Galle discovers the planet Neptune. The blue gas giant, which has a diameter four times that of Earth, has eight known moons and a ring system containing three bright and two dim rings.

• On Sept. 21, 1938, a powerful Category 3 hurricane slams into Long Island and southern New England. Charlie Pierce, a junior forecaster in the U.S. Weather Bureau, was sure that the hurricane was heading for the Northeast, but the chief forecaster overruled him. All told, 700 people were killed by the hurricane.

• On Sept. 19, 1959, in one of the more surreal moments in the history of the Cold War, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev explodes with anger when he learns he cannot visit Disneyland. Government authorities feared that the crowds would pose a safety hazard.

• On Sept. 17, 1965, four adventurous Englishmen arrive at a motor show in Germany after crossing the English Channel by Amphicar, the world's only mass-produced amphibious passenger car. On land, the cars used a four-speed-plus-reverse manual transmission. In the water, they used a transfer case that had two speeds: forward and backward.

• On Sept. 20, 1973, in a highly publicized "Battle of the Sexes" tennis match, top women's player Billie Jean King, 29, plays Bobby Riggs, 55, a former No. 1-ranked men's player. Riggs, a self-proclaimed male chauvinist, had boasted that women were inferior. King beat Riggs 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Motorcycle Run Raises More Than $20,000 For Individuals With Developmental Disabilities

Over 500 Motorcyclists Ride For JT Ford

By SCOTT JACKSON

More than 550 motorcyclists from across the South Shore and beyond participated in the ninth annual JT's Thunder Motorcycle Run in August.

The event took place Aug. 19, starting at the Commonwealth Restaurant at 79 Parkway. The riders included members of the Quincy Police Department's Special Operations Unit, and motorcycle units from nearby police departments including Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Norwell, Hull, and Scituate. The MBTA Transit Police and Norfolk County Sheriff's Department also took part.

The bikers rode through the South Shore communities of Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Norwell, Hull, Hanover, and Scituate. After the ride, they returned to the Commonwealth for a barbecue. The Bad Reputation Band and DJ Kevin Z provided live music.

The event is named after John Thomas "JT" Ford, a 25-year old Quincy Point resident who was diagnosed with cerebral palsy when he was two-and-a-half years old. JT's Thunder is organized by his parents John and Debby Ford and older sister JoAnna. John and Debby — who started the South Shore Children's Fund 28 years ago and continue to run it today.

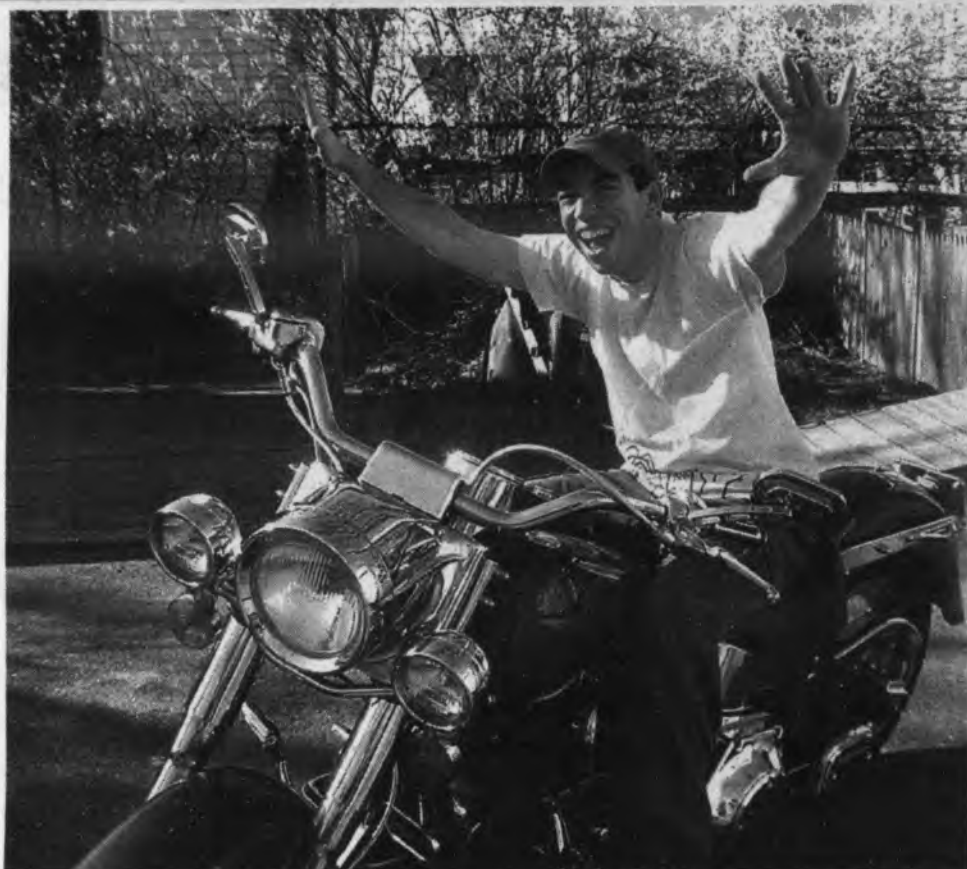

This year's Thunder Run raised more than $20,000. Among other charities, the money raised goes towards the Friendship Home in Norwell. The Friendship Home is a respite home for individuals with developmental disabilities and their families. John Ford thanked Quincy and the police department for helping out with the event.

"Everyone in the city of Quincy has been great to us," Ford said. "We really want to thank Mayor (Tom) Koch and Lt. Tom Corliss of the Quincy Police Special Operations Unit and the police from the surrounding communities for being so supportive of all of our efforts."

In addition to being the largest JT's Thunder Run, last month's event will also be the last. John Ford said JT has other interests besides motorcycles, including NASCAR racing and music. The family plans to hold a new event starting next year, which will likely include those interests.

"Maybe a 'Bikes and Blues' festival or concert," Ford said of the possibilities for next year. "This is really too important to too many people to not do something. JT's Thunder will be back, it will just be a little different."

JOHN THOMAS "JT" Ford's love of motorcycles inspired JT's "Thunder Run." In its ninth and final year, JT Thunder raises money for the Friendship Home in Norwell and other charities. Here, JT sits on his father John's Harley-Davidson.

In addition to JT's Thunder, the South Shore Children's Fund also hosts JT's

Tee Off Tournament, a golf tournament scheduled to take place at Presidents Golf Course next July. Proceeds from that event, which will celebrate its 25th anniversary in 2013, go towards SSCF's holiday party. About 150 foster children attend the party every year.

More information on the SSCF is available online at sschildrensfund.org. Information on the Friendship Home can be found at friendshiphome.net.

POLICE OFFICERS from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Hull, Norwell and Scituate as well as MBTA Police and the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department turned out in support of JT's Thunder Run last month. Joining them are members of the Ford family, including Thunder Run namesake JT and sister JoAnna (center), their mother Debby (left) and father John (right.)

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Irene's Beef, Sweet Potato Roast

I was having lunch with my friend Irene and she gave me a great recipe she sometimes cooks for the Jewish holidays. But it certainly can be made anytime.

It resembles a pot roast, but very different in the preparation. It's called Tzimmis.

This entrée bakes all night in the oven uncovered, and according to Irene, the aroma through the house is wonderful especially in the morning when it is done.

TZIMMIS

6 pounds of beef (she uses chuck)
8 large sweet potatoes (peeled and cut in quarters)
½ to ¾ cup brown sugar

In a large pan place the meat with water just about covering the meat. Cook for a while until water is boiling and then for another 15-20 minutes. Remove the meat to let it cool. Place the sweet potatoes in the same water and cook until potatoes are done.

Mash the potatoes while in the water. Cut the meat in small pieces and put back in the water. Add the brown sugar and blend. If the liquid seems watery, add a few plain bread crumbs.

Bake uncovered in a 200-225 oven overnight until morning. When it is done, there is a shiny glaze over the top. Any left over's can be frozen for another day.

Irene's Noodle Pudding

One day as I was having lunch with my friend Irene, she gave me a couple of recipes she usually cooks for the Jewish holidays. But they can be made anytime.

It's made with noodles and is an entrée that can be refrigerated and enjoyed when wanted.

CINNAMON NOODLE PUDDING

1 pound medium or wide noodles
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 large eggs
2-3 apples (cut in slices)

½ cup raisins
butter for topping

Cook the noodles according to directions. Set aside. In a large bowl, beat the eggs and add the cinnamon, sugar and vanilla. Mix the sliced apples with the raisins.

Toss the noodles in a large pan and mix all of the ingredients together with the noodles.

In a greased baking dish, place the noodle mix, top it with slices of butter, and bake in a 350-degree oven for 35 minutes. Cut in squares when cooled. It can be served warm or cold.

BRENDAN CAVIN, age 9, of Houghs Neck, wears of the tee-shirts he designed to help raise money to bring clean water to Africa. He's sold more than 400 of the shirts to generate nearly $5,000 for his clean water cause.

9-Year-Old Brendan Cavin Raises Over $4,000 To Help Bring Clean Water To Africa

By EMILY TAFT

Nine-year-old Houghs Neck resident Brendan Cavin was recently awarded a $1,000 scholarship and a $50 gift card to Kohl's after being selected as a regional winner for the Kohl's Cares Scholarship Program for his work with bringing clean water to Africa.

Brendan was nominated by a family member to be recognized by the Kohl's Cares Scholarship Program after raising over $4,900 that will be donated to an organization called Charity: Water.

"I've learned a lot of things from doing this," Brendan said. "I learned that people in Africa and different countries are different than us because of water, and we need to help them to get water, clean water. People are dying and getting very sick because their water isn't clean. I want to continue to do this for a very long time to stop that from happening."

Kohl's Cares Scholarship Program recognizes and rewards young volunteers who help make their communities a better place. Those nominated have to had contributed to the community in a meaningful way by performing volunteer services that helped non-family members. Winners are chosen based on their project, benefits, and outcomes, and must be between the ages of six and 18.

Brendan began raising money for Charity: Water after learning from his dad last summer that there are many countries around the world that don't have clean drinking water. Brendan, a student at Atherton Hough Elementary School, decided he wanted to change that.

Brendan's mission began after his dad, Aaron Cavin, one day was telling him about what he could do with the money he would earn mowing lawns.

"I was telling him that when he gets older he can start mowing the lawn and mowing the neighbor's lawn to make some money and maybe go to the store and buy a soda," said Aaron. "He asked how much money? So I said if you do 10 lawns, for 10 neighbors, for 10 weeks (for $10) that's a $1,000. So he started to think about all the things he could buy with that and of course I said well you certainly could buy a lot with that but you could also give some of it to help (organizations or people). He then asked me who he would give that money to, and I had recently been at a conference in Atlanta and became familiar with the Charity: Water organization, so I used that as a for instance."

Charity: Water is a non-profit organization that brings clean and safe drinking water to people in developing nations. All the money donated goes back into building freshwater wells, rainwater catchments and sand filters.

Aaron said that he knew his son was more interested than normal when he continued to ask questions about the charity.

"He asked how much it would cost to build a well, and I thought well that's kind of an interesting question because I just assumed that was like a passing comment," said Aaron. "That's when we kind of noticed he was a bit more interested than normal. We just were kind of talking and he said well maybe I could build a well every summer. I think that statement probably moved me more than anything that he was thinking far bigger in terms of compassion than I was even. As his parents, we wanted to encourage that in him, and his mom kind of suggested that we make some tee-shirts."

Since then, Brendan has sold over 400 shirts and raised over $4,900 by attending different events that his father speaks at along with selling them to neighbors, family and friends. Cavin said he plans to make a new design for the next set of shirts he will sell once the remaining three from the first batch are gone. Brendan designed the shirts, that read "I like bugs, but not in my water," and sells them for $15. He said he has ideas for the next set he will sell but isn't sure exactly what he will go with just yet.

Brendan said the next step is to build a website for people to buy his shirts online and continue to raise as much money as he can.

"To build a well costs $5,000," Brendan said. "I want to build a lot of wells, in a lot of different countries. I think this is something I will do for the rest of my life."

State Primary Turnout 9% Here; President, Senate Big Draws Nov. 6

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As anticipated, the state primary was a low turnout affair as only 9.1 percent of the city's 61,701 voters - a meager 5,643 voters - went to the polls to decide two contests in the unusual Thursday election Sept. 6.

It will be a much different story for the Presidential Election Tuesday, Nov. 6.

City Clerk Joseph Shea is predicting a turnout of 72 percent of the city's registered voters will go to the polls Nov. 6 and help choose three main contests: President, U.S. Senator and Congressman in the new 8th district that includes Quincy.

All other Democratic office holders on the ballot Nov. 6 are virtually assured of re-election because they do not face Republican opposition. That includes the city's Beacon Hill delegation of state senator and four state representatives (one precinct in Quincy - Ward 3 Precinct 3 - is now part of the 13th Suffolk District.)

The Nov. 6 election will also be just a formality for several county officials, all Democrats who do not have Republican opposition. Running unopposed are the county's Register of Deeds, Clerk of Courts and two County Commissioners.

Here's the Quincy vote from last Thursday's state election:

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

• U.S. Senator: Elizabeth Warren, 2,933 votes. There were 943 blank ballots and 251 write-ins.

• Congressman, 8th District: Stephen F. Lynch, 3,483 votes. There were 594 blanks and 50 write-ins.

• Governor's Councilor: Christopher Iannella defeated Stephen F. Flynn. In Quincy, Iannella received 2,200 votes to Flynn's 1,429. There were 488 blanks and 10 write-ins.

• State Senator: John F. Keenan, 3,445 votes. There were 640 blanks and 42 write-ins.

• State Representative, First Norfolk District: Bruce Ayers, 1,803 votes. There were 171 blanks and 10 write-ins. Ten of the district's 13 precincts are located in Quincy.

• State Representative, Second Norfolk District: Tackey Chan, 1,600 votes. There were 317 blanks and 25 write-ins. All of the district's 13 precincts are in Quincy.

• State Representative, Third Norfolk District: Ronald Mariano, 698 votes. There were 123 blanks and 17 write-ins. Seven of the district's 13 precincts are in Quincy.

• State Representative, 13th Suffolk District: Martin Walsh, 78 votes. There were 11 blanks and three write-ins. Only one of the district's 13 precincts (Ward 3, Precinct 3) is located in Quincy - the others are in Boston.

• Norfolk County Clerk of Courts: Walter F. Timilty, Jr., 3,215 votes. There were 877 blanks and 35 write-ins.

• Norfolk County Register of Deeds: William P. O'Donnell, 3,241 votes. There were 850 blanks and 36 write-ins.

• Norfolk County Commissioner (two incumbents, both unopposed): John M. Gillis, 3,152 votes and Francis W. O'Brien, 1,433 votes. There were 3,611 uncast votes and 58 write-ins.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY

• U.S. Senator: Scott Brown, 1,460 votes. There were 35 blanks and 17 write-ins.

• Congressman, 8th District: Mattias Temperley received more Quincy votes but lost the nomination to Joe Selvaggi. Temperley's vote was 792 while Selvaggi received 449 votes in Quincy. There were 264 blanks and seven write-ins.

There were no other Republicans on the ballot in Quincy for the state primary.

Wollaston Garden Club's 'Best Perennials' Program

The community is invited to attend a program on "30 Plants That Pay the Rent" at Wollaston Congregational Church, 47 Winthrop Ave. on Thursday, Sept. 20th at 7:30 p.m.

The program is spon- sored by the Wollaston Gar- den Club. This is first pro- gram of the season for the garden club, which is in its 85th year.

The program is given by Adriana O'Sullivan, a well- known Landscape Designer and Gardening Consultant who will show us her top choices for 30 plants that "pay the rent" by saving us time, money, and aggrava- tion. The plants she talks about were chosen because of their ability to do well in our New England climate. This program should give participants many ideas on what to purchase in those end-of-season garden center sales and what to plant for next year.

For more information about the Wollaston Garden Club and its programs visit www.wollastongardenclub.org.

Constitution Day Celebration At Crane Library

A free Constitution Day seminar entitled "Interpret- ing the Constitution: The War on Drugs Revisited" will mark 225 years of con- stitutional government Fri- day, Sept. 14 from 9:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Constitution Day is observed annually on the day the U.S. Constitutional Convention signed the Con- stitution in September 1787. This special seminar, lead by attorneys Robert Baker and Peter V. Bellotti, will focus on some of the most significant issues the Su- preme Court has addressed, with special attention to the constitutional issues raised by the U.S. government's decades-old War on Drugs.

Currently Special As- sistant to the President of Quincy College, Baker is a former Dean of the Division of Business and Public Ser- vices at Quincy College. He teaches Constitutional Law at Quincy College.

Belotti is a Boston trial attorney at Bellotti Law Group and former Middle- sex County prosecutor with over 500 trials in his career.

The program is spon- sored by the Thomas Crane Public Library and Quincy College.

Silent Movie 'The Artist' Screening Tonight At Library

The multiple-Oscar win- ning silent movie "The Art- ist" will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Li- brary, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

It's 1927 in Hollywood and George Valentin is a silent movie superstar. The advent of the talkies will sound the death knell for his career and see him fall into oblivion. For young extra Peppy Miller, it seems the sky's the limit - major mov- ie stardom awaits.

The Artist tells the story of their interlinked desti- nies.

Directed by Michel Ha- zanavicius, the film stars Bérénice Bejo and Jean Dujardi. The 100-minute movie is rated PG-13.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Orchard Beach

Walking Tour Sept. 23

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program will host a free walk at low tide at Orchard Beach Sunday, Sept. 23 at 11 a.m.

Led by UMass Professor Anamarija Frankic and nat- uralist Peter Fifield, the tour will explore salt marshes, tidal pools, the stories be- hind the "bones" of a ship- wreck and the mysterious pilings offshore and the new field of biomimicry.

Participants should wear tie on shoes, boots or hiking sandals for walking in shal- low muddy water and on slippery rocks. There will be an optional bring-your- own picnic on Peterson's Rocks at the end of the tour.

The tour will begin at the intersection of Huckins Avenue and Bayside Road in Squantum. Parking on Bayside Road is limited so parking on side streets is recommended.

Furnace Ave. Purchase Discussion Tabled

this particular matter," Finn said. "This is a very serious matter. I chair the Finance Committee - I've yet to hear from anyone in the administration."

Finn added that he had read assertions in media reports, and needed time to consider them.

"Certain assertions are being made," Finn said. "I've hardly had the time to consider that so at this point in time I don't need any apologetic related to it at this time so I respectfully object."

After the meeting, Finn clarified that he wants to have the discussion focused on the process by which the administration purchased the land instead of the wider issue of flood control.

"You could see how the conversation was beginning to start, it was going to be focused on the flooding - that's a compelling argument obviously about the need for things to be done," Finn said. "Again, I think we need to have a rational, thought-out discussion related to this and from my perspective make sure that it doesn't happen and proceed like this again."

Finn hopes that an order on the issue is drawn up for the next council meeting, scheduled for Sept. 24, allowing the council to refer discussion to the appropriate council committees.

"I think at that particular point in time we'll be able to have an order in place setting up the process by which the committees can begin to have that discussion in terms specifically as it relates to the Furnace Ave. an how that transaction took place," Finn said.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, who represents the neighborhood and previously defended the purchase, questioned Finn's ability to table the discussion but Council President Mike McFarland agreed that Finn could nix the discussion with an objection. After the meeting, Palmucci said he was disappointed the presentation didn't take place.

"I was disappointed we didn't get to receive a presentation from the administration as to the Furnace Ave. flood relief project," Palmucci said. "I think a lot of questions about it have been raised by my colleagues in the press and tonight was a missed opportunity to give answers to many of the questions that were raised and to inform the public about what's going on with the project. Quite frankly I'm just disappointed we didn't get that tonight."

Palmucci further explained that Finn hadn't talked to him about the purchase at all, and didn't know about Finn's plan to table discussion.

"I had spoken to a couple folks today and told them that tonight we were going to have a discussion on in and to tune in. I posted it on Facebook that tonight we were going to get some information about this particular project which is a hot topic these days and I wasn't aware that he was going to do that," Palmucci said.

The move also caught City Solicitor Jim Timmins by surprise. He found it perplexing that Finn would raise questions about the administration in the press but not allow for a discussion to take place during Monday's meeting.

"I'm completely perplexed that you have city councillors who go to the newspapers with concerns and claim to be upset about a matter that had been before them and then when we're here tonight they don't want to engage in a discussion," Timmins said. "It's very dismaying for a couple of city councillors to raise questions that challenge the integrity of a process that occurred in their body and the integrity of the city government and not allow for a response."

Timmins again defended the purchase, pointing out that the original bond order allowed the mayor to "take any action necessary." The solicitor said he'd give the council greater oversight, but said they must be more vigilant when items are discussed in meetings.

"If they want greater oversight or greater input they shouldn't draft orders like this, they shouldn't discuss projects and nod their heads when people are saying 'we're going to do this here on this project, we're going to do that here on this project,'" Timmins said. "When I go to the boys' room, I'll take the key to go to the boy's room and I'll get council approval before I go if that's what they want, I have no problem with that. No one's trying to keep anything from the council."

The solicitor also explained that while the owner of the 43,480 square foot property owed the city property taxes, taking it through the tax title process wasn't realistic since a bank was going to foreclose on the property the week after the city bought the lot. Instead, the back taxes were paid as part of the purchase.

"Going through the tax title process takes a while, generally it takes about two years," Timmins said. "You go into land court and then they assign a land court examiner to do a title exam to see who's got an interest in the property to make sure that before a municipality takes it for taxes anyone who might have an interest is notified properly, they don't want to leave it to the municipality.

"That's what backs things up, it takes a long time to get tax title examinations done. We could not have done it prior to the foreclosure."

During the meeting itself Finn submitted a resolve calling on the administration to give an overall update on the CIP. He further amended it to have Municipal Finance Director Mark Cavanaugh submit all warrants and transactions related to the 2011 CIP as well as those related to a similar 2007 bond. Palmucci, Doug Gutro, and Margaret Laforest submitted a similar resolve in January, but no update has been given yet.

Quincy Chamber 'Leadership Launch'

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce announces a new program called "The QCC Leadership Launch" which aims to guide individuals with an interest and desire to become more involved in the community.

It is a seven-week program that meets weekly.

Through these sessions participants become aware of the current community issues as well as local business challenges. Q & A sessions offer an opportunity for creative thinking and an awareness of how the participants can become a part of the solutions. It covers a variety of topics designed to inform participants about the past, present and future of the city of Quincy. Discussions will focus on civic engagement, government structure, economic development and social engagement within the community.

Cost for the program is $200 per employee, and may be paid for by either the employer or employee.

The program will run Sept. 27-Nov. 15th and classes will be held every Thursday from 8 to 9:30 a.m. at Eastern Nazarene College, 180 Old Colony Ave., Quincy.

Deadline to register is Sept. 21. Contact Maralin Manning at (617) 471-1700 or email mmanning@the-quincy-chamber.com for additional information.

'Music Of The Beatles' Begins Sept. 18 At Library

In October 1962, The Beatles released their first hit single: "Love Me Do."

Fifty years later, their music remains popular and inspiring.

Why has it continued to exert such a profound influence on performers and songwriters for the past 50 years?

Find out at a free interactive three-part series at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Quincy resident and Wheaton College music professor Delvyn Case will explore the brilliance of the Beatles' music: the songs and styles that influenced it, its exquisite musical structure, and the innovations that made it so revolutionary.

No musical background is required - just a love for the Fab Four. Sessions will be held on Tuesdays at 7 p.m.

On Tuesday, Sept. 18, Revisit The Early Years and discover how the Beatles crafted such "perfect" pop songs like "She Loves You," "I Want to Hold Your Hand," and "A Hard Day's Night."

On Tuesday, Sept. 25, find out how the Beatles transformed themselves as songwriters on "Rubber Soul," then transformed popular music with "Revolver."

On Tuesday, Oct. 2, explore the musical innovations of "Sergeant Pepper's" and the post-psychedelic aesthetics of "The White Album."

Case is an active composer, conductor, scholar, performer and educator. He is a past faculty member at Boston College, Northeastern University, Eastern Nazarene College and Longy School of Music and is also the Music Director of the Quincy Bay Chamber Orchestra and the Great Woods Chamber Orchestra.

The series is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

A RINGING ENDORSEMENT

In this political season with so many giving their endorsement to candidates of their choice, our backing goes to a clear winner. The bold, chunky cocktail ring has emerged in recent years as an unmistakable leader. There simply is no better way for a woman to so prominently show off her sophisticated fashion sense than to wear an oversized cocktail ring with an attention-drawing gemstone at its heart. The beauty of this sort of display is that it need not be an expensive endeavor. Naturally, a five-carat blue step-cut diamond is bound to draw attention, but an oversized blue topaz or yellow citrine will also catch their share of eyes. There are a host of suitable colored gemstones available today.

Want to feel like you stepped off the runway? Well you have definitely come to the right place. We have a stunning selection of cocktail rings. Come in and browse our huge selection of jewelry at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center or contact us at 617-773-3636. We have jewelry for every budget and styles for every taste.

Shaw Named Acting Principal At NQHS

the work that he has done. I think he is respected incredibly by the North Quincy staff. I also think that they respect him in a way that he also shared a vision for North Quincy High School with Earl."

Just days before the start of the new school year, NQHS had to appoint two acting assistant principals after learning Metzler had been chosen for a superintendent's position in New Hampshire.

"Personally this was a very hard decision for me to make," Metzler told The Sun. "The hardest part really had to do with saying goodbye to the people at Sterling and North. The well wishes and support I have received from the staff at both school has been overwhelming."

DeCristofaro announced at the school committee meeting Sept. 5th that Metzler gave his resignation on Sept. 1 to move forward in his career as the superintendent of the Timberlane Regional School District, N.H.

"He has been successful in gaining a superintendent's position in New Hampshire," said DeCristofaro. "He really is a wonderful educator and someone who loves kids and is respectful of the parents and families. It is really hard to replace someone like him. He will be sorely missed."

Michael Connor, the head of the Social Studies Department at NQHS, and Helena Skinner, the head of the Guidance department at NQHS, will be the two acting assistant principals until DeCristofaro is able to appoint a new principal for the high school.

DeCristofaro said that there is a sense of urgency to fill the principal position, and that he would like Shaw to appear before the school committee to share his vision for the high school along with his ideas on curriculum and leadership.

"We know this gentleman can be an absolutely excellent principal in the very near future," said DeCristofaro. "As we wish Dr. Metzler every success in the world, we need to focus on where we need to be for our kids and for our staff."

Shaw comes with a host of experiences at NQHS. He is a North Quincy graduate and worked there as a teacher, department head and assistant principal.

He was set to teach English and Social Studies at Bridgewater-Raynham High School this fall until he was contacted about the North Quincy principal vacancy.

It is ultimately at DeCristofaro's discretion on who will become the new principal at NQHS.

"The advice I would give to the next principal is to lead by standing behind," said Metzler. "North Quincy has always been a head of the curve, and the students are committed to our core values of knowledge, character, and service."

The loss of Metzler who was the principal of NQHS for five years does not go unnoticed, or unrecognized during the scramble to replace him. He has given 25 years to the Quincy Public School System, as a teacher, coach, assistant principal, and principal.

Metzler spent 20 years at

Defeat Boston Latin 28-14 In Home Opener Running Red Raiders Roll To First Victory

By COLLEEN CASEY

With their first Friday night game under the lights delayed a day because of lightening, the North Quincy football team came out eager to win Saturday. With running backs Antoine Allen and Eddie Guinto leading the way, the Red Raiders rolled past Boston Latin 28-14.

"It's the greatest feeling to have the kids start off with a win and get that monkey off our back," said coach Jim Connor. "They've got that done and now we can focus on getting better each week."

The victory was a little bit sweeter this season. When these two teams met last year, The Wolfpack edged North Quincy in a close 7-6 battle. The Red Raiders made sure that wouldn't happen again this year, scoring on four of their six drives.

"Last year I thought both teams made a lot of mistakes and they were able to capitalize," said Connor. "But this year it was a good football game and we had no turnovers. It wasn't sloppy. There were two good battling teams, two good running teams and it was exciting."

The Wolfpack received to start the game, and their opening drive was limited to six plays thanks to strong defense. Allen had a 22-yard kick return to put the Red Raiders in decent field position to start their first drive.

They wasted no time getting on the board. Allen (159 yards rushing on 14 carries, 2 touchdowns) rushed for 18 yards the first play, and Guinto (159 yards rushing on 16 carries, 2 touchdowns) followed with a 42-yard run into the end zone. Then Allen rushed for the 2-point conversion to give NQ an 8-0 advantage.

Boston Latin ultimately responded with a score, eating up most of the clock of the first en route. Jhalen Bilen-Aime capped a 13-play drive with a 2-yard walk into the end zone, but the conversion failed, making it 8-6.

Quincy wasted no time again in the second, this time scoring on three plays. On second and 11, Guinto found a gap and rushed for 52 yards before being knocked out of bounds. Then Allen broke through the line and ran 25 yards for the touchdown. QB Andrew Minton sneaked in for the conversion, giving NQ a 16-6 cushion with 10:41 remaining in the second.

"I really give credit to my line they made it easy for me," said Allen. "I just saw the holes and it was wide open, and I went for it."

An outstanding defensive effort from defensive end Vinny Tran and lineman Kevin Pappadopolous kept the Wolfpack from scoring again the first half.

The Red Raiders started with the ball in the third, this time taking nine plays to score. Allen and Guinto took turns carrying the ball and wracking more yardage. Allen perfected the drive with a 34-yard TD run, but the conversion failed, making it 22-6.

"We're a running team first," said Connor. "With all of the offensive rushing yards we had you have to weigh in the offensive line that as blocking for them. They did a great job all day."

The Wolfpack was able to penetrate the defense the following sequence, with Patrick Fahy leading the way. Fahy rushed 57 yards on seven plays, and then rushed for the conversion, bringing the score 22-14 at the end of three.

The Red Raiders got their final points with 8:10 remaining in the game. Guinto capped a 10-play drive with a 4-yard plow into the end zone.

"The defensive line was blitzing and coming in hard but our lineman got us some good pickups," said Minton. "We got calls at the right times. There wasn't a lot of pressure and the backs had huge holes so everything worked out good."

The Wolfpack did not go down without a fight. They were 15-yards from scoring when Pappadopolous plowed through the line of scrimmage and sacked QB Roy Barnham for an 8-yard loss. Barnham was shaken up and threw two incomplete passes, forcing a turnover.

"That's the kind of stuff we talked about at half time. When you half a three and out with that kind of defense and force a turnover on downs, you have to have a big play. That was the big play," said Connor. "It gets them behind schedule on offense and now they're doing thing they're uncomfortable doing. Once that happens you're in good shape. It finalized it all."

Presidents Bow In OT To Cohasset In Opener

By JEFF OHLSON

After a 45 minute weather delay, Quincy and Cohasset brought some thunder and lightning of their own in an overtime thriller at Cohasset Alumni Field last Friday night. Tim Gillis of Cohasset and Quincy's Jalen Green both put on a show, rushing for over 100 yards each but the Presidents bowed, 28-22.

The game, which was both teams' season opener, went into overtime. The overtime rules had both teams starting at the 10-yard line, with 4 downs to score a touchdown or field goal. Quincy went first and Cohasset would go second. If both teams scored an equal amount of points, then each team would get another possession until one team scored more points.

The Presidents failed to convert their first overtime possession into any points, going 4-and-out on a run and three passes. Cohasset was the last team with the ball, scoring on a 3-yard run by Ryan Gillis to win the game on their first overtime possession.

The first half was all about offense with each team scoring on a pair of big plays. After Quincy scored the first points of the game on a Peter Cedrone 2-yard touchdown run, the Skipper answered with a 79-yard run by Tim Gillis that led to a touchdown on the next play.

Quincy answered Cohasset's big play with a 36-yard touchdown pass from James Lam to Alex Heffernan putting the Presidents up by eight.

While both offenses were explosive in the first half, they each relied on two very good, yet very different running backs. Quincy has senior Jalen Green, who uses quickness and finesse while Cohasset has Tim Gillis, who uses his size and power. While both backs employed very different styles throughout the game, they both saw positive results throughout, which is something their coaches expect all season.

"He's our workhorse, especially with Andrew out. We're going to ride him as far as he will take us," Quincy coach Bill Reardon said of Green, who not only runs with effectiveness but can also catch the ball out of the backfield.

Coach Reardon was referring to senior quarterback Andrew Schaaf, who was lost for the year after suffering a knee injury this preseason. Starting in place of Schaaf was sophomore James Lam who was a little inconsistent but looked strong at points of the game.

"He's only a sophomore, but boy is he mobile, he has a strong, accurate arm. I'm very, very impressed with him" said Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw who had nothing but praise for Lam. "He is going to have a very bright future."

Lam finished the game throwing 5-12 for 131 yards with 1 touchdown throwing, 1 touchdown rushing and 2 interceptions.

While both teams came out firing in the first half, it was the defense of both teams that took over the third and fourth quarters.

Quincy started the second half with an onside kick recovery, but the celebration was short lived, as Cohasset's defense intercepted a

James Lam throw and gave their offense premium starting drive position. Three plays into that drive, Quincy's Viet Doan grabbed an interception to give the Presidents back the ball. Neither offense scored until Lam's 3-yard touchdown scamper in the fourth quarter to give Quincy a 22-14 edge. Cohasset would answer Quincy's score with a score of their own to tied the game at 22-22.

With the score tied 14-14 at halftime, Quincy High Principal Frank Santoro said, "The last team to get the ball will win this game." The remark proved prophetic as the teams were tied at the end of regulation, 22-22, and the Skippers pulled out the win in OT.

Although the result of this game may remind some fans of what last season was like for the Presidents - a 2-8 campaign - Coach Reardon doesn't think this team is heading towards a similar season.

"I think we're a better team than last year. We're a little bigger, a little stronger, and the skill players have a little more experience, and I think they know what it takes to come back. We just got to eliminate the penalties and I think that's the difference," Reardon said.

Coach Afanasiw was pleased with Cohasset's win, and believes that Quincy has a good chance of being very good this year.

"They play with character, they play with heart, they didn't give up at all," Afanasiw said.

Quincy's next game is their home opener, which is Friday, Sept. 14th at 7 p.m. against Canton at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Quincy Youth Basketball Tips Off Season 10

Quincy Youth Basketball (QYB) will begin its tenth year by holding registration for the 2012-2013 season Saturday Sept. 22 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Richard J. Koch Family Park and Recreation Complex, 1 Merrymount Parkway, Quincy, for boys and girls in grades 1-8.

Quincy Youth Basketball offers set locations and schedules for practices and games, adult coaches, and a family discount. All practices and games are held in Quincy Public School gyms.

Teams are small (up to 10 players) for grades 3-8. This allows each child the opportunity to fully participate during the games. Practice is one hour per week on Friday nights beginning in late October or early November. Games begin the first Sunday in December and continue into March for playoffs. All games are officiated by IAABO certified referees and feature 20-minute halves. The fee for grades 3 through 8 is $125 and includes instruction, games, playing jersey, and trophy.

The under 8 Duffy League for first and second graders is an instructional, co-ed program that focuses on the fundamentals of the game of basketball. Teams are limited to no more than 12 players and include one to two adult coaches per team. The fee for grades 1 and 2 is $70 per player and includes instruction, practice shirt, and a trophy. Practice is one hour a week on Saturdays beginning in November and continuing into February.

Coaches for QYB Travel Division (Boys, grades 6-8) will also be available on Sept. 22nd to discuss the travel program. QYB Travel Division competes in the South Shore Youth Basketball League and includes the cities and towns of Quincy, Weymouth, Marshfield, Canton, and Scituate, to name a few. All boys in grades 6, 7, and 8, who are registered and actively participating in the QYB in-house program, are eligible to try out for QYB Travel Division. Tryouts will be held in October/November.

Proof of Quincy residency for all players is required along with a photocopy of the player's certified birth certificate (new players only).

Players are encouraged to register by mail by accessing the QYB website at www.quincyouthbasketball.net (more information regarding the program can also be found on the website). Click on the "Forms" link and "2012-2013 Registration Form," print out the form and follow the instructions. Returning and new coaches are asked to print out the CORI form and Coaches Application, complete them and mail as directed. All mailed registration, CORI, and coach forms must be received by Sept. 25th. Players who have already registered do not need to come to the walk-in registration.

For further information, call Susan at (617) 479-8911 after 7 p.m.

FEELING OFF KILTER?

Despite what we might think, our bodies are not perfectly symmetrical. In fact, many of us have legs of unequal length, which distorts proper posture and can adversely affect the ability to withstand the impact of walking and running. This problem may be "structural" in nature, meaning that one leg may actually be shorter than the other due to a fracture or an inherited abnormality. Otherwise, there may be a "functional" difference, which means that the legs are of the same length but the feet hit the ground differently, effectively making one leg "shorter." This may be due to a tilted pelvis that twists the vertebrae, putting strain on the ligaments and muscles in the back and elsewhere.

Detecting and removing nerve interference in a very specific manner allows the body to function as it was designed, allowing people to regain and maintain their health and well-being. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we urge you to try safe chiropractic care before submitting to surgery or drugs - if possible. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we will only accept you as a patient if we feel we can help you. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. If leg-length discrepancy is due to an underlying functional problem, the chiropractor may be able to help get things straightened out.

Quincy Boys' Soccer Rallies For Lamar, Downs North

By COLLEEN CASEY

The Quincy boys' soccer team has dedicated the 2012 season to Lamar Thompson, a Quincy High School student and soccer player who drowned this summer.

Thompson's presence was felt at Veterans' Stadium last Thursday, for the Presidents' season opener against rival North Quincy. Dozens of fans wearing green Quincy Soccer shirts that had Lamar, No. 13 and the Jamaican flag on the back, sat in the stands decorated with green, yellow and black balloons in support of Thompson, who immigrated to Quincy from Jamaica last year.

Despite the tragedy the Presidents have faced, they rallied to defeat the Red Raiders 4-1, in a come-from-behind win.

Quincy came out aggressive the first few minutes of the game, with senior captain Caique Reginaldo and junior striker James O'Shea leading the offensive attack.

The Presidents kept the ball in the shooting zone, pressuring the defense for the first 10 minutes, but North Quincy capitalized on a fast break opportunity and speedy striker John Lopes netted a pass from Robbie Routhier to give the Red Raiders a 1-0 advantage.

Quincy coach Mark Spendlove quickly called a time-out to regroup.

"I told the boys to be calm and take it easy," said Spendlove. "I thought we'd be O.K. but they're very tenacious. There was a part of me that wondered if that was going to be the only goal of the game."

But the time-out lit a fire of passion for the Presidents.

After several shots on net, Quincy got on the board. O'Shea slanted a pass past diving NQ goalie Jameson MacFarland to Felix Nempunya, who knocked it in the open net.

Two minutes later, Reginaldo found himself with the ball in the attack zone and effortlessly weaved through two defenders and launched the ball in the top right corner of the net to give Quincy the lead.

Then out of nowhere, with 13:59 left to play in the half, a wave of green erupted in the crowd. Students, families and friends of the soccer team cheered, waved and pointed to the sky for a minute straight at the 13-minute mark in honor of Thompson, who wore No. 13 last season.

The crowd gave the Presidents some energy, but with strong defense from Dan Cuniff and spectacular saves from MacFarland, Quincy didn't score the rest of the half. The Presidents out shot the Red Raiders 8-to-2 going into the break.

"(The crowd) helped out a lot," said Reginaldo. "We planned on doing this. It's very emotional for some of us but they're all here supporting us. It was great."

Both teams came out intense the start of the second, but Quincy ultimately prevailed.

Junior forward Bjorn Amari kicked in a long shot under the cross bar 14 minutes into the second. Reginaldo followed four minutes later, gracefully rolling the ball by MacFarland off a pass from O'Shea, providing the final margin.

"This game we dedicated to our teammate Lamar who couldn't be here with us," said Reginaldo. "I promised him I would score for him and I did. I'm feeling great. We came out to win."

North Quincy coach Rich Hanlon said he sees a difference in the Quincy team this year.

"(Thompson's passing) is a big momentum builder for them," said Hanlon. "They're more talented than they are last year though. We're more talented in goal this year. Our goalie is one of the best, but we just don't have the numbers. It's pretty tough to play the game with 13 guys."

Quincy capitalized on North Quincy's lack of depth, outshooting the Red Raiders 10-to-0 the second half.

"We knew they were tired and didn't have many subs," said Spendlove. "We had to take advantage of that and use our speed and that's what we did."

After the game, the Quincy players walked out of the locker room together wearing the green Lamar shirts. They were met by clapping fans on the field and the Jamaican flag.

"It all came together well tonight. It was great. It was very emotional and fortunately we got the right resort for it as well," added Spendlove.

Quincy Girls' Soccer Falls To Hanover

By JEFF OHLSON

In her first season as head coach of Quincy's girls' soccer team, Courtney Harnais and the Presidents will have to overcome some early adversity as they opened the season with a loss to Hanover 3-0 Monday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Goalkeeper Natalie O'Donovan had a good game for Quincy but couldn't stop the barrage of shots that came all game and Karly Atturio did most of the heavy lifting for the Indians with two goals and an assist to go with stingy defensive play.

The opening game loss was a learning experience for the Presidents, Harnais said.

"We know where we stand, we know what we need to work on and we know what we do well. That's what you need to take away from a loss, what you can improve on," she said.

One of the positives from the game for the Presidents was the play of goalkeeper Natalie O'Donovan, who made three consecutive great saves in the 34th minute to keep Quincy in the game before a two on one break-away goal by Karly Atturio gave Hanover a 2-0 lead.

Atturio added Hanover's third goal with a floater into the net in the 18th minute of the second half to seal the game for the Indians.

"Natalie played really well," Harnais said after the game. "I was really proud of her. The defense was letting [Hanover] in a lot more than we would like."

Turning in a strong performance for the Presidents was Kayla McArdle, who made plays difficult for Hanover until she had to leave the game after being kicked in the head. McArdle would later return to finish the game and seemed fine.

"She's a trooper. She didn't wanna sit out, and the trainer said she was good to go," said Harnais.

While the final score looks like Quincy has a lot to focus on, Indians coach Garth Nelson feels that there's one thing specifically that set his team ahead of the Presidents.

"They're good opponents, I just think that tonight we had the assertiveness required to keep the ball in their end and that was probably the difference," said Coach Nelson.

After the sting of her first loss settled coach Harnais was already looking to the future "We move on from here. It is what it is... We got another one on Wednesday."

The Presidents hosted Scituate Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. and travel to Hingham Friday for a 4 p.m. game. They return home next Monday to host Middleboro at 3:30 p.m.

North Girls' X-C Opens With Win Over Duxbury

North Quincy girls' cross country team took the first five spots and cruised to a 15-40 win over the Duxbury Dragons at Pageant field Sept. 5.

Emily Bryson, Danielle Mullaney and Julia Bryson took the top four spots just ahead of Briana Mullaney and Mary Zheng. North girls avenged a lost last year when they had the top four spots during the race held at Duxbury then the top four runners all went the wrong way.

"We worked with their staff prior to the race to make sure there were no doubts where to turn along our 2.5-mile course," said Coach Geoff Hennessey.

The Quincy course covers trails through the Merymount woods around the boating area, the Pumping station and Adams Field.

On the boys side, Mike

Mullaney ran wire to wire for a win but Duxbury took the next six spots to win 23-37. Nathan Donahue in 8th was the Raiders only top 10 finisher.

North hosted Hanover Tuesday and the first invitational will be Saturday, Sept. 29 at Wrentham. No meets will be held at Franklin Park this fall as that facility is undergoing capital improvements. That wipes out the Catholic Memorial Invitational, one of the longest running high school invitationals in the country and a traditional meet for the team.

The will also be no Mayors Cup, a cooperative event between Boston Parks, and the BAA. Most of the freshmen run that along with many middle school and Quincy Track Club athletes. It is expected that these events will return for 2013.

Panthers, Storm Open Youth Football Season With Wins

By SEAN HALPIN
Quincy Youth Football

The Quincy Youth Football League kicked off its 62nd Season Sunday at Veteran's Stadium in Quincy. The league hosted two great match ups and all teams showed signs of promise in their quest for the QYFL Title in November. The West Quincy Elks had a bye this week.

The first game of the day featured the Milton Mustangs hosting the Quincy Point Panthers. The Panthers controlled the game with a potent running attack led by running backs Domenic Coleman (14 carries for 155 yds, 2 TD), Brendan Jenner (5 carries for 35 yards) and Ronin Conteras. The Point Panthers got on the scoreboard first early in the second quarter when Coleman rushed for a 46 yard TD (conversion attempt failed) to make the score 6-0 Panthers at the half. The defense held throughout most of the second half, led by the play of DB, Jenner (2 INTs, 8 Tackles). Coach DiBona praised the two-way efforts of Domenic Laptiste, Kujan Murphy, Contreras, Kevin Phu, Nick Cedrone and Jackson Quinn, Robert Wilson, James Guilford, Joey Spano and Bryan Hanly. Point QB Nick Mayberry did a fine job commanding his offense throughout the game. RB Coleman scored his second TD of the day, late in the 4th quarter to make the final score 12-0, Panthers.

New Quincy Point franchise holder, George Maze and head coach, Noel DiBona have made great strides to improve the program. This duo is showing promise of returning the franchise to the Point Panthers heyday of Billy "Chubber" Meyers and Frank Brillo, in the 60's, 70s and 80's, when the team won 19 QYFL titles. The Panthers host The Storm next Sunday at 3:30 pm.

The second game of the afternoon had The Storm hosting the North Quincy Apaches. The Storm got on the board first, on their second play from scrimmage. RB Max Storch raced down the sideline for a 52-yard TD run. RB Liam O'Connor rushed for the conversion to make the score 7-0, Storm. The Apaches immediately fired back when FB Devin Ganno (4 carries, 107 yards, 1TD) ran for a 70 yard TD on the first play of the series.

The Apaches conversion attempt failed, making the score 8-6 at the end of the first quarter. Later in second half, DB Max Storch intercepted an Apache pass. Storm RB O'Connor immediately, rushed for a 51 yard TD. QB Tim Layden's conversion pass failed, making the score 13-6. On the ensuing kickoff, Apache Chris Mann returned the ball 71 yard for a TD. Conversion attempt failed, making the score Storm-13 Apaches-12.

The Storm ended the half with a nice seven play, 70-yard drive. The Apache defense held the Storm to fourth and goal, when Storm RB O'Connor blasted in for a 1-yard TD run. The Score stood Storm 19 - Apaches 12 at the half.

The Storm scored on its opening possession of the second half when O'Conner ran for an 11-yard TD run, his third TD of the day. QB Tim Layden completed the conversion pass to Storch to make the score 26-12, Storm. On the next kickoff Apaches returner, Chris Mann (4 returns for 126 yard and 1TD) took the ball back 35 yards. Later in that drive, DB Storch intercepted and Apache pass and took in in for a 33-yard interception return for a touchdown. Storch added the conversion to make the score 33-12 The Storm. The Apaches kept on fighting back when RB Chris Mann raced in for a 56-yard TD run. Apache QB Shawn Kelly's conversion pass failed. The score then was 33-18, Storm. The one-two punch of O'Connor and Storch finished off the scoring on the day when O'Connor (10 carries for 172 yard 4 TD) sprinted in for a 72 yard TD run and Storch (8 carries 151 yards 2 TD) rushed in for the conversion, making the final score The Storm 40 - Apaches 18. The Storm had great performances by Mark Monahan, Andrew Airosus, Thomas Veasey, Tim Layden, Storch, O'Connor, Tom Jaehng and Brad Ames. Apaches Head Coach, Ted Arnott had praise for the efforts of Shawn Kelly, Brendan Ganno, Robert Lindsay, Mann, Devin Ganno, Eric Huang, Dara Griffin, Josh Moore and Ronan O'Farrell. The Apaches will play the West Quincy Elks next week at 2:00 pm.

QYFL NOTES - The league is hosting a Fund-raiser Saturday night, Sept 29 beginning at 7 pm. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry Street in Quincy.

All tickets are entered into a door prize drawing for a 42" LED Flat Screen TV. There will be a light buffet, DJ, cash bar, silent auction and fun for all who attend.

Event proceeds will benefit all teams in the QYFL. Tickets are $20 each and can be purchased by contacting Sean Halpin at 617-980-2674/seanhalpin1@comcast.net.

If you would like to donate items for the auctions contact Sean for information.

A Job Well Done

On Friday, Aug. 31, at approximately 7:35 a.m., Officers Thomas Gaeta and Steve O'Donoghue were dispatched to Station Street on a report of possible squatters inside a house that has been vacant for years.

Upon arrival the officers searched the perimeter of the residence for signs of occupancy. The grass was very high, the stair railings and porch were worn and unsafe. In the rear yard up against the house was a bicycle with an open blue bag resting behind the seat. Inside the bag was a Ford brand motor vehicle part with a serial number.

The officers went to the front door of the residence, looked inside and spotted a male asleep on a mattress on the floor. He was naked from the waist down and asleep. The soiled mattress was surrounded by piles of trash.

The officers peered into the windows and observed tools by the front door on top of a red bag. The tools were a reciprocating saw, saw battery, saw blades and vice grips that were attached to copper door handles. The saw battery had the initials of D.J.F.C.C. written on it twice. Prior to awakening the male, the Officers checked the house from the outside and found cat feces all over the kitchen floor surrounded by plates of cat food. They also found bags of clothing on the floor, a cluttered filthy sink and various open food containers resting on the countertops. There was no furniture in the house aside from the mattress.

The officers approached the front door and saw that the male suspect was now awake and covered by a blanket. When motioned to the door, the suspect became irritated, ripping the blanket off his body. A cat jumped out from under the blanket. When the suspect opened the door, the officers were immediately overwhelmed by the pungent odor of hazardous filth and feces.

Officer Gaeta asked the suspect to step from the porch so he (the Officer) could breathe and speak to him. When asked, the suspect stated that he has lived there for 6 months and the landlord lets him live there "rent free." The suspect couldn't provide any information about the landlord. He said that he gets his mail there but couldn't provide any mail addressed to him. When asked what he owned in the house, the suspect said the red bag and all the tools and hardware that were resting on it.

Officer Gaeta knew the suspect from a past encounter, when the suspect was intoxicated behind Star Market on June 30th. The officer recalled offering the intoxicated suspect a ride home, but the suspect said he wasn't going to let the Officer know where he lived. When offered to drop the suspect a block away, the suspect was adamant about revealing his address. The offer was rescinded when a warrant was found for the suspect and he was taken into custody. Based on all information available, Officer Gaeta determined that the suspect didn't reside at this residence and at some point broke into the home. The suspect was placed under arrest.

The Board of Health was contacted to evaluate the sanitary conditions of the property.

Officer O'Donoghue read the suspect his Miranda rights and after the suspect waived his rights, Officer Gaeta asked the suspect who owned the tools on the red bag. The suspect replied, "They're not mine - I have no clue who's they are." When asked about the car part located in the rear of the residence, the suspect said, "Yea, I took that - it's scrap metal." The car part appeared very well kept, without rust or any signs of being worn.

The suspect then stated he wanted a lawyer and all questioning was ceased. The Quincy Board of Health Officer arrived on scene and after putting on protective gear, conducted a thorough tour of the home. It appears that other people have been residing there due to the scattering of women's and men's clothing along with another mattress. Cat feces were found throughout the house along with sporadic findings of human feces on the floor. Vomit was also found on the floor by the mattress. The Board of Health took control of the building.

The 51-year-old homeless suspect was charged with Breaking and Entering in the Nighttime to Commit a Felony.

The property recovered in the house was tagged with the hopes of finding the owner(s).

Church Choir Room Named In Honor Of Longtime Organist, Music Director Houghs Neck Church Bids Farewell To Lois Zulauf

The choir room at Hough's Neck Congregational Church will henceforth be known as "The Lois Zulauf Choir Room" in honor of the church's longtime organist and choir director, who was honored with a farewell luncheon reception at the church Sunday.

Zulauf, who served as the church's organist and choir director for the past decade, is returning to her native Nebraska to be closer to family during her retirement. But as attendees at her farewell reception learned, overseeing the church's music ministry was just a small part of the many contributions she made to the church.

"Never in my pastoral career have I had someone who so strongly supported my ministry," said Pastor John Castricum, noting how Zulauf invested countless hours in selecting, practicing and preparing music for the church's worship services. "Our choir performs so well because of the time and care Lois put into every service."

At Sunday's reception,

members of the congregation shared their memories and their gratitude for all that Zulauf contributed to the church. Susan Rheault, a member of the church choir, read a "Letter to Nebraska," thanking Zulauf's home state for sharing her with the Hough's Neck church and community for so many years. Nancy Jacobs spoke about Zulauf's dedication to the church's MOTHERS Club, then the choir performed the anthem, "Homeward Bound," accompanied by guest pianist Eileen Timcoe.

Ralph Jacobs shared the many other duties Zulauf had quietly performed over the years — everything from serving on the board of trustees, the church diaconate and the pastoral relations committee to setting up tables and chairs, cleaning the sanctuary and weeding the garden.

"In the years I've been a member of the church, I don't know anyone who spent as much time in the church as Lois," he said. "Whether she was practicing a hymn or replacing flowers in the sanctuary or helping to plan a major renovation project, Lois was always there to do what needed to be done." Pastor Castricum agreed. "I think in the coming weeks and months, we're going to find a whole list of things that need to be done and say, 'Oh, yeah, Lois used to do that,'" he said.

The reception concluded with the presentation of a gift to Zulauf from the congregation, and the unveiling of the plaque naming the choir room in her honor. The inscription on the plaque read: "The Lois Zulauf Choir Room, Dedicated this day, Sunday September 9, 2012, in recognition of her many contributions to Hough's Neck Congregational Church, especially her devotion to the Music Ministry of the church."

"While we'll all miss having Lois here," Castricum said, "we hope she'll find a welcoming church in Nebraska that will be as blessed to have her as we have been."

Register Of Deeds Appears On QATV Program Friday

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will appear live on the "Currently Quincy" program with host Joe Catalano Friday, Sept. 14th at 11:30 a.m.

O'Donnell will discuss Quincy and Norfolk County Real Estate trends and statistics, recent technological improvements at the Registry including a new and improved website, upcoming outreach initiatives in the Quincy area and the historical nature of the Registry.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County.

The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Residents in need of assistance can contact the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Department via telephone at (781) 461-6101, or on the web at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Free Seminar On Treatments For Knee, Hip Pain Tonight

Quincy Medical Center invites area residents to attend a free seminar on innovative treatments for knee and hip pain tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. in the B/C Conference Room at Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

Orthopedic surgeon Leonid Dabuzhsky, MD, will discuss new technologies being used at QMC to help patients with knee or hip pain caused by osteoarthritis.

QMC is the only hospital in the area offering MAKOpasty® robotic arm technology for partial knee resurfacing and total hip replacement surgery, as well as computer and robotically assisted procedures for total knee replacement surgery.

Dr. Dabuzhsky will explain the benefits of these procedures, which include shorter hospital stays, more rapid recovery and smaller scars, and who are appropriate candidates for them.

Light refreshments will be served.

There is no charge to attend the program, but to ensure seating, register in advance by calling 1-800-488-5959.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
It might not be wise to pursue goals involving others, unless you can stop impulsively rejecting new ideas. Either open your mind or wait until next week, when this "ornery" mood passes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
It's a good time for the Bovine to be creative and practical for yourself and your surroundings. Shop wisely, not impulsively, and keep your Bull's eye focused on quality, not quantity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
You should feel more confident about moving ahead with plans that had to be delayed by an unexpected turn of events. Also, family matters might need more time than first anticipated.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Be considerate of others as you move into a new area in your professional life. Take time to meet people and discuss mutual goals. The more you get to know each other, the better.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Creating a fuss could get your ideas noticed quickly. But it would be best to present your case, and then wait for a reaction to follow in due course, rather than try to force it to happen.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
Unkept promises might cause plans to go awry this week. You can either grumble about people "letting you down" or find a way to make the best of it and move on. The choice is yours.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
Putting off making a commitment early in the week could be a good move. Best to act when you know you're making an informed decision. Expect more facts to emerge by the week's end.

ing an informed decision. Expect more facts to emerge by the week's end.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
A recent act of kindness on your part could take on special meaning this week. Also, look for signs of upcoming changes in both your personal and professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Many of the tougher communication barriers between you and others in the workplace or at home could begin breaking down this week. Expect some surprises to emerge.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Your "tough love" attitude toward someone you care for could be misunderstood. Try to be less judgmental and show more consideration in the way you relate to that person.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
An unexpected workplace challenge could be daunting. But take what you know (and you know more than you realize) and apply it to the problem, and you should see positive results.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Recent relationship changes for both single and paired Pisces continue to influence much of your week. Keep your focus on developing the positive aspects as you move along.

BORN THIS WEEK: You set your goals with assurance and influence others to follow suit. You would be an excellent philosopher and teacher.

Sterling Middle School; first as a teacher in 1988 for eight years, then in 1996 he became the assistant principal for two years and in 1997 he became the principal of the school for 10 years until he was appointed principal of NQHS in 2008. He said that he feels confident in his new role because of the training he received from so many in the Quincy Public School System.

"I have been prepared by the very best," said Metzler. "In every aspect I received top of the line, first class training. Now it is up to me."

Metzler said that the process of being hired for the superintendent's position started in early July. When he found out he was a finalist for the position in August, he informed DeCristofaro and the city about the opportunity.

"My contract ended on the last day of June 2012. I worked two months without a contract to get North ready to open. So, while the negotiation period went on, I was offered an opportunity of a lifetime," said Metzler. "I would have honored anything that I agreed to. I had requested a two-year contract earlier this spring."

Metzler will reportedly earn $130,000 in his first year, that is an almost $10,000 increase from his principal position. He signed a three-year contract with Timberlane after being selected out of 15 candidates.

"After speaking with the superintendent we decided it would be in the best interest for both school districts to start fresh," said Metzler. "The timing was very difficult and I became a superintendent faster than I expected. From a selfish perspective I would have loved to have forever to say goodbye in Quincy. But it was in the best interest of the kids and staff for me to leave before the start of school. It is sad, but to prepare for this opportunity my entire life and to get it showed me it was time to grow and move on."

It took the right offer for Metzler to even consider leaving a school system that meant so much to him. He had received many offers throughout the years but said that he turned them down, until this position became available.

family still lives here, and he commutes, for now, from Quincy to New Hampshire. He said that although it was hard to leave the Quincy Public School System it will be even harder to leave the city.

"Leaving Quincy will be even harder because that is an ending I am still holding on to," said Metzler. "I hope to visit often, and you never know what the future may bring."

"I am going to give this position my all. There will always be a part of me that will be at North and there will always be that special twinkle in my eye when I see North holding that trophy at the Thanksgiving (football) game."

$106,500 In Public Safety, Charitable Donations

The City Council unanimously accepted $106,500 in donations for public safety programs and the Mayor's Charity Cup Golf Tournament at Monday night's meeting.

The largest gift, $40,000, was given by the Copeland Family Foundation to the Quincy Police Department's Special Operations Unit. The Copeland Family Foundation also gave $10,000 to the department's DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) Program.

The DARE program also received a $10,000 gift from the State Street Foundation, $1,000 each from Capitol Waste Services, AAA Southern New England, Carva Donuts LLC/Dunkin Donuts, and $500 Schlager Auto Body Repair. The DARE Camp received an additional $500 from various donors. National Grid gave $2,500 for crime prevention.

The Fire Department received $1,000 gift from the New England Fertilizer Company.

The Mayor's Cup received a total of $39,000. Quincy Medical Center gave $10,000 and Woodard & Curran gave $5,000. South Cove Community Health Center, South Cove Manor at Quincy Point, Capitol Waste Services and H.V. Collins Company gave $2,500 each. The remaining $14,000 was given by 17 different companies.

In addition to the donations, the council unanimously accepted $60,000 from National Grid for mitigation work. The utility company is installing a new gas main in Quincy Point, and the money will be used for roadway repairs.

Computers, Interactive Whiteboards, Software Technology Upgrades At Schools

By EMILY TAFT

When Mayor Tom Koch allocated over $800,000 in Comcast funds for technology upgrades and purchases in this year's school budget, Keith Segalla, the executive director of Career and Technical Education and Instructional Technology, and his team went to work installing new interactive whiteboards, interactive tablets, and document cameras, among many other updates.

Throughout the summer, Segalla and his team installed 83 new interactive whiteboards, 78 Document Cameras, and 49 interactive tablets. The funds also helped purchase 349 desktop computers, 27 laptops, and 70 short-throw projectors, and six new technology labs.

"We are trying to prepare teachers and students with a 21st century way of learning," Segalla said. "This allows them to create more of an enhanced and engaging learning environment."

"We had a lot of fun installing and purchasing all the new equipment. It has been a very busy summer."

Bellotti Court House Dedication Sunday; 300 Invited Guests Expected Former Supreme Court Justice Keynote Speaker

By SCOTT JACKSON

Former Supreme Court Associate Justice David Souter will be the keynote speaker at a ceremony to rename Quincy District Court-house for Francis X. Bellotti Sunday at noon.

Bellotti will become just the second man in Massachusetts to have a state or county court house named in his honor. The other is the Boston Municipal Court House named for former U.S. Sen. Edward Brooke.

The District Court of East Norfolk is where Bellotti began his legal career nearly 50 years ago. "Because this court house was such a part of my professional life, (the dedication) makes it very personal," he said in a recent interview.

The longtime Quincy Democrat served in two different state Constitutional offices: lieutenant governor and attorney general. He also was a Democratic gubernatorial nominee once and candidate two other times.

Souter will be among the several hundred guests who are expected to attend Sunday's dedication.

Souter was born in Melrose before moving to New Hampshire as a child. He graduated from Harvard Law School and served as New Hampshire's attorney general from 1976-1978. Bellotti was Massachusetts's attorney general from 1975-1987. Souter then served in New Hampshire as a superior court judge from 1978-1983 before being appointed to the state's supreme court.

He served on New Hampshire's supreme court until 1990. In May of that year he was appointed by President George H.W. Bush to the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit,

Quirk Expansion, Cell Antenna Improvements Approved

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy Planning Board convened last Wednesday to review the applications of Quirk Auto Dealerships of 444 Quincy Ave., Braintree, for the expansion of their Broad Street campus, and T-Mobile Northeast LLC c/o Network Building & Consulting Inc., of 8 Brentwood Circle, Danvers, requesting permission to replace their six, pre-existing cellular antennas located at 1250 Hancock St. Both applications were unanimously approved with conditions set by the board.

The evening's proceedings began with a brief presentation by a T-Mobile representative who outlined proposed modifications to be made to their cellular antennas at the penthouse level of the President's Place parking garage.

T-Mobile's current equipment will be replaced by newer gear in keeping with the company's modernization standards.

The upgraded antennas will provide customers within a half mile radius with 4G service and save on energy use.

Michael Lethin Completes Internship With Sen. Keenan

Michael Lethin, of Quincy, recently completed an internship in the office of state Sen. John F. Keenan.

Lethin's duties included issue research, budget tracking, and assisting with constituent service matters. He also attended a number of forums and lectures featuring state government leaders.

"Michael was a valued member of our team this summer," said Sen. Keenan (D-Quincy), co-chairman of the Joint Committee on Mental Health and Substance Abuse. "He has demonstrated a keen interest in government, and a great work ethic."

Lethin worked two days a week in Sen. Keenan's office. He is currently starting his senior year at Boston College High School.

"My time as an intern in Sen. Keenan's office was a great experience," said Lethin. "I learned a great deal about the inner-workings of state government

Sept. 29 At Chickatawbut Road Palmucci, MWRA Hosting Public Tour Of $38 Million Water Storage Facility

Ward 4 City Councillor Brian Palmucci in conjunction with the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority will host a community meeting to tour the MWRA's water storage facility on Chickatawbut Road in the Blue Hill Reservation.

The public tour is set for 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 29 at the facility on Chickatawbut Road. Members of the public are invited and encouraged to attend.

Built in response to concerns about terrorist attacks on drinking water facilities the two 10 million-gallon buried drinking water storage tanks were constructed in 2010 in the East end of the existing Blue Hills reservoir. The project included creation of a new fishing pond and hiking trails in the area, as part of the larger $38 million project.

The massive water tanks store safe drinking water for consumption and fire protection in the event of a pipeline break or other water supply emergency to Quincy, Milton, Brookline, and Boston.

"I frequently receive questions from residents asking what the facility is and what purpose it serves," Palmucci said. "I thought this would be a great opportunity to make the public aware of the facility and how their MWRA water fees are being used to serve their interests."

Residents with questions about this or any other matter can contact Palmucci on his cell phone, (617) 834-3945 or by email at bpalmucci@quincyma.gov.

Track Facility Nears October Completion

Construction of the City's first regulation running track is entering the home stretch with the state-of-the-art Faxon Field facility next to Quincy High School scheduled to be completed in October, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

The asphalt base for the 400-meter track is now complete, the goalposts for the practice football are installed; grass is beginning to sprout on the field; and field-event areas are starting to take shape at the site.

One of the last major components of construction – the installation of the state-of-the-art track surface itself – will be installed within the next few weeks after the current asphalt base is allowed to cure. Painting of lines on the six-lane facility will follow the surface construction site.

"We are moving forward steadily and hitting our targets. It is great to see it really taking shape, and it will be even better later this fall, when our kids are running on it," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

The sprint to the finish line follows months of site preparation work that was performed by the Park Department and an initial phase of construction that focused on site drainage. A half mile of flat drains covered by six inch depth of peastone underlies the root zone of the natural grass field.

Water percolating through the topsoil will be collected and directed into the previously installed trench drains. Excess surface water will flow directly to catch basins and into the trench drains. The project-related work is expected to contribute to improvements made with a much broader drainage project targeting chronic flooding in the entire nearby neighborhood.

That project, which is part of Mayor Koch's Capital Improvement Plan, is separate from the track project and includes a total overhaul of 2,000 feet of drainage pipe that is crumbling and eroding and contributing to flooding problems in the neighborhood.

Coupled with plans for a new tide gate at the Broad Street outfall that is designed to handle stormwater from the neighborhood, the project is a $1.3 million component of more than $12 million in flood-relief projects citywide as part of the Capital Improvement Plan.

"The drainage project happens without a track, and the track only improves the drainage project because it provides a drainage system where none existed before," said Christopher Walker, spokesman for Mayor Koch.

WJDA STATION FOUNDER James D. Asher was inducted posthumously into the Massachusetts Broadcasters Hall of Fame at a recent luncheon held at the Quincy Marriott Hotel. The induction was held Sept. 13 – the 65th anniversary of when the local radio station first went on the air in 1947. Mr. Asher – who passed away in 1973 – was recognized as a radio entrepreneur and steward of WJDA. The induction was attended by members of the Asher family and WJDA alumni. From left are longtime station announcer and newsmen Win Bettinson, Mr. Asher's daughter, Joan (holding a framed certificate of her father's Hall of Fame honor) and son Jay who managed WJDA until the license was transferred in 2006.

Townhouse At HN Legion Post Home For Vets

By EMILY TAFT

The former site of the Houghs Neck American Legion Post will continue to serve veterans after the proposed two family townhouses are built on the two-lot property.

The Neighborhood Housing Services bought the property from Yue Y. Zhang for $220,000 in early May and have been working to get the project up and running. They received approval from the Quincy Zoning Board on Sept. 11th to demolish the old post building.

The residence, to be located at 1110-1118 Sea St., will be a two-family side-by-side townhouse style building with three bedrooms each. Tenants will be screened and selected by the city's Veterans Service Department. The NHS will pay property taxes and will be the property manager.

"We pursued purchasing the land a few years ago but we weren't able to get it," said NHS Director Robert Corley. "We had an oppor-

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Sept. 21, 1780, American General Benedict Arnold commits treason when he meets with British Major John Andre to discuss handing over West Point to the British. In return, Arnold was promised a large sum of money and a high position in the British army.
- On Sept. 22, 1862, President Abraham Lincoln issues a preliminary Emancipation Proclamation, which sets a date for the freedom of more than 3 million black slaves in the United States and recasts the Civil War as a fight against slavery.
- On Sept. 23, 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt defends the honor of his small dog, Fala, who had recently been the subject of a political attack. Critics had circulated a story claiming that Roosevelt had accidentally left Fala behind while visiting the Aleutian Islands, and that the president sent a Navy destroyer, at a taxpayer expense of up to $20 million, to go back and pick up the dog.
- On Sept. 26, 1957, "West Side Story," composed by Leonard Bernstein, opens on Broadway. The play was a reinterpretation of William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" transposed onto New York's West Side. It tells the tale of a love affair between Tony, who is Polish American, and Maria, a Puerto Rican, set against an urban background of interracial warfare.
- On Sept. 25, 1978, a Pacific Southwest Airlines jet collides in mid-air with a small Cessna over San Diego, killing 153 people. The fuel in the jet burst into a massive fireball upon impact, and a witness on the ground reported that she saw her "apples and oranges bake on the trees."
- On Sept. 27, 1989, actress Zsa Zsa Gabor storms out of a courtroom in Beverly Hills, Calif., where she stood accused of slapping Officer Paul Kramer during a traffic stop and having an open container and expired license. Gabor violated a court-imposed gag order by calling a prosecution witness "a little punk with a hairdo like a girl."
- On Sept. 24, 1996, bestselling author Stephen King releases two new novels at once. The first, "Desperation," was released under King's name, while the second, "The Regulators," was published under his pseudonym, Richard Bachman.

This is a non-partisan drive and is open Manet patients and all community members.

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

New Year, New Chapter

Lyndon Johnson was in the White House, James R. McIntyre occupied the mayor's seat and a gallon of gas was 33 cents a gallon.

That was 1968 – quite some time ago.

That year also saw a small weekly newspaper start in circulation.

It was Sept. 26, 1968 and The Quincy Sun made its debut that week.

On the front page were stories about the proposed North Quincy MBTA station being relocated; city council discussion over an estimated $2 million incinerator and peak enrollment of 1,687 students at Quincy Junior College.

Inside that issue readers found a report from Cong. James Burke, a column by noted Quincy pediatrician Dr. Charles Djerf and football coaches Hank Conroy and Carl Leone previewing their seasons at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools respectively.

Oh, there was also the very first "Sunbeams" column by newspaper founder Henry Bosworth. The column was described on the front page as "chitchat about people you know – items ranging from behind-the-scenes to humorous."

The price of the paper was 10 cents. But that first issue was a gift to Quincy Sun readers.

This week – 2,288 issues later – we start our 45th year in circulation.

We're proud of this milestone. The newspaper many of you know was a dream of my father. I'm very proud that his vision is still very much a part of the community's fabric.

Since his passing more than three years ago, we've been encouraged with many well wishes and letters of support. The transition was not easy – you don't replace a man like Henry Bosworth. All you can do is remember his mission of publishing a weekly Quincy newspaper and try to fulfill it week after week. And it's truly heartening to know his legacy is not forgotten in Quincy.

Over these many years, we've seen changes in the city along the way and we've tried to change with the times, too. Computers and desk-top publishing as well as the delivery of news via the internet have revolutionized the newspaper industry.

Some may contend these changes have not been for the better. Many newspapers – including some major daily papers – have folded because of the internet and the digital era of instant news.

As we begin our 45th year, The Quincy Sun remains steadfast in our core goal: circulating a weekly newspaper that is focused on Quincy news.

We also believe in embracing change and adapting with the times.

So that brings up to the next chapter in the Sun's history.

In a few weeks, The Quincy Sun will begin distributing news on-line at its own website: Thequincysun.com.

Having the Sun on-line was one of the last goals that my father had set. So it's only fitting that we go "live" as we mark another anniversary at the newspaper.

I want to make one thing absolutely clear:

Sen. John F. Keenan Office hours In Quincy

Sen. John F. Keenan (D-Quincy) will hold office hours in Quincy on Wednesday, Oct. 10, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., in the temporary Council Chambers at Quincy City Hall.

Sen. Keenan welcomes any resident with a question or comment about state government to stop by and chat.

The website is not a substitute for our print edition. It is a supplement to the newspaper.

Thequincysun.com will be an "extension" of The Quincy Sun.

Consider thequincysun.com a "virtual bridge" that connects our weekly print editions. The website will not be a digital mirror-image of the print version of The Quincy Sun.

Access to the website will be free – no on-line subscription required.

More importantly – the website – just like the newspaper – will focus on one thing: Quincy.

And we believe by using both mediums, we will provide more coverage of news and happenings in Quincy than any other source.

That is our goal and once the website is launched, we know it will be a work in progress and our site will continue to evolve.

That's really what The Quincy Sun was in its infancy.

A dream. An idea. A way of providing Quincy news to residents and former residents.

Some 44 years later, that's the common thread that connects both our website and The Quincy Sun.

We anticipate going live the week of October 1.

The announcement will be made in The Quincy Sun soon.

On this occasion as we mark the beginning of our 45th year, I would be remiss if I did not thank everyone who helps keep our paper in circulation.

Our faithful readers – some who have been with us since the very beginning. Some write thank you notes and words of encouragement with their subscription renewals or just a few words in passing on the street. Your kindness does not go unnoticed and on behalf of the staff thank you for your continued support.

We also hear your complaints and criticisms. They are important to us, too.

Thank you to our loyal advertisers who support our paper week in-and week-out. Again, some have been on board for many, many years. We know economic times are difficult and have been for quite some time. We appreciate your decision to spend advertising and marketing dollars in The Quincy Sun.

Thank you to our "army" of newscarriers who deliver The Sun to neighbors and friends. We also want to thank the parents who support their child's decision to be a newscarrier. Some routes have been passed down to younger siblings and "stay" in the family for years. Our carriers are an important part of keeping the paper in circulation and we are happy to acknowledge them.

Lastly, I want to thank everyone who has in one way or another mentioned how important The Quincy Sun has been and continues to be to the community.

We know we have competition from other news sources but we also believe The Sun serves a purpose in Quincy.

We aim high to provide the community with a news source that contains a balance of news about city government, schools, youth and high school sports as well as activities, events and milestones like anniversaries, weddings, etc.

It's all about local news for local people.

That's what The Quincy Sun has been all about and what thequincysun.com will be after it's launched.

We look forward as we begin our 45th year.

To everyone who's been a part of The Sun, a sincere thank you.

It's our privilege to be Quincy's hometown weekly newspaper.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1934 postcard view of Black's Creek looking northeast from Merrymount Parkway. At the time the creek was known locally as Sandburg's bathtub. Edward Sandburg, a Quincy state legislator, had a dam built at the Boulevard end of Black's Creek to keep water in here when the tide went out. That dam is long gone now and nobody has been seen swimming here for years. The canoes and other small boats were rented from the popular boathouse in the distant left. The boathouse was closed in the 1950's and the building was destroyed by fire in 1978. But there is still a small parking lot where the cars can be seen. The granite blocks on the right were part of a dam for Edmund Quincy's tidemill that was on this site in Colonial times over 300 years ago. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

$3 Million In Bonds For Highway, Library

City Treasurer David Houston was prepared to open bids on $3 million in bonding for highway and library projects this week.

The borrowing would provide for the widening of Upland Rd. and the extension of Newport Ave. to Sagamore Ave. The total cost of the highway work was $4.3 million with the difference paid by the state and the MBTA.

The amount of $300,000 was appropriated for the construction of the new Adams Shore branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library at Riverside Ave. and Sea St.

Houston noted that the new borrowing brought the total city debt to $12,498,000.

MORGAN MEMORIAL CENTER PLANNED

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries proposed the construction of a distribution center on the edge of Swingle's Quarry, a few hundred yards to the west of Willard St.

The plans for the center were discussed at the city council meeting, but met with skepticism from health department officials because of the proposed conveyor belt that would dump unsuitable materials from the warehouse into the quarry.

KEEL LAID FOR ASSAULT SHIP

The keel was laid at the General Dynamics shipyard for the first of four LSD-class vessels to be built at Quincy as part of a contract valued at $88.7 million.

The amphibious assault ship to be named Portland would be 555 feet long with an 84-foot beam. A unique design feature of the ship was a well deck, much like a dry dock, which could be flooded to allow smaller crafts to sail into and from its interior.

QUINCY-ISMS

Even candidates were contesting three at-large seats on the City Council, including Incumbent John Quinn. READERS FORUM

Time For A Global Warming Revolution

On the front page of a March 2012 issue of The Quincy Sun was a photo of a bank sign in Wollaston which showed a temperature of 84 degrees Fahrenheit. This was 40 degrees above normal.

I thought it might be possible to reach 120 degrees this summer. While it did not do so in Quincy, a town in Kansas recorded a temperature of 118 degrees.

This past mild winter here and drought conditions in the Midwest was caused by the influence of La Nina, a cold Pacific Ocean current. Now it is reported that El Nino, a warm Pacific Ocean current, is replacing La Nina. El Nino is forecast to remain until late February. This put us on the jet stream storm track. It is likely that we will have a winter as snowy, if not snowier, than the winter of two years ago. This is because there is more moisture in the atmosphere due to global warming.

Global warming overall is responsible for the past mild winter, drought conditions this summer, along with the other phenomena such as the smallest amount of Arctic ice ever recorded and tornadoes in Brooklyn.

This concern led me to meet with Representative Tackey Chan who is a member of the House Committee on Global Warming and Climate Change. I discussed with him the research being done by the Massachusetts State Geologist on geothermal power derived from the heat generated within the earth's crust.

The idea being is that a fluid, such as water, is pumped down a hole drilled into crystalline basement rock, heated, and circulated back up as hot water to generate electricity. The preferred method would not emit any gases, in particular, carbon dioxide.

MIT is doing research on carbon nanotechnology which would improve ten times the power of lithium batteries. If successful, the common use of electric vehicles could become a reality.

There is some 100 years worth of oil left, 100 years of gas (due to the new methods of hydraulic fracturing and horizontal drilling), and 250 years of coal (the dirtiest fuel). It has been said that the stone age ended not because there weren't any stones left.

Compared to the amount of fossil fuels, the amount of solar energy, wind power and nuclear power present and forecast is trivial. The earth's crust is a virtually unlimited source of energy.

Potential geothermal sites in Massachusetts are sedimentary basins where sedimentary rock overlies crystalline basement rock. Sedimentary rock acts as a blanket to trap heat at depth. Such basins exist in southeastern Massachusetts and the Connecticut Valley. Another possibility is to drill into crystalline basement rock exposed in north central Massachusetts.

Massachusetts' is where the American revolution began. Let the war on global warming begin here.

Garden Club Encourages Schools To Plant 'Red Emperor' Tulips And Track Seasonal Change

The Wollaston Garden Club invites Quincy Public School science teachers to join with the youth committee of the garden club to participate in the international science project called Journey North - Tulip Test Gardens.

Students and teachers will connect with hundreds of other schools in the Northern Hemisphere by planting "Red Emperor" tulip bulbs this fall, and next spring by sharing local observations and tracking spring's progress.

Journey North, sponsored by the Annenberg Learner Foundation, is a global study of wildlife migration and seasonal change. This project enlists the help of students as citizen scientists to monitor seasonal change in a scientific way, using the scientific method, and to contribute valuable observations to a long-term database.

Widely considered a best-practices model for education, Journey North is the nation's premiere "citizen science" project for youth.

The Wollaston Garden

'RED EMPEROR' TULIPS

Club will sponsor and support five Quincy schools in establishing tulip test gardens on their school grounds this fall.

Sponsorship, which includes the purchase of a classroom set of bulbs, and planting support, is on a "first come - first serve" basis. Interested principals/teachers should contact the club president, Jan Clifford at www.wollastongardenclub.org/about-us/contact-us/ as soon as possible.

Red Emperor tulip bulbs are widely available at nurseries and garden centers and can be purchased through the Journey North web site.

Youth chair for the garden club, Diane Hill is "impressed with all the really user-friendly teacher resources that can be found on their web site at <http://www.learner.org/jnorth/tm/tulips/> and club president, Jan Clifford said she hopes "teachers will check out the wonderful, comprehensive materials provided by Journey North International Plant Study and participate with the garden club, or with their own school's resources."

Teacher materials focus on National Science Educational Standards and National Geography Standards. By planting these tulip test gardens students are expected to learn how to ask questions, and explore essential questions; make predictions, make and record observations, journal, compare, and collect data. Students use math, science, geography and language arts skills while beautifying their community and school grounds.

Donations Of New, Slightly Used Costumes Accepted ISS Providing Halloween Costumes For Disadvantaged Children

Interfaith Social Services is looking for help with a new program to provide Halloween costumes for disadvantaged children infant to age 12 throughout the South Shore.

Interfaith Social Services is a multiservice center serving individuals and families in need. Their food pantry, New Directions Counseling Center and other programs have been helping local residents since 1947.

"Our food pantry serves over 500 children every month," said Interfaith's executive director Rick Doane. "We know that many South Shore parents are struggling to make ends meet and Halloween costumes do not make the list of essentials in the budget. The costume drive is one way that we can help reduce stress in the lives of our clients and bring joy to children who may be living in difficult situations."

Donations of new and gently used costumes will be accepted at Interfaith's offices at 105 Adams St. in Quincy: Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and on Tuesdays from 9 to 7 p.m.

Interfaith's goal is to serve over 500 children through this program. They will distribute costumes to the families receiving assistance through their food pantry on a rolling basis as the costumes are donated.

"We are relying on support from the community for this program," said Doane. "We hope that local families, businesses, and schools will bring as many costumes as they can into our offices."

Denise of Quincy, one of Interfaith's food pantry recipients and mother of three, said, "I think it's a great way to bring the community together and another way to go green. My kids are constantly growing out of costumes, and I would love for them to be reused".

For more information about the Halloween Costume Drive or how you can volunteer with Interfaith Social Services contact Paula Daniels at pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org or call 617-773-6203 ext. 28

PLAYING WITH FIRE

Opal, the modern birthstone for October, owes its variable interplay of internal colors to its unique composition of silica (a form of quartz) and water (6%-10%). As light passes through the spheres of silica, it "refracts," resulting in the remarkable play of rainbow colors for which the opal is renowned. Opals with a black or dark gray background provide the most brilliant displays of colors. Black opal with red, orange, and violet flashes tends to be the most desirable. White or milky opals show more diffuse colors. About 95% of the world's precious opal comes from Australia. Perhaps the most famous of the Australian Opal Fields is Lightning Ridge, where the desirable black opal is mainly found.

Opal jewelry makes the perfect gift for an October birthday, or the mother to be of an October baby. Delight in the beauty of our jewelry collection and give the gift of birthstones. ENC Theatre Department To Present 'Bye Bye Birdie'

The Eastern Nazarene College Theatre Department will present the musical Bye Bye Birdie in October, beginning with a premier performance to be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 11 at the Cove Fine Arts Center on the college's Wollaston campus.

Subsequent performances will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 12-13 and Oct. 18, and at 3 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 20. Educational matinee performances for students will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 11 and Friday, Oct. 19.

"Bye Bye Birdie is one of the most captivating musical shows of our time," said director and producer Tara Brooke Watkins. "It's a satire on American life that's done with the fondest affection."

Set in 1958, the Tony Award-winning musical tells the story of rock and roll idol Conrad Birdie — an Elvis-type singer who has just been drafted into the U.S. Army. As part of a publicity stunt, Conrad travels to a small town in Ohio to offer "one last kiss" to his biggest fan on the popular Ed Sullivan Show.

Watkins noted that the Book Club Begins Oct. 4 At Kennedy Center

The Kennedy Center is starting a Book Club.

The group will meet Thursdays at 1 p.m. beginning Thursday, Oct. 4th.

The first session will be a meet and greet and a chance to share thoughts about the types of books club members enjoy.

Will Adamzyk of the production features the largest cast of any ENC show in several years, with more than 35 students participating on stage. Set design is also an important part of the production, with designer Michael W. Ballard's set featuring colors and shapes evocative of the 1950s.

"Our idea conceptually was to evoke the 1950s at every turn and with every dance move," Watkins said. "Cast members are being stretched to learn various types of 1950s dances. They're even cutting and restyling their hair to reflect the slicked-back hairdos and bouncy pony tails of the period!"

Many of Bye Bye Birdie's musical numbers, she added, have become musical theater standards.

"Songs like Put on a Happy Face, A Lot of Livin' to Do and Kids, Bye Bye Birdie gives insight into the everyday life that is very much a part of us all," Watkins said.

Tickets for Bye Bye Birdie are $15 general admission, $10 for students, $5 for children 12 and under. For tickets or more information, call the ENC box office at 617-745-3715.

Thomas Crane Library will join the group to talk about what the library has to offer in the way of traditional services as well as for Kindle and Nook users.

John And Nancy Walty Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

John and Nancy Walty of Quincy recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

They were married on Sept. 9, 1962 at St John's Church in Quincy. Reception was held at Furnace Brook Golf Course.

John moved to Quincy in 1940 with his parents and brothers from Canada when he was three years old. They lived on French St.

After graduating from North Quincy High School, he spent four years in the Air Force. He then worked at Boston Gear Works for 45 years.

Nancy (Cahill) Walty was born in Quincy. She grew up on Centre Street, and attended Quincy High.

John and Nancy met while working at the Boston Gear Works. Nancy's friend had wanted to apply for a job at the Gear Works so Nancy went along for moral support. Nancy ended up with a job and, later, a husband!

They raised four children in the house they still live in on Hamden Circle: Susan Maloney, Donna Schimdt, Daniel Walty and Laura Smith. The have 10 grandchildren.

John and Nancy enjoy traveling, going out to dinner and spending time with their family.

Nancy is active in the city working the polls, volunteering at the senior center and attending classes at UMass Boston. She is an avid and talented quilter.

The 15th annual Beechwood Knoll Fall Festival will be held Saturday, Sept. 29 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, Fenno Street, Wollaston.

"We have had a blast at any festival for Beechwood Knoll", said festival coordinator, Robin Franceschini. "Each year it seems to get better and better, and without the parents to help, it would never happen."

This year, organizers are planning to have more carnival rides from North American Amusements, jumpy's, pony rides, carnival games, a huge silent auction, raffles, arts and crafts and food.

Other participants include the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department and performances by Velocity Dance Studio and Brady Academy.

Orchard Beach Walking Tour Sunday

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program will host a free walk at low tide at Orchard Beach Sunday, Sept. 23 at 11 a.m.

Led by UMass Professor Anamarija Frankic and naturalist Peter Fifield, the tour will explore salt marshes, tidal pools, the stories behind the "bones" of a shipwreck and the mysterious pilings offshore and the new field of biomimicry.

Participants should wear tie on shoes, boots or hiking sandals for walking in shallow muddy water and on slippery rocks. There will be an optional bring-your-own picnic on Peterson's Rocks at the end of the tour.

The tour will begin at the intersection of Huckins Avenue and Bayside Road in Squantum. Parking on Bayside Road is limited so parking on side streets is recommended.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rita's Natural Granola

If you've read my food column, it usually contains pretty easy recipes to follow. While spending the weekend with my daughter Rita and son-in-law Jonathan's home, she made the most delicious and natural granola ever.

It takes a little more time than most recipes, but well worth the time and effort.

NATURAL GRANOLA

- 2 cups rolled oats (not Quick Quaker)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup pumpkin seeds
- ¼ cup sunflower seeds
- 1/3 cup slivered almonds
- 1/3 cup hazelnuts
- 2 tablespoons flax seeds
- ½ cup light organic maple syrup
- 1 tablespoon safflower or canola oil
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 3 tablespoons raisins

- 3 tablespoons sweetened cranberries
- 3 tablespoons dried apricots

Combine the first seven ingredients and spread on a cookie sheet with either a silicone pad, parchment paper or foil. In a bowl, combine the maple syrup, the oil and honey and spread over the granola mixture, gently mixing with a fork to coat evenly.

Bake in a 350 -degree oven for about 18 minutes, stirring with a fork every 5-7 minutes to prevent sticking or burning-do not brown excessively as the mixture could burn easily.

Remove from the oven, let cool for 10 minutes, stirring a few times. Then place in a bowl and add the dried fruit and mix well. Cool completely before storing in container or zip lock bag.

I had it with plain yogurt, but even without anything it's great.

French Yogurt Cake

While waiting to have my hair done recently, I found a great recipe for French yogurt cake and so easy to make. Yogurt is so popular these days, that this recipe is worth a try.

It comes out really moist and can be made ahead of time and kept in the refrigerator for 3-4 days.

FRENCH YOGURT CAKE

- 1 ½ cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ¾ teaspoons Kosher salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon zest
- ¾ cup whole-milk Greek yogurt

- ¾ cup milk
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- 2 large eggs
- ½ teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and grease a loaf pan. Dust with flour and tap out excess.

In a bowl, put the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the sugar and the lemon zest and blend. Add the yogurt, the milk, oil, the eggs and the vanilla and whisk to blend.

Pour batter into prepared pan and bake for 50-55 minutes until top of the cake is golden brown or a toothpick comes clean after placing it in the center.

Marina Bay Project Reduced Luxury Apartments Scaled Back 60 Units To 401

By SCOTT JACKSON

After residents expressed concerns over parking and traffic, the developers planning two new luxury apartment buildings at Marina Bay have eliminated more than 60 units from the proposal.

The developers, Redgate Real Estate Advisors and Flagship Marina Bay, announced plans to construct two six-story tall buildings with 464 total units last month. Bryan Connolly, an attorney working with the developers, said the plan now calls for 401 units.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee hosted a public meeting on the proposal on Aug. 22nd. During the meeting, about two dozen residents expressed concerns about the buildings' impact on parking and traffic in Marina Bay. Because of that concern, Connolly said the number of units would be rolled back.

"There were some thoughts from residents, some sentiments that a reduction in size would be appreciated," Connolly said.

Connolly added that at the public meeting, and about a dozen others with stakeholders, response to the development has been overwhelmingly positive, except for concerns about parking. Residents and others concerned over parking will be happy with fewer units on site, according to McNamee.

"The overall project is considered to be quite large — any reduction will be quite welcome," McNamee said. "For the residents living in Marina Bay right now, more isn't necessarily better."

The design of the buildings will be altered as a result. The building slated for phase two of construction, located where boat warehouses now stand, will be five stories instead of six. Phase one, located at the site of the Ocean Club, will still be six stories tall but some areas of the building will only be five stories.

"We're going to take an entire story off phase two — it will be five instead of six stories," Connolly said. "With phase one there's going to be a partial reduction...we're going to pull the top story away from the boardwalk."

The parking plan is still in the works, according to Connolly. But he said the buildings would have more than the required amount of parking spaces on site; developments such as the proposed one need to have 1.5 parking spaces for each residential unit.

"We're still going to exceed the 1.5 ratio," Connolly said.

Apartments in the buildings are expected to be the most expensive in the city. During the August meeting, Redgate Principal Kyle Warwick said rents could reach as high as $2.50 per square foot per month, compared to the current average $2.09 a square foot in the city and current high rents of about $2.20 a square foot.

The project will also include about 18,500 square feet of retail space combined between the two buildings. That number wasn't altered from the original plan.

The developers are expected to formally submit the proposal to the city by the end of the month, according to McNamee. The proposal will be vetted four different hearings — two by the Planning Board, one by the Zoning Board of Appeals, and another by the Conservation Commission. The meetings haven't been scheduled yet.

Joseph Zero of Ruthven St. Quincy was recently promoted to sergeant in the National Guard at The National Guard Armory in Quincy. He was "pinned" by LT McLaughlin of the 186th BSB G Company to cheers from his fellow soldiers at first formation. Sgt. Zero's promotion will bring him to a new unit; The 1058th Transportation Company in Hingham. Among those congratulating Sgt. Zero is his wife, Katy Zero.

House Majority Leader Ron Mariano will serve as master of ceremonies for the event. Other speakers include Mayor Tom Koch, and Norfolk County Board of Commissioners Chairman Fran O'Brien. Four Massachusetts judges — Quincy District Court Presiding Justice Mark S. Coven, Chief Justice of the District Court Lynda M. Connolly, Chief Justice of the Trial Court Robert A. Mulligan, and Chief Justice of the Superior Court Barbara J. Rouse — will all address the crowd.

Frank Bellotti and his son Mike Bellotti, the Norfolk County sheriff, will both speak as well.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony, which starts at noon Sunday, on the steps of the courthouse at 1 Dennis F. Ryan Parkway. The road will be closed for the occasion.

Coleen Elstermeyer, Mariano's chief of staff, said more than 300 invited guests will in attendance. Among them are Attorney General Martha Coakley, Secretary of the Commonwealth Bill Galvin, Treasurer Steve Grossman, and Arthur Tobin, the court's clerk magistrate and Bellotti's longtime friend.

Bellotti tried his first case in the courthouse in 1953 and had a law office on Hancock Street. In 1962 he was elected lieutenant governor.

He was elected state attorney general in 1974 and served 12 years. He was re-elected twice but did not seek a fourth term in 1986.

During his tenure he served as President of the National Association of Attorneys General, and won the association's Louis C. Wyman Award recognizing him as the top attorney general in the country in 1981.

In Sync Center Of The Arts Welcomes New Staff

In Sync Center of the Arts located at 550 Adams St., Quincy, announces several new instructors have joined the staff.

Tiffany Evans was born and raised in Memphis, Tennessee but originates from Cincinnati, Ohio, where she performed in various productions with Cincinnati Opera while attending the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music. Evans holds her Bachelor's degree in vocal performance from the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music and her Master's degree in vocal performance from Boston University.

Evans, who has performed with Cincinnati Opera, May Festival Chorus, Tanglewood Festival Chorus and The Boston University Opera Institute, is running a new series of vocal group classes at In Sync titled "Showcase Kidz" and "Showcase Singers" in addition to teaching private voice and piano lessons.

Alison Palmucci is heading up the Art program at In Sync this year. Palmucci has been teaching art in public schools and private programs for 10 years. She holds a B.A. in Art and Psychology from Hartwick College in NY, and is about to receive her Master's degree in Critical and Creative Thinking from UMass Boston.

As an artist, Palmucci works with a variety of media including watercolor, acrylic, charcoal, and clay. She has taught classes and workshops in a variety of south shore locations, including the Hingham public library, the John Curtis Library in Hanover, and the Quincy Farmers' Market.

Mary Quigg, a former In Sync student, is back to dance and inspire young dancers at In Sync again. While working through her college careers, she is happy to share the passion she has for dance with the students at In Sync.

Quigg has been assisting classes at In Sync for over six years, co-taught the Me Too special needs dance program, danced lead roles in all of the In Sync ballet productions including the role of Cinderella, and danced competitively for many years.

Julie Sullivan was one of the very first dance teachers at In Sync over 15 years ago. While her role at the studio changed over the years, she has always played a part of the In Sync operation.

This year, Sullivan is returning to In Sync as director of the Preschool Dance Program.

The founder and owner of Petit Papillon Yoga, Sullivan and Teri Mangiaratti created the preschool program at In Sync many years ago. They plan to bring back some old favorites this year.

Tippy Toe Two's is a new dance program this year at In Sync for children age 2-3. The young ballerinas will be dancing, playing, expressing, tumbling and discovering the joy of movement with a parent at the beginning of the year with the goal of separation and independence by the season's end.

The "Mini" dance program at In Sync for 3-7 yr. olds is staffed with two teachers and a low student/teacher ratio. The Mini program classes have special Mini-recitals which happen during day time hours and only last 75 minutes. All children perform two routines in the annual recital, the entire Mini program runs with special theme months with exciting music and routines that change each month, these dancers are introduced to ballet, tap, creative movement and tumbling in each class.

In addition to Tippy Toe Two's and preschool dance program, In Sync offers ballet, tap, jazz, hip hop, contemporary, pointe, guitar, piano, voice, violin, trumpet, art, illustration, taekwondo and lego club classes again this year.

For more information about the classes at In Sync Center of the Arts 550 Adams St., contact them at www.insyncarts.com.

Point Webster Receives Grant From Beth Israel Deaconess-Milton Hospital

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton recently awarded grants to four community groups including the Point Webster Middle School in Quincy to fund projects designed to promote healthy living.

The grants will be made possible with funds raised from the Third Annual BID-Milton Community Health Walk and Carnival, scheduled to take place on Saturday, Sept. 29 at 10 a.m. at BID-Milton.

Each year, BID-Milton seeks to meet the needs of the community by providing outreach programs, health education, screenings, and funding.

This year, funds raised from the walk will support the following local health initiatives, including Point Webster Middle School's "Positive and Safe Climate Proposal."

Through theater performance, students are encouraged to take a stand against bullying in their schools and communities. The interactive, half-hour after-show discussion features the three actors who help students process and reinforce the educational points in the play.

The Community Health Walk and Carnival will also feature exhibits and lectures from hospital staff on a wide range of preventative health topics, such as nutrition, mammograms, how to quit smoking and more. Attendees will also be able to Meet Wally the Green Monster, participate in free demonstrations, receive a free flu shot, and enjoy free lunch.

For a complete schedule of events, call 617-313-1588 or visit the hospital's website at www.bidmilton.org and download registration forms.

Registration is $10 per walker and all walkers under 12 can participate for free.

A 25 percent discount is being offered to groups of five or more.

Fontbonne Academy Open House Sept. 30

Fontbonne Academy, 930 Brook Rd., Milton, will host an Open House Sunday, Sept. 30, from 1 - 3 p.m.

Those attending will learn about the academic program, extra-curricular activities and sports teams and experience the Fontbonne community.

For more information, call 617-615-3014.

Community Lobster Boil And Fish Fry Sept. 28

The third annual Lobster Boil/Fish Fry Dinner will be held Friday, Sept. 28 from 5 to 8 p.m. at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy.

All are welcome to attend this community event.

The dinner will feature a choice of a full lobster or fried fish dinner, including salad, baked potato, corn on the cob, homemade bread, dessert and beverage.

Tickets are $15 for lobster and $12 for fish for adults, $5 for children 12 and under.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

ANTIBIOTICS NECESSARY BEFORE DENTAL PROCEDURES?

If you have heard that is was necessary to take antibiotics before undergoing dental procedures such as cleanings and extractions, the recommendation is largely outdated. In the past, antibiotics were recommended for patients with defective heart valves or artificial joints in the belief that the drugs would fight bacteria entering the bloodstream during dental procedures. However, this precaution has since been deemed to be unnecessary because of risk of infection among this group of individuals is small and most likely outweighed by the risk (resistance and reactions) of taking antibiotics. Antibiotics are recommended for those with compromised immunity or increased susceptibility to infection (artificial-joint complications, prosthetic heart valves, or previous endocarditis, which is infection of the heart's lining).

It is important to take all of the antibiotics that you have been prescribed. Keep taking the medicine until it is gone, even after you start to feel better. tunity to buy the property from the former owner and took it."

Corley said that the former owner (Zhang) was trying to put some type of housing there and there was also talk of a restaurant at one point.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest notified Corley that the Zoning Board had denied the application Zhang had submitted and that the property might be up for sale again. Laforest said the board didn't like the plans Zhang had presented and as soon as they denied the application she gave Corley a call.

"This is really a great scenario for the neighborhood," said Laforest. "With this project we are now able to continue to serve veterans."

The project and purchase of the land is being funded by HOME funds, which is federal fund and the city's affordable housing trust along with a private investor.

Corley said they decided to demolish the building and build housing for veterans after a community meeting was held and they came to the conclusion it would be in the best interest of the neighborhood to use the land for something residential.

"We felt like taking the old building down and bringing back the property to a residential use would be appropriate," said Corley. "It really was a community effort, and we have received a lot of support."

Corley said that he hopes for it to be finished by next summer but it may be finished sooner depending on the winter weather. The project, Corley said, wouldn't be happening if it weren't for the help of Laforest, Planning Board director Dennis Harrington, and Mayor Tom Koch.

"They are really driving this," said Corley. "This project wouldn't happen without their support."

Laforest said that the project allows Quincy families to stay in Quincy, especially veterans and their families.

"Quincy is a very diverse community but a very expensive place to live in," said Laforest. "We want to keep Quincy families in Quincy, particularly veterans and their families."

Quirk Expansion, Cellular Antenna Improvements OK'd

Director Dennis Harrington, what is most likely abandoned equipment left over from a previous cellular provider, must be removed from the site before full authorization can be granted to begin modifications. The responsibility of locating the abandoned equipment's owner falls on the applicant.

"The rules require an applicant to advise us of all other carriers [at the site]," said Harrington.

If the owner cannot be found, T-Mobile will be held accountable for the removal of the property.

Next on the table was the proposal of Quirk Auto Dealerships for the demolition of a 9,803-square foot, freestanding building at 55 Broad St. to allow for the construction of a 15,000-square foot addition to the existing Quirk Ford Service Center.

Christopher Harrington, the attorney representing owner of Quirk Auto Group Daniel Quirk, said that all Ford dealerships must meet company mandated, aesthetic standards which are updated roughly every eight to nine years.

"This project essentially is an effort to bring Quirk Ford into compliance with the new standards for appearance of Ford dealerships," he said.

"It's definitely going to look 110 percent better," said James DeCelle, an engineer with DeCelle-Burke and Associates, who indicated that along with the addition, damaged and unsightly pavement would be refinished, and water quality tanks and underground retention units would be added to prevent excess, untreated water from running directly into the nearby river.

A paved walkway will be constructed and benches will be placed along the river's edge to be enjoyed by customers as they wait to have their vehicles serviced.

Additionally, trees will be placed around the perimeter of the parking lot, providing shade during the hot summer months.

The building's main entrance will be relocated to the new structure making it easily visible to the public, and making navigating the 3.69 acre site much easier, said Quirk's planning director John Dobie.

"This is a project that is very much driven by our attempt to improve the customer experience," he said.

Conditions to be met by Quirk Auto Dealerships before approval can be given to start construction include the acquisition of storm water and parking lot maintenance plans to be certified by H. W. Moore Associates, Inc., of Boston, and the City of Quincy Engineering Department, compliance from the Quincy Conservation Commission, and a flood plain special permit to be issued by the City of Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals.

Retiring In 2013? Prepare Now

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Do you plan to begin receiving Social Security retirement benefits early in 2013? If so, now is the time to prepare. We recommend you apply up to four months before you want your retirement benefits to begin.

These days, you no longer need to travel to an office or wait in line to apply for benefits. You can do it from your home or office computer. The Social Security website at www.socialsecurity.gov makes the process easy and convenient.

You can complete your application for retirement benefits in as little as 15 minutes. In most cases, after you submit your online application electronically, that's all you have to do. You're done. There are no forms to sign or additional paperwork to complete. In rare cases where we need additional information, a representative will contact you.

Not ready to retire yet? Perhaps you want to plan ahead and begin considering your options regarding when to retire. In that case, you'll want to visit Social Security's website to use our convenient and informative retirement planner at www.socialsecurity.gov/retire2. Here you can find out just how close you are to meeting your financial goals and then "bookmark" the website to apply for retirement benefits whenever you are ready.

We encourage people at any stage in their working career to use the Retirement Estimator for an instant, personalized estimate of future retirement benefits. Find it at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator.

Remember that you're always first in line when you go online, to www.socialsecurity.gov.

Here's to a lucky 2013. If you're planning to retire and begin receiving Social Security benefits in January, start the year off right by applying online now for Social Security benefits.

Steel On Its Way To New Central

The foundation of a new Central Middle School nearly completed, the structural steel that will form the frame of the long-sought new school is scheduled to be delivered to the Hancock Street site within days and begin rising from the ground shortly thereafter, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

Foundation work at the site is moving forward without incident, with concrete footings and other foundation elements giving the school its first initial shape. As that process moves forward, preliminary work by plumbing and electrical contractors is being conducted at the same time, allowing the project to move forward more efficiently.

"This is an extremely intricate project from the start to the finish, and we are going to see the site get very active very quickly when the structural steel arrives," said Mayor Koch. "We are doing two very important things for our future with this project - creating dozens of construction jobs and providing generations of children a first-class learning environment."

The school is scheduled to open in September of next year.

The $50 million school will be built at the highest state reimbursement rate possible of 80 percent after the Koch administration worked with the Massachusetts School Building Authority to involve the project in the state's Model School Program.

Central will be the first middle school in the state to be built under the model school program. The MS-

BA's Model School Program adapts and re-uses the design of successful, recently constructed schools; simplifying the design process, reducing the amount of time projects are in the design phase and lowering design fees, officials said.

Using elements of a previously designed Model School allows projects to begin construction faster and reduces construction costs for the project. As much as a year has been saved by using a Model School, officials said.

Technology Upgrades At Schools

The interactive tablets, whiteboards, and document cameras are all a part of the Mimioview, Mimioteach, and Mimiopad technology that allows teachers and students to have a 21st century learning environment in the classroom.

Segalla said they have also been holding training sessions for teachers to learn the new technology. This summer, 22 teachers were trained along with the principals of each school and Segalla said the plan moving forward is to have those teachers train their colleagues during different planned training sessions throughout the school year.

The City of Quincy is in its second 10-year contract with Comcast where they receive "PEG Access" (Public, Educational, and Government use) funding through a five percent user fee that is paid by cable subscribers in the city. The current contract, which began in 2006, provides specific breakdowns of the five percent fee. Of the five percent, 1.75 percent of the funds go towards governmental and educational telecommunications, three percent to Quincy Telecommunications Corporation, Inc. (QATV), and a quarter percent to Thomas Crane Public Library to further develop PEG Access Programming.

This is the second year the mayor has provided money towards improving technology within the Quincy Public School System. Two years ago, North Quincy High School received $250,000 in Comcast Funds to go towards upgrades for computers and labs.

The funds were divided among the five middle schools along with North Quincy High School. This year, each school received $100,000 to put towards the technology systems they needed. Segalla said deciding what each school needed was something that was done in collaboration with teachers, principals, and the city.

The remaining $200,000 from the funds was divided up two ways: $150,000 was put towards creating a new student information system, and $50,000 was put towards upgrading the schools infrastructure, which included updating the fiber lines in seven schools to make the internet run faster.

Segalla said they are interviewing and exploring vendor options to work on implementing the new student information system.

He also said that the new system would allow students, parents, teachers, and principals to communicate in a different way. Students and parents can access their schedules, make their schedules, and see their report cards, for example, online in their own home.

Segalla said that with the new Central Middle School project underway, they have been looking to make the classrooms into what 21st century classrooms should look like, by potentially providing iPads along with other social media products such as the Nook for the new Central Middle School library among other ideas. Segalla said they have already begun the purchase orders for the iPads, which he said would run as a pilot program at the new Central Middle School which is scheduled to open next September.

"We want the classrooms at the new Central Middle School to look like what a 21st century classroom would look like," said Segalla. "We now have over 200 classrooms equipped with this new technology, and we hope to have every classroom done within time. We want our students to graduate college and career ready."

PLAYING WITH FIRE

Opal, the modern birthstone for October, owes its variable interplay of internal colors to its unique composition of silica (a form of quartz) and water (6%-10%). As light passes through the spheres of silica, it "refracts," resulting in the remarkable play of rainbow colors for which the opal is renowned. Opals with a black or dark gray background provide the most brilliant displays of colors. Black opal with red, orange, and violet flashes tends to be the most desirable. White or milky opals show more diffuse colors. About 95% of the world's precious opal comes from Australia. Perhaps the most famous of the Australian Opal Fields is Lightning Ridge, where the desirable black opal is mainly found.

Opal jewelry makes the perfect gift for an October birthday, or the mother to be of an October baby. Delight in the beauty of our jewelry collection and give the gift of birthstones. 5th Annual Memorial Race Raises $25,000 For Charities

900 Runners Remember Officer Jamie Cochrane

By SCOTT JACKSON

Nearly 900 runners took part in the fifth annual Officer Jamie Cochrane Road Race Saturday, helping raise upwards of $25,000 for local charities.

According to Quincy Police Sgt. Jennifer Tapper, about 470 runners ran the race's 5K route and nearly 400 took part in the longer 10K. She anticipated that in total the event would raise between $22,000 and $25,000 after expenses, but couldn't give definitive amount because donations were still arriving days after the race.

Money from the event goes to six $1,000 scholarships. Two scholarships are awarded to Quincy High graduates, another two to North Quincy High graduates, and the other two go to Quincy residents who graduated from private schools. The remaining money is divided up between various charities such as DOVE Inc., the Salvation Army, QCAP, and the Germantown Neighborhood Center.

"Anyone can come to us if they're a non-profit," Tapper said.

The race is named after Quincy Police Officer Jamie Cochrane. Cochrane was only 38 when he was killed in an off-duty motorcycle accident. Tapper organizes the race with Greg Hartnett. Both have a connection to Cochrane - Tapper and Cochrane joined the force at the same time and served in the Special Operation Unit together and Hartnett is Cochrane's first cousin.

Tapper said Cochrane was someone who always cared about the community. He'd let children sit on his motorcycle and would shovel out his neighbors after snowstorms.

"He was a person who always took care of the public, his family, and the department," Tapper said.

The event started 20 years ago as the U.S. Marshall William F. Deegan Road Race, but the organizers of that event could no longer put on a race. So members of the Police Department decided to take over the race and named it after Cochrane.

This year's event included a free fun run for kids before the race began at 10 a.m. Attendance for the fun run was light, because of poor weather in the morning.

After the race, a whole host of events took place at Pageant Field, which was heavily attended. Face painting, bounce houses, and other children's activities were held in addition to a cookout. Mike Draicchio, the school system's transportation and security director, DJ'd the event.

'5% Day' At Whole Foods To Benefit Father Bill's

Whole Foods Market in Hingham will host a "5% Day" Tuesday, Sept. 25 to benefit Father Bill's & MainSpring (FBMS).

Five percent of the store's sales that day from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. will be donated to FBMS.

FBMS is nationally recognized for their innovative Housing First model and currently provides services and support for more than 4,000 individuals and families annually.

Staff from FBMS will be in the store next Tuesday to answer any questions and to distribute informational materials.

Proceeds from the "5% Day" will help FBMS serve individuals and families with the basic necessities of food, shelter and clothing over the bitter winter months.

This event also serves to increase awareness about homelessness in the area.

Joseph Giggey Wins 'Mayor Of Houghs Neck; Contest Raises $4,100 For HN Community Council 2,000 Flock To 8th Annual Houghs Neck Chowda Fest

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Over 20 restaurants and five individuals came prepared to dish out samples of their chowder to 2,000 hungry voters who flocked to the Houghs Neck Maritime Center last Saturday for the 8th annual Houghs Neck Chowda Fest.

For a $5 admission fee, chowder enthusiasts were free to indulge in as much of the New England specialty as they could eat. Hot dogs, hamburgers, and chips were also sold by Boy Scouts Troop 6 of Quincy for those wanting to add variety to their menu for the day.

Kathleen Lynch of Houghs Neck said this was her first Chowda Fest despite living in the area for four years. "We've tried a handful so far," she said. "I think the Lobster Stop is my favorite."

Lynch's two children joined dozens of other youngsters playing on the nearby beach but still made time to perform their own taste tests. Her daughter, Emily, couldn't get enough. "She wanted the chowder!" said Lynch.

Providing music for the event was local band Rock Island Sound who, much to the enjoyment of the dancing crowd, played hits of the '70s, '80s, '90s and today.

After all the chowder was eaten, the ballots were collected and the results tallied. The first place winner in the individual category was Rev. John Castricum of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, followed by John Carvello in second place and John Crosta of the Quincy Fire Department in third.

Taking first place in the restaurant category was the Adams Pub at Best Western in Quincy. Second place went to Peggy O'Neil's Pub in Dorchester and third went to the Wood Road Deli in Braintree.

Kevin Donovan of Dorchester said he enjoyed all of the restaurants' and individual entrants' offerings so much that he couldn't pick a favorite. "I didn't want to vote on them," he said. "I liked them all."

In addition to voting on the best chowder, the crowd witnessed the crowning of "The Mayor of Houghs Neck," an honorary title given each year to the individual who succeeds in raising the most money for the Houghs Neck Community Council, a nonprofit organization which coordinates family events, provides scholarships, and assists needy families during the holiday season. The contest is currently in its fifth year.

Competing for the coveted position were Kelli Galligan, Joe Giggey, Ed Kelly, and Kim Fallon. Their combined efforts raised more than $4,100 for the council; however, Joe Giggey was pronounced mayor having raised $2,100 through the sale of Red Sox tickets donated by former player Sam Horn, and a meet and greet with Wally the Green Monster.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest took the microphone to read off commendations given to Giggey for his victory by Mayor Thomas Koch, the Quincy City Council, The Massachusetts Senate, and the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Several charitable organizations set up shop among the chowder vendors, bringing in much needed funds, and drawing attention to their causes.

Project Access, which assists homeless or transitioning children in purchasing backpacks and other assorted school supplies and sporting fees, raised over $900 through the sale of baked goods such as walnut brownies and chocolate chip cookies. Sponsoring the bake sale was the Mission Committee of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Lobster rolls were sold to benefit the Wounded Warrior Project, which provides injured service members with necessary medical and

Quincy Sweeps Middleboro As Niosi Notches 100th Win

By JEFF OHLSON

In a game where Jacqui Niosi was going after her 100th win as Quincy's girls' volleyball coach, it was Quincy's players who were the highlight of the evening as the Presidents routed Middleboro in three games to win their match last Wednesday.

Freshman Nicole Jorgensen played a phenomenal game and junior Courtney Ryan set the pace early as the Presidents beat the Sachems, 25-16, 25-16, and 25-8, to sweep the best of 5 match.

The first game of the match didn't start out the way the Presidents wanted it to as they stumbled out to an early 5-0 deficit.

Thanks to consistent play by Rachel Papile and a string of aces from Courtney Ryan, Quincy would go on a 16-3 run to put themselves ahead of Middleboro 16-8. A key moment in that run was an extended play where Middleboro and Quincy were both fighting for their next point. Middleboro looked to have the edge as they set up for a spike, however Jorgensen jumped with outstretched arms to block the spike attempt and give the Presidents a 12-8 lead that would stretch to 16-8 before Middleboro would score again.

The Sachems tried to crawl back into the game but were halted by Papile put back and three straight aces by Ryan. Nicole Jorgensen would later finish off Middleboro with two straight aces to give Quincy the first game, 25-16.

Jorgensen may only be a freshman, but her coach sees a great player for the Presidents.

"She doesn't seem to have any nerves. She's learning footwork and getting down the transitions, but she's going to be great once she gets it all down," Niosi said.

The second game of the match had Quincy and Middleboro battling back and forth until with the score at 13-12 Presidents, Quincy went on a 6-0 run highlighted by consecutive aces from Ryan and an Alysha Dunbar spike to give the Presidents an 18-12 lead they would not look back from. Consecutive aces by Anxhela Kapaj would give the game to Quincy 25-16.

Quincy could smell victory and came out swinging in the third game of the match, jumping out to a 7-1 run behind a Jorgensen spike and consecutive Ryan aces.

With the game all but out of reach for Middleboro, the Presidents went on another tear, this time a 15-2 run which started with a Caroline McBride score on a spike, who would later add an ace, and ended on a Jorgensen spike to give the Presidents the game 25-8 and the match 3-0.

After the match ended, the Presidents surrounded their coach and began singing "Happy 100th win Coach" in a happy birthday melody and Niosi was given balloons by her players.

For Coach Niosi, it wasn't about her work for her 100th win as the Quincy girls' volleyball coach but about her players and how they earned it.

"I didn't do anything. We have great teams who go out there and work hard. Every once and a while I feel like I do something that contributes...but it's all the girls' work," Niosi said.

Presidents Best Raiders In Girls' Volleyball

By COLLEEN CASEY

The roars from the crowd inside North Quincy's gymnasium could be heard outside last Thursday evening when girls' volleyball rivals Quincy and North Quincy met for the first time this season.

With the help from Presidents fans yelling, "Let's go Quincy" to drown out the "Let's go Raiders," cheers, Quincy was able to edge North Quincy in four sets, 27-25, 25-12, 23-25 and 25-21.

"They're our biggest rival without a doubt," said North Quincy coach Kerry Ginty. "It's always so charged when they come here or we go there. It makes it fun to have big games. It's a tournament type atmosphere at the beginning of the year. It's such a fun rivalry."

The first set was a close battle, with both teams eventually tied at 20. If Quincy scored, North would respond with a point of their own, forcing the game to go past 25. Up 26-25, Quincy dealt the final blow when North's Shannon Callaghan let the ball slip through her fingers.

North scored the first point of the second set, but trailed the rest of the way. Quincy's Gabby Zorkers went on a spectacular 13-point serving run to power the Presidents to the second set victory.

"Gabby's got a great top spin serve," said Quincy coach Jacqui Niosi. "She went on a nice run. It just dropped right at the right time."

It wasn't just Zorkers leading the way for the Quincy. Emma Kelly finished the night with 14 digs. Laura Donahue had seven kills and Alysha Dunbar chipped in with five.

"We play best when everyone's involved," said Niosi. "We're so young and have different people playing different positions, we have to have everyone contribute to be able to play well."

North wasn't going down without a fight. After trailing 5-0 in the third set, a fire of determination was lit for the Red Raiders. They fought back to take the lead 18-17 and eventually win the set 25-23.

"The difference the third game was that we were very emotionally charged. So when we were up we were able to stay up," said Ginty. "Momentum is huge. With a young team you use it when it's on your side and don't know how to stop it when it's not."

North rode the momentum into the fourth set, gradually taking an 18-13 lead. But Quincy fought back hard and eventually tied it up at 19. After a minute volley, Quincy freshman Nicole Jorgensen jumped above the net and slammed the ball in for the point to give Quincy the lead. The Presidents went on to win 25-21.

"In this game the last couple points we weren't thinking. We were looking for somebody else to make plays," said Ginty.

Ivy Pham, North's libero finished the night with eight digs, while Rose Bennett, Carolyn Schwartz and Lauren McGoon each recorded six. Natasha Sautter and Maya Umoren both had four kills.

"They outsmarted us and out-hustled us. They were more consistent," said Ginty. "We weren't up to the task today."

NQ Drops Decision To Oliver Ames

Visit Sharon High School Saturday At 1 PM

By COLLEEN CASEY

The outcome of the North Quincy football team's game against Oliver Ames was a little different from last week. The Red Raiders (1-1) dropped a 43-22 decision to the Tigers, the defending Hockomock League champs.

Eddie Guinto led the Raiders, rushing for 96 yards on 15 carries and another two touchdowns to give him four in two games.

Both teams were evenly matched in the beginning of the game with neither team able to put points up in the first.

The Tigers came close on their opening drive though. On second and 10, North Quincy's Matthew MacPhail read Oliver Ames' junior quarterback Nick Cidado and picked off a pass through the middle two yards from the goal line.

"I just happened to be in the right place at the right time," said the senior defensive back MacPhail. "I just read it and got lucky."

However, North couldn't capitalize and was forced to punt after six plays.

MacPhail wasn't finished though. With Oliver Ames starting their next series from the 48, MacPhail shot up with his arms in the air and intercepted another pass from Cidado and ran it to the 42-yard line.

The momentum was short-lived. After an incomplete pass from North QB Andrew Minton, and a one-yard rush from Antoine Allen. Allen caught the next pass and was hit hard and fumbled, and the Tigers recovered.

"With most high school teams two interceptions can slow you down to a half for sure," said North coach Jim Connor. "They're such an explosive team. They're just so quick and we couldn't get anything going on offense. We didn't really take anything away from them."

The Tigers exploded in the second and capitalized on North's mishaps.

St. Clair Ryan rushed 15 yards to give Oliver Ames their first points, followed by a perfect kick from Greg Cummings to give the Tigers a 7-0 advantage with 10:43 remaining in the half.

North responded three minutes later. Minton (4 of 10, 121 yards passing) connected with wide-open tight end Shawn Thomas for a beautiful 83-yard pass to put the Raiders on the board. Guinto then rushed for the conversion to give North an 8-7 lead.

"Andrew Minton did an excellent job. I'm very proud of him," said Connor. "Andrew played well but we have to get the rest of the team with him."

But Cidado took off from there and never looked back. With the Raiders defense frazzled by the Tigers' no huddle offense, Cidado was able to go 8 for 8, with 122 yards passing and two touchdowns in the second quarter alone.

Oliver Ames' Joey Tepper had a 33-yard interception run for the Tigers fourth touchdown of the quarter. At the end of the half, the Tigers led 29-8.

"They're a very good football team. You can tell they're coming off a Super Bowl year," said Connor. "As far as we go, we had six turnovers. You only touch the ball maybe 12 times a game and when you give the ball away six times you don't really have a shot."

Oliver Ames started the third with a three-and-out, but quickly got the ball back when Allen fumbled on North's first play. Cidado connected with Matt Berksha for a 19-yard gain, then rushed 14-yards on a keeper to set Berksha up for a 5-yard touchdown. After three complete, the Tigers had a 36-8 edge.

North was determined and never gave up. On their first drive of the fourth, Guinto took the handoff and started to the right, bounced off a wall of tacklers and swept to the left for a 55-yard gain. The next play was Guinto again, this time for a 4-yard score.

"That was just a crazy play," said Guinto. "It was supposed to go to the right and I broke it back to the left and tried to get as much yardage as possible."

Berksha scored twice more in the fourth on an 85-yard and 4-yard run to provide the final margin.

Although the outcome was not what North wanted, they plan use it as motivation and move forward.

"Last week we had to move past the win. This week we have to move past the loss. It's a good lesson," said Connor. "We have to go get them the next game and focus on Sharon. You can forget about a loss but win it next week."

Guinto said the team will gain from the loss.

"We're going to get ready in practice," he said. "Sharon is a good team. We have to prepare this week and execute better, play better than we did and come out on fire for Sharon."

North Quincy will face Sharon High School Saturday in Sharon at 1 p.m.

Plymouth South Friday At 7 PM

Quincy Bows In Home Opener

By JEFF OHLSON

Quincy High's bad luck continued on Friday night as Canton extended their lead in the final minute to put away the Presidents 21-12.

The Presidents defense was exceptional all game but could not completely contain the Bulldogs running game as Dexter Green had two rushing touchdowns and ran for over 100 yards.

If not for the final score, the story of this game would have easily been the Presidents defense and how well they played all game. Captain Peter Cedrone was all over the field, making plays and tackles while Jaquan Harris led the secondary in shutting down the Canton passing game.

However, for as well as the Quincy defense played, the offense was inconsistent, which was a drastic switch from the season opener last week when Quincy scored 22 points.

"Yeah we just can't seem to put it all together, last week we had a great effort from the offense, this week the defense plays their tail off and the offense just couldn't put it together," said Quincy Coach Bill Reardon.

One of the few bright spots for the Quincy offense in this game was running back Jalen Green who had a 20-yard scamper to answer Canton's opening drive touchdown with one of his own and bring the Presidents within one, 7-6.

After both teams scored early, the game had the feel of a shootout similar to Quincy's season opener until the defenses took over and neither offense saw the red-zone for the rest of the first half. The closest the Presidents got to scoring was when their defense forced a Bulldog fumble and gave James Lam and the Quincy offense the ball at Canton's 26 yard line.

Canton's defense would stop the Presidents on four straight downs though, giving the ball back to their offense. The Canton offense then drove the ball from their own 20 all the way to the Quincy 31-yard line where the Presidents' defense would stiffen and force a turnover on downs heading into halftime.

To begin the second half, both offenses came out stiff on their first possessions going 3-and-out. In Quincy's second possession of the half however, Lam threw a bomb to Harris for 40 yards which Canton added onto with a 15-yard personal foul penalty. After a 12-yard run by Jalen Green, James Lam would finish what he started by punching the ball into the end-zone on a run up the middle putting Quincy up 12-7.

Even with the lead midway through the 3rd quarter, the Quincy defense wasn't satisfied and immediately after Canton came up with a 25-yard run, the Presidents forced a fumble and handed the offense the ball at the Bulldogs 46-yard line. For Quincy though, this would be a lost opportunity as the offense would go 3-and-out and then muff a punt, giving Canton the ball at the Quincy 36 yard line.

Canton then drove down to Quincy's goal line, using a Dexter Green sweep to the right for a touchdown putting Canton up 15-12 after the two point conversion with six minutes to go in the fourth quarter.

Quincy's offense came onto the field with a sense of urgency as Lam and Harris hooked up again for a 15-yard completion to bring the ball to midfield, but two plays later, Canton's Brian Hagan would gather a Lam throw for an interception, giving Canton the ball at their own 46.

Canton's offense ran the ball down to the 10-yard line on a tired Quincy defense that eventually gave up a touchdown on a sweep to the right which put Quincy down 21-12 with a little over a minute to go in the final quarter.

With the game all but over, Quincy's offense trotted onto the field determined to find a way to overcome what seemed like an insurmountable lead. Coach Reardon dialed up two deep passing plays to start the drive, but Lam couldn't connect with Alex Heffernan on either attempt and with only enough time for one more play, Lam was sacked as the clock ran down, giving Canton the victory 21-12.

Even though Quincy is without a win in two games now, Canton coach Dave Bohane thinks they are in good shape.

"That Quincy team is much improved... a tough opponent... They're 0-2, but they have to be the best 0-2 team out there," Bohane said.

The Presidents next game is Friday when they host Plymouth South at Veterans Stadium. Kick off is 7 p.m.

Quincy Youth Football Week 2 Results, Highlights

The Quincy Youth Football League closed out their week two roster of games this past Sunday. With three teams taking early position for a QYFL playoff spots. The Milton Mustangs stood idle this week with a bye.

The beautiful Sunday afternoon kicked off with a match up between QYFL rivals, the West Quincy Elks hosting the North Quincy Apaches. The Elks capitalized on Apaches mistakes to get out to an early 27-0 lead at the end of the first. Elks RB John Teixeira (8 carries, 86 yards 3 TDs) put on a dominating three-touchdown performance in the opening weekend for the West Quincy franchise. QB Angelo DePaulo (2 for 4, 54 yard passing, 1 TD pass, 1 TD Run) did a fine job commanding the potent Elks offensive attack. The Elks got some great two way performances from Teixeira, Aaron Etienne, DePaulo, Santiago Zenteno, Davi Soares, Curtis Frazier, Connor Ainsley, Vagno Santos and Josh Rodriguez. Despite the Loss, The Apaches coaching staff praised the efforts of Ronan O'Farrell, Dara Griffin, Brian Maloney (6 Tackles, 1 sack), Brendan Ganno, Michael Dockery, Brandon Chen and Chris Mann. The Apaches play the Milton Mustangs next Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

The second game of the day featured a battle of undefeated teams, with the Quincy Point Panthers (1-0) hosting the Squantum Storm (1-0). The Panthers got on the board first when RB Domenic Coleman raced in for a 17 yard TD run. The Storm defense stopped the Panthers conversion attempt to make the score 6-0, Panthers. On their next possession, the Storm turned the ball over on downs on the Panther 45 yard line. The Panthers capitalized on the ensuing series, when QB Nick Mayberry threw a 29 yard TD pass to WR Melvin Gonzales. Brendan Jenner's conversion attempt was stopped making the Score 12-0, Panthers. The Storm immediately struck back with a 71 yard TD run by RB Max Storch on the second play of the series. RB Luca Smith rushed for the one point conversion to make the score 12-7. On the ensuing kickoff, Storm Kicker O'Connor recovered his own onside kick but, the Storm Failed to convert before the end on the Half. Both teams entered the locker room with the Panthers leading 12-7.

The Panthers took the ball to open the second half but, where forced to punt from their own 11 yard line. The Storm came thundering back with a long 13 play drive, that ate up most of the third quarter, and capped the off the drive with a 26 yard TD run by Storch (13 carries, 131 yards 2 TDs). The conversion attempt failed but, the Storm took the lead 13-12 as time expired on the third quarter.

The Panthers got the ball back to start the fourth quarter however, they failed to convert. The Storm Took over and mounted another long drive and continued to run down the clock. The Storm eventually turned over the ball over on downs deep in panther's territory. The Panther offense took the ball 1st and 10 on their own 8 yard line with 1:04 left on the clock. Four plays Later, on fourth down, Panther QB Nick Mayberry connected with WR Brendan Jenner for an 86 yard TD pass to win the Game. Domenic Coleman Rushed for the conversion to make the Final score of this exciting game; Panthers-19 Storm-13. The Panthers saw great performances by Coleman, Jenner, Mayberry, Ronin Conteras, Nick Cedrone, Kevin Phu, Ryan Malloy, Josh Coughlin, Gonzales, Bryan Hanly and Domenic Laptiste. The Storm saw some great football from Storch, O'Conner, Tim Layden, Mark Monahan, Tom Veasey, Zack Spencer, Raphy Veras and Brad Ames. The Storm (1-1) plays the West Quincy Elks (1-0) next Sunday at 2 p.m.

North Girls Cruise Past Hanover, Mullaney Undefeated

North Quincy High School girls took the first four spots and cruised to a 20-35 win over the Hanover Indians at Pageant Field in recent cross country action.

Emily Bryson, Danielle Mullaney and Julia Bryson took the top three spots just ahead of Briana Mullaney. Mary Zheng was the fifth scorer in 10th.

Every girl improved their time from the prior week including freshman Grace Anderson (4 mins), Siobhan Flynn, a senior, (3:00) and soph Marguerite Belcher (2:30). Each athlete improved a minimum of 30 seconds

"We're improving, but more importantly our 4th, 5th and 6th runners are getting better. This is key if we are to challenge Hingham, Whitman-Hanson and Pembroke," said Coach Geoff Hennessy.

On the boys side, Mike Mullaney ran wire-to-wire for his second win but Hanover took the next eight spots to win 22-39. Danny Tran in 9th was the Raiders only other top ten finisher.

North travels to Hingham for a quad meet with the Harbormen, Quincy and Middleboro.

Last Saturday, North Quincy athletes and several Quincy Track club members assisted at the Multiple Myeloma Run for Research in South Boston. The 5K Run/Walk was organized by Conventures Inc. the organizers behind the popular Sail Boston, Boston Marathon's Runner's Expo, Tufts 10K and Chemical Bank Corporate Challenge.

North Quincy Girls' Soccer Improves Record To 3-1

Entering the 2012 season, North Quincy girl's soccer coach Paul Bregoli knew his team had the potential to be good. Four games into it, the Red Raiders are playing up to his expectations, standing at 3-1-0.

"We've gotten off to a pretty good start," said Bregoli. "We've been outstanding defensively. When our offense begins to click, we could have a special team."

The Red Raiders showcased their defensive prowess in Friday's 2-1 victory over Hanover. Led by captain Lauren Campo and juniors Haley McKay and Ariana Viscione, the Raiders withstood a furious onslaught by the Indians the entire second half, and allowed only one goal.

North had taken an early 2-0 halftime thanks to McKay, who knocked in a corner kick from Abby Smith, and freshman forward Marissa McGue, who kicked a pass from Shannon McCleary in past the sprawling keeper.

"We have better players this year. Experience is huge," said Bregoli. "We have our back four back this year."

The Raiders opened their season with a 1-0 victory over non-league opponent Cambridge Rindge and Latin. McCleary and Liz Kelly led the offensive attack the first half, but both had their efforts thwarted by skilled Cambridge keeper Phoebe Gomez.

With a few minutes remaining in the game, McGue collected a McCleary rebound and volleyed it over Gomez for the winning goal.

In their Patriot League debut, the Raiders dominated Middleboro earning a 4-0 win.

Junior striker Delia Devane put North on the board scoring from 20-yards out off a pass from Ciara Forde. Danielle Paschall made it 2-0, taking advantage of a great pass from Molly Donahue 15-yards out. Kelly upped North's lead 3-0, tucking a Jaclyn Scuzzarella feed into the back of the net. Forde provided the final goal, finishing a Julia O'Donnell pass from 12-yards out.

The teams only loss, a 1-0 decision with Whitman-Hanson, was a hard fought match. Battling the perennial Patriot League champs evenly for a half, the Panthers scored 2:30 into the second and held the Raiders off for the victory.

"We gave a great effort," said Bregoli. "Generally with the Whitman-Hanson games the play is all in their offensive end, our defensive end. This year it wasn't. We even had two great opportunities to score in the second, which would've tied it."

McGuie nearly tied the game with less than two minutes left, but her shot missed by a foot. Smith had a chance as well but was off the mark.

North Quincy faces Duxbury today (Thursday) at home at 4 p.m.

(AFC) U16 Boys Promoted To 2nd Division

With a 5-2 victory over Galway Rovers in their MAPLE (Massachusetts Premier League) promotion game the America FC United (AFC) U16 boys have been promoted to the 2nd division of MAPLE.

After falling behind early, giving up a goal in the first five minutes, the AFC boys responded by scoring two of their own and went into half time up by one. AFC continued its momentum in the second half, scoring twice and stretching the lead to 4-1. Galway scored late, but AFC quickly responded with another goal keeping the 3-goal lead and securing the victory.

America FC United brought nine teams down to the 2012 Cape Cod Challenge Memorial Day tournament in Sandwich, MA. The AFC teams did very well, with four (U12, U14 and U16 boys, and U12 girls) out of the seven playoff eligible teams qualifying for the Monday playoff rounds. All four AFC teams that made the playoff rounds ended up advancing to the championship game. Congratulations to all AFC teams for a great showing.

GIVING KIDS AN OUTSIDE CHANCE

As believers in the body's innate ability to heal and practitioners of a natural form of health care, it should hardly come as a surprise that chiropractors endorse physical activity. It is quite edifying to learn, therefore, that a recent study of teenagers shows that those who took part in more moderate-to-vigorous outdoor activity reported better health and social functioning than their more sedentary counterparts who spent hours watching TV or playing video games. The most benefit came to those who spent at least 2.5 more hours outdoors playing sports or engaging in high-intensity physical activity than the least active. Our bodies are meant to be used, and chiropractors can help people of all ages get in motion.

The benefits go far beyond relieving back and neck pain and can help people of all ages from infants to the elderly. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we have many years of experience to ensure that each adjustment is precisely delivered. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where our purpose is to support each individual in achieving his or her optimum health. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Inactivity has its price - recent studies have shown that sitting too long increases the risk of death.

Quincy Youth Soccer U14 Girls Compete In MTOC

Quincy Youth Soccer's U14, Division 1 Girls Travel soccer team recently completed their season in the MTOC's (Massachusetts Tournament of Champions). The soccer tournament brings together hundreds of teams from 10 travel leagues throughout the state. This year the 2012 MTOC's were held at the Citizens Bank Fields in Lancaster over the weekend of June 22-24.

After a successful season (5-2-1) the U14 Girls team won their first two league playoff games against Hanson and Easton. The league championship game against Bridgewater went into double overtime as Marissa McGue tied the game with 12 seconds remaining. The overtime was a battle between two tough teams with Bridgewater emerging as the winner 4-2. The Quincy team was awarded the wild card spot and a place in the MTOC's.

Quincy played three games in the MTOC's and finished with a 1-2 record. The first game was a 4-3 loss against a tough team from Wilmington. Goal scorers in this game were Marissa McGue, Kara Carchedi and Sinead Hanley. Their next game against the eventual U14-Div.1 champion, Andover was tied 1-1 with eight minutes left. McGue notched the lone goal in this game. Quincy had a number of great scoring chances, but ended up on the short end of a 3-1 game.

Quincy won the final game of the tournament with a 3-2 win over a very good Hampden team. The game went back and forth and down to the wire, with the lead changing several times. Forward Emily Anglehart demonstrated her scoring abilities by notching all three goals in the game.

Mandy Hazelton played goal for most of the tournament. A very aggressive and sure handed goaltender, she was a key player in the teams success throughout the year and tournament. Hazelton is also a strong and versatile field player with great speed.

The defense was anchored by Julia O'Donnell (sweeper) and Alyx Patey (stopper). O'Donnell is an aggressive and relentless defender never giving up uncontested shots, while Patey is a versatile player who sees the field well, has good offensive skills and has one of the strongest kicks on the team. Outside defensive back Molly Kate Cannon saved many goals with her speed and ability to break up scoring opportunities. Outside backs Nina McDonald and Ciarra Viscione both intelligent and skilled players, provided solid and consistent play on defense. Both players rounded out a solid tough defensive unit.

McGue's aggressive play at midfield and scoring ability at forward scored several key and game winning goals throughout the season.

QUINCY YOUTH SOCCER's Under-14 Division 1 travel team included Marissa McGue, Kara Carchedi, Sinead Hanley, Emily Anglehart, Mandy Hazelton, Julia O'Donnell, Alyx Patey, Molly Kate Cannon, Nina McDonald, Ciarra Viscione, Charlotte Chretien, Ally MacPherson, Joelle Robinson, Hailey Houlihan, Abby Plourde, Shayley Monahan and Danielle O'Driscoll.

Carchedi, a quick and physical player controlled the midfield while displaying her versatility by also playing forward and goaltender. Donahue a skilled offensive player used her speed to create many scoring opportunities at both midfield and forward. Charlotte Chretien a skilled and tough player, with good field sense created many scoring opportunities. Ally Macpherson's speed and quickness at midfield opened up many scoring opportunities. She also filled in as a defender adding depth to a strong defensive unit, challenging many of the opposition's top scorers.

Joelle Robinson, a very crafty and skilled player at defense, midfield and forward played where asked adding depth and versatility to the team. Hailey Houlihan's aggressive play at forward, team leader in scoring with over 10 goals punished the opposition's defense with her relentless and physical play. Sinead Hanley playing both mid field and forward, an offensive minded player with a good eye for the net, set up and scored key goals throughout the season.

Anglehart's aggressive play and speed at forward had the opposition's defense always looking to her side as she scored many key goals during the season.

As a forward, Abby Plourde played an aggressive style of soccer up front. Unfortunately Abby's season was cut short due to injury. Shayley Monahan, injured for most of the season, added depth to the forward position challenging the opposition's defense. Danielle O'Driscoll playing at forward, with great speed, often pressured the opposition's defense resulting in many turnovers.

The Quincy team was well supported at the MTOC's with many parents and family members in attendance. The weather was in the mid 90's, but the players enjoyed the experience playing and competing with the best town teams in the state. The U14's represented Quincy well with good play and sportsmanship. The team was coached by Paul Bregoli and Larry Carchedi.

Quincy Girls' Soccer Ties Middleboro

By COLLEEN CASEY

The Quincy girls' soccer team showed improvement Monday afternoon, forcing Patriot Fisher League foe Middleboro to a 0-0 tie after battling two strong halves. The Presidents are now 0-3-1 on the season.

The teams were evenly matched during the first half, both shooting seven times on net. Senior captain Olivia Wallace and speedy freshman Gabriella Jerahian led the offensive charge for the Presidents, but were unable to best Middleboro goalie Brooke Downey.

Sophomore forward Julia Donovan had an opportunity to put the Presidents ahead late in the first when she broke through two defenders and had a clear shot on net, but she sent her shot just wide of the right goal post.

The Presidents came out aggressive the second half, but couldn't sneak past the defenders.

"The first half we struggled being first to the ball," said Quincy coach Courtney Harnais. "We really did a lot better in the second."

Harnais, who took over the program this season, said she saw a lot of improvement in the game.

"One of the things we were struggling with was playing the full 80 minutes," she said. "Every single girl showed they were capable of playing the second half and the full 80 minutes. Come late in the season that's when we want to play our best."

Stanton Shining For Mass. Maritime Football

North Quincy native and Massachusetts Maritime quarterback Mike Stanton has started his junior season with a spark. In Mass. Maritime's season opener against Nichols College, Stanton steered the Buccaneers to a 41-13 victory.

The former Red Raider rushed for two touchdowns and completed 13 of 17 passes for 210 yards, including two touchdown passes last Friday at Vendetti Field in Dudley.

Stanton rushed 5-yards on a keeper the Buccaneers' opening drive before connecting with junior Keith Junior goalkeeper Natalie O'Donovan earned her first shutout of the season, making several key saves.

"It was a complete team effort. I don't think there was a single girl on the field that didn't try. That's important for the team and the program," added Harnais. "That's all I can ask for."

Caruso on a 56-yard touchdown strike in the first quarter.

He extended the lead quickly after the halftime break, rushing into the end zone from 8-yards out to give Mass Maritime a 34-7 advantage. Then with 2:53 remaining in the third, Stanton hit sophomore wide receiver Bobby Rosano with a 58-yard touchdown blast for the final score.

The Buccaneers open their New England Football Bogan Division play Saturday, taking on Coast Guard at Clean Harbors Stadium at noon.

Quincy Militia Home Game Saturday

The Quincy Militia football team will take on the Granite State Knights Saturday at 8 p.m. at Veterans' Stadium.

The game concludes the 5-4 Militia's regular season play.

South Shore YMCA Strypers Platinum Squad

The South Shore YMCA Strypers swim team is offering an exciting new fitness and technique squad for members and non-members of the South Shore YMCA for swimmers ages 13-18 who want to be a part of the swim team experience but can't commit to the full SSYS program.

There are no attendance requirements and the experienced and dedicated coaching staff will structure practice to meet individual goals. Whether the goal is preparing for the high school swim team or just having fun and keeping fit, the SSYS Platinum Squad will help you in your swimming.

The schedule for the Quincy YMCA program is as follows:

Monday and Wednesday from 7:30-8:30 p.m., and Friday from 7-8 p.m.

AAA: Gas Prices Up 10 Cents This Week

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up 10 cents this week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's Sept. 17th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.909 per gallon, ten cents higher than last week. Prices locally are up 17 cents over the past month. The current price is four cents above the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.86. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.62.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 32 cents, from a low of $3.77 to a high of $4.09. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Find the most up-to-date local gas prices with the AAA Fuel Finder by logging onto AAA.com and clicking on Gas Saving Tips & Tools. AAA members can also obtain a copy of the Gas Watcher's Guide at their local AAA Southern New England office.

AAA Fuel Saving Tip of the Week

If you have more than one vehicle in your driveway, always try and choose the most fuel-efficient vehicle.

A Job Well Done

On Friday Sept. 7, 2012, at approximately 8:45 p.m., Officers Dan Parisi, Dan Francis and Bill Lanergan were dispatched to 175 Centre St. on a report of a motor vehicle accident with injuries.

While en route, dispatch updated the Officers that the driver was reported to be unconscious inside the vehicle. The Officers arrived simultaneously and observed a single vehicle accident that appeared to have left the roadway and crashed through a sign on the lawn.

The Officers quickly made their way to the driver, who was behind the wheel and slumped slightly to his right. The driver was unconscious, sweating, had limited breathing, with his lips and finger tips turning blue. Officer Parisi opened the eyelid of the driver and observed the eyes rolled back in his head.

Through collective training and experience, the Officers immediately recognized that the driver was experiencing a drug overdose, so Officer Francis went to his cruiser, took out the Narcan, assembled it and administered one vial into the driver's nasal cavity. After waiting several moments for the driver to respond to the medication with no results, another vial of Narcan was assembled and administered, again with no results.

The driver was now at high risk of dying. At this time, Fallon Paramedics and the Quincy Fire Department arrived on scene and administered two more doses. The driver slowly regained consciousness and was transported to the Quincy Medical Center for further medical treatment.

The Officers and other emergency response personnel then focused on the female passenger, who also showed signs of a potential drug overdose. When asked where she was, the female was unable to determine what city she was in. She was able to state that the driver just stopped in front of an apartment building and ran inside. When he came out, the driver said to her, "I'm all junked up." She said that the driver put the car in motion but soon after passed out and crashed.

The female was also transported to the Quincy Medical Center for treatment.

Officer Parisi went to the Medical Center ask more questions of the female, but she kept contradicting herself. At the accident scene, Officer Parisi was able to determine that the vehicle exited Bartlett Street and went straight across the driveway of 175 Centre St. at a high rate of speed, failing to negotiate the turn. The vehicle then jumped the curb, crashed through a small stone retaining wall, then through a flower bed and through a building sign before coming to rest on the sidewalk. To the Officer's shock, inside the vehicle were several booster seats used to restrain children. The Officers checked the area thoroughly to be sure that no children were thrown from the vehicle or removed prior to their arrival.

Officer Parisi then contacted the Bellingham Police Department, the town where the vehicle was registered to and requested that they check on the children's welfare. Bellingham Police spoke with the registered owner's (not the driver) father who reported that the child was safe, visiting a friend. Phone contact was made with the registered owner, who stated that his car was stolen in North Smithfield, R.I. and he was in the process of filing the report.

Once at the hospital, Officer Parisi informed the driver, a 22 year-old Rockland resident, that he was under arrest for larceny of a motor vehicle, OUI drugs, operating to endanger, default warrant, operating after license suspension, subsequent offense - his BOP shows an open case at Quincy District Court from 7/9/12 and 2/24/12 along with two closed cases from 4/15/10 and 1/20/10.

The driver did state that he took several Xanax earlier in the day prior to the accident. Prior to the motor vehicle being towed, it was searched by Officer Parisi. He found evidence of drug use and sales, with plastic baggies, a rolled up shoe lace (commonly used as a tourniquet for the injection of drugs), a belt that was also fashioned into a tourniquet and several stems and caps to needles. Nice Work!

As I mentioned in my article last week, this is another good example of why it is important to walk facing traffic - it gives you a chance to jump out of the way!

RELIGION

Yizkor Service Sept. 26 At Temple Shalom

Temple Shalom of Milton will host a Community Yizkor (Memorial) Service on Yom Kippur evening, Wednesday, Sept. 26th, at approximately 5:45 p.m.

The community is invited to attend, and no High Holiday tickets are required.

The solemn and moving Yizkor service includes the Yizkor Memorial prayer, recited in the synagogue on Yom Kippur and the three other major Jewish holidays - Pesach, Shavuot and Sukkot - by those who have lost parents or loved ones.

All High Holiday services are under the direction of Rabbi Fred Benjamin and Cantor Saralee Shrell-Fox.

The Yizkor service will follow the 5 p.m. Mincha service, and precede the Ne'ilah (Concluding) service and the final Shofar blast at about 7:19 p.m. This marks the end of the fast on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, and it will be followed by a Dairy Break-Fast to which everyone is invited.

Temple Shalom's worship services currently are at the Great Hall Sanctuary in the First Congregational Church, 495 Canton Ave., Milton.

For more information, call the Temple office at 617-698-3394, email: office@TempleShalomOnline.org or visit www.TempleShalomOnline.org.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy, will hold its weekly worship service Sunday at 10 a.m.

All are welcome to attend.

Pastor John Casticum will preach the sermon "The Church is a Mission." Shirley Pearson and Robert Gordon will serve for the Diaconate.

A fellowship coffee hour will follow the service.

Community United Methodist

Quincy Community United Methodist Church will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the "Bread and Roses Strike" Sunday, Sept. 30, with a special service in honor of the strike's centennial.

Ben Kruss, a union activist in Quincy, will participate in the service, as well as several union representatives.

The Bread and Roses Strike was one of the most significant in the American Labor Movement. It occurred in the textile mills of Lawrence. It began in January, 1912, when a group of workers - led by Eastern European women - spontaneously left their jobs when learning of a pay cut. The strike then spread through Lawrence, and led to additional strikes throughout Massachusetts' mill towns.

The public is welcome to attend the service and learn what happened 100 years ago, what continues to happen to today's workers, and why workers' rights should be a vital concern to people of faith.

The church is located at 40 Beale St. in Wollaston.

For more information, call 617-773-3319.

Bethany Church

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have Sunday Worship Service and Sunday School at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "God With Us." Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its numerous group activities. Bethany has a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Friday morning Bible Study Class.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

The Bethany Church Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. on Thursday evenings on Channel 8.

Childcare is available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays. The church is wheelchair accessible.

Dr. Charles J. Hamilton

Former Assistant State Treasurer, Assistant Executive Director State Lottery

Dr. Charles J. Hamilton, a resident of Quincy and Cape Cod who served as an assistant state treasurer, died Sept. 8.

Dr. Hamilton's long career in both politics and government was highlighted by his tenure as assistant treasurer under former State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane. He also served as an assistant executive director of the State Lottery. He retired in 1979.

Dr. Hamilton's public service career spanned three decades and included service as Chief Investigator and Executive Secretary to former Massachusetts Attorney General Edward J. McCormack Jr. and as Assistant State Purchasing Agent under former Massachusetts Governors Endicott Chub Peabody, John A. Volpe, and Francis W. Sargent.

Long active in Democratic Party politics, Dr. Hamilton, a dual citizen of both the United States and Ireland, participated in numerous city, state, and national campaigns.

Following his service as a U.S. Army Sergeant in the Pacific Theatre in World War II, Dr. Hamilton was elected Chairman of the Ward 15 Democratic Committee in Dorchester. He later became Democratic State Committeeman representing wards 15, 16, 17, in Boston, and was elected President of the Young Democrats of New England.

He was a Presidential Elector and member of the Electoral College in 1964, casting his vote for President Lyndon B. Johnson. A delegate to many state and national conventions, Dr. Hamilton was a friend of such prominent Democrats as Presidents Harry S. Truman, John F. Kennedy, and Lyndon B. Johnson; U.S. Senator Adlai Stevenson, U.S. House Speakers John W. McCormack and Thomas P. Tip O'Neill as well as Massachusetts House Speakers Robert H. Quinn, David M. Bartley, and Thomas W. McGee.

Dr. Hamilton's career in politics and government was matched by his achievements in the field of education. A graduate of the of the Mather School of Meeting House Hill in Dorchester, and of the former High School of Commerce, he received his A.B. from Calvin Coolidge College, a Masters Degree in Public Administration from Suffolk University, and his Doctorate in Education from Boston University. He also received an Honorary Degree in Public Administration from the New England Law School/Boston, where he served on the Schools Board of Trustees for 20 years, six of those years as vice chairman.

He also enjoyed movies and trivia and inspired and encouraged hundreds of men and women in their pursuit of an education and practice in law.

Upon his retirement from public service in 1979, Dr. Hamilton became president of several consulting firm, specializing in insurance, investments, and real estate development. He was also a licensed private investigator.

An avid baseball fan and player, he sponsored the Hamilton Club in the Boston Park League that played its games at Ronan Park and the town field in Dorchester in the late 1940s and 1950s.

The son of the late Marie F. (Madden) and John F. Hamilton, an actor in show business, he is survived by a sister, Virginia M. Savage of Quincy; several nieces and nephews; his best friend and business partner, Atty. Peter O'Neill; as well as his dear friends, former Speaker of the Massachusetts House Dave Bartley, and former Massachusetts State Treasurer Bob Crane.

Mary E. Edson, 82

A rite of Christian Burial for Mary E. (Kelly) Edson, 82, of Hingham, formerly of Allentown, N.H. and Quincy, was celebrated Sept. 15 at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Mrs. Edson died Sept. 11 at the Harbor House Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Hingham.

Born in Arlington, she was raised in the Wollaston section of Quincy.

She attended St. Gregory School in Dorchester Lower Mills and was a member of the class of 1948 of North Quincy High School.

In 1952, she married Elbridge H. Edson Jr. and moved to Allentown, N.H. where they lived for over 55 years until Elbridge's death in 2007. She then moved to Hingham to be with near her sister.

Mrs. Edson enjoyed being with her family and bowling at Wonder Bowl.

Beside her late husband, she was pre-deceased by three children, Susan, William D. and Robert Edson and a sister Helen Smith.

She is survived by a son Keith Edson, two sisters Margaret Fanning of Hingham and Alice Coletta of Braintree, two grandchildren Brian Dauphinie of N.H. and Brian Edson of Holbrook and by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Leo W. Hallisey

Deli Manager, Shipyard Welder

Private funeral arrangements and burial were held for Leo W. Hallisey, 95, a lifelong Quincy resident. Mr. Hallisey died Sept. 1 at Quincy Medical Center, surrounded by his loving family.

Born, raised and educated in Quincy, he was a 1936 graduate of Quincy High School.

Mr. Hallisey was the meat and deli manager for the former Curtis Farms Market on Adams Street in Quincy. He was employed for over 30 years and had been retired many years.

During World War II, he worked as a welder at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

He was a lifelong parishioner at Saint John the Baptist Church in Quincy and was a member of the Knights of Columbus, former Quincy Council #96.

Beloved husband for 68 years of Alice J. (Olson) Hallisey. Devoted father of the late Karin J. Hallisey. The last of eight siblings, he is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to a charity of choice.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone has some suggestions to offer regarding your new project. You might find them helpful. Remember to avoid speculation and to stick with just the facts, Lamb. TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An old friend suddenly reappears. Whether this proves to be a boon or a bane in the Bovine's life depends on the reason for this surprising reappearance. Be cautious. GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Vital information finally emerges, allowing you to make that important personal decision. You can now move your focus to an upcoming professional development. CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might not like seeing so many on-the-job changes. But some of them could open new opportunities for the Moon Child's talents to shine to your best advantage.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An apparently solid-gold opportunity beckons the Lion. But check to see if all that dazzle isn't just a sprinkling of surface glitter. Check it out before making a commitment. VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A close friend could offer advice on how to handle a difficult family matter. But in the end, the decision has to be made based on what is best for you and those you love.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Family problems are best worked out with all those concerned contributing suggestions that will ease tensions. Stay with it until a workable solution is found.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Expect to hear more about an offer that has piqued your interest. You earn respect for insisting on solid facts, not just a fancy talk about potential opportunities.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) What seemed to be a reasonable workplace request might need to be defended. Don't fret. You have both the facts and a surprise ally on your side.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A bit of capriciousness might be just what you need. Plan to kick up your heels in a round of fun and games with family and friends this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Although some of your plans might have to be put on hold, things do begin to take a turn for the better by midweek. Your financial crunch also eases. PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your financial picture begins to brighten by week's end. There are also favorable changes in your personal life. Someone you care for has good news to report.

BORN THIS WEEK: You seek balance, but not at the expense of justice. You would make a fine judge.

19 Graduate Quincy YouthBuild/AmeriCorps Program

The Quincy YouthBuild / AmeriCorps Program, operated by Training Resources of America, Inc. (TRA), recently graduated 19 students at a ceremony held at Germantown Neighborhood Center, 333 Palmer St., Quincy.

The graduates, ages 17 to 25, include: Kristy Arrigal (19), Kelsey Fair (18), Gerald Fernandes (17), Thomas Finnegan (17), Maria Gomez (20), Dylan Handley (20), and Jake Peak (19) from Quincy; Luis Gonzalez (24), Marcus Jones (20), and Tahre Mims (20) from Boston; John Vibert (18) from Dorchester; Jonathan Camille (19) from Lawrence; Danielle Hinds (25) from Mattapan; Ishmial Armstrong (20), Corwin Etienne (23), and Yvens Roody Mayala (23) from Randolph; Al Hawes (19) and Paul Smollett (19) from Weymouth; and Tyriek Brown (19) from Worcester.

Quincy YouthBuild / AmeriCorps provides comprehensive training to young people ages 17 to 24 who meet low-income guidelines, are not in school, have not received a high school diploma or GED, and demonstrate a willingness to work hard for personal and community change.

Students receive instruction in GED preparation, self-esteem, life, leadership and work readiness skills, volunteer/community service opportunities, and construction skills training utilizing a community housing rehab or new construction project which helps create quality low-income housing in Quincy and surrounding towns. Extensive support services include counseling/case management, job development/placement assistance, as well as transition to higher education and follow-up services.

Most of all, the program offers opportunities for personal growth and development. As graduate Kelsey Fair says, "YouthBuild Quincy changed my life. I love the staff and the opportunities they gave me. I never thought I would earn a diploma or attend a graduation. This has been the best year of my life."

Through a partnership with Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, this year's class learned building and rehab skills by helping to convert a 2-family home located at 63 Lake St. in Weymouth to a one-family with handicap access that will be rented to a veteran and his/her family. They also participated in a new construction project located at 45 Winter Street in Quincy.

With support from the Corporation for National Community Service (CNCS) / Massachusetts Service Alliance, the program has also enabled the youth to participate in numerous community service projects, increasing their awareness of their civic responsibilities and empowering them to give back to the communities in which they live and work. It also enabled the young people to earn AmeriCorps education awards to help pay for college. Youth members were responsible for helping to recruit a total of 50 community volunteers who assisted the youth in a variety of community service projects for the Audubon Society, Prison Book Program, Saint John the Baptist Catholic Church, the Germantown Neighborhood Center and Food Pantry, Old Colony Hospice Walk, and the Martin Luther King Breakfast. The youth also participated in the annual YouthBuild State House Day as well as the YouthBuild Carpentry Challenge competition and basketball tournament.

Founded in 1975 and headquartered in Worcester, TRA has several training sites throughout Massachusetts. The Quincy site is located at 1458 Hancock Street, Suite 304. For more information, visit TRA's website: www.tra-inc.org.

Home Energy Assessment Presentation

John Sullivan, manager of Energy, Waste and Recycling at the City of Quincy Department of Public Works, will be at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St. on Wednesday, Sept. 26 at 10 am. to discuss the city's recent partnership with Next Step Living to encourage households in Quincy to have home energy assessments in order to access Mass Save incentives.

A primary strategy to achieve this goal is to encourage residents to upgrade the energy efficiency in their homes through weatherization and heating system replacements and renewable energy installations. In order to identify and prioritize these projects, as well as make the necessary work more affordable, the program will connect residents with FREE energy assessments and rebates through the Mass Save residential energy efficiency program.

Those interested in attending this event should call the Quincy Council on Aging at (617) 376-1506.

Bellotti: Courthouse Naming 'A Great Honor'

By SCOTT JACKSON

Speaking to a crowd of several hundred onlookers - including scores of federal, state, county, and city officials - former state Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General Frank Bellotti said he was truly honored to have a Quincy's district courthouse renamed for him because the city and court had been such an integral part of his life.

"It's truly a great court and therefore truly a great honor," Bellotti said. "Quincy and the Quincy District Court have always been a part of my political and legal life and I came back after every loss - '64, '66, and '70.

"When I was finally elected in 1974, I went to Boston. Having Quincy

Energy Cost Savings, Better Lighting Seen LED Street-Lights In Business Areas

All city-owned street-lights will be replaced with energy-efficient LED bulbs that will save thousands of dollars in energy costs and provide better lighting throughout Quincy's business districts, Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday.

The program starts this week beginning in Norfolk Downs and will continue to Wollaston Center and Quin-Remote Voting For City Council, Boards?

By SCOTT JACKSON

If members of the City Council have their way, members of the council and the city's boards and commissions could soon cast their votes through conference calls or video chats.

The state's open meeting law was amended last November, allowing for remote participation in public meetings. The law leaves it up to a community's chief executive - in Quincy's case Mayor Tom Koch - to allow for remote participation. And in February, Councilors Margaret Laforest and Doug Gutro introduced a resolve calling for the mayor to adopt the new law.

Laforest and Gutro used a meeting of the council's rules committee last week to make their case. Gutro explained that councilors, as part-time employees, are sometimes unable to attend meetings because of conflicts with their full-time work.

"We all have day jobs, some of us for our day jobs travel outside the city or outside the state," Gutro said. "Councillor Laforest suggested that we take advantage of a provision in the new open meeting law that would allow, if possible, for remote participation - either by audio or video, perhaps by Skype.

New Visitors' Center Film Spotlights Adams, City History

Full House At QHS Attends Premiere Of 'Enduring Legacy'

By KRIS KALABOKAS

History buffs filed into Quincy High School last Friday night to attend the premiere of the Adams National Historical Park's new visitor orientation film "Enduring Legacy" featuring the vocal talents of Tom Hanks, Laura Linney, Paul Giamatti, and Edward James Olmos.

"I'm so interested in the Adams chronicles," said Louise Dirksmeier of Braintree, who began to appreciate the Adamsses after viewing the wildly successful HBO miniseries "John Adams."

Before rolling the 25 minute film, which was sponsored by the City of Quincy, Eastern National, The National Park Service, and Harpers Ferry Center, attendees enjoyed champagne and hors d'oeuvres prepared by students in Quincy High's culinary program.

Caroline Keinath, Deputy Superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, welcomed the audience and reflected on the importance of premiering the film in "The City of Presidents."

"The city of Quincy is a very special place," she said, "not only because of the historical resources in the city but also because of the people, and we knew, both in the park service and Argentine films, that out of all the places we could premier this film, it was here in Quincy that we wanted to do it."

Laura Linney, who portrayed Abigail Adams in HBO's "John Adams," was the first to agree to participate in the making of the film due to Keinath's efforts.

"Peter Argentine, the producer/director, had some connections and he made some phone calls. We invited her to be a part of this film and to our great satisfaction and joy, Laura Linney signed on to be not only the narrator of the film, but also the voice of Abigail Adams," Keinath said.

Having enlisted the help of Linney, Keinath then went on to contact Hanks and Giamatti, who also took part in HBO's seven-part miniseries. Much to her astonishment, both actors agreed to participate.

"When you think about the Hollywood A-Listers who became involved in this film...it's an incredible testament to what the Adams story is about and really a testament to the good work the National Park Service has done," said Ben Adams, president of the Adams Memorial Society.

The short film focuses not only on the well known John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and their wives, but also on direct descendants Charles Francis Adams, Sr.; a lawyer, politician, writer, and diplomat, and Henry Adams; a journalist, historian, and novelist.

Recounted are incidents in which the Adamsses influenced the development of the still young United States such as the Amistad Case and the Boston Massacre, which stand in stark contrast with the portrayal of their humble, family-centered home life.

"This film will be viewed by thousands of visitors to Quincy and the Adams National Historical Park prior to their experience of exploring the real thing," said Adams National Historical Park Superintendent Marianne Peak. "It is a milestone for the Adams National Historical Park and an opportunity to share the remarkable life and times of the Adams family."

Argentine, who was made an honorary member of National Park Service park ranger staff, attributed his success in accurately portraying the lengthy history of the Adamsses to the support he received from Keinath, Peak, his crew, and members of the Park Service. "They just did a tremendous job," he said. "It was a true collaboration."

SAMUEL GOODYEAR -- who has portrayed John Adams for many years at the park and portrays him in the film -- displays his copy of the film's poster, on which he appears.

Focus On Decades-Old Policies, Regulations

Officials Welcome Civil Service Review Of Hiring Issues

City officials are welcoming a State Civil Service Commission decision to join the City's own ongoing effort to untangle a decades-old web of confusing policies and regulations related to the hiring and promotion of laborers.

Changes to Civil Service regulations left cities and towns to hire from lists that contain no information on qualifications or background, and relate only to the dates on which people applied for jobs. The lack of clarity extended to how promotions are decided based on job classifications that were nearly 30 years old.

The policy muddle has left cities and towns with a mixed bag of regulations, forcing them to either rely strictly on often-outdated lists or develop their own merit-based hiring practices outside of the confines of the lists.

"This is a statewide issue, and we are happy that the Civil Service Commission has decided to review these issues as they relate to Quincy and look forward to any guidance the Commission may have. We hope that the guidance provided by the Commission will also extend beyond Quincy for cities and towns across the Commonwealth which are dealing with these identical issues" said City Solicitor James Timmins.

The Civil Service decision to review the City's application list comes after a series of Commission decisions upholding the City's position in specific cases while pointing out the need for broader review. Those cases were related largely to promotions and job classifications, which is a list of labor job descriptions created in 1974.

These issues were deemed the top priority by

Solar Lights Slated For Adams Shore Library

Quincy's first solar powered lights will soon be installed at the Adams Shore library branch as part of a pilot program.

The city purchased four solar lights earlier this year at an approximate cost of $25,000, according to Elizabeth Manning of the Planning Department. The lights were paid for with money the city received from the U.S. Department of Energy as part of the 2009 American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, more commonly known as the stimulus.

Bids for the installation of the lights, also to be funded by stimulus money, went out last week. Manning said the city plans to have the lights installed within the next month.

The solar lights won't replace any light structures currently on location, instead they will augment the lighting on the property.

The lights will be installed in the back and front of the building, two on each side.

The grant the city received only provided enough money for the purchase and installation of the four new lights. But if the pilot program at the Adams Shore library goes well enough, the city would consider purchasing additional solar powered lights for elsewhere in the city.

"We're just going to use it as a way to gauge the future and whether we'd use it," Manning said.

The solar panels themselves have a lifespan of 20-25 years. The lamps use LED technology, and are expected to last 15 years before needing to be replaced. Batteries, which store the power generated by the panel for use at night, last between five and seven years. They're replaceable at a cost of $350 each.

Koch Quincy Chamber Breakfast Speaker Oct. 3

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce will begin its Breakfast Series Wednesday, Oct. 3 from 8 to 9:30 a.m. at the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St.

The keynote speaker will be Mayor Thomas P. Koch. Mayor Koch will provide an update of the many projects that are currently underway in the City.

The cost is $25 for Quincy Chamber members and $35 for non-members and includes a full breakfast.

RSVP in advance by calling the Quincy Chamber at (617) 471-1700.

be so much a part of my life and even though I grew up in Boston it seemed a foreign land. But I always returned to Quincy."

The court, where Bellotti tried his first case back in 1953, was formally renamed the Francis X. Bellotti courthouse at an hour-long ceremony Sunday at noon. Bellotti became only the second person in Massachusetts history to have a state court building named after him; a courthouse in Boston is named for Edward Brooke, the first popularly elected African American senator in U.S. history. Bellotti said having a courthouse bear his name, especially Quincy's court, was the highest honor he could imagine.

"I can't imagine anyone receiving an honor that is more personal than this is to me," Bellotti said. "We've come full circle, it all began in Quincy for me so many years ago, so it's fitting that it end here on this wonderful September Sunday."

The 89-year-old Bellotti served as lieutenant governor from 1963-1965 and as attorney general from 1975-1987. He hasn't served in public office since, though he co-founded Quincy-based Arbella Insurance in 1988. He thanked the crowd of more than 500 for attending and helping make the day so special.

"When you're on top, you're in office and you have all of that institutional power it's very difficult to tell your friends from your enemies - they look so much alike," Bellotti said. "When you're out of office for 25 years, and you have absolutely no power institutionally or otherwise, it's very easy. You just look around; the ones you see will be your friends."

"As I look around here, and I see all you - some new, some old - who could've been so many other places today but you came here and helped make...for my family and for me, a truly wonderful and memorable day."

David Souter, a former U.S. Supreme Court associate justice and a friend of Bellotti, was the keynote speaker Sunday. Souter had served as New Hampshire's attorney general from 1976-1978, succeeding his boss Warren Rudman. Souter said Rudman admired Bellotti, and it didn't take long for Souter to admire Bellotti as well.

"He thought the world of Frank Bellotti," Souter said of Rudman. "When I succeeded Warren I had never met Frank but because I knew how Warren felt I paid attention. After I had seen Frank a few times at national meetings of states attorneys general, after we had things to do together as AGs of neighboring states do, I came to understand why Warren Rudman admired Frank Bellotti's mind and his guts and his heart."

A native of Melrose, Souter told the crowd an anecdote about his mother's respect for Bellotti. Before Bellotti left his post as attorney general, his counterparts in neighboring states organized a retirement dinner. Souter, then a judge on New Hampshire's supreme court, was invited to the dinner, making his mother proud.

"I used to have dinner at least once a week with my mother and the week before the gathering for Frank I told her where I was going to be," Souter said. "She said she was proud to have a son who would be in that kind of company."

Norfolk County Sheriff Mike Bellotti, one of the 12 children Frank Bellotti and his wife Maggie raised, brought some humor to the ceremony. Quoting Joe Biden, he called the event a "big deal," and joked that his brother Peter was especially happy about the renaming.

"Obviously he (Frank Bellotti) is the happiest person here today," Sheriff Bellotti said. "The second happiest is my brother Peter whose law office is about two nine irons away from here. He's going to hang around here every Monday - 'how you doing? That's my father, good to see you' - I may even take the bar [exam] as a result."

On a serious note, the younger Bellotti talked about his father's upbringing in Boston during the Great Depression.

"The story of Frank Bellotti is the story of an American experience," Mike Bellotti said. "The only child of an Italian immigrant, Peter Bellotti, who fought in World War I. My dad's father was hospitalized from the time dad was six months old. He died when my dad was 16 years old. He grew up in the Great Depression, raised by his mother Jenny... like so many in this country at that time, they began with so little while at the same time had great expectations for the future."

House Majority Leader Ron Mariano served as master of ceremonies Sunday. During the Legislature's budget process, Mariano filed an amendment calling for the court to be renamed. He did so because Bellotti was a longtime mentor to him and other Quincy leaders.

"Frank Bellotti is a legend of Quincy and Massachusetts politics," Mariano said. "A distinguished attorney and public servant, a longtime personal friend and mentor. Frank has been a friend and mentor, not only to me, but to generations of public servants from the city of Quincy."

Mariano also read a letter to Bellotti from former Gov. Bill Weld. Weld, a Republican, ran against Bellotti for attorney general in 1978 and would later serve as U.S. attorney for Massachusetts during the 1980s. Weld had planned on attending the ceremony, but was forced to attend a business meeting in Texas instead.

"Despite being conflicted out on this particular day I am totally psyched by the wonderful occasion," Weld wrote. "I have, as you know, followed your extraordinary career, and life, and children for a long time. In fact, I contributed to your legend through my strenuous efforts to unseat you in 1978."

"It is not too much to say this happening warms my heart. You have been the most extraordinary public servant in Massachusetts for more than a generation. Please accept my sincere congratulations on this richly deserved honor."

Mayor Tom Koch said the amendment was the "finest piece of legislation" Mariano filed. The mayor also congratulated Bellotti on behalf of Quincy's residents.

"Frank Bellotti as you know is a legend, a skilled attorney, dedicated public servant, a loyal husband, devoted father and grandfather, mentor to so many," Koch said. "This is truly fitting. On behalf of the citizens of Quincy we say 'congratulations Frank, long overdue.'"

Four state judges all took part in the ceremony. Mark Coven, presiding justice at the Quincy courthouse, outlined the reasons why it was appropriate that the courthouse would be renamed.

"First, as one of the pre-eminent trial attorneys in the state of Massachusetts, he tried his first case at Quincy District Court. Second, he has helped thousands - if not tens of thousands - of people in both his public and private positions. And third, he has done so much to advance the issues of justice in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," Coven said. "I am both honored and humbled to serve as a justice in the Francis X. Bellotti courthouse."

Lynda Connolly, chief justice of Massachusetts District Courts, thanked Bellotti for setting an example for all attorneys in the state.

"I want to thank you Frank for setting an example of what it means to be a lawyer in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, for bringing integrity to public service, and what it means to be real, human, and kind," Connolly said.

The other two state judges to speak both worked under Bellotti in the attorney general's office. Robert Mulligan, chief justice of the Massachusetts trial court, talked about Bellotti's persistence. He told the crowd how Bellotti, a frogman during World War II, learned to perform high dives while stationed in Hawaii after the war.

"To the daily delight of Navy officers sitting around a pool drinking martinis and gin and tonics, Frank performed one belly flop after another," Mulligan said. "After a few days he had to wear a t-shirt, not for sun protection, but to soften the slap of the water against his abdomen."

"Of course Frank persisted, and after some weeks he had mastered several difficult high dives. His pool-side colleagues on the other hand, after the same time period, had only their olive pits and lime wedges to count as their accomplishments."

Barbara Rouse, the chief justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court, also served under Bellotti as an assistant attorney general. During her speech, she explained how he expanded the position from its more traditional role of serving as the government's lawyer.

"Frank envisioned a larger, more proactive role for the office, he wanted to take affirmative action on issues related to the environment, utility regulation, consumer affairs, civil rights, women's rights," Rouse said. "Frank wanted all of his assistants to be fully committed to the work of the office so he abolished part time assistants. He set the bar for public service very high."

Norfolk County Commissioners Chairman Fran O'Brien and Rev. James Hawker of Our Lady Parish in Waltham also spoke Sunday. After Souter's remarks and before Mike and then Frank Bellotti spoke, all the speakers joined with Frank and Maggie Bellotti to unveil a sign on the courthouse on the sidewalk.

The ceremony started with a presentation of colors by an honor guard consisting of officers from the Norfolk County Sheriff's office, the state police, Quincy Police, and other police from other communities in the county. They carried a flag flown over the U.S. Capitol by U.S. Rep. Steve Lynch.

After the posting of colors, the United States Navy Band, Northeast performed the national anthem, which was sung by Frank and Maggie Bellotti's granddaughter Margarita Flaherty. After the ceremony Mariano led the crowd in a sing-along of "God Bless America," accompanied by the Navy band.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1933 real photo postcard reproduction is a view of New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad rear-end collision. It happened just south of the Quincy Shore Drive Bridge in Atlantic in the early morning of Sept. 29th. The buildings at the top of the picture are on Billings Street. There were four railroad tracks along here allowing for express non-stop service to and from Boston on the center two tracks. This accident occurred on the right center track just a few hundred feet north of the Atlantic depot. The Neponset River railroad bridge had been raised to allow the passage of a schooner delivering lumber to the Barney & Carey yard in Milton. These two express trains were filled with commuters to Boston and were not scheduled to stop at Atlantic. The first on the left, which was stopped for the open bridge, was from Wollaston and the second on the right had just departed from Norfolk Downs. The crew of the Norfolk Downs train missed the visual red block signal to stop and rear-ended the Wollaston train. The wooden passenger cars were telescoped and splintered. Over 100 passengers were injured, many seriously. The fireman in the right engine died that day of his injuries. The blame was immediately placed on the crew of the Norfolk Downs express. Today's computer controlled signal and switching systems help prevent these types of accidents. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Sen. Keenan welcomes any resident with a question or comment about state government to stop by and chat.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 27, 1540, in Rome, the Society of Jesus receives its charter from Pope Paul III. The Jesuit order played an important role in the Counter-Reformation and eventually succeeded in converting millions around the world to Catholicism.

• On Oct. 2, 1780, 31-year-old British Major John Andre is hanged as a spy by U.S. military forces. When Andre, an accomplice of Benedict Arnold, was captured on Sept. 23, incriminating papers were found in his boot. The papers revealed that U.S. General Benedict Arnold, commander of West Point, had offered to surrender the strategic Hudson River fort to the British for a bribe of 20,000 pounds.

• On Oct. 1, 1908, the first production Model T Ford is completed in Detroit. It had a 22 horsepower, four-cylinder engine, could go as fast as 40 mph and could run on gasoline or hemp-based fuel.

• On Sept. 28, 1941, the Boston Red Sox's Ted Williams plays a double-header against the Philadelphia Athletics on the last day of the regular season and gets six hits in eight trips to the plate, boosting his batting average to .406.

• On Sept. 30, 1954, the USS Nautilus, the world's first nuclear submarine, is commissioned by the U.S. Navy. It first ran under nuclear power on the morning of Jan. 17, 1955. The Nautilus could remain submerged for almost unlimited periods because its atomic engine needed no air and only a very small quantity of nuclear fuel.

• On Sept. 29, 1988, Stacy Allison of Portland, Ore., becomes the first American woman to reach the summit of Mount Everest, which at 29,035 feet above sea level is the highest point on earth. About two dozen climbers died in attempts to reach the top of Everest in the 20th century.

• On Oct. 3, 1995, at the end of a sensational trial, former football star O.J. Simpson is acquitted of the brutal 1994 double murder of his estranged wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman. A majority of African Americans believed Simpson to be innocent of the crime, while white America was confident of his guilt.

Bainbridge Commissioning Marked With Parade

The commissioning of the Fore River designed and built Bainbridge was marked in the city this week by a parade and a series of receptions by city and state officials.

An estimated 28,000 people watched the Navy's Destroyer parade down Hancock St., celebrating the 60th anniversary of the ship type known as the destroyer. The Bainbridge was the world's first nuclear-powered guided missile frigate.

There were 60 bands in the parade, but most attention was focused on police detective Leo Antonelli who recently shot down a holdup man at the South Shore National Bank.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE CALLS FOR NEW TECHNICAL SCHOOL

For the third year in a row the advisory committee of the Quincy Trade School called on the school committee to build a new technical school. D. Foster Taylor was committee chairman with trade school director Maurice Daly as secretary.

Noting the past appeals for a new school, Daly said that "action was needed now." He said that with the recent developments in technical employment the need was never greater.

BURKE URGES 'DONOVAN-MELE' DAY

City Councillor George Burke submitted a resolve in the council, calling for Donovan-Mele Day to honor two city residents for their success this season in major league baseball.

Dick Donovan pitched for the Indians while Sam Mele's managing for the Minnesota Twins brought the team from seventh to second place. (Editor's note: Mele would manage Minnesota to the American Legion pennant in 1965. It was the team's first Pennant since 1933 when they were known as the Washington Senators. Mele was named Associated Press AL Manager of the Year. The Twins would fall to the L.A. Dodgers in the World Series in seven games.)

QUINCY-ISMS

One of the city's oldest residents died this week at age 101. Mrs. Yule of Franklin St. (originally from Scotland) operated with her husband the Yule Hotel in Quincy Point for shipyard workers. She was the first woman in the city to own an automobile. She was active in the Quincy Point Congregational Church and never missed voting in 60 years... Julie's Chicken 'Midlin

It was a family reunion and there were at least 50 entrees, salads, quiches and deserts.

And so it was when I stood in the long line and waited to view what was on the huge long buffet table. You can just taste just so much, but one of the dishes caught my eye.

I put just a little on the side with a couple of other foods, and when I went to taste it, I knew I had to find out who brought it and what it was.

It didn't take me long to find out it was my cousin Julie and when she told me how simple it was to make, I knew it would be a perfect recipe to try.

It's made with chicken, and I usually do not use canned soups, but I have made an exception for today's recipe. Julie said the name of the dish is Chicken 'Midlin named for a town called Midland.

CHICKEN 'MIDLIN

1 pound chicken tenders (cut in halves)

1 can of cream of chicken soup (undiluted)

Stuffing-either with stove top or corn bread (she used half and half)

Salt and pepper to taste

Slices of mozzarella cheese for topping

First prepare the stuffing according to directions. I usually begin by sautéing onions and celery with the stuffing mix, but anyway you prefer is fine. Set aside.

Butter a baking dish, salt and pepper the chicken and lay the chicken across the dish. Mix the chicken soup with a fork so it won't be as thick. Then brush the soup over the chicken. Add the stuffing over that, and then top it with the mozzarella cheese.

Bake uncovered in a 350-degree oven for about 40 minutes until done. If you make this ahead of time, cover with aluminum foil, and then when your reheat it, keep it uncovered. Cranberry sauce goes well with this.

Creamy Grape Nut Pudding

Through the years, I have made grape nut custard pudding, always a family favorite and one I order for dessert when I dine out.

Recently I was flipping through a cookbook and found this recipe for a different way to prepare the pudding. It contained a few more grape nuts which I enjoy even as a cereal, plus one more egg.

The result was a creamier and more substantial consistency.

GRAPE NUT CUSTARD PUDDING

1 cup sugar

1 tablespoon flour

6 tablespoons grape nuts

3 eggs

2 cups milk

2 tablespoons melted butter

In a bowl, mix the sugar, flour, and grape nuts together. Stir in the melted butter. Stir in the eggs one at a time. Slowly stir in the milk until well blended.

Pour into an 11 x 2 1/4 well buttered or sprayed baking dish.

Bake in a 375-degree oven for one hour. Check if done by inserting knife in the center or until golden brown on top.

October Library Events For Children

By JULIE RINES

Thomas Crane

Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library will host the following children's events during October.

Saturday Fun for Little Ones with Nicola McEldowney

On Saturday, Oct. 6th at 10 a.m. join Puppeteer Nicola McEldowney at the Main Library for a very special puppet show of Just So Stories. This program is for children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult. No registration is required. This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Storytime with Cheryl

Join storyteller Cheryl Dunford for a family storytime full of stories, songs, rhymes and more for children ages 2-5 accompanied by an adult on Saturday, Oct. 13th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library. Join in for some fun and learn something new, maybe even a song or two in Chinese. No registration required. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Mad Science - Life in the Sea

In this Mad Science® of Greater Boston workshop, children age 4-8 will discover ocean habitats by experimenting with seawater and its unique properties. They will identify creatures that inhabit the oceans and some characteristics that make them able to live a watery life.

This workshop provides an understanding of processes at work in the ocean such as food webs and adaptations, and participants will make their own Cartesian Divers to continue underwater explorations at home.

The workshop will be held Saturday, Oct. 20th at 10 a.m. at the Main Library. Registration is required.

Beginning Monday, Oct. 1st, register online, in person or by calling 617-376-2411. Due to space limitations, this program is limited to Quincy residents. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Tenth Annual Pumpkin Contest

Participate in the 10th Annual Great Pumpkin Character Contest! At home, decorate a small pumpkin as your favorite book character and bring the decorated pumpkin to the Main Library Children's Room for display. For more details, ask a librarian or check our website.

Drop off pumpkins Monday, Oct. 15 through Monday, Oct. 22nd. Prizes will be awarded on Friday Oct. 26th. The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

THE RADIANT LOOK

By combining the sophisticated shape of an emerald-cut diamond with the brilliance of a round-cut diamond, a radiant-cut diamond provides the best characteristics of both. The traditional step-cut design of an emerald-cut diamond may appear lackluster to some, but a radiant-cut diamond puts its 70 facets to use to create great sparkle. Whereas the emerald cut displays long, trim lines, the radiant cut exhibits faceted fire, with its "kaleidoscopic" effect producing more "points of light" reflected within the diamond. Radiant-cut diamonds are also less likely to show internal flaws, although the "Four C's" of diamond buying (Carat, Cut, Color, and Clarity) still apply.

Radiant-cut diamonds are currently very popular choices for engagement rings, either as solitaires or with accent stones. Radiant cut diamond rings are a brilliant selection for those who want a chic combination of the brilliant and emerald cuts. It presents the same fire and shine as a round brilliant, except that it is rectangular or square. Browse our diamond jewelry selection located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center or contact our store at 617-773-3636. Symbolize your lasting love and indulge her in dazzling jewelry at fantastic prices!

Funeral Services Saturday For Motorcycle Accident Victims Thomas And Ethan Coffey

Combined funeral services for Thomas R. "TR" Coffey, age 40, of Quincy, formerly of Boston and Newark, OH, and his young son, Ethan Coffey, age 8, will be held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mr. Coffey and his son died in a motorcycle accident Sept. 22.

Beloved husband of 16 years and son of Dawn M. Querns of Quincy and loving father and big brother of Charlie Coffey of Quincy.

They are survived by mother and grandmother Kathleen Carpenter and her husband Glenn Carpenter of Newark, OH; father and grandfather Thomas Coffey of Greenwood, SC; sisters and aunts Kim Ladzinske of Atlanta, GA and Kelley Hackney of Newark, OH; grandmother and great-grandmother Joanne "Sissy" Logan of Newark, OH; parents-in-law and grandparents Jerome "Papa" and Phyllis "Mimi" Querns of Rochester, MI and Mary and Mike Metzger of Groton, MA; and grandparents-in-law and great-grandparents Jack and Margaret Cullison of Warsaw, OH.

They are also survived by many aunts, uncles, cousins, family and friends in the Boston area, Ohio, Michigan and Canada.

Mr. Coffey was a stay-at-home dad for Ethan's first nine months of life. He was a patient father who enjoyed playing with his boys and making them the center of his life.

A graduate of Massachusetts College of Art and Design (2004), Mr. Coffey was passionate about his work. He was both creative and technical as a User Experience Architect and Product Designer. He also served active duty for his country in the U.S. Army and was honorably discharged (2000) as a Sergeant E5 Infantry Squad Leader. He was strong, handsome, intelligent, confident and adventurous.

Ethan was the type of boy who lit up a room and became the center of attention due to his many interests and passions. An exceptionally creative and inquisitive child, he loved gadgets, technology, and tinkering to understand how things worked.

His brother Charlie was his best friend as there was only a 20-month age difference between them. Like his Dad, Ethan enjoyed video games, riding bikes, making movies, building with Legos, reading and his dogs.

Ethan had just started third grade at Merrymount School in Quincy and had many friends. He was a beautiful and loving young boy.

A joint visitation for Mr. Coffey and Ethan will be held Friday from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Donations in memory of Mr. Coffey and Ethan can be made to the Ethan Coffey Memorial Fund, c/o Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 15 Beach St., Quincy MA 02170.

Council To Review Meeting Minutes

The City Council will now start each meeting by reviewing and approving the minutes from the preceding meeting.

The change in council rules was requested by Councillor Doug Gutro. At Monday's council meeting, he explained that the council hasn't lived up to the spirit of the state's Open Meeting Law because the meeting minutes weren't being approved.

"The single most important aspect of the law in my judgment was what transpired at the meetings, and that's putting together timely, accurate, accessible meeting minutes for the City Council," Gutro said. "We have not lived up to the spirit of the open meeting law."

Gutro first discussed the change during a meeting of the council's rules committee last week. During that meeting, he said the issue came to his attention when he learned that the council's minutes had been posted on the city's website - quincy.ma.gov - without any review from the council itself.

At the rules committee meeting, he proposed two changes to council rules. The first requires that the council's meeting order be altered to allow approval of minutes immediately after the Pledge of Allegiance and before the council takes up that night's agenda.

The second rule change was made to require that each meeting's minutes and agenda be posted online.

They've been posted online for several years starting with the initiative of then-Council President Kevin Coughlin, but Gutro wanted to ensure that they continue to be there in the future. The Open Meeting Law doesn't require they be posted online, just that they be available at the City Clerk's office.

The changes were approved by a 4-0 vote of the rules committee last Wednesday and then unanimously approved by the full council Monday night. Other boards in the city, including the School Committee and the Licensing Board, have already been approving meeting minutes at subsequent meetings.

Quincy Couple On Mission For Kilroy Postage Stamp

Famed WWII Figure And 'Kilroy Was Here' Message Would Go World-Wide Again

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy resident Frank Hogan remembers seeing "Kilroy is here" drawn on ships growing up in the British port city of Liverpool. Kilroy kept popping up as Hogan traveled around the world in the 1960s and 1970s.

"I'd seen him in Gibraltar, I saw him in a tin hut in North Africa...I'd seen him up in Stavanger, Norway," Hogan said. "When you're around seaports or places that are out of the way, over the years, I've seen a good collection of Kilroys."

Hogan and his wife Kathy moved to Quincy in 1977. One night that year, Frank was driving along Willard Street when he noticed a car with a license plate that read "Kilroy" pull into an auto shop. Frank followed the car, and at first joked about Kilroy being from Liverpool. But the driver explained that Kilroy was a Quincy creation, prompting Frank and Kathy to do more research. They first turned to Yankee Magazine, which once did a story on Kilroy's origin.

"Yankee Magazine had put together a collection of stories that they had printed on World War I and World War II and I had given that to my dad as a gift because he was a history teacher," Kathy said. "They had a story they had published years before about the origin of 'Kilroy was here' - great story about it."

The magazine feature explained how Fore River Shipyard worker James J. Kilroy started scrawling "Kilroy was here" on walls after he had checked for rivets; riveters were paid per hole filled and were sometimes known to erase checkmarks so they could be paid extra. Interestingly enough, the face that's associated with Kilroy wasn't drawn by the inspector, it was likely based on a British character named Chad.

"We picked up the Yankee Magazine and lo and behold there was a story (on Kilroy) that told it as we know today that he was inspector," Frank said. "That was it, I was hooked."

Now, the Hogans are pushing to have Kilroy put on stamps. The idea came to them back in 2005. That year, the USS Salem, Discover Quincy and, The Sun co-hosted a contest to find best picture of Kilroy taken from places around the world. Also that year, the US Postal Service began releasing WWII stamps.

"We had the competition and about seven years ago they started putting World War II stamps out," Frank said. "We thought 'wouldn't that be a great stamp?' It's ideal, [Kilroy] crosses all the different wars. We just thought it would make a great stamp."

The pair soon teamed up with Florida resident Patrick Tillery. A veteran of the Korean War, Tillery owns and operates kilroywashere.org. The website includes a variety of information on Kilroy, including alternate origin stories as well as sightings from places around the world and in popular television shows and movies like Seinfeld and Patton, respectively.

In the time the Hogans have been promoting putting Kilroy on a stamp, Frank said he often met with veterans of WWII who liked the idea. But tragically many of them died before a stamp was made.

"About two years ago we bumped into a friend of ours and her father had been in World War II and we promised we'd get a stamp because he was a big fan of Kilroy and she said 'you kind of let me down,' jokingly," Frank said. "But I felt it. We've had that happen to us 10-15 times."

To help expedite the process, Tillery launched a petition to put Kilroy on stamps online at Change.org - it can be found by searching the site for Kilroy or by clicking a link at kilroywashere.org. So far more than 230 people have signed the petition, but the Hogans are hoping to get a million signatures before presenting it to the president. Frank, who recently became a U.S. citizen, said the petition is a great way for citizens to get involved in government.

"I've been here 40 years and I just became a citizen and I've always known citizens should have responsibilities," Frank said. "This could be a good way of getting [people] who love computers and love their Facebooks, getting them involved in the community and in the country."

Kathy's father was a teacher, and she spent a dozen years teaching English to recent immigrants in Chinatown. She believes that teachers should encourage students to sign the petition - change.org doesn't have age requirements for signatories - and use the opportunity to teach children about Kilroy.

The Hogans have also won the support of U.S. Rep. Stephen Lynch, the senior Democrat on the House subcommittee on Federal Workforce, U.S. Postal Service and Labor Policy. During an Independence Day celebration this year, Kathy met Lynch, a former ironworker who once worked at the Fore River Shipyard. She talked to him about the idea of putting Kilroy on stamps, and afterwards the congressman decided to write a letter about it to Postmaster General Patrick R. Donahoe.

"We're very happy with what Lynch is doing," Frank said. "Lynch is gung-ho about it."

While the postmaster general doesn't select what appears on stamps - that job is left to the 12-member Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee - Frank said getting the postmaster general to back the idea would practically guarantee that Kilroy could begin appearing on stamps sent around the world.

Housing Authority Renewing Permits, Enhancing Security

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Several motions concerning structural and security renovations were approved at the Quincy Housing Authority meeting Sept. 19.

According to Executive Director Joseph MacRitchie, the board was unaware of inspection regulations dictated by the state building code requiring a thorough survey be performed every five years of large, high-rise apartment complexes for the reinstatement of occupancy permits.

"It is a requirement of the state building code that buildings be inspected for occupancy and occupancy permits be renewed every five years for large apartment buildings and, of course, these buildings have gone 40 years without being reinspected," MacRitchie said.

The board was informed of the regulations after receiving a notice from the city dictating they take action in ensuring that the QHA properties, which were built in the early 1970s, be in compliance with fire and tenant safety standards.

"It is a good safety measure to have an updated occupancy permit like we're supposed to," said MacRitchie. "We didn't know anything about this provision in the state building code."

So far, Drohan Apartments and Pagnano Towers have been inspected and given occupancy permits. O'Brien Towers has been inspected; however, maintenance crews must first address issues regarding smoke hatches on the roof of the complex before a permit can be granted. Tobin Towers is scheduled for inspection in the near future.

Once issued, occupancy permits will be displayed in easily accessible, building common areas.

The QHA will also be enhancing security in all of its properties through the installation of indoor and outdoor surveillance cameras and additional outdoor lighting.

A grant contributed by the Community Preservation Committee totaling $125,000 will supplement part of the estimated $345,000 needed to acquire the necessary supplies and cover the cost of labor. MacRitchie has appealed to the committee requesting a more substantial grant; however, no formal decision has been made.

MacRitchie said the total cost of the project may be offset by rebates offered by local utility companies, yet he is unsure as to whether those rebates would only be applicable toward the cost of equipment and not labor fees.

A start date has not yet been determined for the project, yet it is anticipated that installation of the lighting and security cameras will take, in total, two to five months.

The evening's discussion briefly focused on the replacement of the elevator at Drohan Apartments; a complex which caters to the disabled and elderly.

To facilitate those using walkers and wheelchairs, four chair lifts have been installed, and a laborer has been hired to assist residents in operating the lifts. The laborer has been equipped with a cellular phone and all tenants have been given his number and the hours in which he will be on the premises.

MacRitchie said he hopes to speed up the two-to-three-month replacement process.

"One of the things we might like to do is ask the contractor who is doing the elevator if there's anything that can be done to speed up the project," he said. "If the contractor comes back and there's something that can be done...we certainly want to consider that."

Police R.A.D. Course For Women

The Quincy R.A.D. (Rape Aggression Defense) program for women will be held at the Germantown Neighborhood Center, 366 Palmer St., Quincy, beginning Oct. 2.

Classes will be held from 6 to 8:30 p.m. on four consecutive Tuesday evenings: Oct. 2, 9, 16 and 23.

Females from 16 years of age and older are invited to take part in the program.

Taught by certified Quincy Police Officers, the R.A.D. system is a comprehensive women-only course that begins with awareness, prevention, risk reduction and risk avoidance, while progressing to the basics of hands-on defense training. Each student also receives a workbook/reference manual.

For registration information, call 617-376-1384.

AAA: Gas Prices Down Seven Cents, First Drop In Prices Since July

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down seven cents this week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's Sept. 24th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.839 per gallon, seven cents lower than last week. Prices locally are up 10 cents over the past month.

The current price is three cents above the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.80. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.55.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 42 cents, from a low of $3.57 to a high of $3.99. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Find the most up-to-date local gas prices with the AAA Fuel Finder by logging onto AAA.com and clicking on Gas Saving Tips & Tools. AAA members can also obtain a copy of the Gas Watcher's Guide at their local AAA Southern New England office.

Fall Automotive Care

Reducing Fuel Consumption With Today's Vehicles

By JOHN PAUL

No, the car didn't stall it is suppose to do that.

Reducing fuel consumption with today's vehicles can be done in many ways. Reducing weight of a vehicle and altering the overall aerodynamics are just two of the many methods used to improve fuel efficiency.

One of the most promising newer technologies is referred to as "start-stop" systems. These systems will stop the vehicle's engine when the car comes to a stop. This will help improve fuel economy and lower vehicle emissions. Although early versions date back to cars sold in Europe in the 1980's I experienced the first start-stop system in a Japanese market Prius hybrid.

As I was road testing this 1997 "car of the future" one of the oddest features was that as I came to a stop the car shut off—it felt like it stalled. What was happening was the gasoline engine would shut off to save fuel. In the case of this car, features such as power steering and air conditioning were handled by the battery.

Fast forward to 2012 and these systems are appearing on many makes and models. In fact research has shown that by 2020 we may see one-third of vehicles worldwide having this technology. This could translate into a saving of 15 million gallons of oil per year. In addition this will also translate into 10-15 percent reduction in carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions on the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) fuel economy test cycle.

While these benefits are less than those offered by full-hybrid or electric vehicles, stop-start systems are much less costly since the technology is quite different. In a full hybrid like a Ford Fusion the power to start the engine comes from the motor generator. This motor could be integrated into the flywheel as used in the Honda Insight or a separate larger electric motor such as the Fusion or Toyota Prius all powered by a very large battery pack. In a pure start-stop system, the operation is accomplished with a large starter motor. In the case of General Motors e-Assist, the electric motor mounts to the engine about where a conventional alternator would reside. In this case there is a wide pulley that connects to the engine that when required will restart the gasoline engine. When the car is being driven the e-Assist motor will act as a conventional generator to recharge the somewhat oversized battery necessary to make it all work.

My experience in a Buick with e-Assist was the system worked quite well. Once the car was warmed up when I came to a stop light the engine would shut down. As soon as I took my foot of the brake to start off and actually before I could even step on the accelerator the engine would start up, all without any fuss. Today we see start-stop systems in such high end cars as Porsche to entry level cars such as the Kia Rio.

One estimate is that automakers can add stop-start equipment to a conventional internal combustion engines for as little as $500. As these systems continue to come down in price and become more popular, soon the only sound we may hear at busy intersections will be the sound pedestrians, nature and slightly quieter life.

Ask The Car Doctor With AAA's John Paul

Question: The last time my 2007 Ford Freestar went for normal maintenance, it was suggested I replace the power steering pump. I did have the pump replaced, but when I drove home the power steering was "whining". I returned to the garage and they told me it was air in the system and it should go away in about 500 miles. What is wrong; was I scammed?

Answer: Ford vehicles have some of the most difficult power steering systems to "bleed" air from. In most cases bleeding a power steering system doesn't require much more than allowing the engine to run with the power steering cap off and turning the steering wheel back and forth. On difficult vehicles, I have seen technicians use a vacuum pump to draw air out of the system.

Q. I have a 2007 Chrysler PT Cruiser that has alloy wheels. These wheels cause the tires to leak a little air every week. In addition to the leaks over time, they have started to look shabby. Short of replacing the alloy wheels with steel wheels and hubcaps, is there someplace I can bring the car to get the wheels refurbished?

A. A quick check on the internet lists several locations that can repair and refinish the wheels on your car. The cost of refinishing, however, may have you looking at the steel wheel alternative. The average price that I saw listed was $165.00 per wheel. I have seen some success with a product called "Slime" it is intended as a flat tire repair but works well to seal porous wheels.

Q. My Jeep is giving me fits. It barely kicks over; I have replaced the battery, starter and had a complete tune-up. What could be wrong?

A. The best method to diagnose this problem is to leave it overnight with a repair garage so they can experience the hard starting problem. A very common problem is a faulty crankshaft sensor. If this sensor is failing, the engine will crank over but not "catch." Part of the problem with diagnosis may be the description of the problem. "Barely kicking-over" to me describes a battery or starter problem, but to someone else it could describe a failure to "fire up".

South Cove Community Center Celebrates 40th Anniversary

South Cove Community Health Center, with two clinics in North Quincy, one of which is slated to open in October, recently celebrated its 40th Anniversary at the JFK Library and Museum.

Over 500 guests attended the gala, some of who traveled from as far as the West Coast to join the grand celebration.

Mayor Thomas Koch, state Rep. Tackey Chan, state Rep. Aaron Michlewitz, Dr. Kevin Tabb, President and CEO of BIDMC and Eric Beyer, President and CEO of Tufts Medical Center were among the guests.

The evening's special guest speakers were John Auerbach, Commissioner of Massachusetts Department of Public Health and Dr. Carl Isihara, Chairman of Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates Board of Trustees.

Auerbach commended South Cove for its 40 years of exemplary service to the communities and members of the Commonwealth. On behalf of the Commonwealth, Auerbach presented South Cove Board President Dr. Stephen Tang with a plaque recognizing the health center's contributions over the past four decades.

Dr. Isihara, drawing his own personal immigrant experience, said the importance of embracing diversity and accepting differences. In the ever-changing health-care industry, Dr. Isihara said the biggest challenge remains providing the best possible quality of care with limited resources.

The highlight of the evening was when the honorees, Dr. Herman "Harry" Lee and Dr. Stephen Tang looked on proudly as Dr. Lee's two sons and Dr. Tang's two daughters introduced their respective father as the recipients of the SCCHC 40th Anniversary Humanitarian Award.

As the health center celebrated 40 years of history and took a stroll down the memory lane at its humble beginning back in 1972, it is also looking forward to the future.

Beginning its 41st year, South Cove Community Health Center Executive Director Eugene Welch vowed to continue the mission of serving the underserved with the high quality of care that is affordable and accessible to all.

HoJo's Hotel Proposed For Presidents' City Inn

said the idea is to convert the building from a motel to a hotel.

"All the doors along the parking lot side, with the exception of keyed entranceways, will be closed and the motel will be converted into a hotel-type setting where all the visitors enter into a lobby setting where they'll check in," Fleming explained.

The plan also calls for the creation of an office space and dining area for guests. After the renovations, the hotel would be rebranded as a Howard Johnson's; the hotel chain that traces its routes to a drugstore in nearby Wollaston. Fleming explained that as a Howard Johnson's hotel, it would be an economy class hotel catered towards families.

"Howard Johnson's, which began franchising back in 1954 now has approximately 460 hotels in North America, Latin America, Asia, and other international markets," Fleming said. "It serves a mid scale and economy scale segment of the population and it targets families and leisurely travelers which will rarely service the city of Quincy at that location."

Once renovated, the hotel would have 59 rooms compared to the 37 it has now. Its square footage would more than double from 13,500 square feet to about 32,000 square feet, largely because of the new hallway. The parking lot would be reconfigured and have 65 spaces, and a new drainage system with the ability to hold 5,000 cubic feet of water underneath the lot would be installed.

The building is located next to the future Central Middle School. Because of that, Fleming said he reached out to the School Committee for their opinion. According to him, committee members were happy about the proposal.

"They expressed excitement about the fact that this would be an entirely renovated structure and that it would be a nice, new, clean neighbor for the school," Fleming said.

After the presentation by the applicants, residents had a chance to voice their opinion on the project. J. Thomas Mullaney, a longtime Standish Avenue resident, supported the proposal. He credited Sangani for doing a good job of running the motel since he took over in 2004, and added that enclosing the building was a good thing.

"You've got a motel there, it's been pretty well run. Ashish owns three pieces of property so he's committed to the neighborhood," Mullaney said. "He wants extra capacity - fine. The key is that he's going to have a controlled situation, which he didn't have before. Someone could come in, register and you don't know who else is going in because they just go right in. This is controlled, I think this is a win-win all around."

The other resident who spoke Monday night was Lisa Mui of Newton Avenue. Mui lives right behind the hotel, and next to Sangani's residence. She said Sangani and his wife have been great neighbors, but was opposed to the project because it would decrease her home's value.

"With the construction of the hotel, it will obviously block our view," Mui said. "When we look outside, we will see this building that was not there before. It will block some of our sunlight and decrease the property value of our home because quite honestly what home buyer wants to have a hotel in their yard? It's different if you have a hotel but can't see it."

Mui also distributed to the council photos she took from her backyard, which showed that the motel can't be seen from her property currently.

Because the council closed the public hearing period Monday night, they now have 65 days to vote on the proposal. They scheduled an additional SPGA session for next Monday, Oct. 1 at 6:30 p.m. prior to a regular council meeting. They could vote on it then, but only if they receive a revised permit application for the site before the meeting; the plan was altered over the summer in response to a review by the city Engineering Department.

In addition to the revised application, Councillor Doug Gutro requested that the Health and Inspectional Services Departments submit their reviews of the plan to the council by that time.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian

Palmucci also requested additional information, including a log of police calls to the motel, written proof of the School Committee's opinion of the project, a listing of any citations issued by either the Health or Inspectional Services Departments, and the terms of the franchise agreement with Howard Johnson's.

officials because they related to existing employees at a time when laborer hiring was rare. Working with the state Human Resources Department, the City completed its first wholesale review of those classifications in December.

The City has since been working to clarify issues relative to the application list, which has been known to be unreliable dating back more than 20 years. The Civil Service Commission recently completed a similar review in the City of Boston.

Human Resources Director Stephen J. McGrath said he is looking forward to working with state officials to clarify the issues of state system that no longer provides merit tests for prospective employees.

New Campus, Bio-Tech Program At Quincy College

By EMILY TAFT

The president of Quincy College says the institution is bright for the students, faculty, and staff as the new school year brings not only a new vertical campus but also news of a $2.97 million federal grant to help train students for jobs in the biotechnology industry.

"The future is so bright you have to wear shades," says Quincy College President Peter Tsaffaras. "Major things are going on here. It is just so exciting to be able to receive money from the grant. It is particularly gratifying to be the only college in Massachusetts (public or private) to receive this."

The grants are a part of the Trade Adjustment Assistance initiative, which promotes skills development and employment opportunities in the sciences and healthcare through partnerships between training providers and local employers. This is the first time Quincy College has been selected for a DOL (Department of Labor) grant for Biotech and Compliance.

Tsaffaras said that the money would help buy equipment for the program, such as machines that separate protein, and specialty freezers. The equipment they purchase will be the same that is used in manufacturing facilities, and students will be learning to make pharmaceutical drugs.

"We recognized there was a need for these jobs and this will give them real hands on and real practical experience," said Bruce Van Dyke, chairperson of Biotechnology and Compliance

Program at Quincy College. "We were on our way to doing this anyway but the grant provides us with a kick start and really helps us jump start the program faster."

Part of the grant will also be spent on the hiring of five new employees, two administrators and three faculty staff members for the biotechnology program.

This summer, the college began moving most of their classrooms and offices to their new home at Presidents Place. The college will now have classrooms and offices in Saville Hall, located on Saville Avenue and Presidents Place. They no longer occupy Temple Hall on Temple Street or Newport Hall in North Quincy.

The college will be taking over one-third of the Presidents Place building on Hancock Street, with everything residing in the North Tower.

Tsaffaras said that Saville Hall is in the middle of construction on the second floor, which will have two new labs, a biotech lab and a physical therapy lab. Tsaffaras said he hopes the new labs will be finished by next Sept.

The last piece of the puzzle is to move the executive offices and boardrooms from Saville Hall to the seventh floor of Presidents place. Tsaffaras said that they decided to move those offices last because he wanted to see the students all settled in before he moved.

"We wanted to make sure the direct educational components were up and running smoothly before we moved in," said Tsaffaras. "We should be fully moved in by mid October."

The college offers an Associate of Science Degree in Biotechnology and Compliance and is developing a certificate program for 2013. The program will teach individuals traditional and new technology use and will focus on the training of single use technology.

LED Street-Light Conversion Starts light toward the street rather than upward.

Koch initiated the program following Quincy's designation as a Green Community by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, which included a grant award of $370,000 to fund energy projects.

"This is an important step forward that our residents will see virtually right away with brighter lights and fewer outages in these areas, and it is also good for the environment and the finances of the city by providing real savings," Koch said.

The LED conversion program includes all lights owned by the city, not the larger group of cobra head streetlights that are owned and operated by electricity provider National Grid. The city is continuing to explore long-term options for streetlights citywide, including the possibility of purchasing lights from National Grid, which would give the City direct control of light management and the ability to replace bulbs on its own.

Quincy became one of the largest cities to qualify as a Massachusetts Green Community this year by meeting a set expansive standards and providing concrete commitments to reduce the city's total energy consumption by 20 percent over the next several years.

The lighting program is a

Lincoln Hancock Pool Fall Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department has announced the fall schedule for the department's supervised swimming programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool located on Water Street in Southwest Quincy.

Family swims will be Monday through Friday from 6 to 6:50 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Senior Citizen (Age 60+) will be Tuesday through Friday, 7 to 7:45 p.m., and adult Monday through Friday, 7:55 to 8:45 p.m. and Sundays from 2:40 to 3:45 p.m.

The department also periodically offers American Red Cross swimming courses that are announced throughout the season. The swim schedule is changed occasionally to accommodate high school swim meets and is closed on Sunday and Monday's of three-day weekends.

The department offers a variety of memberships including full-year and half-year family, adult, youth and senior citizens. The membership can be obtained in the lower lobby of the pool prior to the scheduled swims.

The pool is a heated six lane, 25-yard pool with a set of recessed stairs for easy entry. Lane lines are put in for adult and senior citizen swims, while the family recreational swims have full access to the shallow and deep end depending on the ability of the participant. The facility also has a diving board, showers and locker rooms for use by members. Guest pass are available under certain conditions.

All swims are monitored by recreation staff certified in accordance to the standards of the American Red Cross.

For additional information contact the Quincy Recreation Department at 617 376 1394.

Recreation Ice Skating Registration Starts Monday

The Quincy Recreation Department will start registration for their Learn to Skate program Monday, Oct. 1 at the main office of the Quincy Recreation Department, 1 Merrymount Parkway, beginning at 9 a.m.

Registration will continue weekdays 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as openings exist. Online registration can be done on www.QuincyRec.org.

The eight-week ice skating program will hold two classes on Wednesday afternoons at the Quincy Youth Arena starting Oct. 17.

The program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays. Both classes offer the same level of instruction and will run for eight weeks.

The cost of the program is $68 for an eight-week session, which includes instruction and ice time. Participants need to provide their own skates, that can be figure or hockey skates. Registration is done on a first come first served basis.

For more information, call (617)-376-1394.

Presidents Blank Pembroke, 3-0

By COLLEEN CASEY

After three close games on the road, the Quincy boys' soccer team returned home to Veterans' Stadium Thursday prepared to take on Patriot Fisher foe Pembroke. The Presidents (2-2-1) showcased their speed and determination shutting out the Titans, 3-0.

"Even though there's two losses in there they could've gone either way. Today we certainly got into our stride," said Quincy coach Mark Spendlove.

Quincy came out focused and aggressive the first half. Junior forwards James O'Shea and Bjorn Amari along with senior captain Caique Reginaldo led the assault, finishing the first with 11 shots and one goal.

Pembroke called a time out with 24:36 remaining to thwart the Presidents efforts and regroup. The Titans picked up their intensity, taking two of their three shots after the time out, but a great defensive effort led by senior captain Kevin Gomes kept them from scoring.

Reginaldo came close with 9:00 remaining in the first, but launched his shot a foot above the cross bar.

The Presidents kept the pressure up and finally got on the board two minutes later. O'Shea won a scuffle in front of the net and found Reginaldo, who easily boot-ed it in for the score.

"We tried to work more as a team today," said Reginaldo. "We realized we had lost our focus the past couple of games and needed to get back together as a team. We started the focus in the locker room getting ready. It was here today and that's what made us win."

Quincy kept up the concentration in the second, and took an early 2-0 lead when Amari beat two defenders in front of the net before finding the back left corner for the goal five minutes into the half.

"We talked a lot last night about the mental aspect of the game, that we need to be switched on the minute we get here until the 80 minutes is up," said Spendlove. "I think we saw a little of that come out tonight."

O'Shea's quickness and determination through the entire game paid off. He easily beat the goalie one-on-one with 10 minutes remaining to provide the final margin.

"O'Shea's a bottle of energy. His speed is a massive asset to us. He's just a work horse," said Spendlove of the junior striker. "He has the ability to use his paces when he doesn't have the ball but then pick it up and carry it for us when we do need it. He's very important. A goal and an assist is a good night for him."

NQ Girls' Volleyball Off To 6-2 Start

By COLLEEN CASEY

Coming off a championship season is not always easy for a team. But the North Quincy girls' volleyball team has managed to reload this season, and get off to a 6-2 start. Their only two losses have come from league rival Quincy (3-1) and perennial powerhouse Barnstable (3-0).

The Red Raiders welcome back Rose Bennett, Natasha Sautter and Maya Umoren along with Carolyn Schwartz and Lauren Magoon from last year's Patriot League championship squad.

After dropping a tough four-set match to Quincy, the Raiders bounced back to defeat Rockland and Hanover. It was during the Rockland game coach Kerry Ginty decided to make some changes. Bennett, traditionally a middle blocker has moved to the outside, with Sautter and Schwartz manning the middle.

"Rose has been playing the game for so long," said Ginty. "She's a conditioned athlete. We tried her on the outside and it really worked for us. Not just offensively but defensively it helped as well."

A rough 3-0 loss to Barnstable slowed them down a bit, but North was able to put that to rest and beat Middleboro 3-1 the next day.

"North Quincy is our 20-year old rival," said Barnstable coach Tom Turco. "We've been battling it out with them for a while. Anytime you can get a victory over North Quincy it's a big victory."

Barnstable won the first two sets 25-7 and 25-10, and eventually pulled away 25-17 in the hard fought third.

"We really wanted to compete with Barnstable and play up to their level," said Bennett. "The third game we were doing really well, we were going point for point. The first two I think we couldn't get the ball up and have our hitters hit it. We have to work on our passing a bit more. It was great playing with a higher-level team. It's going to help."

Bennett, who also plays volleyball for the Mass. Patriots leads the Raiders with kills (44), blocks (20) and digs (60). Magoon has stood out serving, earning 25 aces on 64 attempts.

"When our passers get more experience more practice hopefully we'll be able to get the hitters the ball," said Ginty. "Our passing has been inconsistent but as long as we get our hitter the ball, we'll do well."

Presidents Football Win First In OT Thriller

By JEFF OHLSON

One play is all Quincy needed Friday night against Plymouth South.

One play, to turn around an 0-and-2 start in a season that just wasn't going their way.

One play to go differently, one play to go their way. That play came when it looked grim for Quincy, who had no time outs and whose players were watching from the sidelines as their opponent took the field for what should have been a victory kneel.

However, instead of a victory kneel for the Panthers, it was the play the Presidents needed, a fumbled snap recovered by Quincy. The Presidents took the ball and the momentum, scoring once to tie the game and again in overtime to win, 34-32.

In a game filled with big plays for both teams, no play was bigger than that one play for Quincy, that miraculous botched snap. The Quincy faithful were making their way down from their seats, mulling over what 0-and-3 would mean for the Presidents, when they heard excitement all around them.

After recovering the fumble, the Presidents offense marched out onto the field with new life and looked determined to score. Sophomore quarterback James Lam tossed a 30-yard pass to Alex Heffernan to start the drive and again found Heffernan for the game tying score. Fifty-six seconds, one big fumble, one big throw after another and Quincy was heading into overtime after defeat seemed imminent.

In overtime, each team would get a chance to score using four downs from their opponents' 10 yard line. This process would continue until one team had more points than the other.

Overtime was a second life that the Presidents would not take for granted as with their first possession in overtime as Jalen Green ran it into the end zone on Quincy's first play. James Lam secured the 2-point conversion to put the Presidents up 34-26.

Plymouth South's overtime possession was very rocky as the Presidents defense came out strong, forcing consecutive incompletions to bring the Panthers to fourth down. The Panthers converted that fourth down with a quarterback draw to the right but Quincy's defense shut the doors on Plymouth South when they attempted their 2-point conversion to preserve the Presidents lead and their first win.

With Quincy down 14-0 at half, it was on its players to persevere and on the Presidents coaching staff to make the changes necessary to turn around the game in the second half.

"It's funny how it works...

First half we couldn't do what we wanted to but once we were able to sit all the kids down at half and really explain it, we were able to execute better" said Quincy coach Bill Reardon.

For the Presidents, this was their first win of the season. After two close losses, a win couldn't be any sweeter.

"It's euphoric to get that first win" said a grinning Reardon. "The kids worked so hard during the week, they really put the effort in. They deserved this."

Lost in all the excitement of a win that almost wasn't was the very strong play of Quincy quarterback James Lam, who after a quiet first half, threw the ball for 179 yards with three touchdowns in the third and fourth quarter.

"He's only a sophomore, so he is going to have his bumps and bruises but he will learn and when he does... The kid can throw... And if the other teams are going to stack the box, then we are going to keep them honest by throwing the ball," Reardon said.

Could stealing a win like this turn around Quincy's season?

"I think so... But we will see what happens next week," Reardon added.

Quincy's next game is Friday, Sept. 28 against Durfee High School at Veterans' Stadium. Kickoff is slated for 7 p.m.

Mike Mullaney Remains Undefeated

Track: North Girls Split Hingham, Middleboro

North's girls couldn't overcome the Hingham Harborwomen's depth and talent losing their first meet of the year 21-37 but managed to salvage a split by beating Middleboro 19-38.

Emily Bryson took third behind Hingham's Julie McConville - perhaps the top two or three runners in the state and rising sophomore Julia Noble.

Danielle Mullaney (5th) and Julia Bryson (7th) rounded out the top ten.

Number four runner Briana Mullaney suffered the effects of dehydration in the later stages of the race and collapsed after crossing the finish line losing about ten spots in the final 100 meters and required medical assistance. She will be fine and continues to train as of press time, Coach Geoff Hennessy said.

"She is just flat out tough," said Hennessy. "Any other girl wouldn't have made it to the finish line. I'm proud to coach her and glad we have her."

Hingham put 12 girls in the top 20 finishers. Middleboro placed 4th and 5th versus the Red Raiders, but that was it as Mary Zheng was 7th overall versus the Sachem in the Raiders victory. North Quincy travels to Silver Lake Tuesday (9/25).

Mike Mullaney never appeared to be distressed as he ran wire to wire around NORTH QUINCY'S Emily Bryson trails Julia Noble of Hingham. Bryson took third in the recent meet against the Harborwomen.

Hingham High's campus in 16:37 over the 2.88 mile course, recording his third straight win. Danny Tran took 12 overall.

However, Hingham put all seven scorers ahead of Tran in a 20-43 loss.

Middleboro was able to squeeze their top five ahead of third runner Nathan Donahue and eke out a 25-34 win over the Raiders. Other NQ scoring runners were Brandon Zeng, Declan McGaffigan and Tommy Zhang.

Red Raiders Run Out Of Steam Against Sharon

By COLLEEN CASEY

It was a hard fought battle Saturday afternoon; but the undefeated Sharon Eagles prevailed, defeating North Quincy 34-22.

The Red Raiders had the upper hand going into the fourth quarter, riding the momentum from quarterback Andrew Minton's 25-yard touchdown pass to Antoine Allen, to give them a 22-14 advantage after three.

But with the Raiders defense lagging, and key penalties, the Eagles soared in the fourth, scoring on all three drives to earn the win.

The Raiders got called for a facemask on Sharon's opening drive of the final quarter and the Eagles capitalized, moving 62-yards on the four following plays to tie the game.

"Defensively we have to go back to the drawing board," said North Quincy coach Jim Connor. "You have to be able to stop them. When we did stop them we had problems. We had a facemask over here. That would've been fourth down and they would've punted and given us great field position and then they end up scoring on that possession to tie it up."

North was three-and-out their following drive, and Sharon responded with another scoring possession, capped by a 44-yard touchdown run from Frank Sullivan.

Minton (6 of 10 85-yards passing, 26-yards rushing) was then sacked for a 7-yard loss and the Raiders couldn't convert a fourth and long, forcing a turnover on their own 23-yard line. Sullivan broke through the middle again on Sharon's first play for the 23-yard score to put them up for good.

North's offense was solid the first three quarters. Allen perfected the Raiders' opening drive with a 15-yard run into the end zone to give them an early lead, but Sharon responded with two scores before the end of the quarter.

Minton took command in the second, completing 4 of 5 passes for 34 yards in addition to rushing 17-yards, including a huge first down and a 1-yard touchdown.

"He's such a gamer. He's smart and can get in there and take some hits," said Connor. "He's very talented. He's got it all the time. He's a little stuck in what we do, we're a run first team. But he's every bit as good as you saw today. It wasn't just a fluke thing."

Allen (122 yards on 17 carries, 1 TD) intercepted Sharon QB Sean O'Neill to start the third, but Sharon quickly got the ball back when Colin Grey intercepted Minton three plays later.

North fought back, taking advantage of Minton's arm and the speed of Allen and Eddie Guinto to move 70-yards to score to end the third.

"We were going up against a different defense," said Minton. "My receivers were getting open and going to different spots, running their routes perfect. If one guy runs his route perfect the other guy was right behind him wide-open."

Connor added, "We're not a high-powered five-wide offense. We have to be able to play D. This offense requires you to play some good defense. You can't give up 28 points and expect to win. If you're asking an offense to score 35 a game it's a lot of points."

The Raiders travel to Arlington Friday. Kick off is 7 p.m.

BRACE YOURSELVES!

Scoliosis, abnormal curvature of the spine, may occur for a number of reasons. "Congenital" scoliosis is present at birth, and "neuromuscular" scoliosis is caused by a nervous system problem that affects the muscles (such as muscular dystrophy). Most of the time, the cause is unknown. While most people with this type of "idiopathic" scoliosis do not require treatment, it is important to diagnose and monitor the condition. In young patients with growing bodies, a brace may be prescribed to prevent further curvature. This form of treatment can be uncomfortable for teen patients and stressful for parents, according to recent research. To allay parental concerns and get an earlier diagnosis, a chiropractic exam is recommended as a first line of defense. Most people with scoliosis can live full, productive and normal lives. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we would like to stress the importance of regular chiropractic care. Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service. P.S. Fundraiser Oct. 26 To Support 80th Quincy-NQ Game Celebration

By COLLEEN CASEY

It may not be as big as the Red Sox/Yankees rivalry, but the Quincy/North Quincy football rivalry comes pretty close.

The Thanksgiving Day game this year marks the 80th anniversary of the rivalry, a game that will certainly be special.

"It was a huge rivalry when we played. It was unbelievable," said Ron Ivil, president of the Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame who played for Quincy in the 1950's.

"You just couldn't wait to play in that game. It was quite an honor. The funny thing is that all the players we hated as our enemies back then turned into be some of my best friends after."

The Hall of Fame committee is currently planning special events for 80th anniversary. To help raise funds for the festivities, the Hall of Fame will be hosting a fundraiser Friday, Oct. 26 from 7-11 p.m. at the Sons of Italy in Quincy. The event will include a silent auction, a buffet and entertainment. Tickets are $20.

The organizers would like to invite all former players and coaches to the game to participate in the coin toss. They ask that all former players and coaches arrive early, wearing a game shirt or letterman jacket for a reception before the game.

There will also be a special tribute to the oldest living players, in addition to a few more special surprises yet to be announced. Older players are requested to contact the Hall of Fame organizers.

Hall of Fame secretary Joe Minukas said he doesn't think enough is done to make note of special events such as the 80th anniversary.

"We may not have two football teams in the future years. We don't know what's going to happen. That's why you try and make an effort to put something like this together," said Minukas.

For more information, email Ron Ivil or Joe Minukas at j.minukas@comcast.net.

Updates on the festivities will also be published in The Quincy Sun.

This is one of the many sponsorships highlighted by the Agnitti Insurance Agency in celebration of their 25th anniversary of being in business. "Quincy Youth Football and St. John's Baseball were staples in the Agnitti household growing up," Agnitti said. "We are proud and honored to help the youth programs. They are keystones in the development of our youth and the future of our city. The service and time that the coaches and parents give deserve support." Quincy Sun Photo/Emily Taft

The Storm Thunder Past Elks In QYF Week 3 Action

Apaches Bow To Mustangs; League Fundraiser Saturday

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League saw another great weekend of football as they closed the book on Week 3. The Quincy Point Panthers (2-0) sit in first place and have a bye this week.

The first game of the day featured an exciting match up between the West Quincy Elks (1-0) and the Squantum Storm (1-1). Both team featured high-powered offenses in this match up. The Storm features the top two scorers in the QYFL this season in running backs Max Storch and Liam O'Conner.

The West Quincy Elks (1-1) got on the scoreboard first when QB Angelo Depaulo threw a 14-yard TD pass to Josh Rodriguez. RB Aaron Etienne pounded it in for the conversion to make the 7-0, Elks. Later in the second quarter, DB Liam O'Conner intercepted an Elks pass and ran it back 27 yards to the storm 48-yard line. Two plays later, O'Conner raced down the sidelines for a 42-yard TD run. QB Tim Layden threw to Cullen Walsh for the conversion and tied the game, 7-7. On the ensuing series, the Elks drove the ball deep into Storm territory. Elks RB John Texiera ran for a TD only to have it called back on a penalty. The Storm Defense held the Elks on downs and both teams entered the locker room tied at 7-7.

The second half opened with the Elks receiving the ball. After three downs, the Elks found themselves pinned deep on their own 10-yard line. The snap went over the punter's head and Storm defender, Luca Smith recovered the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. The extra point attempt was no good making the score 13-7, Storm.

On their next possession, Storm RB Max Storch rush in for a 37 yard TD run on the first play of the series. The conversion attempt was no good putting the Storm up 19-7. The Elks suffered injuries to key some players in the Second half when star RB Teixeira and QB Depaulo left the ball game.

The Storm finished off the day with a 15-yard TD run by O'Conner to make the final score Storm 25, Elks 7. This was a big day for the Storm franchise, as this was their first win over the West Quincy Elks since the 2009 QYFL championship game. The Storm saw outstanding efforts from Storch, O'Conner, Layden, Cullen Walsh, Mark Monahan, Tom Veasey, Christian Conners, Raphy Veras, Luca Smith, Tom Jaehnig and Zach Spencer.

The Elks saw some great football played by Teixeira, Depaulo, Etienne, Rodriguez, Anthony Sances, Anthony Rizzatano, Davi Soares, Curtis Frazier, Vagno Santos and Jamal Williams. For The Elks, this was only their second loss in the last four seasons.

The West Quincy Elks (1-1) host the Quincy Point Panthers (2-0) next Sunday at 3:30 p.m. and The Milton Mustangs (1-1) host The Storm (2-1) at 2 p.m.

The second game of the Day featured the Milton Mustangs hosting the North Quincy Apaches with each team looking to get their first win. The Mustang entered the game fresh off a bye week.

On the opening drive, Mustang QB Jeff Wolffe drove his team deep into Apaches' territory. Wolffe capped off the Drive with 2-yard TD pass to TE Owen Regan. The conversion rush failed making the score 6-0, Mustangs.

The rest of the first half remained scoreless as both defenses played well.

Apaches RB Win Tran put his team on the scoreboard when he went around the corner for a 12-yard TD run, tying the game at 6-6.

The Mustangs fought back and scored on the next series when Owen recovered a fumble in the end zone, putting the Milton up 12-6. The Mustangs capitalized on an Apaches' fumble as RB Jay Blevins rushed in from 8 yards out. Wolffe passed to Reagan for the conversion to end the day, as the Mustangs defeated the Apaches 19-6. Despite the loss, The Apaches saw some great effort by Devin Ganno, Win Tran, Matt Eagles, Liam Murphy, Michael Dockery, Chris Mann, Jake Roos, Brian Maloney and Brandon Chen.

The Mustangs (1-1) host the Storm (2-1) next Sunday and the Apaches have the bye.

The second annual Quincy Youth Football League Fundraiser will be held Saturday, Sept. 29 at 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

Proceeds from the fundraiser will support all teams of the QYFL.

The event will feature a DJ, buffet, cash bar, raffles, silent auction and a door prize. Tickets are $20 and gain admission into the event and entry into the door Prize drawing for a 40-inch LCD 1080 TV.

Tickets are available at the door or by contacting Sean Halpin 617-980-2674.

2 Wins, Tie For NQ Girls' Soccer

By COLLEEN CASEY

The North Quincy girls' soccer team is still shining after another busy week of soccer. The Red Raiders beat Malden and East Boston on the road, and returned home to tie Duxbury, advancing them to 5-2-1 this season.

"We're in a good spot," said North Quincy coach Paul Bregoli. "We've played eight games and allowed only four goals. As long as we stay injury free we'll be O.K."

The Raiders dominated from start to finish in the non-league matchup against Malden, scoring six goals before the halftime break. Freshman forward Marissa McGue continued to showcase her talents, earning her first varsity hat trick. Delia Devane, Danielle Paschall, Shannon McCleary, Ciara Forde and Molly Donahue each found the net to earn the 8-0 victory.

North kept the offensive pressure up the following game, defeating East Boston 7-0. Senior captain Liz Kelly netted two along with freshman Hayley Houlihan, who scored her first varsity goals. Forde, McGue and Ali Coleman each chipped in one.

"We played well against both teams," said Bregoli. "We didn't play down which is always is a fear. We talked about playing good soccer and focused on maintaining control of the ball and not playing kick and run."

A big milestone was reached that as well. McCleary set a school record for assists (five) against East Boston, surpassing Emily Milone who had four against Medford in 2007.

With two big victories behind them, the Raiders returned home to face league foe Duxbury, earning a 0-0 tie. Sophomore goalie Rachel O'Driscoll had a huge impact, saving all 12 shots on goal to earn the shutout. It was the first time North has earned a point against Duxbury during Bregoli's tenure.

"Usually we're locked in our defensive end but this year we had chances to score," said Bregoli.

The Raiders earned their second loss of the season Monday, falling to Scituate on the road 2-0. They will take on rival Quincy Saturday at 5 p.m. at Veterans' Stadium.

A Job Well Done

By Quincy Police LT. DAN MINTON

On Saturday, Sept. 15, at approximately 4:30 p.m., members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit were in the Quincy Point section conducting surveillance for possible drug activity.

Detective Barkas observed a male (suspect #1) exit a vehicle in the 300 block of Washington Street. Suspect #1 entered a local bar and within seconds came back out with another male, suspect #2. The two suspects walked to the corner of the building, then walked further into the parking lot between two vehicles. The two suspects constantly looked around as they faced each other. Detective Barkas notified other members of the unit of her observations. Suspect #1 then got back into his car and then another male, suspect #3, crossed Washington Street and entered the passenger seat. Suspect #2 remained outside the bar talking on a cell phone.

Detectives O'Brien and Keenan arrived in the area. Detective Keenan followed suspect #1 and #3 as the vehicle drove away on Washington Street while Detectives O'Brien and Barkas approached suspect #2, who then walked into the bar. The Detectives went inside the bar and located suspect #2 just inside of the doorway drinking a beer. The Detectives approached the suspect and asked him to step outside. They then asked suspect #2 who he just met with and he stated his friend. When asked why he met with him, suspect #2 said that, "He (suspect #1) just gave him a key." Suspect #2 denied receiving any drugs from suspect #1 and consented to a search, which led to Detective Barkas locating pills in his pocket.

When asked if the pills were his, suspect #2 hesitated and after the question was asked again, he said they were his and they were "Suboxone." Suspect #2 did not have a prescription for the pills so Detective O'Brien placed him under arrest and gave him his Miranda rights. Suspect #2 confessed that suspect #1 gave him the 8 pills in the parking lot. Suspect #2 said he gave suspect #1 $20.00, stating that he "was doing a friend a favor" and that the Suboxone were not for him. He said the other pills were already in his pocket prior to meeting with suspect #1. The Detectives decided to summon suspect #2, a 44 year old Stoughton resident, into court, sent him on his way and headed out to join up with Detective Keenan. Detective O'Brien relayed this information to Detective Keenan who followed the vehicle into another parking lot on Washington Street. Suspect #1 exited his vehicle and went into a liquor store. Detective Keenan encountered suspect #1 as he returned to his vehicle and identified himself as a Quincy Police Officer.

Detective Keenan placed suspect #1 under arrest and advised him of his Miranda Rights to which he stated he understood. Detective Keenan asked suspect #1 who he met with and he identified suspect #2, stating that he owed him $20.00 because he had let suspect #2 stay at his trailer for the last few days. Detective Keenan asked suspect #1 if he had any prescriptions on him and the suspect responded, "Yes, count them - they will add up." Detective Keenan then retrieved a black gym bag from the back seat of the vehicle. Inside the bag Detective Keenan located a prescription for Suboxone which was filled on 09/13/2012 for 28 Suboxone tablets (there were 23 1/2 tablets in the bottle). Detective Keenan contacted Detective O'Brien and told him that suspect #1 had prescriptions for Suboxone and Klonopin. Detective Keenan read the number markings on the pills to Detective O'Brien and the prescriptions / pills that suspect #1 had in his possession matched the pills that suspect #2 had in his possession. Detective Keenan also located a prescription bottle for Naproxen. Upon closer inspection, Detective Keenan located two white tablets that did not match the rest of the pills. These two tablets were identified as 800mg Ibuprofen. Suspect #1 told Detective Keenan, "You're arresting the wrong guy and this will be straightened out on Monday (in court)." Suspect #1 also had in his possession $716.00 U.S. currency and two cellular phones. The Detectives believed that suspect #1 distributed both the Clonazepam and Suboxone to suspect #2. Detective Keenan questioned the passenger, suspect #3, who was the owner of the vehicle.

He stated that he picked up suspect #1 in Weymouth and that they were on their way to South Boston. He said that Suspect #1 asked him to pull the vehicle over at the bar to see a friend. Suspect #3 denied any knowledge that a drug transaction occurred and apologized. Detect-tive Keenan asked suspect #3 if the cigarettes in the console were his and he said that they were suspect #1's. Detective Keenan then looked inside and found a plastic cigarette wrapper that contained three blue tablets identified as Adderall. Detective Keenan asked suspect #1 if he had a prescription for the Adderall and he said he did not. Suspect #3, a 71 year old Weymouth resident, was sent on his way after a strong advisement. Suspect #1, a 44 year old Weymouth resident, was charged with, "Distribution Class B (Suboxone), Distribution Class C (Clonazepam), Possession Class B with Intent to Distribute (Suboxone), Possession Class C with Intent to Distribute, Possession Class B (Adderall), Operating a Motor vehicle with a Suspended License (subsequent) and Conspiracy to violate the Controlled Substance Laws." The $716.00 and two cellular phones were seized pending civil forfeiture. Nice Work!

(As for waiting for Monday morning, suspect #1 was held on bail by the Judge, so that didn't work out too well for him) trivia contest for adults.

"The participants really enjoy the Trivia Contest," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. "It can get rather competitive in a fun way. There are no prizes, but the winners get 'bragging rights' for the entire year."

The church building is accessible on Beale Street at the door nearest the flag pole.

For more information, call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Bethany Church

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you love being the focus of attention, it's a good idea to take a few steps back right now to just watch the action. What you see can help with an upcoming decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) "Caution" continues to be your watchword this week, as a former colleague tries to reconnect old links. There are still some dark places that need to be illuminated.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Making a good first impression is important. Revealing your often hidden sense of humor can help you get through some of the more awkward situations.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Taking that Cancer Crab image too seriously? Lighten up. Instead of complaining about your problems, start resolving them. A friend would be happy to help.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A widening distance between you and that special person needs to be handled with honesty and sensitivity. Don't let jealousy create an even greater gap between you two.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. Your handling of a delicate family matter rates kudos. But no resting on your laurels just yet. You still have to resolve that on-the-job problem.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might surprise everyone by being unusually impulsive this week.

But even level-headed Libras need to do the unexpected now and then.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A period of turmoil gives way to a calmer, more settled environment. Use this quieter time to patch up neglected personal and/or professional relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A new relationship could create resentment among family and friends who feel left out of your life. Show them you care by making more time for them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Concentrate on completing all your unfinished tasks before deadline. You'll then be able to use this freed-up time to research new career opportunities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're right to try to help colleagues resolve their heated differences. But keep your objectivity and avoid showing any favoritism 'twixt the two sides.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your personal life continues to show positive changes. Enjoy this happy turn of events, by all means. But be careful not to neglect your workplace obligations.

BORN THIS WEEK: People of all ages look to you for advice and encouragement. You would make an excellent counselor.

QCAP' Best Chef Challenge Oct. 4

Quincy Community Action Program, Inc. (QCAP) invites guests to cook up some fun at its "Best Chef" fundraising event Thursday, Oct. 4 at 6 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club, Quincy.

The competition pits some of the area's most venerated chefs against each other in a battle of culinary skills. The event, hosted by Jenny Johnson, co-host of NECN's TV Diner, features the talents of Chef Paul Wahlberg of Alma Nove and Wahlburgers; Chef Tom Coleman of The Fat Cat; Chef David Todisco of the Tavern at Quarry Hills; Chef Hao Ming Cao of Fuji 1546; Chef Marc Vierbickas from Siros, Port 305, and Blue; and Quincy School Committee member Barbara Isola, host of QATV's "Into the Frying Pan."

"We are so grateful to the chefs, their restaurants, judges, and our supporters for contributing their talent, time, and resources to this event," said Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's executive director. "Thanks to their efforts, we hope to have a fun and exciting event while also raising critical funds so that we can continue to deliver our core services."

The chefs will use portable cooking stations at the event as they vie for the title of "Best Chef." The challenge: The chefs will not know their cooking ingredients until the competition begins that night. Styled after the popular television show, "Chopped," they will open up baskets to reveal secret ingredients and will have 45 minutes to create their dish.

The chefs will serve their creations to a panel of judges. Criteria include taste, originality, and plating. The chef with the most points will be crowned "Best Chef."

As an added twist: The secret ingredients will typically food given out at QCAP's own Emergency Food Center, which provides food and other items to thousands of low-income residents and families each year. QCAP provides clients with monthly food orders, comprised of donated goods from the Greater Boston Food Bank, local grocers, and private donors. After the event, all of the chefs' recipes will be shared with the Food Center clients and the public.

Guests can also weigh in on their favorite chef in the "People's Choice" competition. The participating chefs will be providing dishes that reflect the flavors and styles of their own restaurants. Guests can sample their dishes and vote for their favorite chef.

The night will also feature raffles and live and silent auctions, including vacation destinations, such as a trip and airfare to Aruba, signed sports memorabilia and event tickets, golf outings, restaurant and spa gift certificates, one-of-a-kind art, cookware, and electronics. Event proceeds will benefit QCAP programs, which serves more than 17,000 people annually in Quincy and other surrounding communities.

For more information on QCAP and to purchase tickets, visit www.qcap.org.

Assessors To Speak At Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association Meeting Oct. 4

Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet Thursday, Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Sts.

Peter Moran, chairman of the Quincy Board of Assessors, and Marion Fantuchio, former chairperson of the Board of Assessors, and presently a Board member, will be the guest speakers.

They will address the assessing process and how property values affect real estate tax bills.

A question and answer period will follow.

Bicycle Meeting Tonight At City Hall

An open community meeting for Quincy residents interested in improving the conditions for bicyclists in Quincy, and in promoting bicycling as a means of transportation in the city, will be held tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, in the City Council Chambers.

The meeting continues a series of meetings in which Quincy bicyclists, residents, and city officials are meeting to promote bicycling in Quincy and making plans for bicycle safe infrastructure. For more information, contact the Rev. Nathan Phipo at 617-471-0258.

Remote Voting For Council, Boards?

"It's really a technology issue, but it gives us the ability if we're afar, or even frankly home sick and we want to participate in the meeting and not infect everyone that's here in the City Council chamber, to participate."

Laforest noted that the problem isn't confined to just council meetings. She explained that with more than two dozen boards and commissions in the city, ward councillors often find themselves conflicted over which meeting to attend. A Conservation Commission (ConCom) meeting was being held the same night of the committee hearing at the Richard J. Koch Park and Recreation Complex, for example.

"Tonight we're here in a committee meeting and we also should, if you're a ward councillor potentially, at the ConCom - I have two cases in ConCom and I'm here in committee," Laforest said. "Councillors are often conflicted."

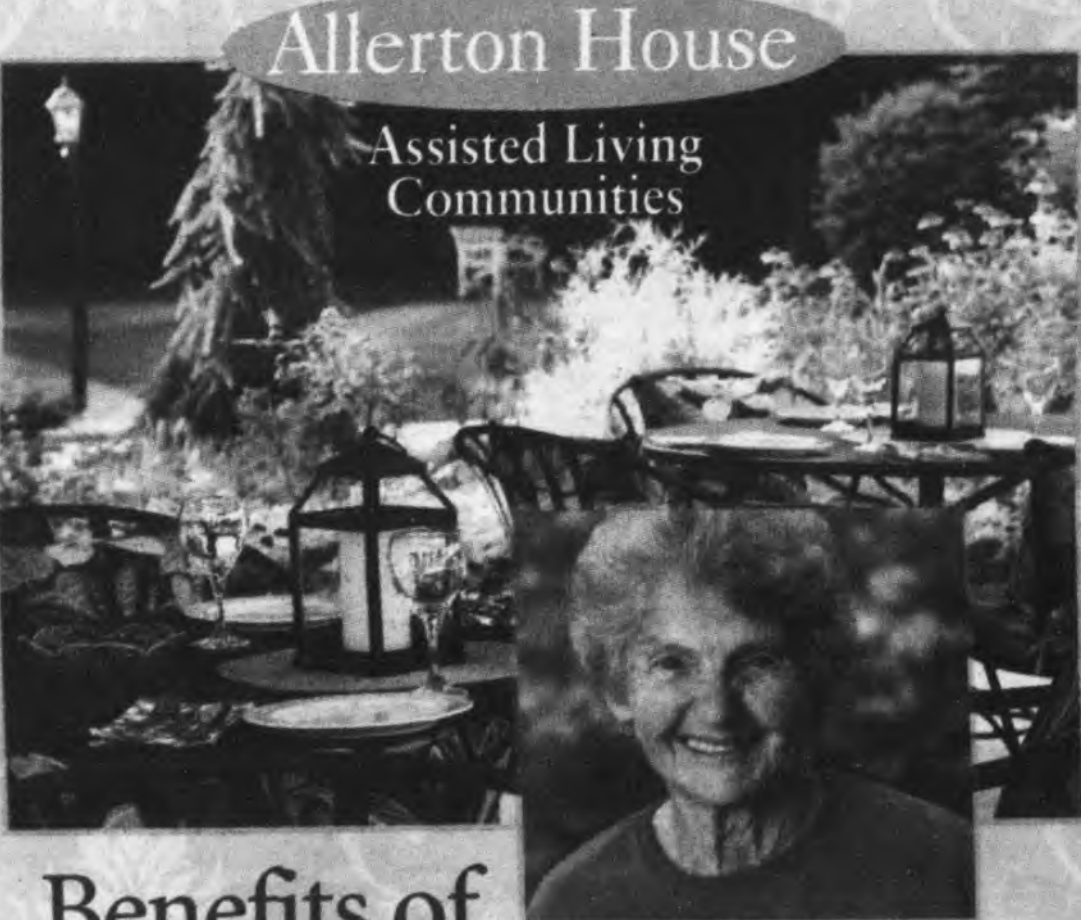

Present at the meeting was Chuck Phelan, the city's IT director. He explained that, once renovated, the network in the permanent council chamber in the Old City Hall building would be more than able to handle video conferencing.

"The network is there - the network can handle it, it's not even a question with the bandwidth, we have plenty of bandwidth," Phelan said. "The new, new chamber will be all fiber [optic] so it's not a bandwidth problem."

Phelan added that equipment for video conferencing would still need to be purchased, but he said that would only cost a few hundred dollars. But a bigger issue would arise with boards that don't meet at City Hall because of security concerns.

"Where it gets very dicey is when you start going out to the different locations and doing it in different places," Phelan said. "Not all these rooms are secure, some are open, and we do have incidents where things can walk away if they're just left out for the night - it has happened in the past and it's something we'd like to avoid."

Fallout From Rogue Chemist In State Drug Lab DA's Office Reviewing 5,000 Cases

By SCOTT JACKSON

Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey's office is reviewing some 5,000 cases after allegations that a chemist in state operated drug lab may have falsified tests.

"This is probably the biggest problem in the criminal justice system I've seen in my lifetime," Morrissey told the Sun in a phone interview. "We're a country of law and the Constitution. We can't be winning cases by violating people's rights."

Council Wants Dam Money For Seawall Repairs

The City Council backed a resolution Monday night calling on the state to make funds currently used for dam repairs available for seawall repair.

The resolution, proposed by Councillors Doug Gutro and Margaret Laforest, backs an amendment by state Rep.

Jim Cantwell - who has a law office in Quincy Center but represents Marshfield in the Legislature - that would make $7 million from a dam repair fund available for seawall, jetty, groin, and re-treatment repair.

Gutro explained that a

Titled Kilt Appeal Before ABCC Dec. 12

By EMILY TAFT

The Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission will meet Dec. 12 to discuss the ruling the Quincy Board of License Commissioners made during their Aug. 28th meeting denying an all alcohol restaurant license to the Tilted Kilt.

The appeal will be heard at 10:30 a.m. Dec. 12 at 239 Causeway St., first floor, Boston.

It took over four weeks for the board to be notified by the ABCC (Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission) on their decision of the appeal that was filed by the restaurant owners, Gordon Hyde and Ashtok Patel. The two owners along with their lawyer Louis Cassis filed the appeal a week after the board denied the license.

According to License Board Chairman and City Clerk Joseph Shea, his office received the letter of appeal on Sept. 26, three weeks after the owners filed. The letter asks that those interested in the matter to attend the hearing in order to present evidence and testimony.

All parties are required to submit a joint pre-hearing memorandum to the Commission within 20 days of receipt of the notice. The memorandum will contain the contested issues of law and the positions of the parties on those issues, along with a list of witnesses that will be called by each party, among other things.

Board members Jay Duca, the city's director of Inspectional Services, Police Chief Paul Keenan and Shea voted against the license. Supporting the license were Fire Chief Joseph Barron and Health Commissioner

School Committee Updated On Track, Coddington Hall, Old QHS Building

By EMILY TAFT

The School Committee was recently updated on the progress of three major school projects that are underway, the new track at Faxon Field, the Coddington Hall building, and the old Quincy High School building.

Progress is being made on the new track facility at Faxon Field and the hope is to have the entire project completed by Oct. 19.

"We are making great progress on the track," said Paul Franz, the project manager for the track and a staff member at the Park Department. "At this time, if you drive by, it actually looks like a track."

The track is open to the public, outside of school track meets and Franz said that the facility wouldn't be locked but that they will be putting up signs stating what the rules of use are.

There have been a number of pieces done to the track so far, including the coats of asphalt have been put down, a fence around the perimeter has been put up, and the grass has been germinated on the field. According to Franz, the field will be large enough for only football and lacrosse teams to play on.

"The track itself is complete with the exception of the earthen rubber surface, striping, and the fence that goes up to keep spectators off the track during the events," said Franz. "We have five weeks left in the construction schedule and right now we are in a two week holding period to allow the asphalt age. Weather permitting we hope to work up to our completion date of Oct. 19."

Light posts will be installed at either end of the track to allow for some lighting at night, and Franz said that residents who use the track should feel safe to walk on it into the evening hours.

Frantz said that they would be installing a ure-

Council Votes 8-1 For Presidents' City Inn Renovations

By SCOTT JACKSON

After nearly an hour and a half of deliberations Monday night, the City Council gave its approval to a million dollar renovation of Presidents' City Inn.

The council, acting as the city's special permit granting authority (SPGA), approved the proposal by owner Ashish Sangani to add 22 rooms to the building and enclose the hotel with a hallway by an 8-1 vote.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci cast the lone no vote. During the deliberations he said he was concerned with safety at the motel, highlighting a log of police activity on site since the beginning of January that Quincy Police Lt. Dan Minton provided in a letter to the council.

"The information we got today from Lt. Minton from the Police Department is certainly information we should consider," Palmucci said. "The call log here is three pages - there's a number of overdoses, there's a report here of a pimp in the room, reports of prostitution, arrest of fugitive from justice, bank robbery suspect caught trying to check in, alcohol poisoning, restraining orders being served, mother with knife - daughter wants to hang herself.

"That last one was only a couple weeks ago. There's certainly been a lot of police activity here and that's concerning."

Ward 5 City Councillor Kirsten Hughes, who represents the neighborhood around the hotel, agreed that the police log was concerning. But she said the renovations, which would result

Fire Department Open House Oct. 13 At Fire Headquarters

As part of Fire Prevention week, the Quincy Fire Department will hold an open house Saturday, Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Fire Headquarters, 40 Quincy Ave.

This year's theme is "Have Two Ways Out."

The open house will feature apparatus and representatives from various public agencies providing information and demonstrations.

There will also be food and refreshments.

The public is welcome to attend.

Annie Dookhan, who spent eight years as a chemist at the Hinton State Laboratory Institute in Jamaica Plain, was involved with testing samples in each of the 5,000 cases. Dookhan, a 34-year old Franklin resident, was arrested last week and charged with two counts of obstructing justice for allegedly falsifying drug tests. She was also charged with falsely pretending to hold a college degree after she allegedly testified in court that she had a master's degree in chemistry from UMass.

Morrissey has hired a Quincy attorney to oversee the review process. Morrissey declined to identify the attorney, citing the sensitive nature of the cases under review. But the district attorney said the person's first goal is to identify people currently in jail or soon to go to trial.

"We are trying to identify individuals who are currently incarcerated or awaiting trial," Morrissey said.

As the review continues, Morrissey said his office will look into dismissing certain drug-related charges while still charging the individuals with other offenses, depending on the circumstances.

The attorney is coordinating their work with David Meier, the attorney Gov. Deval Patrick appointed to coordinate a statewide review of all cases. Morrissey explained that Meier's role is to ensure that district attorney's know which cases need review by sorting through records from the Department of Public Health, district attorneys' offices, sheriffs' departments and other sources.

"He's there to make sure we have all the cases," Morrissey said.

Morrissey couldn't estimate how long it would take to review all the cases, but he said it would take a while to do so. He added that a lot of police work, including the work of undercover detectives executing hand-to-hand drug purchases, would be thrown away as a result of the investigation.

"It's going to be awhile before we dig out of this mess," Morrissey said. "There's been a lot of good police work and now the cases are going to be thrown

Not all cases drug offenses prosecuted by the Norfolk County District Attorney's office are under review. Morrissey said that many larger drug cases are

Homeowners with equity: Roll all your debt into one new loan

You have a mortgage. And a decent amount of equity. You also have high-rate credit card debt, maybe an equity loan payment, an auto loan, student loans or other debts that you would love to combine into one loan at today's still low rates...fixed and guaranteed for the next 15 years. That's what you get with a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. Some people like this idea because it makes life simple and streamlined. For others, it's a fresh start and a real weight off their back. Either way, it can be a very smart idea. Is it right for you? Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com (Have another loan or term in mind? Call us. We may be able to help.) Hancock Cemetery's History

It may not share the same well-profiled status of some of the city's renowned historical sites like the Old House, Adams Birthplaces and United First Parish Church.

But Quincy's historic Hancock Cemetery should be a must stop on any visitor's list to the "City of Presidents."

In fact, you might even say the Cemetery located on Hancock Street adjacent to City Hall is a blueprint to many of the city's historical figures. There's a story of the living associated with every grave marker that provide a perspective of not only local history but our nation's history, too.

The cemetery is the final resting area for some of the city's earliest settlers as well as generations of the Adams and Quincy families, including Rev. John Hancock, the father of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

There are also lessons to be learned from some of the monuments themselves. The artwork on the markers are examples of colonial winged skulls and cherubim, to Federalist classical motifs and representatives of Quincy's 19th century role as the national center of granite quarrying and carving, says Edward Fitzgerald, a leading authority on the Hancock Cemetery and executive director of the Quincy Historical Society.

There are many notable graves but there's one that may leave some visitors a bit perplexed.

That would be the tomb marked "J.Q. Adams" located to the left of the front gate. And there's an interesting story behind this tomb.

The tomb is the Adams family vault, the original resting place of John and Abigail Adams and John Quincy and Louisa Catherine Adams, who are all now entombed in the Presidential crypt in United First Parish Church - located just across the street from the cemetery.

The vault remains the grave of numerous family members including John and Abigail's daughter, Nabby, and John Quincy and Louisa Catherine's sons, George and John.

According to Fitzgerald's research, when Nabby died in 1813, she was evidently buried in the family tomb in Hancock Cemetery. Her mother Abigail was buried there in 1818 and then John Adams was buried there after he died on July 4, 1826.

"In the ensuing weeks, John Quincy Adams came up with the idea of the crypt beneath the planned new church building," Fitzgerald says. "The new church opened in 1828 and John and Abigail's remains are moved" (to the crypt).

By 1834 - over the next five years - three more Adams are buried in the family tomb: John Quincy Adams's brother Thomas and his sons George and John.

In 1848, after JQA died in Washington, he was returned to Quincy and buried in the family tomb.

It is JQA's son, Charles Francis, who gets the idea to expand the crypt so that his father can be buried next to his father and mother. But JQA is not moved right away, Fitzgerald points out.

"His widow, Louisa Catherine, died in 1852 in Washington. Over the next few months, Charles Francis arranged preparation of the crypt. Louisa's body remained in Washington. On Dec. 15, 1852, the bodies of the Sixth President and First Lady Louisa Catherine are moved to the crypt in a coordinated ceremony."

After Louisa's body arrives by train, she is moved directly from the train station to the church.

A few other facts about the Adams family vault:

In Paul Nagel's book, Descent from Glory, Four Generations of the John Adams Family and John

ADAMS FAMILY VAULT at Historic Hancock Cemetery has an interesting history all its own. Other photos on Page 18.

Quincy Adams, he describes the sequence for JQA's and Louisa Catherine's burials:

• JQA dies on Feb. 23, 1848. His body is brought back for burial and is in Quincy on March 11, 1848. A funeral service takes place in First Parish Church. "At 5 p.m. the coffin was taken across the road and placed in the crowded family vault. . . For four years John Quincy rested in the old burying ground with many relatives, his brother Thomas, his sister Nabby, his two sons, and others nearly so dear."

• Louisa Catherine Adams dies May 15, 1852 in Washington. Her son Charles Francis Adams "hastened back to Quincy, leaving his mother's coffin behind until he could arrange for his parents to be placed next to his grandparents."

• John Quincy Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams are placed in the crypt, Dec. 15, 1852. "JQA's casket, draped with velvet, was brought to the church as Louisa's was delivered from the railway depot, where it had arrived from Washington. The interment may not have been completed until the 16th, because JQA's granite tomb was not big enough for his coffin and had to be enlarged."

There are many other notable graves in Hancock Cemetery. Among them:

Henry Adams (1646) - the great-great-grandfather of John Adams - who emigrated from England in the first years of the Massachusetts colony. How different local and and the nation's history may have been had Henry not "emigrated for reasons of conscience."

Rev. John Hancock (1744) - father of the future Patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Rev. Hancock served as minister of United First Parish Church from 1726 until his death in 1744. It is widely assumed that the cemetery came to be named for Rev. Hancock but some local historians believe the cemetery took its name from its location on Hancock Street.

Col. John Quincy (1767) - served more than 30 years in the colonial legislature, including 12 as speaker. The grandfather of Abigail Adams, the town of Quincy was named in his honor in 1792.

Abner Packard (1902) - commander of the town militia unit that responded to President Lincoln's first call for volunteers in the Civil War in April, 1861.

On any given afternoon, you'll find cemetery visitors meandering throughout the cemetery, reading markers and pausing in silence. Some graves are decorated with American flags, identifying the deceased as veterans of the Revolution, the War of 1812 and the Civil War.

Hancock Cemetery may not receive prominent exposure as a must-stop along the city's historic trail.

But it certainly commands a visit for guests who want to learn more about Quincy and its early history.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1940'S POSTCARD was published by the famous Sevigny's Clam Shop on Quincy's Southern Artery. At the time the Artery was Route 3, the main highway from Boston to Nantasket and Cape Cod. The road was built in 1926 as a bypass around Quincy Square and hosted many roadside attractions. Near 7E's were Morey Pearl's, Dutchland Farms and the Mayflower Diner. Later came the first Dunkin' Donuts shop, Howard Johnson's Drive In, Richard's Drive In and the Leaning Tower of Pizza. 7E's was one of the first to use a Fryola-tor to cook their seafood and consistently had excellent fried clams. The Kandy Kettle sign in the right center was for the 7E's ribbon candy that was first made here and then later in their factory in North Quincy. In 1986, the candy business was purchased by the F.B. Washburn Candy Corp. of Brockton which still makes and sells the 7E's brand. The fried clam shop was located in what is now the Super Stop & Shop parking lot. Nixon Here On V.P. Campaign Stop

Senator Richard M. Nixon of California, the Republican nominee for vice president, spoke 20 minutes to a dinnertime crowd of some 4,000 people from the steps of First Parish Church on a whistle-stop tour.

"No man in America—in the world is better qualified to keep America strong than Dwight Eisenhower, who has come through every time," he said, speaking of his Presidential running mate.

Nixon, who arrived from Boston in a motorcade at 6 p.m. with his wife, Pat, was presented a replica of the Abigail Adams Cairn and taken on a tour of the Adams crypt in the church.

"His approach is western in that it is direct, sincere and free from any affected mannerisms," said an observer.

"He talks to you about political principals with the same forthrightness a farmer would talk about the effect of rain or drought on laid-by-corn."

POLICE CHIEF EXAM

Seven captains and lieutenants were preparing to take the Civil Service examination for appointment as police chief to succeed the late Chief Joseph F. Hughes, who died in February.

They were Capts. William Ferrazzi, the acting chief, William F. McIntyre and Joseph P. Flaherty, and Lts. Anthony Caperici, William Devine, Charles L. Ferrazzi and Frank Vallier.

MONTCLAIR ADDITION

School Supt. D. Paul Gossard told members of the Montclair School PTA touring the four-room addition to the school that students were unhappy with drinking fountains in each classroom.

"It spoils the best racket that the children had for getting out of the rooms," he said.

Frank Bellotti Courthouse Dedication A Fitting Honor

As one of the hundreds who showed up at the Quincy Court House on Sunday, Sept. 23, we all came to honor former Lieutenant Governor and Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti at the re-dedication of the courthouse and renaming it the Francis X. Bellotti District Court House.

Over his 60 years as a lawyer and his many years of public service to the Commonwealth, he was present to see the court house re-named for him. I met many old friends of mine that I first met years ago when I started out as a political activist. Former Senate President Bob Travaglini was there to honor his old boss for whom he worked back when he was only 20-something. I met Frank for the first time back in his 1970 campaign for governor when I was a 22 year old college student from Charlestown attending Boston State College.

Over the years, I have known many politicians some more successful than others but I have known none more honorable nor with the personal integrity of Frank Bellotti. He really believed that public service was an honorable undertaking. Serving in public office meant you were there representing the best interests of the people who elected you as their voice.. He served one term as lieutenant governor and three terms as attorney general. Three times he tried for governor but that was not to be. In the end, he had a 4-5 win-loss record but he is always remembered for his wins and for his many accomplishments over the years..

The honor of getting a courthouse named after you is a really big deal. Usually by the time folks get around to naming something, the person being honored has already passed away missing all the hoopla. Frank is still very much here and truly enjoyed this day in the sun. I always looked up to him as one of my political mentors.

Back 40 years ago, he along with the likes of Jack Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Bobby Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey were leaders in public life who always tried to make things better than they found them. They won, they lost but they never gave up. Today's leaders are but mere shadows of those giants of my youth. Frank Bellotti is indeed a living legend.

As I looked around the crowd in front of the new Bellotti Courthouse, I saw many old friends and political allies from my 40 years of political activism. I stood next to former Senate President Bobby Travaglini who was 20-something when he worked for Frank at the AG's office in the '80s and I thought of myself back in 1970 working out of his Boston Dewey Square campaign headquarters also 20-something. We were both there for the same reason to pay tribute to a great public official and an even greater human being.

I want to thank all those responsible for making Sunday, Sept. 23 happen at the courthouse that now bears his name.

"We received a phone call in June from an organization in Utah which runs the event," said Center Stage owner Laurie Graf. "We were told that our excellent dancers had been recommended to them and after researching our studio, they extended the invitation to us".

"I am thrilled for this group of hard working girls and delighted that this opportunity has come their way," Graf added.

Handmade Quilt Exhibit At Crane Library

A special exhibit of handmade quilts are on display this month in the Coletti Reading Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Project Linus is a national organization that hand makes blankets for critically ill children. It began in 1995 after Karen Loucks was inspired to make blankets for her local children's cancer center. Since then, Project Linus has expanded to include children who are seriously ill or traumatized in many ways.

During the summer of 2012, Thomas Crane Library children's librarian Cathy deVeer led two quilt design workshops at the library and invited the community to design quilt squares for Project Linus. The quilts in this exhibit were designed and sewn by library patrons and their children, and library staff and volunteers. They were

Squantum Seaside Gardeners Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Mayor Thomas Koch proclaimed Sept. 12 as Seaside Gardeners of Squantum Day as the garden club members and invited guests celebrated their 60th Anniversary with a luncheon at the Common Market.

The Seaside Gardeners started in 1952 with a small group of women coming together to bring beauty into their gardens and to improve the surroundings of their community. The Club members of today continue the original members' commitment to improving not only their own gardens but also the beauty and protection of the open spaces in the community.

The Causeway Beautification Project was started in May of 1998 with the planting of daylilies along the causeway. In 1996, The Seaside Gardeners, Nickerson Post and volunteers restored the Gilbert Memorial Park with shrubs and plantings.

The annual Christmas Tree Lighting at the Gilbert Memorial Park is a great turnout of the families in the community. The club's Bi-Annual Garden Tour started in June 2001 and continues on.

The Junior Gardeners of Squantum, organized in 1996, included the teachers and students of the Squantum School receiving the Gardening Award from the Garden Club Federation of MA in 1998.

The club's annual Plant sale grows yearly with home grown plants and herbs. The Seaside Gardeners also hold an annual fundraiser, "A Faire for All Seasons," in October showcasing members' craft and baking abilities. This year's faire is scheduled for Oct. 27.

Thanks to all former members and current members of the Seaside Gardeners of Squantum for their great ongoing spirit of volunteerism to the community of Squantum. Congratulations to all.

At the anniversary luncheon the Seaside Gardeners also honored one of the club's most energetic, creative and stoic leaders, Patricia McGilvray. She was presented with a crystal engraved vase to show our appreciation for her continued enthusiasm and positive attitude to get things done no matter the task. Thank you Pat for all that you do for the Seaside Gardeners of Squantum.

Torre Dei Passeri Society 90th Celebration Oct. 13

The Torre Dei Passeri Mutual Benefit Society of Quincy will celebrate its 90th anniversary Saturday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

The organization was founded in 1922 in the Italian immigrant neighborhood of the Edwards Street area in Quincy Point by several men to aid one another's family in times of sickness and death.

It started when a married man with children working as a laborer injured his foot while digging with a pick.

Unable to afford medical attention, he suffered from gangrene poisoning and died. His widow could not afford burial expenses and the family was destitute financially.

A neighbor, Raffaele Papile, his brother, Guiseppe Papile joined with two close friends, Antonio Mariano and Carmen Mariano to recruit others and raised money for the burial costs and to provide living expenses to the widow and young children.

It was decided to continue this help for others in need.

In the early years, the group met in the basement of Raffaele Papile's home on Edwards Street and eventually obtained a charter from the state as a mutual benefit society.

The society was named Torre Dei Passeri after the town in the Province of Abbruzzi, Italy, where most of the members had immigrated.

Today, 90 years later, it continues to help families of members unable to work because of sickness and with burial expenses.

Invited guests attending the 90th celebration include House Majority Leader and Quincy state representative Ron Mariano, Mayor Thomas Koch and state Sen. John Keenan and other local officials.

For ticket inquiries, call the club at 617-472-9360.

Serving as masters of ceremonies for the Oct. 13 banquet will be Steve Mariani and Richard Vena, Sr.

Club officers are: Joseph Puopolo, president; Ron Marini, vice president; Stephen Papile, financial secretary; Domenic Papile, recording secretary; Enrico Salvaggi, treasurer; James Papile, orator; trustees Richard Young, Emilio DiNardo and Ray Cross; Richard Salvatore, guard; and Anthony DiNardo, chaplain.

Members of the banquet committee are Ron Marini, chairman; Joseph Puopolo, Enrico Salvaggi, Steven Papile, James Papile and Domenic Papile.

Primo Iacobucci Attends Reunion In Supino, Italy

Primo Iacobucci, a 55-year resident of Quincy, recently traveled back to his hometown of Supino, Italy to attend a "Reunion of Town Emigrants."

The reunion included individuals returning from the United States, Canada and South America.

Supino is located in the Province of Frosinone in the Italian region of Lazio about 30 miles southeast of Rome. The town welcomed back almost 100 former residents in a celebration led by Supino Mayor Alessandro Foglietta.

During his stay in Supino, Iacobucci was hosted by his cousin Raniero Montini and accompanied by his son Ron Iacobucci, daughter-in-law Liz Iacobucci and two grandchildren Christopher Iacobucci and Deanna Hanafin along with her husband Dan.

Iacobucci immigrated to the United States in 1951. It has been over sixty years since he last saw some of the folks who returned for this reunion. Iacobucci was grateful to Mayor Foglietta and Raniero Montini for their kindness and hospitality in making the reunion possible, reuniting friends and relatives after so many years.

Anita's Baked Elbows With Cherry Tomatoes And Broccoli

While having lunch with my sister-in-law Anita, we were talking about food, what else? And she told me of an easy pasta recipe that she had cooked for her family that got raves.

And when I tried it for my family, they also enjoyed it.

I made it earlier in the day and just had to bake it at dinner time.

BAKED ELBOWS WITH CHERRY TOMATOES

1 pound of elbows (or rotini)
2 cups broccoli florets (steamed until tender)
½ pound cherry tomatoes (cut in halves)
3 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves of garlic

CREAM SAUCE

2 cups shredded cheese (any favorite)
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

Melt the butter and make a roux with the flour. Add milk slowly until mixture thickens. Set aside.

In a skillet, heat the olive oil and sauté the garlic. Add the cherry tomatoes and sauté for a couple of minutes. Set aside.

Cook the pasta according to directions. In a greased baking pan. Place the pasta, half of the broccoli and some of the shredded cheese.

Pour some of the cream sauce over that.

Make layers until done. Top it with the tomatoes and more of the cheese.

Bake in a 350-degree oven until done.

Cranberry, Almond Scones

Today's recipe for scones is rich, buttery and so delicious especially if served with a favorite jam.

Scones are a favorite with so many of us, and today's recipe contains cranberries and almonds, also favorites.

CRANBERRY, ALMOND SCONES

3 ½ cups all purpose flour
4 ½ teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup of cold butter
3 eggs
2/3 cup light cream
¾ cup fresh cranberries

½ cup toasted sliced almonds

Preheat oven to 425-degrees.

In a large bowl, mix the flour, baking powder and sugar. With a pastry blender, cut in the butter until fairly smooth. In another bowl, beat the eggs until fluffy. Stir in the cream.

Make a well in the center of the dry ingredients and pour in the egg mixture and mix well. Drop in the cranberries and almonds, reserving a few for the topping.

Place in greased muffin tins, sprinkle the top with a few almonds, and bake for 25 minutes.

Atherton Hough PTO Octoberfest To Feature 'Rock Island Sound' Oct. 12

The Atherton Hough PTO's third annual Octoberfest will feature the music of "Rock Island Sound", the band that was a big hit at the Houghs Neck Community Council's recent Chowdapest.

The adults-only event is Friday, Oct. 12, from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Sons Of Italy on Quarry Street.

The night will include dancing, silent auction, raffles, snacks and a cash bar.

The PTO hopes to use all funds raised to provide new technology for each classroom.

Tickets are $20 each and can be purchased at the door.

Open House, Tour At Lyons Turning Mill Oct. 13 To Highlight Archaeology Month

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum will participate in the Massachusetts Historical Commission's "Features of the Past" in conjunction with Massachusetts Archaeology Month 2012.

The quarry museum will open the site and conduct tours of the turning mill remains.

The open house and tour will take place Saturday, Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lyons Turning Mill, Quarry Hills Drive, off Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy.

Rain date (if required) is Saturday, Oct. 20.

Visitors touring the site will view artifacts scattered throughout the site, including columns in various stages of production. There will also be historical pictures of the mill and its operations in 1893 producing the granite products the mill was known for.

View the Lyons Quarry where granite was quarried and used to produce the granite products manufactured at the mill.

A site model of the turning mill and the proposed quarry museum will also be on display.

The Lyons Turning Mill was built in 1893 by James

Lyons to produce monuments and products of granite for the building trades of that era. A specialty of the company was the turning and polishing of solid granite balls up to six feet in diameter. An example is the "Granite Gazing Ball" located near the entrance of Quincy City Hall.

Columns up to 22 feet in length and 3 feet in diameter could also be turned and polished at the mill. At the turn of the century, about 80 men were employed consisting of quarrymen, stonemasons, machine operators and engineers all skilled granite workers.

Quincy Catholic Academy 'Dress-Down Day' Benefits Pancreatic Cancer Research

Quincy Catholic Academy recently sponsored a $1 dress-down day to benefit The Lustgarten Foundation for Pancreatic Cancer Research, where 100 percent of every donation goes toward research.

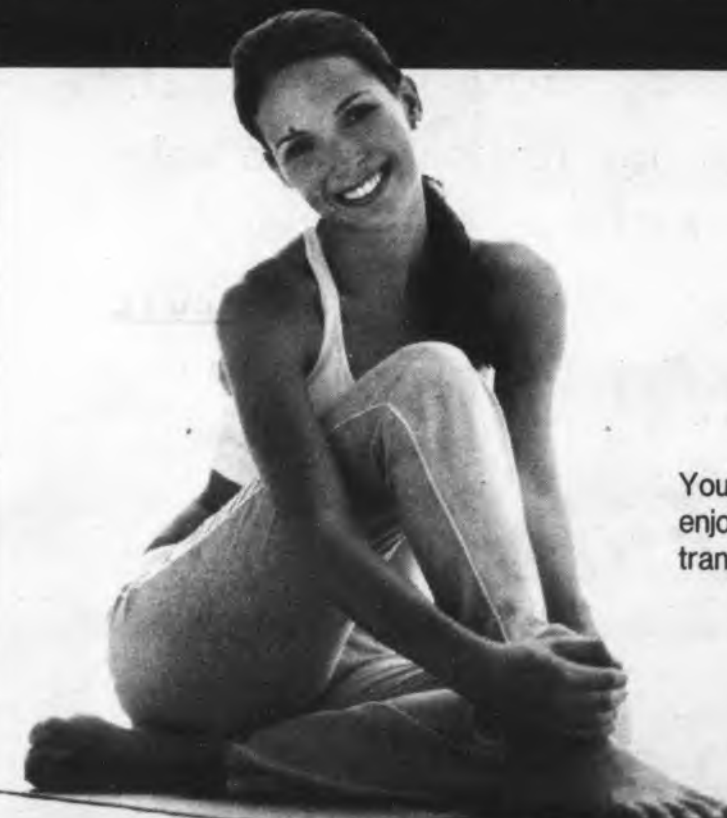

Students were invited to dress in their favorite clothes if they brought in a $1 or more donation.

"Thanks to our charitable families, we were able to raise over $300," said Principal Catherine Cameron.

The Lustgarten Foundation was created in 1998 to advance the scientific and medical research related to the diagnostic, treatment, cure, and prevention of pancreatic cancer.

To date, the Foundation has provided more than $42 million in support of breakthrough research to find early detection methods, better treatments, and ultimately, a cure. Major projects include sequencing the genome of pancreatic cancers and an early detection initiative to develop a blood test to detect the disease.

Quincy Catholic Academy is a Roman Catholic School enrolling students in pre-kindergarten through grade 8.

Sweet Bridget Gardiner Holds Lemonade Stand 9-Year-Old Raises Over $200 For Ovarian Cancer

By EMILY TAFT

Nine-year-old Bridget Gardiner of Quincy decided last month that she wanted to help her family raise money for ovarian cancer, so she opened a lemonade stand.

"It was important to me because it was my first time supporting cancer," said Gardiner. "It was for a good cause and the money goes towards helping people get better."

After seven hours at her lemonade stand asking for donations Gardiner raised $220 from the over 30 people who stopped to give what they could.

"People would stop if they were walking by or if they were driving by in their cars. We would bring the lemonade and cookies right up to their cars so they wouldn't have to get out," said Gardiner. "I was so surprised to get such large donations from people. One person came and gave me $20 and they didn't even want the lemonade or cookies."

Gardiner decided to open the stand to help her family raise money for the National Ovarian Cancer Coalition walk they were participating in.

"I was just very touched that she came up with this idea," said mom Mary. "It just brought tears to my eyes. It was so touching."

Gardiner said the main reason for opening the stand was to show her support for her grandmother, who was diagnosed with ovarian cancer in January. After losing one grandmother to cancer, Gardiner said she wants to do anything and everything she can to keep the only grandmother she has left.

"I will do everything I can to keep this Grammy," Gardiner said.

Gardiner, along with her family, made up a 20-person group, appropriately titled Grammy's Gang, and with Gardiner's help they raised over $5,500 in just four weeks. The group, wearing teal (the color symbolizing ovarian cancer) walked five miles on Sept. 9th at Carson Beach in South Boston.

Bill McCarthy, Gardiner's grandfather, said that when he heard of what his nine-year-old granddaughter had done he was surprised.

"When her mother called to tell me to stop by the house that day and see what Bridget was doing I was sur-

Rx Collection Day A Success

Four large boxes of over-the-counter and prescription drugs were collected at Saturday's drug take back day held at police headquarters.

The event, hosted by Mayor Tom Koch's Substance Abuse Task Force in partnership with Impact Quincy and the federal Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) took place Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Arlene Goldstein, Impact Quincy's program coordinator, said the event was a success.

"It was a successful event," Goldstein said. "To fill up four of these boxes, it takes a lot of stuff."

The take back day, part of the DEA's National Prescription Take-Back Day, has been held twice a year for the past several years.

Goldstein said Saturday's collections were similar to those at previous take back days. She was happy about that because she thinks more people have been using a drop off bin in the police station itself more regularly.

"I'm happy because more and more people are using the med return unit," Goldstein said.

At the end of Saturday's collection, police officers hauled away eight large garbage bags full of drugs that had been deposited into the med return unit. Drugs collected Saturday and those in the bags were all sent to Cape Cod to be incinerated.

Goldstein said residents should continue to drop off OTC and prescription medications at the med return unit, which resembles a large mail box and is located inside the police station's lobby and is available at all times. Those with prescription meds should remove the label, or black out their name, to ensure privacy.

Disposing of medications through the collection day or the med return unit is preferable to other disposal methods such as simply flushing them down the toilet. That is especially dangerous because the drugs can find their way into the water supply.

"Flushing them interferes with groundwater," Goldstein said. "There's no easy way of getting rid of drugs, but you don't want them in the water supply."

'Humbling And Overwhelming Experience' Pastor Nathan Pipo Marks 10th Anniversary At Good Shepherd Church

By SCOTT JACKSON

For Rev. Nathan Pipo, a party celebrating his 10th anniversary at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church was a humbling experience.

The party was held at the Tirrell Room earlier this month. During it, members of Pipo's congregation told the pastor how he had touched their lives during his decade of service.

"It was a very overwhelming and humbling — kind of a surreal experience," Pipo said. "I would describe it a Comedy Central roast and a political convention."

Pipo said he was most moved when a video clip played at the party. In it, a former church member now living in Florida thanked the pastor for helping him out eight years ago when he was going through a rough stretch. The clip helped Pipo realize the impact he had on others.

"It really just strikes me that none of us know the impact we have on others," Pipo said. "I was blessed to know that impact I had."

Pipo, known to his congregants as Pastor Nathan, grew up in Iowa and graduated from Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa. In 2002, he received his masters degree in divinity from the Lutheran Theological Seminary at Philadelphia. In August of that year Good Shepherd voted call Pipo as their new minister. He was ordained that September and his installation was celebrated two months later.

Now a resident of North Quincy, Pipo loves everything the city offers — he enjoys being close to Boston, being in a city environment and not a suburban one, and the access to public transit, for example.

But the pastor is especially happy with Quincy's cultural diversity. To that end, Pipo and Good Shepherd brought in a minister from Hong Kong to help connect with Quincy's Asian community. He's also helped organize block parties and food drives to benefit local organizations.

"In the last 10 years we've put some special events together," Pipo said, referring to the church's charitable endeavors.

For the past several months Pipo's been organizing a bicycle advocacy group that aims to make the new Quincy Center more bike-friendly. The group started meeting in April and held subsequent meetings in May and June. After taking a break for summer, the group begins meeting again today (Thursday) from 6:30-8 p.m. in the City Hall's temporary council chamber.

The club is still trying to get the word out to the bicycling community, but about 40 residents have joined participated in the meetings or bike rides hosted by the club. The club was able to hit the ground running because of the dedication of bicycle riders in the city.

"Bicyclists are already dedicated," Pipo said. "Conditions we're really ripe for us to begin our efforts."

Pipo isn't sure what the future holds, but he's quick to point out that Quincy's Lutheran ministers have a history of staying at one church for decades — Rev.

Dr. Adolph Wismar has been pastor at Wollaston Lutheran Church for nearly 30 years, for example. But Pipo said that no matter what happens, he sees it as a gift from God.

"These past 10 years have been a gift from God. The future will be a gift from God," Pipo said. "My future really is in God's hand. It will be a blessing whatever it is."

Quincy Bridal Shop Celebrating 20 Years In Business

By EMILY TAFT

In 1992, The Bridal Secret in Quincy opened its doors to a line of soon-to-be brides waiting in a blizzard in hopes to find the perfect dress.

Now, 20 years later, the off-the-rack designer wedding gown shop is still going strong and giving brides all over the South Shore something to talk about.

"My business is a very personal and emotional business, and we are only dealing with women," said owner Judy Riegelhaupt. "Women talk about everything and anything, positively and negatively. In my business a lot of the success is due to many of my previous and current clients. When a bride has a happy experience she is happy to tell the world."

Riegelhaupt said that the secret behind the Bridal Secret is that her shop sells off the rack designer gowns unlike the usual bridal store.

"The secret is that I sell brand new dresses off-the-rack. The normal bridal store, you go in try on samples and order them. So that's my secret that you come in here, find a beautiful dress, and that's the dress you're buying."

Riegelhaupt, who has worked in retail since she was 16, said opening her own shop is something she just fell into. The Bridal Secret, which is located on Cottage Avenue, originally opened as a bridal consignment shop, and Riegelhaupt said she had a different idea for the name but after finding out the name she planned on was already taken she decided to go with the name a friend had suggested.

"I actually wanted 'I do, I do' (for the name) because when I first opened I started as a consignment store, but it was already registered as a corporation. My friend's aunt actually came up with the name (The Bridal Secret)," said Riegelhaupt. "As my business grew, and people started to find out about me, not just the general public, other bridal stores found out about me and started calling me asking me if I wanted to buy some of their stock. So as my business grew, I started purchasing stock as apposed to consigning it. Then once I built up a big enough reputation I stopped doing consignment all together, so it would be confusing now if I had that name."

JUDY RIEGELHAUPT, owner of The Bridal Secret located on Cottage Avenue in Quincy. The shop sells designer bridal dresses and offers a variety of accessories for brides.

Being in the business of bridal gowns, Riegelhaupt has seen her fair share of evolving fashion trends throughout the years.

"Fashion is only repeated history," said Riegelhaupt. "Everything is a trend. In fashion the key to remember is things come in waves and circles. With bridal dresses there is always something new every season, it may not be trend setting; it may not be the hugest next new thing. Things like embellishments or a detail on the dress sometimes becomes the trend. The details and the embellishments really are what make a gown pop. The beautiful crystal bead work, or some beautiful lace detailing, those kind of things are what makes the dress."

Throughout the years Riegelhaupt said that she has had brides-to-be asking for the 'it' dresses of the moment, most recently with a certain dress from the royal wedding.

"I can not tell you how many people came in and said, 'I want a dress like Pippa Middleton's,'" said Riegelhaupt. "Before you even get an appointment here I interview you. I ask you what your looking for, what you think your looking for, what your size range is, what your budget is. So I know what people are looking for before they hit the door."

Riegelhaupt said that one big change in bridal fashion she has seen over the years is what brides are wearing on their feet. She said more and more brides are wearing colored shoes, open toed shoes, and even cowboy boots but that there is still the popular heels as well.

Although Riegelhaupt has a few part time employees, a lot of pressure is on her because she is the only one who does all of the sewing and fittings for each bride.

"Being in this business is a huge amount of pressure and a huge amount of obligation because I am working on a really tight time frame," said Riegelhaupt. "I can have 10 brides all for the same date, sometimes more than 10. Every bride needs three fittings, and I can't fall behind and get backed up, because it's not like you can ask a bride to change her wedding date."

Although she can be under a lot of pressure (especially during the summer months), Riegelhaupt must be doing something right because she has received awards for Brides Choice since 2009 from Wedding Wire, the Best Wedding Dresses in Boston in 2010 and 2012, and the Best of the Knot Weddings in 2010.

Riegelhaupt said that it is her brides who make her job and the long hours worthwhile.

"I love working with brides," Riegelhaupt. "I love what I do, and I love fashion. I am lucky that I have the nicest, sweetest women as customers. It sounds really corny but they put a lot of faith and trust in me, and I love being able to live up to their expectations. I love knowing that she (the bride) left, off to be married, and she is thrilled with her experience here."

GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

SIMPLY BEAUTIFUL

When a certain young, billionaire, Internet social-network mogul decided to give his fiancée a beautifully tasteful ruby engagement ring, many mistook its simplicity for frugality. After all, as the media wags surmised, wouldn't a diamond be more appropriately expensive? The short answer is no. The fact is that high-quality rubies can be far more rare and valuable than most diamonds. As far as the 2.75- to 3-carat ruby in question, if it's of high-quality Burmese pedigree, it could easily be worth up to $100,000. Furthermore, the medical-school-graduate recipient of the ruby in question is of Asian descent. Her culture places high emotional value on rubies for their unparalleled red color. Rubies also symbolize wisdom. We agree with the wise choice!

The intense reds of a ruby ring burn with an undying passion making it a beautiful and lavish gift that will never be forgotten. City Continues Efforts To Attract Biotech, Life Science Companies Here

The City of Quincy is continuing its aggressive efforts to attract Biotech and Life Science companies to locate in the community.

The city is a co-sponsor of the Massachusetts Pavilion at the AdvaMed Conference held Monday through Wednesday at the Boston Convention Center. AdvaMed 2012 is one of the largest conferences for medical device companies, and will include national and international organizations from across the Globe.

Through a partnership between Mayor Thomas Koch and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, the city has initiated a multi-year marketing strategy to attract this industry sector to the city of Quincy. The city unveiled a new brochure and video in June and was a co-sponsor of the Massachusetts Pavilion at BIO International held in Boston.

In addition to the Quincy Chamber, a variety of private entities have provided financial support and resources towards this initiative. These entities include The Flatley Company, Mr. Daniel Quirk (Fore River Shipyard), Street-Works / Beal Partnership and Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance.

"The city of Quincy is a very attractive and cost effective alternative to Boston and Cambridge, and we are encouraged by the response we have received from industry leaders thus far," Koch said.

Quincy has a platinum rating by MassBio, the highest rating for a community seeking to attract and support biotechnology companies. The Platinum rating means the community has features such as commercial sites designated for biotech uses, streamlined permitting, and abundant sewer and water capabilities.

In addition, Quincy has adopted the National Institutes of Health Guidelines on rDNA Research providing a predictable environment that welcomes biotechnology facility projects.

Quincy has a variety of site location options for small Biotech start-ups, expanding mid-sized ventures, or seasoned Life Science companies looking of a large campus style setting. Companies looking for attractive lease rates; easy access to national and international markets; quality infrastructure; and a first class environment to attract a quality workforce.

"Companies are taking notice of our attractive leasing rates, convenient transportation, affordable housing and great recreational and cultural opportunities and it is only a matter of time for the biotech and life science industry cluster to have a more prominent presence in Quincy," said Dean Rizzo, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

For more information on the City of Quincy's Biotech Initiative visit www.thequincychamber.com or contact the Mayor's office at (617) 376-1991.

Plea Agreement Includes 7 Years Probation Quincy Man Serving Seventh-Month Sentence

By SCOTT JACKSON

A member of a prominent Quincy family began a seven-month prison sentence Monday after reaching a plea agreement on attempted murder charges with a special prosecutor last week.

Robert O'Connell, son of Quincy businessman Peter O'Connell, pleaded guilty in Norfolk Superior Court last Tuesday to one count each of armed assault with intent to murder and assault and battery with a deadly weapon.

Under terms of the deal, he was sentenced to two and half years in prison with one year to serve on the assault and battery with a deadly weapon charge. He will only serve seven months, however, because he gets credit for serving five months in home confinement. The remainder of the two and half year term will be suspended for seven years.

On the count of assault with intent to murder O'Connell will serve seven years probation. Any violation of the terms of probation will result in a mandatory minimum sentence of five years in prison. O'Connell's terms of probation include mandatory psychological treatment and he must relinquish any firearms and any weapons licenses, and cannot seek any weapons permits.

Andrew Berman, the special prosecutor trying the case, said his office reached the plea agreement at the behest of O'Connell's victim, Joseph Fasano. Berman said Fasano was adamant about not wanting to testify in the case.

"He repeatedly told me he was very concerned about the issues that would come out in the trial," Berman told the Sun in a phone interview last week. "He adamantly expressed to me that his wishes were for us to come to a plea agreement."

Berman added that Fasano was okay with the seven months O'Connell will serve, and the victim spoke in favor of it in court.

"He was in full agreement with it," Berman said.

The shooting occurred just before midnight on Dec. 13, 2009 on Commander Shea Boulevard. Fasano and O'Connell pulled up next to each other on the street after exiting an off ramp. Fasano left his vehicle and approached O'Connell, and O'Connell shot him in the stomach with a .45 caliber handgun from about 15 feet away.

Fasano, a Milton firefighter and Afghan War veteran, needed emergency surgery and was in a coma for five or six days; the bullet pierced his liver and lodged in his back. Berman said Fasano only recently began feeling fully recuperated.

Berman, an attorney for Simonds, Winslow, Willis & Abbott, was brought on as a special prosecutor in the case because of Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey's past dealings with the O'Connell family when Morrissey was a state senator. Berman is also prosecuting a case against O'Connell's uncle, William O'Connell, who is facing statutory rape and drug charges.

Titled Kilt Appeal Before ABCC Dec. 12

Andrew Scheele, the board's co-chairman. Over 20 residents spoke to the board voicing their opinions on the restaurant and the attire their waiters and waitresses would be required to wear.

Seventeen people spoke against the license, three in favor, and one spoke as a neutral party during the August meeting. The board also received a number of petitions signed by more than 400 citizens against the proposal.

According to the letter the Commission, in some cases, has the power to suspend, modify, revoke or cancel licenses. Decisions by the ABCC are posted within 30 days of the hearing.

If the ABCC approves of the decision the license board made the owners of Titled Kilt can then appeal the ABCC's decision to the superior court within 30 days of receipt of the decision.

If the ABCC disapproves of the actions made by the license board they will recommend further action. The board then must take the recommended action within five days of receipt of the ABCC's decision. They then decide whether they want to continue with their original decision or implement the recommendations from the ABCC. If the board decides to stay with their original decision the owners of the Titled Kilt may file a suit against them in court or they may reappeal to the ABCC within five days.

QCAP 'Best Chef' Challenge Tonight

Quincy Community Action Program, Inc. (QCAP) invites guests to cook up some fun at its "Best Chef" fundraising event tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m. at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

The competition pits some of the area's most venerated chefs against each other in a battle of culinary skills. The event, hosted by Jenny Johnson, co-host of NECN's TV Diner, features the talents of Chef Paul Wahlberg of Alma Nove and Wahlburgers; Chef Tom Coleman of The Fat Cat; Chef David Todisco of the Tavern at Quarry Hills; Chef Hao Ming Cao of Fuji 1546; Chef Marc Vierbickas from Siro's, Port 305, and Blue; and Quincy School Committee member Barbara Isola, host of QATV's "Into the Frying Pan."

The chefs will use portable cooking stations at the event as they vie for the title of "Best Chef." The challenge: The chefs will not know their cooking ingredients until the competition begins that night. Styled after the popular television show, "Chopped," they will open up baskets to reveal secret ingredients and will have 45 minutes to create their dish. They will serve up their creations for a panel of judges and be judged on several criteria including taste, originality, and plating. The chef with the most points will be crowned "Best Chef."

As an added twist: The secret ingredients will typically food given out at QCAP's own Emergency Food Center, which provides food and other items to thousands of low-income residents and families each year. QCAP provides clients with monthly food orders, comprised of donated goods from the Greater Boston Food Bank, local grocers, and private donors. After the event, all of the chefs' recipes will be shared with the Food Center clients and the public.

The night will also feature raffles and live and silent auctions. Event proceeds will benefit QCAP programs.

Major sponsors include Bank of Canton, Stop & Shop, State Street, the Law Office of George Burke, Eastern Bank, Loomis, Sayles & Company, Munder Capital, Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehan, Mutual of America, and Rockland Trust, among others.

For more information on QCAP and to purchase tickets, visit www.qcap.org.

DOVE, Inc. (Domestic Violence Ended) has relocated its community services office, which recently re-opened as Community Advocacy and Prevention Services, with a ribbon-cutting ceremony and Open House Sept. 13.

More than 100 guests attended, including of community friends and supporters, local service providers, public officials, and donors and funders.

Speakers at the event included Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, Eastern Nazarene College Provost and Dean of the College, Dr. Timothy T. Wooster, and DOVE, Inc. Board President, Stuart Murphy, who each remarked about the importance of DOVE's mission and important services.

"It is unfortunate we are all here today, but fortunately we have a new space to welcome people who've been hurt and abused to begin their healing process," Murphy said.

Koch remarked on the longstanding and continued partnership the City of Quincy has had with DOVE. "These [DOVE's] services will continue to build healthy communities, and the City is fortunate to have an agency such as DOVE, Inc."

Sue Chandler, DOVE's executive director, added:

"We want our new home to be a sanctuary for victims to seek and find comfort and help, and we also want it to increasingly become a house of action, where we can invite supporters and community members in, to become involved with us in various efforts all toward the same end: supporting victims to become survivors, and working together to see domestic violence ended."

DOVE received financial and in-kind contributions from the following to support the office's relocation and set-up:

- Eastern Nazarene College
- Quincy Medical Center: underwrote the costs of the actual move
- Curry Hardware: prep and paint supplies
- Pyne Construction: donation and installation of a secure door in the entryway
- Boston PC Networking: refurbished computers
- Tele-Data Services: discounted the cost of the new phone system,

- Royal Health Group: underwrote the purchase of the new phone system
- New England Office Supply: office furniture
- Whatta Bargain of WB Mason: office furniture
- The Bulfinch Group: filing cabinets and office furniture

DOVE, Inc. is committed to partnering with diverse communities, families, and individuals impacted by domestic violence. We promote hope, healing, safety, and social change by providing a broad range of preventive and responsive services.

Over the past year, DOVE has provided emergency shelter to 38 adults and 34 children, answered more than 2,500 hotline calls, provided community-based services to over 900 clients, and educated more than 2,000 teens and community members on the many complex issues surrounding domestic violence.

Over the last 34 years, DOVE has sheltered more than 4,500 families and answered more than 45,000 hotline calls. DOVE provides services in partnership with Quincy, Randolph, and Holbrook Police Departments, as well as in the Quincy District Court, and Norfolk County Probate & Family Court. Services are provided by appointment.

THE TRICK WITH HALLOWEEN TREATS

Nearly all parents have their strategies for doling out Halloween candy to their kids. From many dentists' point of view, it may be better to have children eat all the candy they want in one sitting than to eat rationed amounts over successive days. In terms of oral hygiene, it's better to eat a few candy bars all at once because it is more likely that children will brush afterward. On the other hand, kids may be less likely to brush their teeth after eating one candy bar at a time over the course of a few days, especially if they are not home. In the meantime, teeth are continually bathed in too much sugar for saliva to neutralize.

This informative column has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. We strive to teach good oral hygiene. In the long run you will have better dental health and, of course, spend far fewer dollars. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Pure chocolate dissolves fairly quickly and does not stick to teeth. Raisins, cookies, and gummy candies usually remain stuck between teeth, which poses more of a threat to enamel.

INTERFAITH SOCIAL SERVICES and Keohane Funeral Home sponsor Harvest Helpers as a way to provide fresh produce for Interfaith's food pantry by asking backyard gardeners to grow a row of vegetables or offer extra produce for donation to the food pantry. John Keohane (left), co-president of Keohane Funeral Home, hands freshly picked vegetables from the garden at the Quincy funeral home to Rick Doane, executive director of Interfaith Social Services, while Joe Reardon, vice president of the Keohane Funeral Home, looks on.

Fresh Produce Sought For Food Drive

With an overwhelming need for healthy food donations, and the fall harvest season upon us, Keohane Funeral Home and Interfaith Social Services are looking for individuals throughout the South Shore to donate fresh produce to local food pantries.

This food drive is a part of Interfaith's Harvest Helpers program which Keohane Funeral Home has been sponsoring for the past three years. Harvest Helpers organizes backyard gardeners and community groups who donate fresh local produce to food pantries. This year Interfaith is hoping to receive even more fresh produce from local farmers, since the number of those in need of healthful foods has increased.

"Harvest Helpers is a great way to spread awareness about healthy eating habits amongst Interfaith's emergency food recipients," said John Keohane, funeral home co-president. While fall is traditionally the season of "Can Drives" Interfaith and Keohane are hoping to shift that focus to fresh produce.

"If a school or a church group is collecting food one morning that they plan on delivering to our food pantry that afternoon, we hope that people will donate apples and oranges, and broccoli," said Rick Doane, Interfaith's executive director. "Those are the types of healthy food that our clients need."

Fresh food choices would be beneficial to all who require help from Interfaith. Karen of Quincy is a senior citizen living on a limited income and a food pantry client. She just found out that she has Diabetes and thinks it would be great for Interfaith to have more health conscious foods available to patrons. "Harvest Helpers is a wonderful and very helpful program because most people don't understand how important fresh food is to your body."

Keohane and Doane are both encouraging local farmers and backyard gardeners who may have extra produce this season to donate in support of "your neighbors in need." Donations will be accepted at Interfaith Social Services, 105 Adams St. in Quincy and Keohane Funeral Home 785 Hancock St in Quincy.

For more information or to schedule a drop off time for a donation, contact Interfaith Social Services at 617-773-6203 or the funeral home at 617-773-3551.

Wollaston School Harvest Festival Oct. 13

The Wollaston School Harvest Festival will be held Saturday, Oct. 13 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school, 205 Beale St.

The Harvest Festival will feature food, games, raffles, crafts, a silent auction, and entertainment.

All proceeds from the Harvest Festival will benefit academic programs, purchase classroom supplies, software, and library books, and fund field trips and in-school assemblies at the school.

This year, the festival will include kids' activities such as bouncy obstacle courses, face painting and dancing. Performances are expected from a variety of neighbor-

At The Tirrell Room

Interfaith Social Services 4th Annual Oktoberfest Oct. 12

Interfaith Social Services will be hosting the fourth annual South Shore Oktoberfest Friday Oct. 12 from 6:30 p.m. to 12 a.m. at the Tirrell Room, 254 Quarry St., Quincy.

Traditional German food, live entertainment and Oktoberfest beer will be served. Bar games, great raffles and silent auction items will keep everyone entertained throughout the night.

This is a 21+ event with a full cash bar, proper ID is required. Attire is casual. Tickets cost $25 at the door or purchased in advance for $20. Tickets can be bought online at www.interfaithsocialservices.com, over the phone by calling Paula at 617-773-6203 or by mail with a check made out to Interfaith Social Services, Attention: Quincy Oktoberfest, 105 Adams Street, Quincy, MA 02169. If purchasing tickets by mail, please include a note with a return address so tickets can be mailed out.

The Quincy Elks, 8th Masonic District and Braintree Moose are making this all happen to help fund the amazing programs that Interfaith Social Services provide the South Shore community throughout the year.

This October, Unchained Pizza at 550 Adams St., Quincy will be donating $2 from the sale of each large Oktoberfest Pizza it sells to Interfaith Social Services.

The seasonal delicacy is topped with sausage, peppers, and onion rings. Celebrate the season, have some great pizza, and help feed hungry South Shore residents all at the same time!

John Magraw, the owner of Unchained Pizza, received a flier about the South Shore Oktoberfest and contacted Rick Doane Executive Director of Interfaith Social Services.

"One of the guys at the store came up with the idea of an Oktoberfest Pizza last week. Well, when I got your reminder about Oktoberfest, it clicked that we might be able to do a tie-in to help benefit Interfaith," he stated.

Doane presented the idea to the South Shore Oktoberfest committee who enthusiastically endorsed the promotion. "The South Shore Oktoberfest Committee and Interfaith are ecstatic that so many people like John Magraw are looking for ways to help our neighbors in need here on the South Shore," he stated.

Interfaith Social Services is a multiservice center for families and individuals in need. Since 1947 Interfaith has endeavored to strengthen family life and offer assistance to residents of Massachusetts' South Shore region by feeding, clothing and comforting disadvantaged local residents.

hood organizations, including Irish and traditional dancing, yoga demonstrations and more. And for the first time, the "Wollaston Midway" will be open on Taylor Street, featuring carnival games with prizes.

A silent auction will feature sports memorabilia, rounds of golf, tickets to sporting events, and goods and services from local businesses including restaurants, spas, hotels, and retailers.

The Harvest Festival is sponsored by the parents and staff of the Wollaston

School, in conjunction with many local businesses and community leaders. Those interested in becoming a Harvest Festival sponsor, or making a donation, should contact the Wollaston School PTO by calling 617-984-8791.

Your Health, Your Choice – Medicare Open Enrollment

By RAYMOND HURD, Acting Regional Administrator Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, Boston
Regional Office

Reminders – what would we do without them? Whether it's the Outlook calendar pop-up letting me know my next meeting is in 15 minutes or the handwritten note with a list of "to-dos," reminders help me keep track of the important little details in an extremely busy world.

I am reaching out to seniors in Massachusetts with an important reminder about your most valuable asset, your health. Open Enrollment for Medicare health and drug plans begins on Oct. 15 and ends on Dec. 7.

To prepare, you should begin assessing your current Medicare plan with your health needs. It's important to evaluate your Medicare plan each year even if you are happy with your current plan. A simple change in your health status could mean that your healthcare needs would be better served through a different Medicare plan. The opportunity to make changes to your plan only comes once a year and now is the time to begin evaluating what, if any, changes you would like to make.

After you have examined your health and identified your needs, you should gather information about Medicare health and drug plans and compare them to determine which plan is right for you. The Medicare Plan Finder, available at www.Medicare.gov, is a great resource to help you evaluate plan options. On this site, you are able to compare quality summary ratings for health plans, identify which drugs may or may not be restricted on a plan's formulary and compare the cost ranges for plans available in your community.

Fortunately, Medicare today is stronger than ever and the result is a program with better benefits and more options. As you prepare for Medicare Open Enrollment, you may want to consider the benefits that are now available. Annual wellness visits are free and provide an opportunity to sit with your doctor and discuss health and wellness issues that are essential to maintaining a healthy lifestyle. Medicare covers many preventive services including screenings for cancer, diabetes or glaucoma as well as flu shots and tobacco cessation.

Average premiums for Medicare prescription drug coverage will not rise in 2013 and premiums for Medicare health plans are expected to drop an average of 4%. If you are a Medicare beneficiary with high drug costs and you reach the "donut hole," you will receive 50% discounts on brand-name drugs each time you fill a prescription. If you have a limited income, you may qualify for "Extra Help." "Extra Help" is a program that helps pay the costs of Medicare prescription drug coverage.

This is a small snapshot of the options available to you. Be on the lookout for an updated Medicare & You handbook coming in the mail, which will provide more information about health plans and Open Enrollment.

If you prefer to speak with someone about your options face-to-face, it might be worthwhile to visit your local State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) office. Counseling is free and the toll free number in Massachusetts is 1-800-243-4636. A list of SHIP offices in your community as well as the Medicare & You handbook can both be found online at www.Medicare.gov. You may also call 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227) for more information.

Mark your calendars, write a note or cut-out and post this article on your refrigerator. Remind yourself in whatever way works for you that Medicare Open Enrollment begins on Oct. 15 and ends on Dec. 7. Start taking control of your healthcare decisions today.

Discover, Explore At Social Security Website

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

With Columbus Day in October, now is the season to explore and discover. Hop aboard, and discover a new world of service at www.socialsecurity.gov.

There is so much you can learn and so many things you can do on Social Security's website. Information on retirement, survivors, disability, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), and Medicare are easily accessible on Social Security's homepage. But the website offers much more.

You can apply online for Social Security retirement benefits. Not sure whether you're ready to retire? We can help you plan ahead and chart your course with our online benefit planners. Perhaps the most impressive of these planners is the online Retirement Estimator, which you can use to get quick and personalized estimates of your retirement benefits based on different scenarios.

Don't Let Identity Thieves Trick You

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Halloween is a time when many people like a good scare. Whether it's a frightening costume party or a horrifying haunted house, kids and grown-ups alike line up for a good fright. What makes it enjoyable is that it's all in good fun. People know that there is no real danger as long as precautions are taken.

During the days before Halloween, it also happens to be National Protect Your Identity Week — from October 20 to 27.

Identity theft is a real threat. Identity thieves victimize millions of people each year. Don't be tricked by identity thieves; take the proper precautions.

Be sure to safeguard your personal information, such as your Social Security number and mother's maiden name. Identity thieves hunger for such information like trick-or-treaters hunger for candy.

You can help protect yourself by not carrying your Social Security card with you and not providing your personal information to unknown sources over the Internet or by email. Be sure to shred any documents, bills, or paperwork before you throw it away. Most important, never reply to an email claiming to be from Social Security that asks you for your Social Security number or other personal information.

If you think you've been the victim of an identity thief, you should contact the Federal Trade Commission at 1-877-IDTHEFT (1-877-438-4338); TTY 1-866-653-4261. Or you go to www.idtheft.gov and click on the link for "Report Identity Theft."

Learn more about identity theft at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10064.html.

If you want to get involved with Protect Your Identity Week, visit www.protectyouridnow.org.

Don't fall victim to an identity thief. Safeguard your identity and take precautions to keep the "bad guys" at bay—during Protect Your Identity Week, Halloween, and throughout the year.

Council Votes 8-1 For Presidents' City Inn Renovations

in the Presidents' City Inn being rebranded as a Howard Johnson's hotel, would help reduce problems there.

"I agree, obviously, police calls are troubling," Hughes said. "The best way to work to get these down is to affiliate with a chain that has stricter, more stringent guidelines for the hotel."

Councillor Doug Gutro, previously a Ward 5 councillor, also conceded that police calls have been an issue. But he said Sangani has done his best over the past six years to try and correct the problem.

"There are problems in terms of police calls," Gutro said. "The property owner, mind you, for six years has been trying to upgrade the property - not simply the facilities, but the clientele. He's trying to add security and deal with the issues that have concerned the Police Department. He's succeeded in some ways and failed in others, and he'll admit that."

Gutro then cited long-time neighborhood resident J. Thomas Mullaney's support for the project at a hearing last week as proof that the motel's problems never trickled into the surrounding neighborhood. He added that people from the former Saint Ann's School, which was located near the hotel, felt the same way as Mullaney.

"We had Mr. Mullaney here who lives on Standish Ave who has been a neighborhood watchdog for many decades," Gutro said. "Interestingly, while the police calls may tell the story about what transpired at the property, if you talk to the neighbors, or if you talk to the former administrators, students, and parents of Saint Ann's School, those problems never seemed to bleed into the neighborhood. I never had it as a problem."

Gutro added that during his tenure as a ward councillor, he received more complaints about the car wash next to Presidents' City Inn than he did the motel itself, though the carwash owner was able to address many of the concerns.

The city had considered taking the property of both the hotel and carwash for Central's construction but didn't. Because the city chose not to take the property, Gutro said that an upgrade was the only other way to improve the situation.

"Either we take it or we upgrade it is the way I see it," Gutro said. "Leaving it as is is not really in the interest of anyone."

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin

Coughlin expressed a similar sentiment. He noted comparable issues existed at the Carlton House in North Quincy, which a new owner successfully upgraded into the Best Western Adams Inn.

"You either make it better or make it go away," Coughlin said. "Those who have been around a long time may remember the Carlton House down on the shores of the Neponset River. The subsequent property owners transformed that; we now have the wonderful Best Western Adams Inn hotel there, which is aligned with a national franchise. In that instance, we didn't make it go away. We made it better."

During the meeting, councillors did suggest two amendments to the permit that they thought would help with safety concerns. Hughes suggested an amendment mandating all visitors pay by credit card, and Palmucci suggested one prohibiting long-term stays. But City Solicitor Jim Timmins said the council lacked the authority to pass either one. Ed Fleming, Sangani's attorney, did add that his client already prohibits first-time visitors from paying in cash.

The council did approve six amendments to the permit. The first four, all proposed by Hughes, are meant to negate the effect the hotel's expansion will have on Newton Avenue residents. They call for the planting mature arborescences that are at least six feet tall along the property line, repair of the fence bordering the Newton Avenue residences, the use of opaque windows in rooms facing the neighborhood, and a 'residential exterior' on the side closest to Newton Avenue.

A fifth amendment by Hughes forces the applicant to address drainage issues outlined in a peer review before the new hotel is granted an occupancy license. The final amendment, proposed by Gutro, calls on the hotel's contractor to coordinate with Central's contractor to ensure the school's construction wouldn't be interfered with.

Once completed, the 847 Hancock St. hotel will have 59 rooms; it currently has 37. The size of the building will increase from 13,500 square feet to about 32,000, mostly because of a new hallway that will enclose all the hotel's rooms. Fleming said Monday night that the renovations would cost about $1 million.

Dam Money Sought For Seawall Repairs

2009 Department of Conservation report highlighted about two dozen areas that needed repair in Quincy, which would cost an estimated total of $40 million to fix. Some of the repairs will be addressed by Mayor Tom Koch's capital improvement plan (CIP), but the city has no other way of funding repairs that were not included in the CIP.

"In 2009 the state did a comprehensive assessment of seawalls, jetties, groins, revetments all across the state and it itemized the needs of in the city of Quincy and all other coastal communities," Gutro explained. "It tabulated I think two dozen locations in Quincy, including some that the mayor has incorporated in the capital improvement bond that we have already moved forward on.

"But there are many others we have not. And there is no federal, no state funding source currently so cities and towns are forced to grapple with figuring out how best to pay for it."

Laforest, chairwoman of the council's public works committee, said it was important for the city to find any funding source possible to pay for seawall repairs. Currently, some of the money from the city's hotel/motel tax receipts goes towards repairs.

"The costs to repair seawalls are astronomical and any state funding we can leverage to meet these needs is helpful - to parlay these potential moneys with our hotel/motel tax money, which has a provision for seawalls," Laforest said. "We need to look at these creative revenue streams to help us with our long term infrastructure repairs which are needed."

Laforest added that seawall repair would be critical if sea level rises as a result of global climate change.

"With sea level rise being a hot topic of late, this is an area that needs to be addressed on a city-wide level, on a state-wide level," Laforest said. "Having access to a fund to fund these repairs could be critical to getting some of these projects underway."

The council approved the resolution by a unanimous vote. Gutro indicated that Quincy's state house was already supporting Cantwell's amendment.

A Mini-Tour Of Quincy's Historic Hancock Cemetery

Quincy's Historic Hancock Cemetery has a fascinating history and visitors can learn more about the cemetery by reading an introduction and guide published by the Quincy Historical Society.

The guide notes that the cemetery dates from the earliest years of European settlement (1630s) and was the community's main burial ground until 1854. One noteworthy fact: Early Puritans took a pragmatic attitude toward death and burial: grave markers were often permanent or non-existent and cattle roamed freely here.

There are an estimated 700 stones and 2,000 interments in the cemetery.

The cemetery is located on Hancock Street adjacent to City Hall and across the street from United First Parish Church.

The iron fencing that adorns the entrance dates back to 1844.

AMONG THE MANY interesting grave sites at Quincy's Historic Hancock Cemetery in Quincy Center is this one for Colonel John Quincy, who died in 1767. The original marker is located at the right of larger monument. Col. Quincy was the grandfather of Abigail Adams and served more than 30 years in the colonial legislature. In 1792, the town of Quincy was named in his honor.

MINISTERS' TOMB became a collective tomb for First Church's ministers, from Moses Fiske (1708) through Peter Whitney (1843). Also buried here is Rev. John Hancock (1744) who served as church minister from 1726 to his death in 1744. He was the father of the great Patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence, John Hancock.

MARBLE MONUMENT for Josiah Quincy, Jr. (1775) and Abigail Phillips Quincy (1798). Josiah Quincy was a colleague of John Adams in the early patriot causes and his co-counsel at the Boston Massacre trial. He died at age 30 while returning from pleading the American cause in England. The monument to him and his wife was erected and composed by their son, the third Josiah, who served as mayor of Boston and president of Harvard College.

GRAVE SITE OF Henry Adams (1646) is the cemetery's earliest identified grave. Henry Adams was the great-great-grandfather of Second President John Adams. Henry Adams emigrated from England in the first years of the Massachusetts colony.

INTERESTING DESIGNS on some gravestones includes this one for John Cleverly (1703). The gravestone was carved by John Noyes of Boston. This headstone is considered the earliest in New England to feature birds which represent phoenixes (immortality) and peacocks (incorruptibility.)

THIS INTERESTING GRAVESTONE is for Edmund Quincy (1698) who built the original portion of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead located at the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road. Note the headstone's hallowed space. Tradition has it the space housed a lead engraving of the family seal but it was removed during the American Revolution and made into bullets.

TOMB OF John Briesler who died in 1836. A veteran of the Revolutionary War, he later served on the household staff of John and Abigail Adams for nearly 20 years, including the Adams' time in the White House.

NQ Girls Blank Quincy

By COLLEEN CASEY
With freshman forward Marissa McGue leading the way with two goals, the North Quincy girls' soccer team defeated hometown rival Quincy Saturday at Veterans' Stadium, 4-0. The Red Raiders advanced to 7-2-1 while the Presidents fell to 0-5-1.

North wasted no time getting on the board. McGue launched a shot from 30-yards that found the back of the net three minutes into the game.

Keeping the pressure up, McGue struck again five minutes later, this time off a beautiful feed from Shannon McLeary for her 11th goal of the season.

"I was in the right place at the right time. I had the cross from Shannon and I was just there to finish it," said McGue. "It's the girls behind me, that's where it's coming from, I'm just there to finish."

Quincy's defender Kayla McArde tried her best to stop North's attack, and led the defensive effort to stop the Raiders from scoring on three consecutive corner kicks.

But sophomore midfielder Courtney Campo saw an opportunity and quickly moved the ball up the left sideline and knocked it in from 15-yards out with 19:37 remaining in the half.

"We played a great first half, everyone contributed," said North Quincy coach Paul Bregoli. "I think we stunned them in the first half. We spread them out a bit and were able to find some gaps."

Before the break, North had a 3-0 advantage and out shot Quincy 9-1.

Quincy tried a different approach in the second. McArdle switched with forward Olivia Wallace to try and ignite the Presidents' offensive attack.

"They're both aggressive and I wanted to see if one of them could give us an offensive threat," said Quincy coach Courtney Harnais. "Kayla is always sound in the back and she's learning a new position. She did well."

Quincy picked up their intensity but couldn't manage to score. North added one more with less than two minutes remaining. McLeary sent a perfect cross to Danielle Paschall who easily knocked it in. McLeary now has a team-leading 11 assists.

"You can be a goal scorer or you can be a distributor and she's both," said Bregoli of McLeary. "People are really keying on her. As soon as she got the ball people collapsed on her sometimes three. Everyone's trying to take her away but she's finding the open man and we're converting. The last goal was picture perfect."

There was a big change for the Raiders this game. Earlier in the week starting sophomore goalie Rachel O'Driscoll broke her wrist. She'll be out for a few weeks, according to Bregoli.

With O'Driscoll sidelined, senior captain Liz Kelly, who usually plays forward, started in goal.

"Liz is just a great athlete. She's got great hands," said Bregoli. "She's going to rise to the occasion. Just putting her in that position is pressure. You're the last person back there and that's why kids don't like to play goal."

Kelly stopped both shots she had easily to get the shutout.

The North junior varsity squad was also victorious Saturday, as they defeated Quincy 4-0.

Emily Anglehart knocked in two goals and had one assist. Kara Carchedia and Nisreen Abo-Sido also had a goal and an assist. Annie Doherty led the defense, excelling as the stopper to earn the shutout.

Green's 3 TDs Power Presidents Past Durfee

By JEFF OHLSON

The Presidents (2-2) showed their fans a new look in the rain last Friday night, blowing away the Durfee High School Hilltoppers 34-6. Jalen Green had a huge game for the Presidents with three touchdowns and Jaquan Harris added a touchdown of his own in the lopsided victory for Quincy.

Green had TD rushes of three yards, 18 yards and 15 yards in a game in which he ran for over 100 yards for the third time this season. He was shifty all night, using the sloppy conditions to his advantage while Durfee's defense had to rely on unstable footing to help bring him down.

Quincy Coach Bill Reardon said that the rainy weather didn't change his game plan at all.

"We always prefer to run. We know how good Jalen is," said Reardon "How he goes, we go."

Friday night's victory was the second in a row for the Presidents who won an overtime thriller over Plymouth South Sept. 21. Coach Reardon said he loves the effect of a winning streak.

"Two and 0 is better than the alternative. I think we're starting to pick up coverages and assignments and the kids are getting some confidence now, and they are starting to believe in what they are doing. There is no more having to convince kids or fight with kids over things. They can see the results of their hard work," said Reardon.

The Presidents defense was once again opportunistic as they forced three turnovers from the Hilltoppers, one of which came on a completed pass for Durfee JALEN GREEN scored three touchdowns in Quincy's 34-6 romp over Durfee last Friday.

High that Quincy cornerback Tim McDonald defended perfectly by launching himself into the receiver to loge the ball loose and get the Presidents the ball back. Quincy's Peter Cedrone also came up with some big plays, recording multiple sacks, as part of a Presidents front seven that dominated the line of scrimmage.

Even with how good coach Reardon felt about his team coming into the game, he didn't see the blow out coming.

"They looked really good during warm ups, they really just hurt themselves with turnovers and we took advantage...we didn't make a whole lot of mistakes for them to use against us, which is nice," said Reardon. "We were able to take care of business. It was nice, because everyone was contributing, it's good for us, good for team morale."

With an away game coming up tomorrow (Friday) against Malden Catholic, Quincy's first away game since its season opener, Coach Reardon sees only good things coming for the Presidents.

"With every week that goes by, the kids get more and more experience and get more comfortable with what we are doing. Everything we do should become second nature and hopefully that helps with keeping the mistakes down," said Reardon.

IF THE SHOE DOESN'T FIT

We all know that many women suffer for fashion by wearing high-heeled shoes that place their feet and legs in health-compromising positions. It is also well documented that women are very leery of moving up to a shoe size that they consider too large. This propensity to wear shoes that do not fit is not restricted to women, however. In fact, it is estimated that about 25 percent of all adults wear the wrong-size shoes. Part of the problem is that most adults do not realize that their feet grow longer and wider as they age, especially if they gain weight. Moreover, aging feet lose padding and flatten, which renders them more vulnerable to problems arising from wearing too-tight shoes.

At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we draw upon a wealth of knowledge and experience with treating and preventing neck pain. A continuing schedule of regular chiropractic check-ups can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Chiropractors are quick to point out that feet serve as the foundation for the entire body. Problems that adversely affect walking and other weight-bearing activity tend to produce consequences that ripple through the rest of the body.

North Quincy Back On Winning Track

By COLLEEN CASEY

Despite the difficult weather Friday night, the North Quincy football team came out of Arlington with a 28-20 victory. The Red Raiders (2-2) win came after two tough losses to Oliver Ames and Sharon.

"It's always nice to get back on track and get a win and get back into the winning category," said Connor. "The kids played really well. We're stepping in the right direction. If we continue doing this we'll be in the right shape."

Connor utilized the running attack, taking advantage of junior running back Antoine Allen and junior full back Eddie Guinto's speed.

The Spy Ponder defense had difficulty stopping the 5-foot-9 160 pound Allen. He amassed 206 yards on 20 carries, and ran in for two touchdowns. Allen had a 65-yard score in the first and 40-yard scoring run in the second.

"He had a couple big runs. He's really stepping up and doing all the things needed to get us a win," said

Militia-Taunton Playoff Game Sunday

After finishing last season 1-9, with 13 players remaining on the roster, Quincy Militia coach Vaughn Driscoll knew he had a lot of work to do. Determined and dedicated, Driscoll managed to turn the program around and finish the regular season this year 6-4 with a 53-man roster.

The improvement was enough to guarantee the Militia a spot in the EFC playoffs. The 6-4 mark earned them fifth place out of 13 teams, and with only eight teams earning a postseason berth.

"It all starts with the veteran leadership," said Driscoll. "The 13 guys that stayed helped keep the dream alive."

The Militia will face the Taunton Gladiators at Taunton High School this Sunday in the first round of the playoffs. Kickoff is 1 p.m. Driscoll said his team will be ready for the Gladiators this time, as they fell to them 19-0 earlier in the season.

"Last time we played them we didn't play our best game and we didn't have our full staff," said Driscoll.

"But we're going into them and we'll surprise them on their home turf."

Leading the offensive attack will be 5-foot-5 150 pound running back Bolan Reid. The speedy Reid has been averaging over 100 yards rushing a game, and compiled 205 yards in the Militia's last game against the Granite State Knights.

"He's the best running back in the league," said Driscoll of Reid. "We call him the Little Hulk. He's just incredible."

Leading the defensive front will be defensive tackle George Gonzalez. The defense has improved dramatically since the start of the season according to the coach.

Driscoll said he was confident going into the post season. The Militia have won four of their last five games.

He added, "We have a good team. It's going to be a hard road but we can do it. We're just trying to get back there and get that ring that should be on our fingers."

Former Football Rivals Now Teammates Mike Stanton Standout For Mass. Maritime Football Squad

By COLLEEN CASEY

Mike Stanton had never touched a football before starting school at North Quincy High. A soccer player by trade, Stanton decided to go out for the football team after seeing his older brother Mark Stanton on the gridiron for the Red Raiders. He started playing tight end for the freshman squad but quickly found his true passion, being a quarterback.

After earning the starting quarterback position his junior and senior year at North, Stanton realized he'd like to continue playing at a higher level. With the aspirations of becoming a marine engineer, combined with his love of football, Stanton found Massachusetts Maritime Academy a perfect fit.

Now a junior at Mass. Maritime, Stanton has excelled in the classroom and on the field. His latest honors include the prestigious New England Football Writers' Gridiron Club of Div. 2-3 Gold Helmet Award and NEFC and ECAC Offensive Player of the Week. The Gold Helmet is given to the top Div.1 and Div. 2-3 performer of the week in the New England region.

To earn these honors last week, Stanton threw a school record 26 passes, smashing the previous single-game passing yardage mark with 420, and steered the Buccaneers back from a 19-point third quarter deficit to a defeat rival Coast Guard, 42-38. He became the fifth player in Massachusetts Maritime history to earn a Gold Helmet.

In Saturday's game against Framingham State, a tough 35-28 overtime loss, Stanton was 26 of 50 for 322 yards and tossed three touchdown passes. In four games he's lead the offensive attack for the (2-2) Bucs, connecting on 63.5 percent of his passes this season. He's thrown eight touchdowns, rushed for two and averages 281.2 yards a game.

"Mike has been an impact player since he got here," said head coach Jeremy Cameron. "He's very talented physically and is starting to come into his own this year."

Stanton and his teammates are not you're typical college football players. While most college students are still asleep in the early hours of the morning, Stanton starts his day as early as 5:45 a.m. for morning formations and a salute to the flag before class begins.

"Freshmen start off getting ready at 5:45 a.m. for morning formations and upperclassmen start at 7:15," said the 6-foot-5, 220-pound Stanton. "Freshman year it was really hard. You really have to get used to the way of life here. There's a lot of stuff to balance, but they teach you time management."

After morning formations Stanton makes his way to class for the day, then goes to football practice for two hours. After practice he remains to watch films and attends any meetings he needs to, hours of extra preparation that comes with being a starting quarterback.

He is expected to keep his room extremely organized, with his bed made a certain way everyday ready for inspection.

"They have regulations and expectations of what your room should look like," said Stanton. "It's pretty intense."

Now that he's a junior he's gotten used to the strict way of life on campus and the intensity of college football.

"Being a third year starter helps me feel more comfortable with the speed of the game and the way my coaches call the game," said Stanton. "Knowing he receivers that long it really helps too."

Junior tight end Brian Donaghey, a North Quincy native said Stanton was one of the reasons he returned to playing football. Donaghey returned to play his sophomore season after taking a year off.

"It's nice having a familiar face on the team," said the 5-10, 200-pound Donaghey. "I love blocking for the kid."

Donaghey said he's very familiar with Stanton's technique, having been his teammate since freshman year of high school.

"I know his style of play and what he's trying to accomplish," he said. "He's got a strong arm and is a great leader on the field. He's good at reading the defenses and picking the receivers to throw to. His numbers really speak volumes about how he's been playing."

Stanton and Donaghey aren't the only Quincy residents on the team. Junior linebacker Max Devoe and sophomore defensive back James Nguyen are former Presidents. They used to be rivals with Stanton and Donaghey. Now they're all teammates.

Nguyen said the rivalry still exists.

"We were friends throughout high school, but when it came to game time we had to do what we had to do," said Nguyen. "At the end of the day we're still friends. Now we're here at the same school, it's good to be together. You still have the rivalry going on between us though."

"There's some friendly tension, added Nguyen. "I still haven't gotten over the loss from my Thanksgiving Day game."

Cameron said that five players from one town is a little high. Freshman QB Curran Jorgensen also hails from Quincy.

"We usually don't have this many from one town," said Cameron. "But having some kids from the same town helps."

Stanton said what attracted him to Mass. Maritime was the career opportunities after graduation. MMA has given him the opportunity to serve two semesters at sea. He's also planning to do a Co-Op with a shipping company this summer.

"I want to work with a shipping company and travel the world and see places and things that most people never get to see," said Stanton. "Mass. Maritime will help prepare me for a better life in the future."

Donaghey is an emergency management major, who plans to join the coast guard after school and eventually would like to work for law enforcement at the federal level.

But for right now, Stanton said he enjoying the thrill of football.

"I love the strategy and all the work that goes into playing one game a week. There's a reason why there's only one a week," he said. "I love the thrill of the game and the crowd and how everybody gets into the game."

The Bucs will face Worcester State Saturday in Worcester at 1:30 p.m.

Past Quincy-NQ Football Players To Be Honored At 80th Game

By COLLEEN CASEY

When Scotty Whitelaw was in junior high, he used to scale the fence at Municipal Stadium during the national anthem to watch North Quincy play football. He wanted to play football so badly in high school, he forged his mother's signature so to participate in practice and receive his Red Raiders uniform. His mother was worried about his size. Eventually he convinced her to let him play. North Quincy was glad he did. That was in 1943.

In the Thanksgiving Day game against rival Quincy in 1944, Whitelaw was responsible for North's 6-0 victory. A 38-yard pass from Dave Burke to Paul Clem gave North a first down on the Quincy 5-yard line late in the fourth. On the next play Whitelaw found a gap and rushed 5-yards to the end zone to win the game.

Although the game was 68 years ago, Whitelaw remembers it like it was yesterday.

"I remember emotionally everyone was quiet in the bus going up," said Whitelaw, 85. "The Quincy game was the biggest one. It was a three o'clock game that year. They deferred it from one o'clock to accommodate people getting off their shift at the Fore River Shipyard. The shipyard was very active with the war effort at that time, but there was a sellout crowd for the Quincy/North Quincy game."

This Thanksgiving the Quincy/North Quincy Hall of fame committee would like to honor players like Whitelaw for the 80th anniversary this year. Older players will receive a special recognition either before the game or during half time.

"I think it's great what they're doing," said Whitelaw.

There will also be a special ceremony after the game where the Hall of Fame organizers will present each team with special 80th anniversary participation trophies.

All former players and coaches are invited to arrive to the game early for a special welcome. They are requested to meet under the tent next to the Hall of Fame.

In order to raise funds for these special activities the Hall of Fame is hosting a 1950's themed fundraiser on Friday, Oct. 26 from 7-11 p.m. at the Sons of Italy in Quincy. Festivities include a silent auction, a buffet and a live band. Tickets are $20.

Next week the Quincy Sun will feature former players from Quincy and North Quincy that played in the 1940's and 50's.

Connor of Allen. "We're looking for players to step up and so far he's been answering. He's such a special athlete he can create on his own."

Guinto chipped in rushing for 112 yards and a touchdown on 12 carries. His 25-yard run in the second tied the game.

Senior quarterback Andrew Minton (6 of 9 80 yards passing) put six more points on the board for the Raiders in the third, finding the end zone from 1-yard out on the keeper. Guinto ran in for the conversion to give North Quincy a 28-13 lead going into the fourth.

Allen has rushed for a team-leading six touchdowns this season and two 2-point conversions Guinto is right behind with 5 touchdowns and three 2-point conversions. Minton has one TD pass and has rushed for two.

The Raiders have a bye this weekend and will resume play next Friday, facing Middleboro at 7:00 p.m. at Veterans' Stadium.

"It's a nice feeling now. We have two weeks off and can get healthy for our league opener against Middleboro," added Connor.

Gardiner said that she plans on opening a lemonade stand again next year but she already has plans to do some things differently.

"This year I decided to do the lemonade stand at the last minute and I wasn't able to do some things I would have liked to," said Gardiner. "Next year I want to put up signs around the block and maybe have brownies instead of cookies."

North Girls Improve To 4-1; Mike Mullaney Wins Again

North's girls ran their record to 4-1 with a win over the Lakers 21-38.

Emily Bryson took the win again with Danielle Mullaney 3rd, Julia Bryson 4th. Briana Mullaney and Mary Zheng finished 6-7 to clinch the victory.

The three-mile course winds through woods and cranberry bogs often confusing runners.

"Everything out there looks the same. It's tough to lead, especially after last year's disaster at Duxbury," said Coach Geoff Hennessy. Last year at Duxbury, North had the top four spots locked up when they all turned wrong and got lost. Duxbury went on to win the meet, which North should have won easily.

"Our kids were tentative but ran for the win, keying off the Silver Lake runners," Hennessy added.

Mike Mullaney appeared to have no difficulty negotiating the trails in Kingston as he again ran wire to wire for the win. Danny Tran took 4th, but the Lakers put six more runners ahead of Nathan Donahue denying North the win. The Raiders traveled to Scituate Tuesday (10/2) and then will have some runners participate in the Smeg's Legs race at Broad Meadows Middle School Saturday (10/6) and will man several water stops at the Tufts 10K road race Monday (10/8) which begins and ends at the Boston Common with several miles along the Charles River into Cambridge.

The following week North will have a bye before hosting the Pembroke Titans (10/16) in a meet that may decide the Patriot League Fischer Division Girls Champion.

is to promote a world class running event and to support area child-centered organizations. The race has attracted runners from 45 states and 10 countries.

Supreme Court Series At Crane Library

In the last 200 years, the United States Supreme Court has emerged as the world's most powerful judicial body, crafting decisions that have affected American policy at every point.

Yet few people outside the law schools have the chance to reflect upon any of these major opinions, and the reasoning that led to their outcomes.

The Thomas Crane Public Library will host a free, four-part lecture and discussion series focusing on four major Supreme Court cases, the Chief Justices who wrote them, the events that led to them, and the sometimes unexpected ways in which they shaped American history.

Sessions will be on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. No registration is required.

The series will be led by Professor Dan Breen, Professor of History at Newbury College and Adjunct Instructor in Legal Studies and Philosophy at Brandeis University. Breen has a J.D. from the University of Georgia School of Law and a Ph.D. in history from Boston College.

At the first session, on Oct. 9, explore the case of Marbury v. Madison. A seemingly innocuous series of events gives John Marshall the chance to make the Supreme Court a truly component branch of government, capable of holding its own against President and Congress. Along the way, he would establish what remains to this day the most important American contribution to the science of government.

The series is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Quincy Cycling Group Bike Rides Oct. 7, 13

The Quincy cycling group announces several group rides in October.

The first ride will be held Sunday, Oct. 7 and departs from City Hall at 12:30 p.m.

Sunday's bike ride will go to JFK Library/Columbia Point via Milton and Neponset Trail. If the riders are willing, there will be an ice cream stop on the return at Puritan Plaza in Dorchester. This course is about 18 miles.

Anyone wishing for a shorter ride has two options: break off at Pope John Paul II Park and return to Quincy - this would be a 10 mile loop back to City Hall; or break off from group at commencement of return leg and hop on the Red Line at JFK/UMass.

A second bike ride is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 13 beginning at 7:30 a.m.

The approximately 20-mile route begins at City Hall and continues to Adams Street to East Milton Square to Brook Road to Central or Randolph St. to Neponset Trail to Pope Paul Park to Cmdr. Shea Blvd through Marina Bay to East Squantum to Faxon St. to Billings to Fenno St. to Hancock to S. Artery to Greenleaf to High School to City Hall.

Refreshments at Gunther Tooties if weather cooperates. To shorten ride to 10 or so miles, the turn-around would be at Eliot St. in Milton Lower Mills and follow Adams St back to Hancock St.

'Great Boston Fire Of 1872' Slide Show At Library Oct. 10

Historian Anthony M. Sammarco will present a free slide show on an event that changed the face of Boston forever Wednesday, Oct. 10 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The Great Boston Fire of 1872 destroyed 40 acres of downtown Boston, roughly between Summer, Washington and Milk Streets and the waterfront.

Started by a spark in a hoop skirt factory, it spread rapidly and within two days the downtown of the city was in ashes. Eventually destroying 775 buildings and causing millions of dollars in damage to the commercial section that we now know as Boston's business district, the fire was a spectacular conflagration that destroyed "old Boston" and allowed a phoenix to arise from the ashes.

Sammarco is a noted author and historian and author of the bestselling book The Great Boston Fire of 1872, published by Arcadia. He has written 65 books on the history of Boston, its neighborhoods and surrounding cities and towns. He teaches history at the Urban College of Boston.

The presentation is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

QYFL Week 4 Highlights Storm Surge Past Mustangs, Elks Outrun Panthers

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League saw another great week of football at Veterans Stadium this past Sunday.

The 2012 season is proving to be one of the league's most competitive years in history. The top four teams in the League played Sunday and both games were hard fought and decided in the closing seconds of each game.

Week four kicked-off with rain in the forecast as the Milton Mustangs (1-1) hosted The Squantum Storm (2-1).

The high-powered Storm offense got off to a slow start this week as both defenses held each other to a scoreless first half.

Leading the way on defense for the Mustangs were linemen Michael Corcoran and Jack Stetson, who held the Storm on a goal-line stand late in the second quarter. For the Storm, it was the surge of defensive linemen Raphy Veras (8 tackles, 4 for a loss), Mark Monahan, Luca Smith, Zach Spencer, Ryan Manning and Tom Jaehnig. Both teams entered the locker room scoreless.

The Mustangs opened the second half with a long 14-play drive that consumed the entire third quarter. The Storm Defense held the Mustangs to 4th and goal on the 4-yard line.

Milton RB Colin Whittaker (9 carries, 59 yards, TD) scored from 4 yards out to take the lead. QB Jeff Wolffe conversion attempt failed, leaving the score 6-0, Mustangs.

The Storm offense fumbled on the second play of the next series but, Milton failed to capitalize on the turnover.

The Storm offense took possession of the ball on the 50-yard line with 2:25 left in the game. Four plays later, RB Max Storch raced down the sideline for a 30-yard TD run. RB Liam O'Connor added the one point conversion to give the Storm the victory 7-6.

Storm Head Coach Mike Kilillea saw great efforts from Christian Connors, Veras, Monahan, Jaehnig, Tim Layden, Manning, Spencer, Storch, O'Connor (QYFL scoring leader) and John Paul Kelly. The Mustangs were led by Whittaker, Wolffe, Owen Regan, Jay Blevins, Teddy Curtis, Nate Carr, Corcoran, Stetson, Colin McSweeney and Rich Laine.

The Storm (3-1) took over first place in the QYFL and have a bye next week.

The Mustangs (1-2) play the Elks (2-1) next Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

The weather cleared for the next game, a battle of QYFL powers, The Quincy Point Panthers (2-0) and The West Quincy Elks (1-1).

The Panthers entered the game fresh off the bye week but without QB Nick Mayberry who was out with an injury. The Elks are coming off a disappointing loss last week but, returned three key players who were injured in that game.

The Point Panthers got on the scoreboard right away when RB Domenic Coleman rushed in for a 39-yard touchdown on the second play of the game. The conversion attempt was no good as the Panthers led 6-0.

Later in the second quarter, DB Brendan Jenner intercepted an Elks pass and ran it back 91 yards for a TD, only to have it called back on a penalty. The Panthers were unable to capitalize on the turnover and entered the locker room with the lead 6-0.

The Elks received the ball to start the second half and mounted an 11-play drive, capped off by a 2-yard TD run by QB Angelo DePaulo. RB John Teixeira pounded it in for the extra point and the lead, 7-6 over the Panthers.

The Panthers immediately struck back with a 46-yard TD by Domenic Coleman. The conversion attempt failed but, the Panthers took the lead 12-7.

The Elks fired back with 6-play drive, capped off by a 3-yard TD run by Teixeira. The conversion attempt failed and the Elks regained the lead 13-12.

On the first play of the next series, Elks Defensive tackle Connor Ainsley recovered a Panther fumble on the 35 yard line. The Elks capitalized 2 plays later when RB Teixeira (27 carries, 164 yards and 2 TDs) rushed in for a 16-yard TD. QB Angelo DePaulo ran around the end for the conversion and extended the Elks lead 20-12 over the Panthers.

For the second game in a row, the Panthers refused to be denied victory in the closing minutes of the game. Facing a 4th and 35 situation with 1:44 left in the game, Point RB, Coleman (9 carries, 123 yards, 2 TDs) rushed for a 35-yard gain and a first down, to keep his team alive.

QB Brendan Jenner (4 for 8, 51 yards 1 TD pass) connected with Melvin Gonzales, to put his team in scoring position with 9 seconds left to go. Two plays later, Jenner threw a 3-yard TD pass to Jayo DeRosa to close the gap to 20-18.

The Panthers attempted the 2-point conversion kick but, fell short and The Elks were victorious in this hard fought battle. The final score Elks 20 Panthers 18.

Elks Head Coach, Justin Thorley got some great two-way efforts from Teixeira (12 tackles, 1 sack), DePaulo, Aaron Etienne, Ainsley, Vagno Santos, Davi Soares, Curtis Frazier, Anthony Sances, Josh Rodriguez and Patrick O'Callaghan.

Panthers Head Coach, Noel DiBona said he was "proud of the way his team fought back and never quit." He saw some outstanding football from Jenner, Coleman, Gonzales, DeRosa, Bryan Hanly, Robert Wilson, Kevin Phu, Domenic Laptiste, Joshua Coughlin, Jackson Quinn, Joey Spano and James Guilford.

The West Quincy Elks (2-1) sit in second place and face the Milton Mustang next Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

The Quincy Point Panthers (2-1) fall to third place and play the North Quincy Apaches next Sunday at 2 p.m.

October is AAA Car Care Month, the ideal time to think about getting your car ready for the cold weather that goes with leaves falling from the trees and frost on windshields.

AAA's Southern New England's Car Doctor, John Paul wants to remind motorists that cars need seasonal checkups to maintain safety and maximize operational efficiency. Regular maintenance and seasonal checkups can also help prevent unexpected repair costs in the future. No one wants to be stranded by a cold weather vehicle breakdown and doing a little preventative maintenance will greatly decrease the chances of your vehicle letting you down on a cold winter morning.

AAA recommends that motorists use a simple checklist to determine their vehicle's fall and winter maintenance needs. Many of the items on the list can be inspected by a car owner in less than an hour, but others should be performed by a certified technician.

October Car Care Checklist

Battery and Charging System – Have the battery and charging system tested by a trained technician-if you are a AAA member this test can be performed as part of the AAA membership. A

Fall Automotive Care

October Is AAA Car Care Month

fully charged battery in good condition is required to start an engine in cold weather. When the temperature drops even the best battery needs to work harder to start a cold engine. If your car's battery needs replacing buy the best battery you can afford.

Engine oil – It is the life's blood of any engine and that oil needs to be full and free of contaminants. An engine with old contaminated oil will be harder to start and provide less lubrication when the weather is cold and the engine needs to most protection. Consider switch to synthetic oil to provide maximum lubrication during cold weather.

Battery Cables and Terminals – Make sure the battery terminals and cable ends are free from corrosion, and the connections are tight. AAA road service has seen multiple cases of good batteries unable to start a car engine due to poor battery connections.

Drive Belts – Inspect the underside of accessory drive belts for cracks or fraying. Many newer multi-rib "serpentine" belts are made of materials that do not show obvious signs of wear; consider replacing these belts at 60,000-mile intervals, if required.

Engine Hoses – Inspect cooling system hoses for leaks, cracks or loose clamps. Also, squeeze the hoses and replace any that are brittle or excessively spongy feeling.

Tire Type and Tread – If you need to be out in all weather conditions consider installing snow tires on all four wheels. These dedicated winter tires will provide the traction needed when the roads are covered with snow and ice. All-season tires work well in light to moderate snow conditions provided they have adequate tread depth. Replace any tire that has less than 3/32-inches of tread. Uneven tire wear can indicate alignment, wheel balance or suspension problems that must be addressed to prevent further tire damage.

Tire Pressure – Check tire inflation pressure more frequently in fall and winter. As the average temperature drops, so will tire pressures – typically by 1 PSI for every 10 degrees Fahrenheit. The proper tire pressure levels can be in the owner's manual or on a sticker typically located on the driver's side door jamb. Also, check the spare.

Air Filter – Check the engine air filter by holding it up to a 60-watt light bulb. If light can be seen through much of the filter, it is still clean enough to work effectively. However, if light is blocked by most of the filter, replace it.

Coolant Levels – Check the coolant level in the overflow tank when the engine is cold. If the level is low, add a 50/50 solution of coolant and water to maintain the necessary antifreeze capability. Test the antifreeze protection level with an inexpensive tester available at any auto parts store. The engine thermostat is a simple but important part of the cooling system that allows for quicker warm-ups and proper operation of the heater and windshield defroster.

Don't forget—Flush cooling system: While engine coolant never loses its antifreeze capability, the additives that lubricate the water pump and protect internal engine components from rust and corrosion become depleted over time. Motorists should have the cooling system flushed and new coolant installed when recommended by the vehicle manufacturer. Depending on the type of coolant used, this is typically necessary every two to five years.

Lights – Check the operation of all headlights, taillights, brake lights, turn signals, emergency flashers, and back-up lights. Replace any burnt out bulbs.

Wiper Blades – The blades should completely clear the glass with each swipe. Replace any blade that leaves streaks or misses spots. In areas with snow, consider installing winter wiper blades these blades reduce ice and snow buildup that can prevent good contact between the wiper and the glass.

Washer Fluid – Fill the windshield washer fluid reservoir with a winter cleaning solution that has antifreeze components to prevent it from freezing.

Door seals and gaskets – doors can freeze shut in winter weather but this frustrating problem has a simple solution. When the weather is dry, spray silicon on all the door gaskets-wiping any excess. The silicon will displace any water and prevent the door from freezing.

Shocking – Did you ever get in and out of your car and get a shock? This is caused by a buildup of static electricity. Spraying the interior carpets and cloth seats with anti-static spray once a month will reduce or prevent shocks.

Brakes – If there is any indication of a brake problem, have the system inspected by a certified technician to ensure all components are in good working order. Some cars require periodic brake fluid changes, talk to your repair technician to see if this is required.

Transmission, Brake and Power Steering Fluids – Check all fluids to ensure they are at or above the minimum safe levels. Follow the vehicles owner's manual for specific recommendation to change these vital fluids.

Emergency Road Kit – Carry an emergency kit equipped for winter weather. The kit should include:

Bag of abrasive material (sand, salt, cat litter) or traction mats

Snow shovel
Flashlight with extra batteries

Window washer solvent
Ice scraper with brush
Cloth or roll of paper towels

Jumper cables
Extra warm clothing (gloves, hats, scarves)

Blankets
Warning devices (flares or triangles)

Drinking water
Non-perishable snacks for both human and pet passengers

First-aid kit
Basic toolkit (screwdrivers, pliers, adjustable wrench)

A Job Well Done

By Quincy Police LT. DAN MINTON

On Sunday, Sept. 23, at approximately 2:51 a.m., Officers Steve DesRoche and Mike Sullivan were dispatched to Wollaston Center on a report of a husband/wife disorder. Quincy Police dispatch advised responding units that the female caller had locked herself in the bathroom away from her abusive husband, who was still on scene.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer DesRoche arrived on scene moments later and exited his cruiser. He noticed a female walking across the street from the MBTA parking lot towards him. When asked if she called the Quincy Police, she (the victim) stated, "Yes... my husband is over there" as she pointed towards the rear of the house.

At this time, Officer DesRoche heard a vehicle's engine start up and then noticed the headlights come on in the driveway. The Officer instructed the victim to stay on the sidewalk away from the driveway.

Officer DesRoche approached the vehicle from the left rear and heard the driver attempt to put the vehicle into reverse. The officer attempted to make contact with the driver by shining his flashlight into the driver's side window, advising him to turn the car off.

Instead of obeying or responding to the order, the driver continued to look straight ahead as he again attempted to put the vehicle into reverse. Officer DesRoche then grabbed the door handle and opened it, telling the driver to shut the car off. The driver was able to get the vehicle in reverse and hit the gas, causing the driver's side door to strike the officer.

Fearing serious injury, being caught between the open door and the car frame while moving in reverse, Officer DesRoche leaned into the vehicle and punched the driver/suspect on the left side of the face while stepping on the brake pedal and putting the vehicle into park. The suspect started yelling in a foreign language as he was instructed to get out of the vehicle.

While attempting to remove the suspect's seatbelt, the suspect punched the officer's arms three times trying to break the hold. Officer DesRoche removed his pepper spray and released a one second burst directly into his facial area which caused the suspect to lean forward. Officer DesRoche radioed to dispatch, "Step it up" for the responding units as the suspect increased his resistance to being placed into custody.

As Officer DesRoche again attempted to unlock the seatbelt, the suspect attempted to bite the officer's hands and arms several times. The officer then took control of the suspect's left arm, causing him to lean to his right. Using this hold, the officer was able to restrain the suspect until backup Officer Chris McDermott and Sgt. Brian Flaherty arrived on scene.

After a brief struggle, the officers were able to remove the suspect from his vehicle, handcuff and transport him to the station. Officer DesRoche then interviewed the female victim, who said that they have been married for 25 years and for most of those years he was abusive, both physically and verbally, towards her and their kids.

She stated that tonight he arrived home from work around 11 p.m. and began to drink, adding that he has a serious drinking problem. The victim said she went to bed, but at about 2:30 a.m., the suspect began banging furniture around, then came into the bedroom yelling at her for no reason.

The victim said that her husband struck her several times on the side of her face with a closed fist as he continued to yell at her. She saw an opportunity to flee so she got up and ran to the bathroom where she was able to lock the door and call 911.

She was asked if her children were present and she said that they don't stay there often due to his abusive nature. Officer DesRoche explained the restraining order process to the victim, but she declined the emergency order, opting to go to court on Monday.

As the officer was explaining this, Quincy Police Teletype Operator Bob Lingoes advised him that there was an active restraining order against the suspect. The order stated: "Refrain from Abuse - No Contact (stay away 100 yards), Vacate/Stay Away from tonight's incident location and Stay Away from her Workplace."

The officer asked the victim why she didn't tell him about the order. Due to the language barrier, the officer determined it was a misunderstanding about the order only. The suspect, a 54-year-old Quincy resident, was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (motor vehicle), assault and battery on a police officer, violation on restraining order and assault and battery/felony.

Nice work!

Beware Of Phone Calls Stating You Have A Computer Virus

Residents, including myself, have received a telephone call from someone claiming to be with Microsoft or another recognized company, stating that they have detected a virus on your computer and they will help you fix it.

This is a scam.

The caller will prompt you on your computer to hit certain keys which will provide remote access to the caller. Once the caller has remote access, he/she can steal personal and financial information that you have stored on your computer. On top of this, they may even try to charge you for the service! As always, just hang up. No one can tell you that have a virus on your computer unless they access it.

Another way of telling it is a scam is the delay in responding to your greeting on the phone. They have automated machines making so many phone calls at once that the scammer can't get to the phone right away. - Lt. Minton

DO NOT CALL REGISTRY

To reduce the amount of junk telephone calls you receive, residents should enroll in the "Do Not Call" registry, sponsored by the federal government. For more information, go to www.donotcall.gov or call the registry's toll-free number (1-888-382-1222) and follow the prompts. For additional information, try <http://www.ftc.gov/bcp/edu/pubs/consumer/alerts/alt107.shtm>

The federal government does not call you to sign up for this program - this is another scam to get your personal information. - Lt. Minton

If you have information on the above crimes, drug activity or any crime, please call the Quincy Police Detective Bureau at 617-745-5764 or log onto the following website: <http://tinyurl.com/ytf6td>.

To report suspicious drug activity, call the Drug Hot-Line at 617-745-5730. You will not be required to identify yourself, but it could help. To make an appointment to view the Registered Sex Offenders book, call Detective James Dentremon at 617-745-5755.

To contact the Crime Prevention Officer for tips or comments, my direct line is 617-745-5719. My e-mail address is dminton@ci.quincy.ma.us - Lt. Dan Minton

10 Tips To Save More On Heating Oil This Winter

Experts are predicting a harsh winter this year, a stark comparison to last year, one of the warmest winters in recent history.

However, consumers who heat with oil can save on heating costs this upcoming season by being proactive and taking a few small steps to conserve energy.

Thanks to the many advances made in heating oil technology, today's heating oil equipment is more efficient than ever. However, to get the most out of your equipment, you need to pair it with the right efficiency and conservation measures.

The heating oil industry's Energy Communications Council (ECC) recommends doing simple things to save energy and lower heating costs:

1. Fill in gaps around windows and doors with caulking;
2. Cover older windows with weather-resistant plastic sheathing;
3. Insulate your attic;
4. Wrap exposed pipes with proper insulation to prevent both heat loss and freezing;
5. Replace your manual thermostat with a programmable model, and lower it just a few degrees while at work or sleeping;

6. Open shades and drapes when the sun is out to help warm your home. Close them when the sun goes down to reduce heat loss through drafty windows;

7. Eliminate any gaps between your door and threshold by adding a seal to the bottom of the door - it should brush up against the threshold to fill any gap;

8. Close your kitchen vent, fireplace damper and closet doors, and remove, cover or close air conditioning units and vents when not in use; and

9. Move furniture away from heating elements, as it can block heat from circulating;

10. Remember that hot water uses fuel too. Take notice of how much you use while bathing and washing dishes, and make an attempt to reduce consumption.

Homeowners should also carefully consider higher cost efficiency initiatives. While these investments are somewhat larger than that of simply caulking a window, the potential savings are larger as well. Such investments are:

- Making sure you have good insulation in exterior walls, ceilings with cold spaces above, and floors with cold spaces below, and closing storm windows.

- Considering new glass that is designed to decrease radiant heat loss without lowering visibility.

- Considering having a solar water heating component installed. This small, easily installed system is virtually maintenance free and warms the water your family uses on a daily basis, using the free heat from the sun.

Finally, take a moment to ask your local heating oil dealer about Bioheat®, a cleaner burning, renewable product that can be blended seamlessly with the heating oil you already use. It lowers emissions and cuts down on the amount of traditional heating oil used. In states where ultra-low sulfur heating oil is sold, biofuels can be blended, creating a fuel suitable for burning in the world's most efficient heating equipment.

For more information regarding practical energy saving tips, contact your local heating oil dealer, your state or regional heating oil association, or visit www.heatingnews.org and www.oilheatamerica.com.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might feel compelled to get involved on the "right side" of a seemingly unfair fight. But appearances can be deceptive. Get the facts before going forth into the fray. TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bullying others into agreeing with your position could cause resentment. Instead, persuade them to join you by making your case on a logical point-by-point basis. GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Resist pushing for a workplace decision you might feel is long overdue. Your impatience could backfire. Meanwhile, focus on that still-unsettled personal situation. CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspects favor doing something different. You might decide to redecorate your home, or take a trip somewhere you've never been, or even change your hairstyle. LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might want to take a break from your busy schedule to restore your energy levels. Use this less-hectic time to also reassess your plans and make needed changes. VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) What you like to think of as determination might be seen by others as nothing more than stubbornness. Try to be more flexible if you hope to get things resolved. LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Watch that you don't unwittingly reveal work-related information to the wrong person. Best to say nothing until you get official clearance to open up. SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) With things settling down at work or at home, you can now take on a new challenge without fear of distraction. Be open to helpful suggestions from colleagues. SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your creativity can help resolve an emotional situation that might otherwise get out of hand. Continue to be your usual caring, sensitive self. CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You could impress a lot of influential people with the way you untangle a few knotty problems. Meanwhile, a colleague is set to share some welcome news. AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Aspects favor recharging your social life and meeting new people. It's also a good time to renew friendships that might be stagnating due to neglect on both sides. PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Congratulations. Your talent for working out a highly technical problem earns you well-deserved praise. The weekend could bring news about a friend or relative. BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of justice makes you a strong advocate for the rights of people and animals alike.

Jane Marie Deery

One Of The Famed O'Neil Sisters

A funeral Mass for Jane Marie (O'Neil) Deery of Quincy, was celebrated Monday at Holy Trinity Parish, Most Blessed Sacrament Church, 44 Darrow St., Quincy.

Mrs. Deery died Sept. 26 surrounded by her large loving family including John her high school sweetheart and husband of 58 years, and many of their 10 children singing sweet songs and praying at her bedside.

She graduated from Blessed Sacrament High School in Jamaica Plain in 1950 and worked at the Telephone Company and Aspen Technology.

Mrs. Deery was an extremely faithful and generous woman always making time to reach out to help others in her church and community, including total strangers.

She and her husband John moved to Quincy in 1967 where they raised their children. She treated each of her 10 children, 30 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren as if they were her most loved and favored child.

She had an incredible sense of humor and positive outlook and had a song for everything. Jane had passion for life, with love and kindness to all. She brought all that love, creativity and patience to her own children with a love of cooking, camping, fishing, skating and adventure, from climbing mountains to picking periwinkles from the shore. She brought excitement and fun to every outing or event and encouraged others to join in their family fun.

Mrs. Deery's spirit and joyful outlook on life was contagious to everyone around her. She encouraged everyone to live their life with joy and passion.

She and her husband enjoyed their winter home in Boca Raton, Florida. She was a tough competitor in golf and loved taking picnics to watch the waves at the shore or alligators climb the canals.

She was the oldest of the Ten O'Neil sisters of Easter parade fame in the 1940's and 1950's. She was raised in South Boston and Jamaica Plain where her family was famous for marching in the Easter Parade wearing matching outfits sewn by their mother Julia Olivera O'Neil. The family was also featured in Life Magazine, The Ed Sullivan Show, and other singing and dancing performances.

The beloved wife of John C. Deery, she was the loving mother of John M. of Stuart, FL, Patrick J. of Weymouth, Mary E. Mattioli of Marlborough, Julie A. Berberan of Quincy, Susan M. Kelleher of Boca Raton, FL, Christopher P. of Cambridge, Hugh D. of Quincy, Neil J. of Weymouth, Joseph L. "Joel" of Quincy and the late Linda J. ing to merge with a larger organization," said Tarabelli. "They told me that they believed it would be difficult to succeed in the future unless they became part of a larger organization. We've known each other for years and are very impressed with the work they do there, and know it will be a great fit."

Bay State Community Services is a not-for-profit human service agency dedicated to improving the social functioning of adults, adolescents, and children within a framework that recognizes the primary importance of family and community.

The Dianne DeVanna Center has been helping families and enhances the lives of children by providing direct intensive assistance, information, and material resources when families are experiencing stress and hardship since 1978. The center was founded in honor of 11-year-old Dianne DeVanna who died at the hands of her father and stepmother.

"The town was so upset about her death that they wanted to find a way to remember her so they opened the center," said Tarabelli. "We want to do everything to keep that going."

With the merger Bay State will inherit the centers assets and liabilities. Tarabelli said that they also voted unanimously in July to bring over five of the centers former Board of Director members to serve on Bay State's board. The five new members, Kristen Ford-Hernandez, Janet LaBerge, Joseph Matterazzo, Lisa Morrissey and Joseph Yotts all bring experience and expertise to the board. According to Tarabelli their roles on the board have yet to be

Mothers Of Preschoolers Meet Oct. 11

MOPS of Quincy (Mothers of Preschoolers) will host John Sarrouf, director of The Family Dinner Project, Thursday, Oct. 11 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in the All-Purpose Room of Fort Square Presbyterian Church, 16 Pleasant St., Quincy.

Sarrouf will discuss restoring fun and strengthening family relationships during dinnertime.

Those who are pregnant and/or have a preschool child are welcome to join MOPS every second and fourth Thursday during the school year. Free childcare is provided.

determined, but they will be performing all the tasks every board member does.

"We were so impressed by the work that they have done that we brought over five of the centers board members onto our team," said Tarabelli. "Bringing them over also benefits us because they bring a lot of expertise with them."

Tarabelli said that in the future they hope to add more services to the center, and expand on certain areas where they find a need to do so.

"We want to stabilize what they have for programs over there and in the future expand in certain areas if we find there is a need," said Tarabelli. "We will certainly help them do that (expand) if that needs to be done."

Tarabelli said that the merger wouldn't change anything about the center. The name, location, contact information, mission, programs and commitment will all remain the same.

thane track, which is a better track product, instead of latex like they originally planned.

The designs and blue prints for Coddington Hall have been completed and now the creation of the construction documents are being produced to allow for the project to go out to bid according to Robert Cala, an associate at Wessling Architects.

"The building has a lot of age to it. It's been through a lot of uses through out the years. The interior of the building will be brand new, from a systems point of view," said Cala. "We've tried to keep and restore much of the interior elements like the main entrance, the main corridors, will be reminiscent of the original building. Completely restored but with new lighting, and new colors, but we've kept the wainscoting, we've kept the high ceilings, and we tried to bring some architectural features to some of those common spaces. The building will be in keeping with the nature and character of the original building from 1908."

ing will be in keeping with the nature and character of the original building from 1908."

Cala said they hope to begin to receive bids in mid November and start the 12-15 month construction phase in mid December early January.

The abatement of the former Quincy High School is underway and is about 75 percent complete according to the Director of the Public Buildings Department Gary Cuniff.

"The ongoing work is solely focused on removing hazardous materials that were used in the construction of the old high school. We're not in the process of demolishing the building," said Cuniff. "The eventual fate of the building is still being negotiated. Whether the building remains or is renovated the first step would be to remove the hazardous material used in the construction."

Cuniff said that the abatement began mid summer and they have covered most areas of the old high school, which contained asbestos. Through out the summer workers have been monitoring the air quality of the building, specifically the areas that connect to the new high school.

"We have an outside consultant that monitors the work for strict compliance to all the state and federal regulations for handling this material. There's a lot of provisions for public safety, worker safety, and for the construction and maintenance of the containment areas when they do the removal," said Cuniff. "They also verify and track the disposal of materials so we don't pay for anymore then we removed. On a daily basis we monitor the air quality, because as you know the old high school connects to the new 'A wing,' even though it has been doubly sealed and it's also the area we selected to monitor the air daily. Every test without exception has maintained a level well below the threshold."

The next school committee meeting will be held on Oct. 10 at Atherton Hough Elementary School.

Vehicle Crashes Down 32 Percent Over 5-Year Period

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new state report shows that the number of vehicle crashes in Quincy fell by about 32 percent between 2005 and 2010.

The MassDOT report outlines the number of vehicle crashes reported to the Registry of Motor Vehicles between 1990 and 2010 in each of Massachusetts' 351 cities and towns. According to the report, there were 1,872 crashes in 2009. In 2010, only 1,782 crashes were reported a decrease of

Sen. Keenan Opposes Medical Marijuana Question

Sen. John F. Keenan (D-Quincy) announces his opposition to a state ballot question Number 3 that would legalize medical marijuana, based on concerns that its passage would lead to an increase in use not related to medical conditions, adding to the state's ongoing prescription drug abuse epidemic.

"We are already seeing too many instances of legal drugs being excessively prescribed, then diverted and abused," said Sen. Keenan, the co-chairman of the Joint Committee on Mental Health and Substance Abuse. "Any

Movie With Scenes Filmed Here Opens Friday 'Here Comes The Boom' And Some Local Faces In New Comedy Film

By SCOTT JACKSON

When "Here Comes the Boom" hits theaters tomorrow (Friday), Quincy residents may notice some familiar faces sharing the screen with Hollywood stars Kevin James, Selma Hayek, and Henry Winkler.

In the film, James plays a biology teacher and former pro-wrestler who moonlights as a mixed martial arts (MMA) fighter to raise money to save the school's music program; Winkler plays the school's music teacher and Hayek portrays the school nurse. It was shot last year in locales throughout eastern Massachusetts, including the old Quincy High School building and Veterans' Stadium.

The Quincy/North Quincy High band was chosen to play the band in the film. And several band members were selected for additional on-air time. One of those students is Mike Batson.

'HERE COMES THE BOOM' stars Kevin James and Henry Winkler shoot a scene for the film at Veterans' Memorial Stadium in the spring of 2011. The movie, which opens Friday, features other local spots filmed in Quincy including the old Quincy High School. In the film, James, who plays a teacher turned MMA fighter, trains by carrying Henry Winkler up and down the stadium's bleachers.

Veterans Island Decorated With 100 American Flags

*Sons Of American Legion
Veterans' Day Observance
Nov. 11 At 10 A.M.*

The Sons of the American Legion will hold a Veterans' Day observance Sunday, Nov. 11 at 10 a.m. at the Flags for Veterans Island, Fort Square, intersection of School and Pleasant Streets, Quincy.

The city's Veterans Day ceremonies and parade are scheduled for 1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11.

On Monday this week, organizers began placing approximately 100 memorial and honor flags on the island. The flags will remain on the island several weeks after Veterans Day.

The Quincy High School Class of 1966 recently donated 36 flags to honor fellow classmates, including five who died while serving in Vietnam. Those honored classmates will have special laminated photos and name tags on their flag poles.

Here's a list of the names of memorial and honor flags that decorate the Flags for Veterans Island:

Mayor: Mural Can Stay Pending Permit Approval

Mayor Thomas Koch will allow a Quincy Center bar to keep a mural depicting guitar legend Jimi Hendrix while seeking appropriate permits from City regulatory boards.

The mural also shows President Barack Obama's campaign logo and slogan, "Forward."

The City's Department of Inspectional Services, acting on a complaint, issued a violation notice to the Presidents City Rock Club last week because it did not seek City approval prior to painting the mural on the side of the brick facing an alley between Hancock Street and the Hancock Parking lot.

The violation included an order to remove the mural, but after being informed about the issue after the fact, Mayor Koch suggested officials try to find a solution that would satisfy both the bar's intentions and the legitimate concerns of the Inspectional Services Department.

"In an effort to find some middle ground, the Mayor directed that if the bar intended to file for the necessary permits, that there would be no real reason for the mural to be removed in the interim. It was an idea that both ISD and the bar found suitable," said Christopher Walker, Mayor Koch's spokesman.

Walker stressed that the Inspectional Services Department did its job correctly, but added that Mayor Koch felt that it was an issue "that seemed easily resolved by bringing the parties together and finding some middle ground."

The City is asking the bar to apply for the same permits other businesses have sought. The City's zoning code requires that publicly displayed murals be approved by the Planning Board. In addition, the bar is in the City's Historic District and requires approval from the Historic District Commission, which governs the public facades of commercial buildings in the district.

A lawyer for the bar has obtained applications for the permits, and Walker said he believes the process should be resolved within the next several weeks or month.

The Sun could not reach the bar's owner for comment Tuesday afternoon.

MURAL DEPICTING guitar legend Jimi Hendrix outside a Quincy Center bar can remain provided the establishment's owner seeks appropriate permits from city regulatory boards.

Presidential Wreath Laying Ceremony Oct. 30 To Honor John Adams

A Presidential Wreath Laying Ceremony to honor John Adams, second president of the United States, will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 30th, at 12 noon at the United First Parish Church in Quincy. The ceremony is open to the public.

Commander Brock Miller, Commanding Officer from the Navy Operations Support Center Quincy, will present the wreath on behalf of President Barack Obama. Mayor Thomas Koch and other dignitaries will be speaking and the Quincy Choral Society will be performing during the ceremony.

The church is located at 1306 Hancock Street, across from Quincy City Hall.

The Presidential Wreath Laying Ceremony started during the administration of President Lyndon Johnson whereby a wreath of red, white and blue flowers are sent to the burial sites of all deceased presidents on the anniversary of their births.

For more information, call 617-773-0062 or email vistorsprogram@ufpc.org.

Homeowners with equity: Roll all your debt into one new loan

You have a mortgage. And a decent amount of equity. You also have high-rate credit card debt, maybe an equity loan payment, an auto loan, student loans or other debts that you would love to combine into one loan at today's still low rates...fixed and guaranteed for the next 15 years. That's what you get with a 15-Year Mortgage from Colonial Federal Savings Bank. Some people like this idea because it makes life simple and streamlined. For others, it's a fresh start and a real weight off their back. Either way, it can be a very smart idea. Is it right for you? Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. Have another loan or term in mind? Call us. We may be able to help. (Also available for new Jumbo loans.)

Ryleigh Gilmartin: An Inspiration All Her Own

She can be a little shy off the football field but on the gridiron Ryleigh Gilmartin speaks louder than any words.

Wearing the number 1 and dressed in the North Quincy Apaches traditional black and red uniform, the only hint that this player may be a little different than the rest of her boy teammates is the ponytail that bobs up and down while she pursues a ball carrier from her linebacker position.

After the ball is snapped, she runs strong and confidently across the field, trying to make a tackle.

And when she makes a big stop, spectators encourage her like any other player on the field.

"Way to go, Ryleigh," the sidelines call out as the Beechwood Knoll fourth grader gets up from the pile, adjusts her helmet and heads back to the huddle.

Ryleigh is more than the only girl on the North Quincy Apaches freshmen football team. At the tender age of 9, you might even call her an impact player.

"Ryleigh's decision to play football in a league dominated by boys was quite simply to challenge herself," says her dad and one of her coaches, Dan Gilmartin. Dan's wife and Ryleigh's mom Karyn also note that it's important for children especially young girls to believe in themselves.

"We're extremely proud that Ryleigh can be an example for others to have confidence in yourself and courage to overcome your fears," mom adds.

Ryleigh's not the first girl to play youth football. And there are some others suiting up for other teams this season and they too should be applauded for crossing the football gender line.

But if you dig a little deeper, this feel-good-story is even more heart-warming.

Ryleigh is following in the football cleats of her dad, Dan, and her uncle, the late Tommy Gilmartin. Both Dan and Tommy played for the North Quincy Apaches and both were inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame.

Dan played football for four years for North Quincy and graduated in 1990. His younger brother Tommy — who loved Red Raiders football more than most anything — was the team's ball boy and was a special Hall of Fame inductee in 1991. He passed away in May of 1992 after a lengthy battle with cancer and was the inspiration for the Red Raiders championship season 20 years ago this fall.

Tommy was a lovable and courageous kid. Just nine months after undergoing chemotherapy and radiation in early 1989, he took on ball boy chores for the Red Raiders. Dan was a running back on that team and during the 1989 Thanksgiving Day game against Quincy, he tied Tommy's hospital bracelet to his uniform belt and inscribed Tommy's initials on his elbow pads.

Tommy was a defensive back for the North Quincy Apaches and wanted to be a running back like his big brother Dan. But cancer — a cruel killer with a penchant for taking the very best much too early off this earth — never gave him that chance.

Now, 20 years later, Dan is back on the football field helping to coach his daughter Ryleigh. He said he never thought Ryleigh would carry on their family's proud football tradition. And he couldn't be any prouder that she has.

"It means a lot to me and what's even more special is that she wanted to do this all her own," he says sitting at a picnic table shaded by trees at Pageant Field following a recent game.

Dan relays the story about how one of his other two daughters, Abigail, age 11, signed up for cheerleading one day. The man handling the registration asked Abigail if she wanted to cheer lead or play football. Abigail told him cheerleading.

"Abigail told my wife Karyn what the man asked her and Ryleigh overheard her telling her that. Later on that night, Ryleigh came up to me and asked, 'Daddy, can I play football?'"

Dan's answer was like a spike in the end zone.

"I said 'absolutely.' I was pleasantly surprised. It is very special. My wife and I have three healthy and beautiful active daughters and we're proud of all of them. They're involved in a lot of activities but football has always had a special place in my heart. Having three girls I never thought I'd be out on the football field again."

Ryleigh — who also dances and takes gymnastics — can be a little shy when it comes to talking football. But she'll tell you that she likes football the most. Ask her why and cute little brunette smiles widely and answers softly "I like tackling." She looks the part of a football player with eye black under each eye to cut down glare on a warm and sunny Saturday morning.

She also likes getting her uniform dirty and running the ball on offense occasionally.

After she signed up for the Apaches, there was a little discussion about what number she would wear. Initially, Dan suggested his old number, 29. But Sean Halpin, the team's president, insisted that they order a number 1 jersey for her.

"Sean was a member of the 1992 Red Raiders championship team and he remembers Tommy well," Dan says. "That number 1 is special to him too, and he wanted to make sure she had it."

Ryleigh's participation in the Apaches is really the latest chapter of a truly inspiring story. And it also brings back many memories for those who knew and would never forget a boy like Tommy Gilmartin.

"The North Quincy relationship with the Gilmartin family is very special and the fact that she wanted to play football I'm so proud of her," Dan says. "She's the only girl on the team and the kids really embrace her. Parents come up to me all the time and say, 'wow, she's a tough cookie.'

"Ryleigh does well and holds her own out there. It's not like she's getting any special treatment because she has a ponytail. She's out there knocking heads and I'm just so proud of her for several reasons. One, for playing and being brave enough to play with the boys. But also for the fact that she's carrying on a family tradition."

Ryleigh, who can play another year at the freshman youth football level, also seems to have a goal in mind.

"I saw one of her homework assignments that asked 'what do you want to do in the future?' and she wrote, 'play varsity football.'

"She has big aspirations but I want to make sure she has fun. I would never discourage her from pursuing her dreams. At the end of the day, she's my baby and I have to keep her safe. She's doing great."

Dan also knows that someone else is watching out for her, too.

"As Ryleigh's dad and Tommy's brother, I have found myself on more than one occasion watching her on the field, smiling from ear to ear, with a tear in my eye. I say a prayer before every game to keep all the kids safe and especially Ryleigh and I ask Tommy to keep an eye out on her. She doesn't have to score any touchdowns. As long as she comes home safe that's all that's important to me."

"There's no doubt in my mind that he's up there in Heaven and watching and getting a big kick out of this. She has some of his personality, too. Tommy had a wit about him and a sharp sense of humor and players took to him because he could hold his own and liked to joke around."

"All my daughters have that sense of humor and Ryleigh likes to joke around so I see a lot of Tommy in her."

Dan Gilmartin has attended every North Quincy-Quincy football game since he can remember. He was the game's MVP his senior year.

But his gridiron days pale in comparison to what his daughter is doing.

"When Ryleigh came to me and asked if she could play I was thrilled. Seeing her make her first tackle meant more to me than any Thanksgiving Day football game. It was special."

Dan is also thankful that Ryleigh has brought him back to the football field and a game he loves.

And what do Ryleigh's teammates think of her?

"They have really embraced Ryleigh and they get excited when she makes a play. I think it pumps them up to see her make a play."

Ryleigh — just like her uncle Tommy — is an inspiration all her own.

Scenes From Yesterday

Noon Hour at the Fore River Ship Yards, Quincy Point, Mass. 2/3035 JV

THIS IS A 1915 postcard showing workers on their lunch break at the Fore River Shipyard. During this period, a great number of postcards were published with scenes of the shipyard. Workers there who boarded in rooming houses in the Quincy Point area used the postcards to communicate with their families throughout New England. Telephones were not yet widely in use. Postcards only cost a penny to mail and were delivered the same day or the next morning to even the smallest towns. Bags of mail were transported by local trains and there were two daily mail deliveries to every home. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

FBI Agents Sweep North Quincy

Carloads of FBI agents swept through North Quincy to arrest suspects in a $100,000 hijacking of a liquor shipment in South Boston.

Some 940 cases of liquor were recovered at a North Quincy market where the loot was being transferred from a tractor-trailer to the market.

MASS. ELECTRIC STICKS WITH BROAD MEADOWS SITE

Officials from Mass. Electric reiterated their plans to build a generating plant on land they owned at Broad Meadows.

Mass. Electric was responding to a letter by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, who inquired into the status of generating plants planned by Mass. Electric at Broad Meadows and Boston Edison at the Squantum Air Base.

While Mass. Electric said they expected construction to begin within the next few years, Boston Edison put off their project for a decade.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS REVIEW PLANS FOR NEW VO-TECH BUILDING

School officials were preoccupied with the details for the design of the new $5 million vocational-technical school, specifically the library.

While the issue of building a bridge over Woodward Ave. apparently had city council support, the site of the combined Quincy High School-Vo-Tech library was still in controversy.

Supt. Robert Pruitt was being urged by QHS Principal Lloyd Creighton to keep the library in the old building.

Meanwhile, the issue of playing fields was debated. Ten of the 19 acres of Faxon Field were bogs, and without the use of pilings, it would take 15 years of filling by "ordinary methods" to develop the fields.

Building Hope, Changing Lives, A Family's Story

"On Day 2 of her life Emma was diagnosed with Congenital Myotonic Dystrophy. The bottle of champagne that my husband brought was never opened, family members did not receive the cheery calls and for the next 12 days my husband and I never left Emma's side while she lay in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit with wires from the heart and apnea monitors attached to her body."

As Vinita Russell, Emma's mother, reads her story to the small group of people attending a South Shore Mental Health informational session, everyone's attention is focused on her. Though Emma was born 12 years ago, it is evident that the impact of her birth is still felt today.

People are moved as they witness the pained look on Vinita's face as she says quietly that Emma's diagnosis potentially meant that she might never walk, run or play with other children without some form of assistance. Emma's issues were more significant as she could not suck or swallow at birth, which are inherent traits in a newborn.

Vinita then shares, "As a trained Early Intervention Specialist and social worker I knew what we were up against. I was the one who supported so many families through similar experiences but found I could not comfort my own husband, who for the first time realized he could not help us, he could not fix this one." At this moment everyone's eyes gaze down, as if they were thinking of a time in their lives when they faced a crisis.

She continues with, "Coming to terms that Emma would have very special needs we immediately sought out the support of Carol Wise and the South Shore Mental Health's Step One Early Intervention Program."

"We worked constantly with Carol, our Step One case manager and occupational therapist, and other staff to support Emma's developmental needs. In spite of what the doctors told us, we worked tirelessly practicing the techniques we learned and shared those successes with Carol each step of the way."

As she says this, small smiles form on some individuals' faces and empathic looks evolve into hopeful nods... recognizing that the support the Russell's received resulted in tangible accomplishments and that through all this Emma was reaching developmental milestones such as crawling, pulling to stand and eventually walking at 17 months.

As she takes them through her family's journey, Vinita closes her story, saying, "We believe because of all that we exposed her to and the incredible resources available through the South Shore Mental Health's Step One program, Emma has never known that she has limitations. She is open and accepting of anyone and anything that comes her way."

Emma went on to serve as the MDA Goodwill Ambassador for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts 2008-2010, this past June she completed her 10th year of ballet, loves horseback riding and began 6th grade this year.

Emma is one of the many success stories that children, families and adults experience as a result of the programs and services available through South Shore Mental Health. Throughout the year, one-hour informational sessions, Building Hope-Changing Lives, are held at the administrative offices at 500 Victory Rd., Quincy. Upon request they are presented at other locations in the community.

"South Shore Mental Health is a vital resource to the residents of Quincy and surrounding communities," says SSMH CEO Harry Shulman.

"We developed the 'Building Hope, Changing Lives' sessions to heighten the awareness of the programs and services we provide to children and families like the Russell's, and to teens and adults, as well."

The next session is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 17 at 8:30 a.m. at South Shore Mental Health, 500 Victory Rd., Quincy.

To attend one of these sessions and to learn about the services available through South Shore Mental Health, contact Amy Katz at 617-847-1901, or visit http://www.ssmh.org/giving_campaigns.htm.

A Street Music Relocating To 1 Elm Ave. Oct. 22

A Street Music announces it is relocating from 1434 Hancock St. in Quincy Center to 1 Elm Ave. in Wollaston on Monday, Oct. 22.

The new location will feature three music lesson rooms, two rehearsal rooms, a large retail space, a full-service instrument repair workshop, and space for small after-hours student and faculty performances.

A Street Music will also begin offering a larger selection of used and new instruments and accessories. All instruments are available for purchase or on a "rent-to-own" program.

A grand opening evening is planned for Saturday, Nov. 3 featuring extended hours, the start of group classes, and grand opening discounts.

A Street Music opened its doors in Quincy in August 2010. It is led by education director Justin Stanley, and instrument repairs by Aaron Belyea who specializes in woodwind, brass and guitars as well as classical strings, percussion and accordions.

A Street Music collaborated with local businesses and organizations like Wollaston Baptist Church, Christ Church Quincy, the Quincy YMCA, and Keep It Moving Studios in North Quincy to provide instruments, teach, and showcase our faculty and students. More information on Aaron Belyea and A Street Music can be found at www.astreetmusicllc.com.

A Street Music faculty members hold degrees from some of the nations leading music schools, including New England Conservatory, Berklee School of Music, Boston University, Boston Conservatory, Longy School of Music, and Eastern Nazarene College.

This fall, A Street Music began offering scholarships and free programs to low-income students. A Street Music Education's fund to provide free music services is a sponsored project of Fractured Atlas, a non-profit arts service organization. A Street Music Education accepts and appreciates individual and corporate donations.

Harvest Festival Saturday At The Wollaston School

The Wollaston School Harvest Festival will be held Saturday, Oct. 13 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school, 205 Beale St.

The Harvest Festival will feature food, games, raffles, crafts, a silent auction, and entertainment.

All proceeds from the Harvest Festival will benefit academic programs, purchase classroom supplies, software, and library books, and fund field trips and in-school assemblies at the school.

This year, the festival will include kids' activities such as bouncy obstacle courses, face painting and dancing. Performances are expected from a variety of neighborhood organizations, including Irish and traditional dancing, yoga demonstrations and more. And for the first time, the "Wollaston Midway" will be open on Taylor Street, featuring carnival games with prizes.

A silent auction will feature sports memorabilia, rounds of golf, tickets to sporting events, and goods and services from local businesses including restaurants, spas, hotels, and retailers.

The Harvest Festival is sponsored by the parents and staff of the Wollaston School, in conjunction with many local businesses and community leaders. Those interested in becoming a Harvest Festival sponsor, or making a donation, should contact the Wollaston School PTO by calling 617-984-8791.

Mushroom Stuffed Tomatoes, Hannah's Avocado Fries

I have two delicious quick recipes for today. One is for stuffed tomatoes, and the other one was made by my granddaughter Hannah-avocado fries.

They both can be made in no time as you will see.

With the summer over (where did it go) and the last of the tomatoes, I decided to stuff the last two that I had.

MUSHROOM STUFFED TOMATOES
About 6 ounces fresh sliced mushrooms
2-3 tablespoons seasoned bread crumbs
¼ cup chicken or veggie stock (or tomato sauce)

1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons olive oil
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons white wine

First cut the tomatoes in half. Scoop out some of the inside of the tomato. Set aside. In a skillet, sauté the garlic and oil and add the cut up mushrooms. Add the wine and salt and pepper and cook until mushrooms are tender.

In a bowl, add the scooped out tomato, the mushrooms, breadcrumbs and liquid of your choice. Blend until done. Fill each tomato and sprinkle the top with a favorite grated cheese. This time, because there were only four halves, I microwaved them. But if baked heat the oven to 350 degrees and bake until done. (about 10-15 minutes).

Hannah loves to bake and is always experimenting with various unusual desserts and other foods.

When I tasted these fries, they were so different and delicious, especially if you're a fan of avocado.

HANNAH'S AVOCADO FRIES

2 avocados
Flour for coating
1 egg beaten with a smidgen of milk
Panko bread crumbs
3 tablespoons vegetable oil

First, cut the avocados in slices resembling a French fried potato. Place them in the flour first, then the egg mixture and then the bread crumbs. Sauté in the hot oil until crispy on both sides. Drain on paper towel and then enjoy!

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church Annual Food Drive Oct. 13

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., North Quincy, announces that it will hold its annual food drive to benefit the food pantry of Interfaith Social Services, Quincy on Saturday, Oct. 13.

Donations may be dropped off at the church on that day between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Enter the parking lot off of Harvard Street and enter the building through the parking lot level on the right side.

This year, volunteers will not be going door-to-door in the neighborhood, but will be available to come and pick up food donations. To schedule a pick-up during those hours, call the church office at 617-328-8348.

Thrivent Financial for Lutherans, a non-profit financial services organization, is participating in the project through a $500 cash grant given directly to ISS.

"A big thanks to our neighbors who donated so generously last year," said Pastor Nathan Piphio. "The need in our community is great, but the generosity is greater. We look forward to another successful food drive this year."

For more information visit the website www.GoodShepherdQuincy.org or call the church office at 617-328-8348.

CLASSIC AUTOMOBILES will be featured at Quincy High School's annual Fall Car Show Saturday, Oct. 20 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the school's Coddington Street parking lot next to the old high school.

Quincy High School Car Show Oct. 20

Quincy High School will host its annual Fall Car Show Saturday, Oct. 20 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Rain date is Sunday, Oct. 21.

This year's show is in conjunction with the Quirk Ford's Drive One for Your School Campaign. Quirk Ford will donate $20 to the QHS Hockey program for every Ford test driven on this day at the show.

Other activities include music from the 60's and arts and crafts for children by the student council.

Each year Quincy High School holds their show to raise money for student council initiatives and to raise money for the Automotive students' scholarship fund.

This year's fair and show will be exceptionally exciting as the entire event will take place in the Coddington Street parking lot next to the old high school. Classic vehicles and musical selections from the 60's will all highlight this event.

Past Car Show winners included Dan Kennedy's 1940 Lincoln Zepher, Vincent Disessa's 1931 Chevy, Chet Kuskoski's 1985 Montecarlo, Paul Bates' 1946 Ford, and Steve Pestilli's 1967 Camaro.

Along with Quirk Ford, AAMCO Transmission and AAA of Southern New England will be assisting in funding the event.

Quincy Community United Church Collecting Pet Supplies For Animal Shelter

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, is collecting pet supplies this month for the Quincy Animal Shelter.

"The shelter informed us that cat and kitten items are of special need at this time," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarnek-Glidden, church pastor. "They have requested kitten and cat food, cat toys, and cat litter. Blankets, towels, paper towels, and bleach are also needed."

Donations of pet supplies may be brought to the church during business hours Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. To insure someone is present to receive the donations, call the Church Office at 617-773-3319 before bringing donations.

Donations may also be brought to the Sunday worship service. The collection spot is the red wagon in the hallway outside the sanctuary.

On Sunday, Oct. 28, at the annual Blessing of the Animals, the pet supplies donations will be brought to the altar by the children and youth of Quincy Community United Methodist Church. They will then be delivered to the Quincy Animal Shelter.

For more information, call the Church Office at 617-773-3319.

Vehicle Crashes Down 32%

4.8 percent.

The number of total crashes has actually fallen each year since 2000, except for an increase in 2005. In 2000 there were 3,211 crashes, which fell to 3,157 in 2001, 2,385 in 2002, 2,369 in 2003, and 2,237 in 2004. In 2005 that number spiked to 2,706 before falling to 2,599 in 2006, 2,506 in 2007, and 2,260 in 2008.

The only two years since 1990 with fewer than 2,000 crashes reported were 2009 and 2010. The year with the most crashes was 1990, with 3,498. Quincy, the eighth largest city in the state by population, also had the eighth most crashes in 2009 and 2010.

In 2010, 432 crashes caused a total of 608 non-fatal injuries that were reported to the state; there were also two fatalities.

Problematic intersections in 2010 include Washington Street and Southern Artery in Quincy Point, Burgin Parkway and Centre Street near the Quincy Adams MBTA Station, Hancock Street and Furnace Brook Parkway in Quincy Center, and Hancock Street and Beale Street in Wollaston.

The 32 percent drop in crashes over five years is reflective of the city's efforts to increase awareness among drivers and pedestrians, according to Ward 4

Councillor Brian Palmucci, chairman of the council's public safety committee.

"I think it's reflective of the amount of work the city has done with raising awareness for drivers and pedestrians," Palmucci told the Sun in a phone interview. "There's been a concerted effort by the city to increase awareness. It certainly has paid off."

Quincy Police Traffic Division Lt. Kevin Tobin said the numbers were a positive sign for the city.

"If the accidents are going down there's a cooperative effort by pedestrians, motor vehicle drivers, and the police," Tobin said. "It's a positive sign for the city and the department. Those are good numbers for a city of our size with large pedestrian traffic."

Statistics for 2011 and 2012 weren't included in the state's report. But Palmucci said the number of accidents could increase as more construction takes place because more construction near roads often results in detours or other alterations in traffic patterns, which forces drivers onto unfamiliar streets.

He noted that on Adams Street alone there are several ongoing projects that affect traffic, including the building of a new bank, and installation of gas and water mains.

Keenan Opposes Medical Marijuana Question

pharmacological benefits gained through the addition of another addictive, in-demand drug to the local marketplace will be outweighed by the increased addiction and abuse that will undoubtedly follow."

In particular, Sen. Keenan said he opposes the question because of the wide latitude it would give physicians in determining what "debilitating medical conditions" may be treated with marijuana. While the question's definition of "debilitating medical conditions" specifically mentions chronic illnesses such as AIDS, ALS, MS, cancer, and Parkinson's, it also includes "other conditions as determined in writing by a qualifying patient's physician."

"This question, if adopted, would give Massachusetts among the most liberal medical marijuana laws in the nation, opening the doors for the issuance of life-long medical marijuana cards to treat a variety of illnesses, such as stress or insomnia," said Sen. Keenan. "Only California leaves the definition of a debilitating medical condition up to physicians to decide. Most other states either specifically define in statute what illnesses medical marijuana may be prescribed for, or require an appropriate state agency to make that determination."

A recent study of Colorado teenagers in substance abuse rehabilitation facilities found that three-quarters had used medical marijuana, with only one of the patients having a prescription for it.

"Medical marijuana use among adolescent patients in substance abuse treatment is very common, implying substantial diversion from registered users," the study's authors concluded in an article published in the Journal of the American Academy of Child & Adolescent Psychiatry this past July. "These results support the need for policy changes that protect against diversion of medical marijuana and reduce adolescent access to diverted medical marijuana."

"While I have the utmost sympathy for those affected by chronic, painful illnesses, this question would open Pandora's Box as currently worded," Sen. Keenan said. "Considering the epidemic of heavy duty prescription painkillers and the diversion of those pills, despite them being highly regulated, it is tough to believe this loosely-worded law wouldn't also become misused and abused by drug seekers."

Further, said Keenan, for those affected by the types of chronic, painful illnesses referenced in the ballot question, there is the FDA-approved and regulated prescription Marinol, which is synthetic THC, the naturally occurring component of marijuana.

Sen. Keenan said he also opposes the use of the initiative petition process, in this case financed to a large extent by an out-of-state interest, to enact a law that will have such wide-ranging impacts not only on health care, but also on criminal justice, public health, taxation, agriculture, and zoning policies.

"This ballot question essentially creates an entire new state industry that is considered illegal under federal law," he said. "This question raises a number of extraordinarily complicated medical and legal questions, but fails to provide sufficient answers. If Massachusetts is heading towards further loosening of state marijuana laws, that is a discussion that should be resolved through the Legislature, in order to allow for a proper vetting of all related issues, and not through an over-simplified ballot question, promoted and paid for by an out-of-state special interest."

Sen. Keenan said the proposed law fails to provide for proper oversight of medical marijuana growing operations and dispensaries. The proposed law only requires that marijuana be grown in an "enclosed, locked facility," but it does not set any rules allowing for inspections or audits of growing operations, to ensure that marijuana grown legally isn't being sold illegally out a back door.

Pharmaceutical companies that manufacture controlled substances, such as painkillers and anti-depressants, are under close watch by the DEA, work with strict production caps, and must be able to account for every milligram of their drugs, in order to prevent black-market sales. If raw materials or finished pills go missing, a report must be filed immediately. Facilities that lose drugs face immediate closure and other penalties. None of those oversight rules would be applicable to Massachusetts marijuana producers and dispensaries.

"This law would essentially require the state Department of Public Health to play the role of the DEA, inspecting grow operations, and investigating possible illegal activities," said Sen. Keenan. "Even if illegal activities were discovered, it is unclear whether DPH would have the ability to refer the matter to the district attorney or attorney general for prosecution, or if their only recourse would be administrative penalties."

Project Manager To Speak At Quincy Historical Society Report On Hancock Cemetery Master Conservation Plan Oct. 25

Quincy Historical Society will host a special report on the Master Conservation Plan for Hancock Cemetery, commissioned by the City, by project director Chris Greene of Halvorson Design Partnership, on Thursday Oct. 25 at 6 p.m.

Hancock Cemetery, dating from the 1640s, is Quincy's earliest and longest-in-use burial ground. Among the many persons buried here are generations of the Adams and Quincy families and Reverend John Hancock, father of the Patriot leader. The cemetery contains outstanding examples of colonial gravestone art.

In 2011, the City, through the Quincy Historical Commission and the Planning Department, commissioned Halvorson Design Partnership to assess the condition of the cemetery and develop a master plan for its conservation.

The team assembled to conduct the project included experts in stonework, history, and landscape.

Greene will present an overview on the project and its findings, including the history and significance of the cemetery, an assessment of conditions, principles for managing and preserving the cemetery, and possible projects for improvements in the cemetery.

Greene is Senior Associate at Halvorson Design Partnership and a Registered Landscape Architect. Prior to joining Halvorson, for 16 years, he was Chief Planner and Historic Resources Director at Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management.

Halvorson Design Partnership is an award-winning firm of landscape architects, designers and urban planners. Among their many historic-site projects are Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge Common, and the Wayside Inn.

The public is welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Faxon Park Public Tour Oct. 20

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program invites the public to a free tour of Faxon Park Saturday, Oct. 20 at 10 a.m.

Led by Marcia Jacob of the Boston Mycological Society and Suzanne Reynard, producer of the Amateur Naturalist show on QATV, the tour will focus on identifying mushrooms and other fascinating features of the park.

Participants should meet at the pavilion at the top of the park off Faxon Park Road. The tour will last approximately two hours.

At the end of the tour there will be an optional opportunity to gather around a picnic table to spend more time identifying the fungi collected. Participants may want to bring a picnic lunch if they stay.

Open House, Tour Saturday At Lyons Turning Mill

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum will participate in the Massachusetts Historical Commission's "Features of the Past" in conjunction with Massachusetts Archaeology Month 2012.

The quarry museum will open the site and conduct tours of the turning mill remains.

The open house and tour will take place Saturday, Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lyons Turning Mill, Quarry Hills Drive, off Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy.

Rain date (if required) is Saturday, Oct. 20.

Visitors touring the site will view artifacts scattered throughout the site, including columns in various stages of production. There will also be historical pictures of the mill and its operations in 1893 producing the granite products the mill was known for.

View the Lyons Quarry where granite was quarried and used to produce the granite products manufactured at the mill.

A site model of the turning mill and the proposed quarry museum will also be on display.

The Lyons Turning Mill was built in 1893 by James

Lyons to produce monuments and products of granite for the building trades of that era. A specialty of the company was the turning and polishing of solid granite balls up to six feet in diameter. An example is the "Granite Gazing Ball" located near the entrance of Quincy City Hall.

Columns up to 22 feet in length and 3 feet in diameter could also be turned and polished at the mill. At the turn of the century, about 80 men were employed consisting of quarrymen, stonecutters, machine operators and engineers all skilled granite workers.

COMMON SENSE

Quartz may be the most common mineral on earth, comprising roughly 12 percent of the earth's crust, but that doesn't mean that "rutilated" quartz jewelry does not provide one of the smartest looks in women's jewelry. These clear stones with reddish-khaki (rutilite comes from the Latin word "rutilus," meaning "red") flecks of color stand out beautifully against bright white, all black, bold prints, or sherbert pastels. The striking stones with needle-like inclusions have been around for centuries with names ranging from "Cupid's darts" to "Venus hair stone," serving as the inspiration for jewelry that has always drawn keen interest. Today's rutilated quartz pieces include bold bangles, lovely earrings, cocktail rings, and necklaces. Who knew that quartz could be so gorgeous?

The breathtaking beauty of golden Rutilite appears frozen in quartz, making it an inviting gemstone whose warmth inspires creativity. Our store is conveniently located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. We are a full service jewelry store including custom orders. Montclair Elementary School Centennial Celebration Oct. 20

The year was 1912. Fenway Park welcomed Red Sox fans to its new location in Kenmore Square. Franklin Park Zoo opened its doors to the public, the MBTA's Red Line began bustling passengers from Harvard Station to Park Street, and in Quincy, Montclair School opened its doors to 251 students beginning an educational tradition that would last into the 21st century.

Montclair School was not named after a person but rather the section of Quincy where it was located. Erected due in part to the population increase in the northwest section of Quincy, as a means of diminishing the overcrowding at the Wolaston School, Montclair's original structure was an eight room building hosting grades 1-8. Austin W. Greene served as principal from 1912-1914.

In 1928, the Montclair School PTA and the Montclair Improvement Association petitioned the Mayor, the School Committee, and City Council for an addition to solve the overcrowding.

The West Squantum Street addition to the Montclair School was built in 1930 and included 9 rooms and an auditorium. Yet another wing was already in the works in 1951 due to overcrowding once again. This "new" wing was completed and ready for students by September of 1952.

In 2012, 390 students enter Montclair School each morning carrying with them the same love of learning their counterparts did a year ago.

The Montclair School will celebrate its 100th Anniversary Saturday, Oct. 20 at 1 p.m. The public is invited join the school community to celebrate Montclair with a dedication of the centennial walkway, a slide show through the decades, a performance of "Montclair Centennial Revue" by the current 5th grade students, and an open house to classrooms designated by decades to reunite with former classmates.

All are welcome.

Quincy College Welcomes Four New Board Members

Quincy College recently inducted four new Governors to serve on its board.

The Appointing Council selected the candidates after meeting several times during the summer and fall semesters.

The new members joining Quincy College's Board of Governors are Thomas E. Fitzgerald, MD; Gregory M. Hanley, Rev. James F. Hawker, and Carolyn O'Toole, R.N.

Dr. Fitzgerald was born and raised in Quincy and after completing his education he returned to Quincy to practice surgery. He has been in practice in Quincy for the past 30 years. During this time he has served as president of the medical staff at Quincy Medical Center and as a member of the Board of Governors.

Dr. Fitzgerald also serves as a member of the Board of Directors of Specialty Care, LLC, a surgical organization.

Dr. Fitzgerald is a graduate of the Autonomous University of Guadalajara School of Medicine and was a Fifth Pathway student at Boston University Medical School. After his fifth Pathway year with BU, he completed his surgical internship and residency through Tufts University at the Baystate Medical Center in Springfield.

Dr. Fitzgerald also served three years in the US army infantry, from 1969 to 1972. He holds a bachelor's degree from St. Anselm's College.

Hanley has more than 20 years experience in local and state government as well as a diversified background in business and charitable public service.

A former Quincy city councilor, Hanley is employed as a vice-president at P.V. Supply Company of Quincy and is chairman of the Board of Selectmen for the Town of Pembroke. He also serves on the Pembroke Housing Authority, the South Shore Work Investment Board, and the Massachusetts Board of Examiners for Plumbers and Gasfitters.

A 1987 graduate of Norwich University, Hanley and his wife AnnMarie live in Pembroke with their four children.

Fr. Hawker was born and raised in Boston's South End. He has represented the United States as an education consultant to the Vatican in Rome between the years of 1990 and 1995.

Fr. Hawker spent many years as an educator and administrator in Charlotte, N.C., where he resided for 13 years and worked as a vicar in charge of seven educational agencies. He lives in Quincy and volunteers at parishes in Waltham and Quincy.

Fr. Hawker received his education St. John's Seminary in Boston, where he earned two masters degrees in theology and psychology. He also spent time at Boston University, studying behavioral sciences for two years. He received his third masters in religious education at Catholic University.

O'Toole is a Quincy College graduate, a lifelong resident of Quincy and has an extensive health care background. She has held positions as a PPS/MDS Coordinator, a Charge Nurse and Nursing Supervisor. She is currently the Director of Nursing Services at the Bostonian Nursing Care and Rehabilitation Center in Dorchester.

O'Toole is a graduate of the LPN certificate program at Quincy College, and continued her education at Excelsior College in New York where she obtained her RN.

Richard T. Sweeney III

Licensed Embalmer, Funeral Director

Richard T. Sweeney III, 24, of Quincy, was recently sworn in as a licensed Embalmer and Funeral Director at ceremonies held at the Boston offices of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts State Board of Embalming and Funeral Directing.

The oath was administered by the board's chairman, Louis M. Fazio III.

Richard T. Sweeney III joins his brother Francis as the City of Quincy's only fourth generation Embalmers and Funeral Directors. He is the son of Ornella M.L. (DiCenso) and Richard T. Sweeney, Jr. of Quincy.

Richard Sweeney III is a 2006 graduate of Boston College High School and is also a magna cum laude graduate of Georgetown University, Class of 2010, where he received his Bachelor of Arts in Government.

RICHARD SWEENEY III

His professional education and degree in Funeral Service, with highest honors, was received from Mount Ida College in May of 2012. After completing his two year apprenticeship and passing the required national and state examinations he was awarded his licenses this summer.

Sweeney comes from a family long dedicated to funeral service in the City of Quincy and the South Shore. His great-grandfather was the late Dennis S. Sweeney; his grandfather and namesake was the late Richard T. Sweeney who co-founded the Sweeney Brothers Home For Funerals, Inc. of 1 Independence Avenue, Quincy in 1949 with his grand uncle, the late Francis M. Sweeney.

He now joins his father, Richard T. Sweeney, Jr. and his brother Francis M. Sweeney and staff at Sweeney Brothers Home For Funerals in continuing their tradition of 63 years of dedicated and personal service to families in their time of need.

'Americans In Paris' Evening Nov. 1 To Support QPCC, Interfaith Social Services

Quincy Point Congregational Church will sponsor "Americans in Paris" evening Thursday, Nov. 1 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, 27 Glendale Rd., Quincy.

The event will raise funds for the QPCC Access Fund and Interfaith Social Services.

Hor d'oeuvres and dessert will be served. Vocal and instrumental music will be offered by soloists and musicians from QPCC.

Silent auction items include a Bruins hockey puck signed by Bobby Orr and Coco Mademoiselle Chanel eau de parfum.

Donation requested is $35 per person.

The event is inspired by David McCullough's latest book - THE GREATER JOURNEY, Americans in Paris. It tells the story of American artists, medical students and writers who traveled to Paris between 1830 and 1900. Among the artists were John Singer Sargent, Mary Cassatt and sculptor Augustus Saint-Gaudens. This was the era of the building of the Eiffel tower and the construction of the "Statue of Liberty."

There will be a "mini art gallery" at the fundraising event as well as live music associated with the French theme. Some guests will attend in Victorian garb.

The Men's Club of Bethany Congregational Church will present Jim Cooke as John Quincy Adams Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 7:15 p.m. at the church, corner of Spear and Coddington Streets, Quincy Center.

The public is invited to attend. A free-will offering will be taken at the door (suggested donation $3).

Light refreshments will be served following the performance.

Cooke has been portraying historical figures since 1985 in his unique one-man shows.

John Quincy Adams, the eldest son of President John Adams and First Lady Abigail Adams, served as the sixth President of the United States. A brilliant diplomat, he was also the first senator profiled in John F. Kennedy's Profiles in Courage.

Painting Demonstration At Art Association

Jeffrey Freedner will present a painting demonstration at the Quincy Art Association, 26 High School Ave., Quincy, Saturday, Oct. 13 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Freedner is a realist painter based in the Boston area. He works mostly in oils and specialized in still lifes and landscapes.

Freedner holds a BFA from The School of the Museum of Fine Arts Boston and Tufts University and an MFA from Mass College of Art. He also attended the Arts Student League of New York where he had a merit scholarship.

Free Legal Clinic Nov. 13

Harry Potter Celebration Oct. 27 At United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church will transform itself for a day into Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry on Saturday, Oct. 27. The doors to this magical world will open promptly at 1 p.m.

This is the eighth year the church has offered the Harry Potter Celebration to the area, and every year it is different. Quincy Community United Methodist Church promises that this year will once again truly be a magic day for people of all ages.

"We will be repeating the things people enjoy," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the Church.

"There will be a representative from Ollivander's Wands, a Sorting Ceremony, and a Great Feast. Everything else will be brand new."

This year's theme is "A Day with Dragons." Attendees will participate in the Mountain Dragon Challenge, help protect the Underwater Dragon, and be able to go inside a dragon in Dragon Anatomy Class.

Members and friends of the church portray some of the characters from the books. Returning this year will be Hagrid, "Mad Eye" Moody, Professor Trelawney, Bellatrix Black, Madame Maxime, and Professor McGonagall, among others.

"Reservations are absolutely required, and I can't emphasize enough how important it is for people to make their reservations soon," noted Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden. "We've sold out every year. This year we received reservations in late September!"

Reservations are made by calling the "Harry Potter Hotline" at 617-773-6854. If reservations are made prior to Oct. 20, tickets are $6 per person; $20 for a family of four. After Oct. 20, the price increases to $8 per person and $25 for a family of four. All children must be accompanied by an adult. Costumes are encouraged, but not required.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is located at 40 Beale St., across from the Wollaston T stop.

Manet Community Health Receives $55,000 For Cervical Cancer Screenings

ManetCommunityHealth Center in North Quincy has received $55,000 in Affordable Care Act funding to provide cervical cancer screenings for women and to help the center become a Patient Centered Medical Home.

The funding was announced by the Patrick-Murray Administration. Manet Community Health Center was among 32 community health centers that will share in the $1.8 million funding from the Obama administration.

"Health is a public good, and these grants will help our community health centers provide accessible, cost-effective care to all of our residents," Gov. Deval Patrick said.

The Affordable Care Act money will help community health centers increase the percentage of women screened for cervical cancer and help health centers make care delivery and practice changes needed to become patient-centered medical homes. The homes are a care delivery model designed to improve quality of care through better coordination, treating the many needs of the patient at once, increasing access, and empowering the patient to be a partner in their own care.

"We know that education and prevention, particularly early cancer screenings, can save lives and lower health care costs in the long run," said Secretary of Health and Human Services Dr. JudyAnn Bigby. "This is just another way the Affordable Care Act is helping real people across Massachusetts."

Former Q-NQ Players Recall Gridiron Glory Days

Storied City Football Rivalry Marking 80th Anniversary At This Year's Thanksgiving Game

By COLLEEN CASEY

Lou Marini will never forget playing in the Thanksgiving Day football game his sophomore year. Marini, now 85, ran 72 yards for the winning touchdown in the third quarter to give Quincy a 12-7 victory over rival North Quincy in 1943.

The win was the Presidents' third in a row, a huge victory for first year coach Owen Webb, who replaced Munroe MacLean who left for active duty in the Navy.

Marini also remembers the next two years he played, two losses to North Quincy including a 7-0 loss his senior year during a Nor'easter.

"I had butterflies in my stomach every Thanksgiving Day game," said Marini. "I'll always remember it. It's always there, the things that happened in the game. There were a couple times I broke away. You never forget playing in these games."

His teammate Mario "Mud" Casali, 85, recalled the game in 1944 to be one of the biggest disappointments. North Quincy's Dave Burke hit Paul Clem with a 38-yard pass to give the Red Raiders a first down on the 5-yard line and on the next play Scotty Whitelaw carried the ball into the end zone to win it for North.

"Scotty was the QB and they scored a touchdown after 'Clem's clutch catch.' Clem was a big tall end that played basketball," said Casali. "We had an opportunity to score. We had the ball near the goal line and the play was called and I button hooked and our quarterback looked right at me. I jumped as high as I could and the ball went right off my finger tips."

And after 68 years, Whitelaw and Casali still remember how fierce the rivalry was.

"We beat Quincy when Mario was playing," said Whitelaw. "At that time we thought Quincy was our arch rivals. That game was closely contested. They were very competitive. But I found out later on they were good guys."

Casali echoed Whitelaw, recalling the intensity and later friendship.

"Dave Burke was a North Quincy player I was tackling and we used to play on the baseball team together," said Casali. "After the game we hugged each other. And later in life we got to know each other."

North Quincy won again in 1945 during the storm. Burke fell on the opening kickoff in the end zone as the Quincy players watched in confusion during the torrential rain.

SIX FORMER Quincy and North Quincy football players from the 1940s and 1950s will be among those honored at festivities marking the 80th high school football game rivalry on Thanksgiving. From left to right: Bob Gumpwright played a guard for Quincy High School and graduated in 1941; Lou Marini played fullback for Quincy High School from 1943-1945; Mario "Mud" Casali played for Quincy High School from 1943-1945; Dave Montani was the quarterback for Quincy High School and graduated in 1947; John (Butch) Mahoney played for North Quincy High School as a halfback, he graduated in 1954; and George Mallett played for Quincy High School and graduated in 1953.

With WWII in full force, Casali put high school and football on hold and joined the navy. When he returned he was too old to play, but decided to help out coaching to stay involved with football.

"The war ended and they shipped us right home again so I came back to school half way through the year," said Casali. "Playing was wonderful I found a lot camaraderie with the guys, and they kept me out of trouble."

After his days at Quincy high, Casali took advantage of the G.I. bill and attended Boston University. He played hockey there for four years and graduated in 1951.

Whitelaw also joined the service after graduation and went to Springfield College thanks to the G.I. Bill, and got into coaching and sports administration after.

Bob Gumpwright Sr., a Quincy guard recalled tying North 0-0 his senior year. That game in 1941 was postponed from Thanksgiving to the following Saturday due to inclement weather.

"It was a tie that year in 1940," said Gumpwright, 89. "It was a lot of fun playing that was for sure. Everyone had a great time. The Thanksgiving day game was one of the most exciting."

Dave Montani, 83, remembered how eager he was to get to Quincy high and play football. He played with Marini his sophomore and junior year.

"There was more interest in the games those years than there is now," said Montani. "I don't think the kids now have the desire to play. When I was in high school I had to play. I was determined to play. And they were great years."

He encourages younger kids to get involved with athletics today.

"You have to play ball in high school," said Montani. "It stays with you the rest of your life."

John (Butch) Mahoney, a North Quincy graduate, loved football so much he went on to play for the New England Patriots for a season. He remembered going to the games to watch his older brothers, Marini and Whitelaw play.

But what stood out most for Mahoney was North's unusual strategy.

"We had what was called a double wing and an unbalanced line," said Mahoney. We had double reverses. It wasn't the same game. North Quincy had an old team that played old type football."

After North Quincy, Mahoney played for American

International College and then joined the marines. He stressed the importance of celebrating the 80th anniversary this year.

"We don't know what's going to happen with the Thanksgiving game," he said. "A lot of the kids are transferring to Quincy high so they may just have one team in the future."

George Mallett, class of '53' said he's looking forward to the game this year and seeing former players. Mallett attends the game every year.

"I learned they (North Quincy) were the enemy when I was playing," said Mallett. "But after I graduated I played semi pros with guys from North Quincy and realized they were just like us. They were our enemies but now they're our friends."

Mallett added, "All that's over. We will be one when we meet again on the field this Thanksgiving."

Some Local Faces Appear In New Comedy

He was a senior at North Quincy High when the film was shot in the spring of 2011, and is now in his second year studying at Berklee College of Music in Boston.

This isn't the first time Batson has appeared on screen. He was an extra in 2006's "The Departed," and can be seen in the one scene in which the characters played by Jack Nicholson, Martin Sheen, and Mark Wahlberg all appear together — Batson can be found over Nicholson's shoulder, drinking a Coke. But for Batson "Here Comes the Boom" was a lot different than "The Departed."

"It felt a lot different — I was a lot older and I got to be in it with my friends," Batson said.

Batson, who plays trombone in the movie, and his fellow band members will be much more visible this time around; the band shot three scenes in the movie. Batson shot two scenes by himself, including one where his character spoke. He also makes an appearance in the film's theatrical trailer, appearing in a hallway at the old QHS, preparing to fist bump Kevin James. The trailer began playing in theaters over the summer. It didn't take long for Batson's friends and family members to recognize him.

"It was pretty interesting," Batson said. "There were people calling me, texting me to say that they see me."

That fist bump made the movie because director Frank Coraci — whose other films include "The Waterboy" and "Click" — saw Batson improvise a fist bump earlier in the film shoot, according to Quincy/North Quincy band director and teacher Richard Kenneally.

"In one scene, Kevin James is coming down the hall and Mike Batson is standing talking with a kid and just nonchalantly gave him a fist bump. About a week or so later we're shooting again in the old school and the director goes 'who was that kid that gave the fist bump,'" Kenneally said. "Ten minutes later Mike Batson comes up and [the director] says 'when he comes around later, do this fist bump again.' So later on in the movie — the one you see in the trailer — is the one that the director called."

Unlike members of the band, Kenneally doesn't appear in the film — though his brother Kevin, a former teacher, does play a teacher in the film. But he was asked to help Winkler learn the ins and outs of teaching and leading a band.

"I was a consultant to Henry Winkler, labeled as 'band consultant,'" Kenneally said. "I had to show him how to direct — waive his arms around the right way."

Kenneally enjoyed working with Winkler, who made time to interact with the band members during downtime on set.

"He was unbelievable, especially with the kids," Kenneally said. "We were on the set for hours and hours, but on the screen we'll be there for minutes. They do a little bit of filming, there'd be a break where they're changing lights."

"Henry Winkler would go around, sit down with each kid, have a conversation with each one of the kids. He'd call them 'my lovelies, my angels.'"

Batson felt the same way about Winkler.

"Henry Winkler was really, really funny," Batson said. "He talked to all of us."

For his part, Winkler said the band members were focused on the movie.

"The kids were really committed to the scene. I love music and I got to conduct a wonderful piece written for the film, played by about 60 young people," Winkler said.

The Quincy/North Quincy band won the spot in the movie after auditioning for the role. They were the first group to audition, and about a dozen other local bands were set to try-out for the role after them. But after the director and others heard the band perform an impromptu rendition of "Warpath" following the audition, they settled on Kenneally's crew.

"There's a song that we play after North football games called 'Warpath,' as soon as they left [the band] wanted to play 'Warpath' and when they played it, it was like gangbusters came out," Kenneally said. "On the way from the band room door to the front door of the high school, they (Coraci and others leading the film shoot) decided to use the band."

In all, about 45 band members are in the movie; some members weren't allowed to participate because of child labor laws. For the movie the band was augmented by a string section with about a dozen members.

Shooting took place in March and April of 2011. Because school was still in session, Kenneally would need to pull the band members out of school, often on just a day's notice.

"It was nuts, it was a headache but it was fantastic at the same time," Kenneally said.

The film company provided tutors for the kids on set, and everything was catered. But the shoot led to some long days for the students.

"We had some long call times," Batson said. "We had to be there at seven or eight in the morning and be there for 12 hours."

The band's scenes were primarily shot at the old school, but they did travel to the Tsongas Center in Lowell, which was made to look like Las Vegas' MGM Grand for the film's climactic fight. Coraci said he chose to use the old Quincy High because he wanted a real high school that looked somewhat hopeless.

"We wanted to find a high school that looked like the real thing, but also looked a little hopeless," Coraci said. "We found the former campus of Quincy High School, which had just closed, which was perfect, because we could beat it up as much as we wanted. It was fun for me to do something different — we usually build all of our sets, but in this case we could just find it and roll with it."

The high school's classrooms were left mostly in tact. But the auditorium was converted into a band room for the occasion, and the production designers used Kenneally's band room at NQHS for inspiration.

"They came to North to look at what a band room looks like and then they took the whole Quincy auditorium and turned it into the band room," Kenneally said. "They took out all the seats and then just built and old fashioned looking band room."

"The set was really cool," Batson added. "There were a lot of props from the North band room there."

Production designer Perry Andelin Blake explained that Coraci wanted a room with character, sort of like and old baseball glove.

"It's one of the most important elements, because everything that Kevin's character is trying to do is to save the music department," Blake said. "So we took the school's auditorium, and we built a music room within there. Frank's direction to me was that he wanted the room to feel like an old baseball mitt, and I got it right away. It's worn, but it has character to it. It's soft, it's personal. So we built a room with a lot of character to it — there was a lot of wood furniture and layers of history, like 20 generations of kids had gone through there. And the one constant in that room was Henry Winkler's character — it's his home, in a way. He's comfortable there."

But in the movie the MIKE BATSON'S fist pump with Kevin James made it into the film's theatrical trailer. Director Frank Coraci told him to first bump James after seeing Batson improvise one about a week earlier. Batson, a 2011 North Quincy High graduate, is one of 45 members of the Quincy/North Quincy band who appear in the film, which also cast extras from throughout the city.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL junior Gabby Zorkers spikes the ball over the net in the Presidents' 3-2 win over North Quincy last Friday night at the Quincy High gym.

NORTH QUINCY'S Maya Umoren (back) and Carolyn Schwartz watch the ball as a teammate bumps it over the net in the Raider's match with cross-town rival Quincy.

Quincy Girls' Volleyball Downs Raiders In Thriller

By JEFF OHLSON

In their second meeting this season, Quincy (8-3) defeated North Quincy (8-3) 3-2 in what was almost a great comeback by the Raiders. Gabby Zorkers was fantastic for the Presidents, and Carolyn Schwartz played great for North Quincy in the loss.

Quincy started off looking like the far superior team against North on Friday night going up 2-0 after dominating North in consecutive sets 25-16 and 25-13. Zorkers led the way for Quincy with multiple blocks and three aces in the first game. In the second game, Michelle Connolly was key for Quincy and had a stretch of aces to put the Presidents ahead for good.

After Quincy jumped out to a 2-0 lead, North found their rhythm and refused to go down without a fight as they marched back to tie the match at 2-2. For North Quincy Carolyn Schwartz had a great night, as she led the defense in the comeback with consecutive blocks and followed that with consecutive spikes in part of a 4-0 run by the Raiders. Also playing well for North Quincy was Rose Bennett whose serve puzzled Quincy's players all night and even had the praise of Quincy Coach Jacqui Niosi.

"Rose is a great server, and it kind of drops out at the end, it's very hard to read. We just felt if we could dig it out, we would have a chance," said Niosi.

North Coach Kerry Ginty also had nothing but praise for her senior.

"She's been consistent for us for four years. She played middle for three years and now she's just killing it in the back. Her serve is really coming along," Coach Ginty said.

Coach Ginty was also proud of her team and their perseverance.

"The first two games they were just keeping the ball in play and serving us off the court and we were just not moving our feet. The last three games we just snapped out of it and started to play to win. I couldn't be prouder of my team and how they played the last three games. It was a great match," Ginty said.

Quincy's inconsistency made this game a lot harder for the Presidents to get this win. Quincy was aggressive and quick in the first two games and looked timid and slow in games three and four. Quincy's coach attributes the inconsistency to her own players and also realizes that North played better in the third and fourth game as well.

"I wish I could explain that. We've done that the last week or so and we have to stop because it's definitely giving me too many grey hairs. They had more unforced errors and we came out more aggressive but they are a good team and you know that they are going to come out swinging at the ball and be tough. We expect that when we play North," said Niosi.

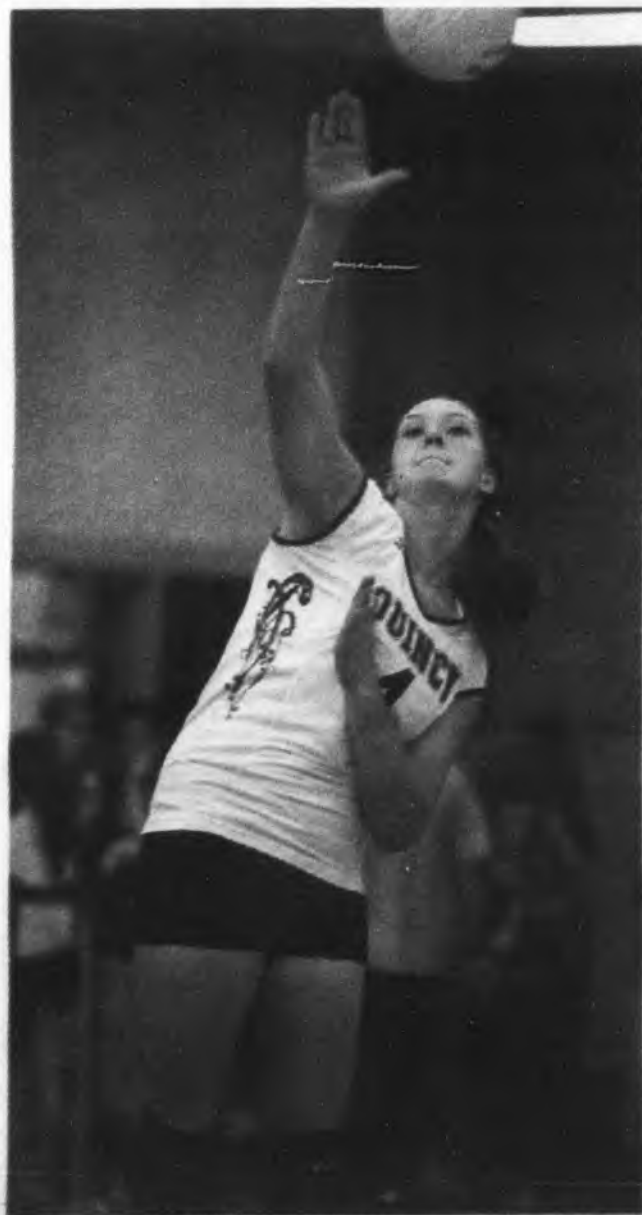

Ginty thought it was more on her players than Quincy's inconsistency.

"The difference was that we were just pushing the pace and we were making things a little quicker. We tend to play better when we don't think as much and the tempo is upbeat," said Ginty.

In the fifth and final game of the match, Quincy and North were both playing at a high level and Quincy was led by Alysha Dunbar who helped the Presidents on a 4-0 run to give Quincy the lead 4-2 early on. North Quincy would go on a run of their own led by Rose Bennett to bring the score to 14-12 in favor of the Raiders.

Quincy had the final say in the fifth game though ending on a 3-0 run that was started by a great save by Michelle Connolly followed by a spike by Courtney Ryan. Alysha Dunbar finished off North with a serve that the Raiders could not return, giving Quincy the narrow victory 3-2.

The match left both teams tied in the division with identical 8-3 records.

Quincy Boys' Soccer Resilient In Playoff Push

By COLLEEN CASEY

Players on the Quincy boys' soccer team knew this season wasn't going to be easy. After team member Lamar Thompson drowned this summer, the boys knew they would have to battle their emotions and opponents on the field.

The Presidents started off strong, on track to the playoffs with a 4-3-2 mark before tragedy struck again. After Quincy's 5-2 victory over Whitman-Hanson last Tuesday, senior midfielder Bai Kanu was critically injured after the bike he was on was struck by a car.

Kanu wore Thompson's jersey, No. 13, in memory of his teammate this season. After this tragedy Spendlove said shirt No. 13 "will be gone."

Since the accident the Presidents have played two games. They lost to Duxbury 3-1 and tied Bridgewater-Raynham. They currently need nine points to qualify for the tournament and have nine games to do it. A win is two points and a tie is one, so five victories will put them in.

"In the B-R we basically got battered for the first half," said Spendlove. "You could tell there was a little less in the tank. It was evident we were missing Bai's compassion at mid field."

Quincy has three big games this week, Hingham on Tuesday, Silver Lake on Thursday and rival North Quincy on Saturday. Hingham currently sits in the top spot of the Patriot League and hasn't lost a game yet. Silver Lake beat the Presidents 5-2 earlier in the season.

Stepping up for the Presidents have been Caique Reginaldo, James O'Shea and James Strugel.

Spendlove added, "The kids are very resilient. They're tough and we're staying strong. The goal remains the same, we're just trying to make the playoffs."

Mike Mullaney Wins Sixth Straight

North Cross-Country Edged By Scituate

North's goal of a Patriot League Fisher Division Championship got a little bit tougher with a close loss to Scituate 28-31.

A major blow to the team is the loss of Briana Mullaney to an undisclosed medical issue. Mullaney was unable to finish over the 2.7 mile Scituate course and required medical attention.

"She's working with medical professionals to see what exactly is the problem," said a concerned Coach Geoff Hennessy. "She's been running for us since age 7 with the track club, middle school and now the high school and up to this point it's been clear sailing.

"Championships are nice but her health and safety are paramount right now. Hopefully we'll get answers, but for right now she's shut down until medically cleared."

Emily Bryson placed 1st with Danielle Mullaney and Julia Bryson 3rd and 4th. The meet breaker was Scituate placing six runners ahead of co-captain Mary Zheng to clinch the victory.

Mike Mullaney claimed first again for the sixth straight contest, cruising the Scituate course in a fast 15:34 with Danny Tran 3rd but they were the only Red Raiders to crack the top ten Nathan Donahue, Brandon Zeng and Matt Enos were the other scorers for North. After a bye this week North hosts Pembroke. Should the Raider girls win there will be a three way tie for first in the Fisher division, Scituate having already lost to Pembroke earlier in the season.

Raiders Down Titans, 2-0

By JEFF OHLSON

In a must win game, North Quincy (3-6-1) did not disappoint as they shut out Pembroke High 2-0 last week to keep their tournament hopes alive.

Robbie Routhier played excellent defense and Jameson McFarland made 15 saves in the shutout.

It wasn't an easy win for the Raiders but it was a win the team needed as they continue to fight for a spot in the tournament.

"It was huge. We still have a shot at second place in our division. This was against a team in our division," said Coach Rich Hanlon "We knew they would give us a battle. I've been watching their games, we knew they would give us a battle."

Late in the first half things didn't look like they were going to go North Quincy's way as it appeared that Pembroke scored the first goal of the game on a rebound. However, the goal was called off by an official and an off sides penalty was announced on Pembroke.

The Raiders didn't wait long in the second half to score as John Lopes took advantage of sloppy defense by Pembroke and buried a shot in the back of the Titans net as North Quincy took a 1-0 lead. Later in the second half North would score again on an assist by Enea Milo to Angelo Taho to extend the lead to 2-0.

North Quincy's offense was good, but their defense was absolutely stifling. Co-captains McFarland and Routhier led the defense as Jameson was unbelievable in net with 15 saves and Routhier's defense was great. Coach Hanlon knows the importance of good defense.

"They had too many chances, we gave them a lot of confidence in the first half, Routhier really solidified the middle. You can't win a game if you don't stop the other team first," said Coach Hanlon.

The Raiders kept their playoff hopes alive with the win and will look forward with nine games remaining in their season.

"Getting to .500 is going to be a tall order, but second place gets into the tournament. These guys can play, and we feel good. This was a great overall effort for our team," said Coach Hanlon.

North Quincy's game was cancelled on Thursday night due to rain, but it also gave the players and coach a chance to reflect on a recent tragedy when a Quincy student was struck by a car while riding his bicycle.

"It's a freak accident. Our prayers are with them and we feel for the parents," Hanlon said.

The Raiders will try and enjoy the win but ultimately know that they have a lot of work ahead of them.

The Raiders visit Hanover today (Thursday) and square off with Quincy High Saturday at 5 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

GOING FULL TILT

Take a moment to consider people who constantly tilt their heads to one side. Because heads are designed to rest evenly between shoulders, this tilting posture places undue stress on neck muscles. In time, the muscles on one side of the neck with shorten, posing potential long-term problems. So, you might ask: Why bring up this subject? Who goes through life with his or her head constantly tilted to one side? Believe it or not, youngsters inspired by Rihanna, Frankie Sandford, Justin Bieber, and other young pop stars often wear an asymmetric fringe hairstyle that covers one eye, which compels them to constantly tilt their heads to see better. This is one trend that poses potential health consequences.

At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we draw upon a wealth of knowledge and experience with treating and preventing neck pain. A continuing schedule of regular chiropractic check-ups can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. If the head-tilting hairstyle mentioned above seems like an extreme example of "suffering for fashion's sake," consider how wearing high heels shortens the muscles in women's legs, which often leads to pain and injury.

North Quincy Girls' Soccer Earns Win, Playoff Spot

By COLLEEN CASEY

When the North Quincy girls' soccer team was down 1-0 against Pembroke at halftime, coach Paul Bregoli knew he had to do something to rally his team. The 18-year coach spoke to the girls about overcoming adversity.

The Red Raiders were plagued with injury, having lost starting goalie Rachel O'Driscoll to a broken wrist two weeks ago, Haley McKay to a knee injury and backup goalie Liz Kelly to a back injury eight minutes into the game.

But after being outplayed for nearly three quarters of the game, the Red Raiders found their legs, and senior captain Shannon McLeary broke by the Pembroke defense and scored her fifth goal of the season to tie the game. Sophomore Courtney Campo got the assist.

North was hungry for a victory, showcasing their determination late in the game. Senior captain Jaclyn Scuzzarella won a ball twenty yards out and found Campo inside the box. Campo dodged a defender and ripped a low, hard shot past the sprawling Titan goalie to lead the Raiders to victory.

The two points from the win were enough to earn North a playoff berth for the 13th time in the past 18 years.

"This was one of the most thrilling wins I've had at North," said Bregoli. "This team has remarkable mental toughness, refusing to give in with the odds against them."

During the break Bregoli told the players to not make excuses and expect to win. His mentality of expecting to win seems to be paying off, as the Red Raiders now stand at (9-2-2).

North's defense has been spectacular all season. Opponents have managed to score only five goals against them. This past week Arianna Viscione cleared a ball on the goal line to save a goal, and Sydney Chang and Julia O'Donnell played stellar to keep teams from scoring.

The Raiders tied Hingham 0-0 earlier in the week and then went on rout Malden 7-0 at home. McLeary started the scoring three minutes in off a pass from Campo. Haley Houlihan got her third goal of the season off an assist from Molly Donahue and McKay netted one just before the half to put the Raiders up 3-0. Two goals by Kelly, one by Ali Coleman and the final by Ciara Forde ended the scoring.

North continued showcasing their offensive talents, taking down Latin Academy 8-0. McLeary and Danielle Paschall scored two goals, and Marissa McGue, Caitlin Bulger and McKay each chipped in one.

Bregoli added, "We're just looking to improve our record and get a home game in the tournament."

North Quincy will face Hanover at 4 p.m. at home on Thursday and Quincy on Friday at 4 p.m.

Quincy Girls Fall To Duxbury

By JEFF OHLSON

The Quincy girls' soccer team (0-6-1) fell to the Duxbury Dragons 4-0 last Thursday continuing what has been a tough season. Goalkeeper Natalie O'Donovan once again played strong for Quincy and Kayla McArdle was once again great on defense in the loss.

Even though it's been a tough season for the Presidents, it hasn't been a season without accomplishment. The Presidents have improved their play with every game and that's something that their coach noticed and is proud of.

"First game we played a full 80 minutes. That's what I'm looking for," said Quincy Coach Courtney Harnais.

"I know it's another loss and it's a battle every time we get out there but I'm looking for the small victories right now. I could sit here and think about the negative and that's what everyone is looking for us to do, but we got to stay positive and keep working. I'm proud of how my girls played."

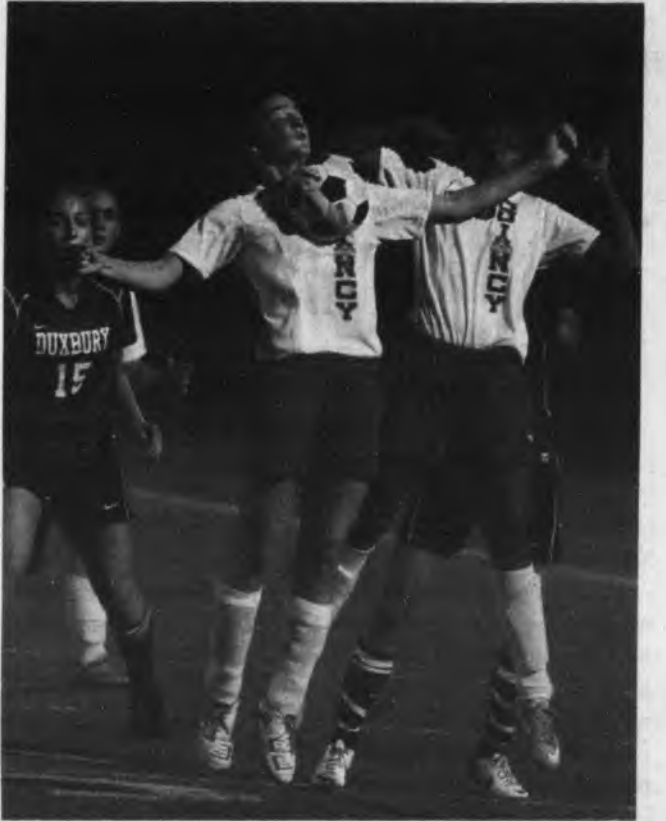

Kayla McArdle and Natalie O'Donovan, who both played well in the loss, have been one of Quincy's bright spots all season and Coach Harnais sees them as a huge asset going forward.

"From day one, Kayla's been a consistent fighter and an inspiration to the entire team. It's honestly her and Natalie. Natalie has been great in goal and has kept us in a ton of games and in some games those two players have just been consistent and players to look to and know they will just fight" said Coach Harnais.

Harnais now knows her team is a team full of fighters and see this year as a rebuilding year. The coach looks to the future, a future where she sees her team being successful and competitive.

"We have a young team right now and its really different for everyone. They are getting to know me, it's their first time playing for me and my first time coaching them. They will understand how I want them to play from day 1 next year and they will continue to work and know the expectations I have," said Coach Harnais.

It can be difficult for fans, but sometimes the small victories and accomplishments can lead to bigger things in the future and that's how Coach Harnais sees it.

"It's cliché to say, but nothing happens overnight, and it's a process and a rebuilding year, but we are working hard," she added.

Quincy travels to Silver Lake today (Thursday) and plays North Quincy Friday at 4 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Presidents Bow To MC, 15-12

By JEFF OHLSON

Quincy High's (2-3) early mistakes ended up being the difference on Friday night as they fell to Malden Catholic 15-12 in football.

Jalen Green didn't play in this game due to injury but Viet Doan and Gerson Lai ran well for the Presidents in his place. James Lam also had a great game throwing for two touchdown passes.

Coach Bill Reardon found his team's slow start frustrating and felt that the long bus ride may have had an effect on his players.

"It was a frustrating game for us because we turned the ball over four times, three fumbles, one interception and eight penalties for 75 yards," said Reardon. "Penalties and two fumbles killed every drive we had in the first half. It took us an hour and a half to get there because of traffic and I don't think our kids [got going] until the second half."

Penalties and turnovers can kill an offensive effort, but once Quincy got going they looked good in the second half tying the game at 12-12 heading into the fourth quarter. James Lam played well for Quincy and the defense did its job all game.

Down 12-0 at the half, Quincy stopped turning over the ball and receiving penalties and the Presidents starting converting drives into points. Quincy's first touchdown came in the 3rd quarter on a 26-yard pass from James Lam to Jaquan

Harris but the extra point attempt was blocked.

Quincy would score again in the fourth quarter on another touchdown pass from James Lam, this time to Alex Heffernan. The Presidents' penalty habits would bite again though as they were flagged for excessive celebration and they then missed the 35-yard extra point kick off of the cross bar.

With the score tied at 12-12, the Presidents defense forced Malden Catholic to punt from midfield but Quincy muffed the punt reception and Malden Catholic recovered, the Lancers would then kick the go ahead field goal to go up 15-12 with a few minutes left in the game. Quincy received the kick off and the offense drove to midfield before James Lam was intercepted at Malden Catholic's 30-yard line to end the game.

Coach Reardon said this one got away from the Presidents but knows what to improve on to win next week.

"One we should have won...If we turn the ball over next week and have the same issue with penalties, Whitman-Hanson will smoke us. We have to go back to playing smart, fundamentally sound football," said Coach Reardon.

Quincy takes on Whitman-Hanson next Friday in Whitman-Hanson.

North Quincy, which had a bye last week, hosts Middleborough at 7 p.m. Friday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Registration Underway For Learn-To-Skate Program

Registration is underway for the Quincy Recreation Department's Learn to Skate program at the department's main office at 1 Merymount Parkway, Monday through Fridays between 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Registration will continue as long as openings exist.

Online registration can be done on www.QuincyRec.org.

The eight-week ice skating program will hold two classes on Wednesday afternoons at the Quincy Youth Arena starting Oct. 17.

The program will have two separate classes beginning at 3:10 and 4:05 p.m. on Wednesdays. Both classes offer the same level of instruction and will run for eight weeks.

The cost of the program is $68 for an eight-week session, which includes instruction and ice time. Participants need to provide their own skates, that can be figure or hockey skates. Registration is done on a first come first served basis.

For more information, call 617-376-1394.

Mayor's Cup Golf Tournament Raises $60,000 For Local Charities

A full field of 144 golfers recently participated in the 2012 Mayor's Cup Charity Golf Tournament at Granite Links Golf Club.

Over $60,000 was raised for local charitable organizations. Quincy Medical Center was recognized as the official tournament sponsor through a donation of $10,000.

"The $10,000 donation by Quincy Medical Center demonstrates a profound commitment to our City," Koch said. "They do wonderful work day in and day out, they are developing the hospital into one of the finest in the region, and they understand what it means to be a true corporate citizen."

The team from Fallon

Ambulance fought through wind gusts north of 25 MPH and won the tournament with a 12 under par score of 60. Teams from State Street and National Grid tied for second place at 8 under par.

The monies raised from the Mayor's Cup go directly to local charities operating in Quincy. Over the past four years significant donations have been made to veterans groups, the Quincy Symphony Orchestra, the Quincy Choral Society, DOVE, the Quincy Animal Shelter, fuel assistance, Interfaith Social Services, the Quincy Education Fund, the Germantown Neighborhood Center and others.

"This tournament is a wonderful way of helping those great agencies that enhance quality of life for so many residents here in Quincy," said Koch. "We are fortunate to have such a vibrant business community ranging from global corporations to local businesses to tradesmen."

Adams Level Sponsors ($5,000): State Street Corporation, Eastern Bank, IBEW Local 103, Wessling Architects, Woodard & Curran, Tishman Construction.

Quincy Adams Level Sponsors ($2,500): Capitol Waste Services, National Grid, South Cove Community Health Center, South Cove Manor at Quincy Point, H.V. Collins Company, Fallon Ambulance, Boston Scientific.

Youth Football League Mourns Loss Of Founder

Elks, Panthers Roll Into Playoffs With Big Wins

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football entered week 5 on a bit of a somber note with a moment of silence observed in memory of QYFL Founder, Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

Dr. Creedon passed away Sept. 27 at the age of 80. He co-founded the QYFL and the North Quincy Apaches back in 1950 while he was a student at Boston University. His fledgling league was formed as a safe alternative to "Sandlot" football for Parochial school students. Sixty-two years later, the foundation he laid has flourished into one of Quincy's premier sports leagues.

Dr. Creedon contributions to the QYFL will never be forgotten.

The final week of regular season play kicked-off with the North Quincy Apaches hosting the Quincy Point Panthers.

Apaches kick-returner, Chris Mann took the opening kickoff back 85 yards for a touchdown. The conversion attempt failed but, the Apaches took the lead 6-0. The rain rolled in as the second quarter began and both defensive played solid.

The Panthers managed to reach the end zone just before the half, as RB Domenic Coleman ran for a 24-yard TD run. Coleman rushed in for the conversion as the panthers to a 7-6 lead at halftime.

The Panthers regrouped and took control in the second half as Coleman took the opening kickoff of the second half back 87 yards for a touchdown. QB Nick Mayberry rushed in for the conversion to extend the Panthers lead 14-6.

Two series later the Panthers were 2nd and goal on the Apaches 3 yard line. Apache DB Shawn Kelly recovered a Panther fumble on the 1-yard line.

Two plays later Panther LB Coleman tackled the Apaches RB in the end zone for a safety. The Apaches kicked off to the Panthers from their own 20-yard line. Three plays later, RB Coleman rushed for his third score of the day - a 52-yard TD run. The conversion attempt failed making the score Panthers 22 and Apaches 6.

Later in the 4th Quarter, DB Brendan Jenner recovered an Apache fumble setting up a 47-yard TD run by Coleman. Domenic Coleman's four-TD performance made him the QYFL regular season scoring leader (9 TD's, 58 total points.)

Panther Head Coach Noel DiBona saw some fine performances from Coleman, Jenner, Mayberry, Robert Wilson, Bryan Hanly, Kevin Phu, Josh Coughlin, Jackson Quinn, Ryan Malloy Ronan Conteras, Jayo DaRosa, Melvin Gonzales and Nick Cedrone.

The Apaches were sparked by the play of Mann, Kelly, Brian Maloney, Mike Dockery, Matt Eagles, Devin Ganno, Brendan Ganno Win Tran and Ronin O'Farrell.

The #2 seed, Quincy Point Panthers (3-1) face the #5 Seed, North Quincy Apaches in a rematch in the first round of the QYFL playoffs next Sunday at 2 p.m.

The Storm won tie-breaker in the three-way tie for 1st place. The #1 seed, Storm, have the first round bye next week.

The second game of the afternoon featured the West Quincy Elks hosting the Milton Mustangs. The rain continue throughout this game making it a defensive battle.

The defense for the Elks was sparked by the play of defensive linemen Vagno Santos, Jamal Williams and Anthony Sances. The Elks' defense held the Milton's offense to 3 punts and a turnover on downs in 4 first-half Possessions.

The Elks got on the scoreboard just before halftime when QB Angelo DePaulo rushed for a 12-yard touchdown. The conversion attempted failed and the Elks entered the locker room with 6-0 lead.

The third quarter continued to be a defensive battle. At the end of the quarter, the Elks defense held the Mustangs on a goal line stand. On the ensuing series, RB John Teixeira raced down the sideline for an 80-yard TD run. The conversion attempt failed and the Elks defeated the Mustangs 12-0.

Elks Head Coach Justin Thorley got some fine performances from DePaulo, Teixeira, Josh Rodriguez, Aaron Etienne, Williams, Sances, Santos, Ray Rodriguez and Shorn Hawthorne. The Mustangs were led by Jeff Wolffe, Jack Stetson, Nate Carr, Colin Whittaker, Michael Corcoran, Owen Regan and Paul Tegan.

The #3 Seed, West Quincy Elks (3-1) have a Rematch with the #4 Seed, Milton Mustangs (1-4) in the first round of the QYFL playoffs next Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

OBITUARIES

Robin G. DuBois, 60 Worked For Jordan Marsh Co.

ROBIN G. DUBOIS, 60

A funeral Mass for Robin G. (Transue) DuBois, 60, of Quincy was celebrated Wednesday at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. DuBois died Oct. 5.

She was a graduate of Chelmsford High School Class of 1970 and received her Associate's Degree in Social Work from Quincy College. Mrs. DuBois was a dedicated employee of Jordan Marsh Co. for over 22 years and later worked at Staples in Weymouth until diagnosed with leukemia in 2007.

Her Strong Faith and her passion for youth led her to become very active in the Church both at St. John's and St. Joseph's Parishes. She became a Certified Youth Minister, a Girl Scout Leader, Altar Server, Eucharistic Minister, CCD Teacher and treasured coach of both basketball and softball.

Loving mother of Jaclyn M. DuBois and Aimee E. DuBois, both of Quincy. Cherished "Grammy" of Elijah James DuBois, dear sister of Roberta Highstone and her husband John of AK, Stephen Transue and his wife Penny of AZ & Mark Transue of NV. Sister-in-law of Janet DuBois of Brockton, Alfred DuBois Jr. and his wife Michelle of Weymouth, Dana DuBois and his wife Suzanne of Hyde Park and the late Linda Rogers. Lawn Will Thank You for Raking Leaves

By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

Q: I'm not thrilled with all the leaves piling up in my yard. Do you have any tips to make fall cleanup easier? Why can't I just leave them where they lie? -- Barbara in Dover, N.H.

A: Raking leaves can be a tedious task, and gets exhausting when dealing with a large yard with lots of trees. During the fall season, a homeowner could wind up raking the yard at least once a week.

Unfortunately, leaving those leaves to pile up will wreak havoc on your lawn. First, the coating of leaves prevents air and sun from reaching grass directly, but lets rainwater trickle down, creating a harsh environment for grass. Second, leaves are filled with alkaline compounds that can damage the grass. These factors make leaves a great mulch ingredient, because you typically put mulch where you don't want grass or weeds to grow. You don't want a heavy coating of leaf mulch on your lawn, though.

So, you've got to clean up those fallen leaves eventually. Here's a few ideas to make the task somewhat easier.

- Pick up the first light coating of leaves while mowing the lawn, with the bag attached.

- Borrow or rent a leaf blower to tackle larger areas with a moderate to heavy coating of leaves. Carefully blow the leaves into rough piles around the lawn.

- Use your rake to finish a large leaf cleanup job: pile the leaves closer together, or use the rake to shift leaves into a bag or wheelbarrow for disposal elsewhere.

- Add leaves to your compost pile. Fall is a favorite time for homeowners who keep compost piles because leaves add bulk to their compost and can help balance nutrients and acidity or alkalinity if used in the right amounts.

HOME TIP: Watch out for that noisy leaf blower. Be aware of any local noise ordinances before using a leaf blower and try to avoid using it before 10 a.m. most days. Your neighbors will thank you.

Questions About Used Jaguars, Antifreeze, Timing Belts

Ask The Car Doctor With AAA's John Paul

Q: I'm thinking of buying a used 2001 Jaguar XK convertible. It wouldn't be my only car. Based on your experience what do you think?

A: There was a time when about all I could say about Jaguars was that they had two of everything that broke twice as often. Although some Jaguar enthusiasts were unhappy when Ford purchased the company, quality improved remarkably with Ford's help. My only suggestion would be to have a used car inspection performed on the car. This will help identify any pending current or future repair issues.

Q: I recently changed the antifreeze on my car with used antifreeze that I had in the garage. The bottle was capped although it was opened once. Does antifreeze go bad and did I make a mistake?

JOHN PAUL

A: If the coolant was in a sealed container, there is no reason that you can't use it. My only caution would be that the coolant is compatible for the car. Once upon a time, there were two types of coolant. Today there are at least 8 types of coolant used in different make and model cars. Using the wrong specification coolant can cause both short and long term issues with the engine's cooling system.

Q: Hoping you can offer some solutions for me and any others in your audience who have encountered this issue. After nearly 15 years with my Toyota Corolla, it is time to buy a new car. Based on researching various car and consumer websites, my top choice is the third generation Prius. During a visit to a local dealership for a test drive, I discovered it was impossible to sit comfortably in the seat due to the head restraint. Either my neck and head were forced to tilt forward, or I could not allow my back to be against the seat. The salesperson and I attempted multiple adjustments to the seat along with adjusting the height of the head restraint. Nothing worked. More Internet searching upon my return home provided information about the 2008 law that resulted in this design for the head restraints - which also tells me any car I would buy would have the same problem. With cars having this design since 2008, there must be some workable solution without sacrificing safety, or risking neck pain.

What can you suggest?

A: You are correct that since 2008 head restraint design has been changed to minimize whiplash. It appears to be a compatibility problem; some drivers find this to be more of an issue than others. I have driven several hundred new cars since 2008 and never found an issue with the head restraints. In all cars, I will adjust the head restraint to find the safest position, at times adjusting the seat-back to find a comfortable angle. My only suggestion, other than reporting the issue to the National Highway Safety Administration (www.nhtsa.gov), is to go to a big used car lot—CarMax or similar, and try many different late model makes to find a car that is both safe and comfortable. Readers, do you have a suggestion?

Q: I have a 2006 Honda Pilot with 80,000 miles on it. At what point should I have the timing belt replaced and water pump checked? I thought it was at 90,000 miles for that model but wanted to be sure.

A: The timing belt has a replacement interval of 105,000 miles, so your Pilot has some time left. I wouldn't go past this interval due to the engine design. If the belt fails, it can do substantial damage to the engine. Regarding the water pump, unless there are signs of leaking now, I would just have it carefully inspected when the timing belt gets replaced.

Q: I purchased a 2011 Honda CRV with 27,000, at 32,000 while driving when I slow down the air conditioner temperature raises a substantial amount—the car gets warm. Honda service said no leaks noticed and Honda will not cover a recharging unless the system has a broken part. The dealer tells me I need to pay $100.00 plus for the attempt to fix the car. Any idea as to why a new car would have this problem so early?

A: If the system passes all the typical performance tests this may be a normal characteristic of this car. Honda in many models will limit air conditioner operation at low speeds during acceleration. In earlier Honda models the cars computer could be reprogrammed to reduce this effect. Check with the Honda dealer, perhaps there is a computer modification that could help.

Q: I recently drove from Boston to Denver, where I have moved while attending school. I found that checking my tire pressure regularly along the trip revealed the inflating effects of the altitude. Is there anything else that I should check due to the pressure change? I was recently told my water pump was leaking, but the level seems consistent and I see no overheating. Could this be due to the altitude?

A: Altitude will have an effect on tire pressure and in some cases engine performance, but will do little else to the car. The leaking water pump is most likely due to wear and should be replaced. The leak won't get any better by itself and will most likely only get worse. As good as cars are today, that don't tolerate overheating.

Q: I have a 2007 Toyota Camry and from time to time to save gas I shift in to neutral and coast. Am I doing any harm to my car when I do this?

A: My feeling that you are doing very little to improve your car's fuel mileage by shifting and coasting. In fact you are probably just causing wear to the shifter linkage. As a side note in some states it is actually illegal to coast.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Tuesday, Oct. 2, at approximately 2:45 p.m., Officers James Sullivan, Ron McKim, Kevin DiMaggio and Sergeant Dan Flaherty were dispatched to East Squantum Street to speak with two witnesses who just observed a possible breaking and entering.

An updated call came into dispatch stating that the witness was chasing the suspect on foot down Botolph Street. Officer Sullivan arrived on scene and interviewed the couple. The female said that they arrived home to find a bottle smashed in their driveway, so she started picking the pieces up. As she was doing this, she observed a male suspect wearing a black hoodie and carrying a backpack come out the front door of her neighbor's house. She found this to be odd because she knew that the neighbor was at work and she never saw the suspect before.

The suspect walked towards Botolph Street, followed at a safe distance by the couple. The suspect kept looking over his shoulder at the couple, then picked up his pace. Suddenly, the suspect broke into a sprint and ran towards Clive Street. The couple, considerably older than the suspect, could not keep up with the suspect, so they called "911" on his cell phone to report the incident.

The officers searched the area, locating the suspect on Billings Street. Sergeant Flaherty immediately observed that the suspect was sweating and breathing heavily, as if he was running. The suspect identified himself and said that he was looking for a job.

Sergeant Flaherty countered, "In a residential area?" The suspect said he just left Papa Gino's (about a mile away). The suspect was told he matched the description of a breaking and entering suspect and he was going to be detained so a witness could confirm that it was him. The suspect then stated that he was coming from the beach.

Officer Sullivan transported the witnesses to the suspect's location, where he was identified as the male walking out the front door. The suspect was placed under arrest. In his back pocket were several loose prescription pills and a twist tied baggie containing a white powdery substance believed to be cocaine. The pills were later identified by the victim as his prescription. Inside the suspect's backpack were several pieces of jewelry which the victim also identified as his.

Officer Sullivan dropped the witnesses back at their home, then inspected the victim's house. He found that the house was a single family with an enclosed porch. The glass was broken on the front entrance of home, however the main door was not damaged. Once inside the home, it was clear that the home had been ransacked. The witnesses contacted the homeowner and he responded to the station to identify his property.

Once at the station, the victim identified two silver watches and his prescription drugs that were found on the suspect at the time of his arrest. The suspect, a 31-year-old homeless male, was charged with breaking and entering in the daytime with the intent to commit felony, possession of burglarious tools, larceny of property over $250, possession of Class B drug and possession of Class C drug.

Nice Work!

In this case, the witnesses were the key to apprehending the suspect, however, by not calling "911" immediately and then following the suspect, they put themselves at risk.

The suspect, aware that two witnesses were following him, chose to flee, but what if he decided to confront/harm the witnesses. By their own accounts, they couldn't keep up with the fleeing suspect, so it is safe to say that they could not have escaped him either.

The better approach would have been to call "911" right away after seeing someone suspicious leaving your neighbor's house, knowing that no one was home.

Although it is appreciated that the witnesses were able to give the Police a better idea of where the suspect was, it is not worth being harmed by an unpredictable suspect who was most likely on cocaine.

Use Of Directionals

Most drivers use direction signals to let drivers and pedestrians know that they are planning to make a turn, but the problem is when they activate the signal.

According to the Massachusetts driver's license manual, a minimum of 100 feet is required to safely signal that you are going to make a turn.

As one driving instructor said, "If you can't figure out the distance in Quincy, consider putting your signal on two telephone poles away."

Too often, drivers start into their turn and then put the directional on. The better the warning to others - the less chance an accident will occur. -- Lt. Dan Minton

OBITUARIES

Dorothy DiTullio, 104 Homemaker

A funeral Mass for Dorothy (Tenaglia) DiTullio, 104, of Wollaston was celebrated Oct. 5 at St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mrs. DiTullio died Oct. 1.

She was born in Lynn and had been a Quincy resident since 1948. She had been very active and a daily communicant at St. Ann's Church. She enjoyed her homes in Wollaston and Dennis.

As a homemaker she excelled as a gourmet cook, enjoyed gardening, sewing, crafts, and needlepoint. She was a political junkie, and loved to read fiction, nonfiction, and two daily newspapers, the Boston Globe and New York Times, and the New Yorker magazine. She will be sorely missed by all those who had the pleasure of knowing her.

Beloved wife of the late Alphonso DiTullio. Loving mother of Janet P. DiTullio, and Laura C. DiTullio-Bogan both of

DOROTHY DiTULLIO

Quincy. Mother-in-law of the late John P. Bogan. Sister of the late Maryanne D'Allessandro, James Tenaglia, Marie Cianci, Benjamin Tenaglia, Cecilia Sorgini, Mary Tenaglia, Josephine Cicchini, and Susan Torto. Step-grandmother of Jack, Michael, Mark, and David Bogan. Also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, Quincy.

A funeral Mass for Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, 80, of Falmouth and formerly of Quincy, former Quincy school superintendent, was celebrated Oct. 6 at St. Thomas Chapel, Falmouth.

Dr. Creedon died Sept. 27.

He received his Ed. D. in Philosophical Foundations of Education at Boston University. His first teaching assignment was as a U.S. Naval officer assigned to the National Security Agency in Washington, DC, during the Korean conflict. Shortly after, he began his public school career in Quincy. In 1969 he was appointed the Superintendent of the Quincy Public Schools. He also served two one-year terms as president of Quincy Junior College (Quincy College). During his 15-year tenure as superintendent of schools, both the Association for American School Counselors and the Association of National School Boards honored him for his work.

In the early 1950s, Dr. Creedon co-founded the Quincy Youth Football League. In 1972, he co-founded Survival, Inc. in Quincy and served as the first layman appointed to the Roman Catholic Archdiocesan School Board.

He was most proud of founding the Quincy Teen Mother Program, which was designed to help teen mothers attend school while also caring for their children, and was a first of its kind in Massachusetts. Since 1998, Dr. Creedon had been affiliated with the Cedrone Institute for International Education at Framingham State University where he facilitated teacher education courses in over 40 countries.

Dr. Creedon is survived by his companion Helen Ross, of Falmouth, a son Paul of Holden, his daughter Andrea Burnes, of Falmouth, four brothers - John, Joe, Eugene and Bernard - and grandchildren, Benjamin, Timothy, Jonathon, Meaghan, Richard and Hillary. Brother of the late Frances Clancy.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're eager to Ram headfirst into that new project. But before you do, find out why some of your colleagues might not appear to be as gung-ho about it as you are.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) All that dedicated hard work you've been putting in pays off better than you expected. So go ahead, reward yourself with something befitting a beauty-loving Bovine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's a good time to take on that new challenge. And if your self-confidence is sagging, instead of telling yourself why you can't do it, list all the reasons why you can.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) This is one time when you might want to put some distance between you and the job at hand. It will give you a better perspective on what you've done and still need to do.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Resist that occasional lapse into Leonine laziness that sometimes overtakes the Big Cat. Don't cut corners. Do the job right at this time, or you might have to redo it later.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You know how you like to do things. And that's fine. But watch that you don't impose your methods on others. A current financial crunch soon eases.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone might try to take advantage of your generosity. But before your sensitivity toward others overwhelms your good sense, check his or her story out carefully.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your strong Scorpian sense of fairness lets you see all sides of a dispute. Continue to remain impartial as you help each person work through his or her particular grievance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Trust your keen Sagittarian insight to help you see through an offer that might not be all it claims. A closer look could reveal disturbing elements.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) With the Goat exhibiting a more dominant aspect these days, you could find it easier to make your case in front of even the most skeptical audience.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Take things nice and easy as you continue to build up your energy reserves for a big change that's coming with the full Hunter's Moon on Oct. 29.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Recent news from someone you trust could help you make an important decision. Also, be prepared to confront an upcoming change in a personal situation.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be firm in your own views, but also flexible enough to welcome the views of others.

ris, Anna Pedretti and her husband James, Linda Post and her husband Richard, and Michael and his wife Carol, all of ME. He was predeceased by his parents Henry G. and Anne Lindblom, brother Carl Lindblom and sister Veronica Donley.

Funeral arrangements were made by McDonald Funeral Home, Weymouth. At the family's request there will be no visiting hours.

Memorial donations may be made to the Colonial Village Residents Fund, 109 Broad, Weymouth, MA 02188, Apt 306 or St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105 stjude.org.

OBITUARIES

John J. Marancik

A funeral Mass for John R. Marancik of Quincy, formerly of St. Louis, MO and New Jersey, was celebrated Monday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Mr. Marancik died Oct. 4.

Beloved son of Rita Marancik of New Jersey and the late John B. Marancik. Loving father of Katrin "Katey" Marancik of Fairhaven, Blake Marancik and Abby Treesh both of Indiana and Alison Marancik of Kansas. Brother of Gerald "Jerry" Marancik of Maine. Former husband of the late Diane V Marancik. Devoted longtime friend of Shawn Glavas of Quincy. Cherished grandfather of Charles and Liam Walsh and Conner and Marshall Treesh.

Mr. Marancik was born and raised in New Jersey. He loved the ocean and spending time at the beach, especially the Jersey Shore.

He worked for Vertex Pharmaceuticals in Cambridge as Director of Quality Assurance for 13 years before retiring in 2011.

JOHN J. MARANCIK

He had a passion for Broadway shows and Musicals never passing up the chance to go to a show.

He loved being surrounded by people, particularly family. He was especially gifted at telling stories and jokes, making people laugh, and loved to end a gathering with a sing-a-long and a Conga line.

Mr. Marancik was a perfectionist and good at almost everything he tried: a good student, Captain in the Air Force, painter, swing/ball room dancer, son, brother, father, and friend. He is loved and will be missed.

Burial will be at a later date in St. Gertrude Cemetery, Colonia, NJ.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, Attn: Donor Services, P.O. Box 650309, Dallas, TX 75265.

City Plays Prominent Role In Comedy That Opens Friday

'Here Comes' Quincy In New Kevin James Movie

By NICK MALVESTI

When I first went to the screening of "Here Comes the Boom," the latest Kevin James movie, my goal was to spot Quincy in as many scenes as possible.

Back in May of 2011 the cast and crew took over Quincy as well as Boston. Keep an eye out for Faneuil Hall and Castle Island among other spots featured in the movie. After seeing several previews, I thought this movie would be your typical David vs. Goliath. The little guy always wins, Hollywood formula. Even though it is a predictable story of inspiration and heart, the stellar cast more than makes up for the rehashed story line.

Halfway through the movie I found myself not so much focusing on Quincy but rooting for Scott Voss, a Biology teacher turned MMA fighter, played with quiet charm by Kevin James. Although it's his face on all the posters, the supporting cast is what really shines here.

Bas Rutten, who plays

Voss' yoga loving MMA trainer Niko, and Henry Winkler as Marty Streb, perfectly cast as the high school's music teacher are worth the price of admission. Salma Hayek, Charice, and Mark Dellagrotte round out the brilliant cast.

When Marty Streb's job is threatened by budget cuts, Scott Voss steps in to save the day. Let the hilarity begin! With the help of Niko, Mr. Streb, and Mark Dellagrotte, playing himself, Voss sets out to "lose" as many MMA bouts as possible.

Like Voss asks at one point, "You get 10 grand just for losing?"

Quincy plays a prominent role in the movie, especially the old Quincy High School and Quincy College buildings. Most of the scenes that take place inside fictional Wilkinson High School were shot at Quincy High.

For those of us graduates of QHS, it was nice to see the old building come to life again: the classrooms with the sliding multiple chalkboards, the black countertops, the educational posters on the wall, even the blue lockers lining the hallways, all seemingly untouched from back in the day. They did such a great job renovating the couple of floors they used; I wonder why we couldn't have hired them to renovate the whole school!

Not to be forgotten, all you Quincy College graduates will have a few flashbacks as well. See if you can spot the old gymnasium? There are also cameos from Hancock Street, City Hall, the Church of Presidents and a very funny scene involving Veterans Memorial Stadium and a Journey song.

Many of you may even spot a few people you know from around town.

You can probably guess how this one is going to end. But the ride the cast takes you on to get there, both heartwarming and very funny, is what separates it from the "seen it before" pack, and makes it a movie you and the family should see.

"Here Come the Boom" opens tomorrow (Friday.)

KEVIN JAMES (center) stars as biology teacher turned MMA fighter Scott Voss in the film "Here Comes the Boom." For the film, science classrooms in the old QHS were converted into a film studio. James also produced the film with Todd Garner, seen here sitting and reviewing notes.

has marched in the event as a member of the Morrisette Legion Post 294 Color Guard for the past 10 years will enjoy an immediate benefit as a result of her entry being selected.

The parade theme winner will get to ride the three mile route in one of the parade's many antique convertibles. Connolly, who has been employed by the Quincy Housing Authority for 19 years, plans to share the ride with her 13-year-old niece Caroline Reed.

The 50-year-old Connolly has fond memories of the annual parade which she stated "has been a tradition in our family since I was a little girl. My mother would bundle up our family of 10 kids and we would attend every single year. I continued attending through my adult years and now go with my niece. I can not remember a year that I have not watched or marched."

She has entered the theme contest in the past though not with this year's entry. She indicated that she thought that there are so many Christmas movie possibilities that it would provide a wide range of memories depending on your age or background.

As for her favorite movie, it's Miracle on 34th Street.

Those interested learning more about entering a float in this year's parade or the poster contest can contact the Christmas Festival Committee at 617-376-1396.

The parade will be held on Sunday, Nov. 25th.

were always trying to raise funds," Batson said. "And that year we had fewer seniors because of cuts that happened when I was in fourth grade. It was the same thing as the movie."

With the movie's release fast approaching, Kenneally is getting the band back together to watch the film. He's arranging a screening for Tuesday Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. at the Showcase Cinema, 73 Mazzeo Drive, Randolph. It's open to members of the public, tickets for the screening cost $12, and $5 from each ticket goes towards the music program. They can be purchased by check made out to Richard Kenneally, Boom Band, 100 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

"In my senior year I was president of the band and we While he's not sure how many people will attend the screening, Kenneally said he's heard a lot of people buzzing about the movie. One person who plans on seeing it is Mayor Thomas Koch, who said he plans on attending with his kids. Koch and his children met James and Winkler on set during a break in filming.

"Kevin James and Henry Winkler were both very gracious and Henry spent some time with my kids," Koch said. "One of my sons had read one of Henry's children's book so they hit it off. He seemed like a regular guy. They were both very kind. We were invited one time to go over and I brought the kids with me. It was nice to meet them."

Deadline To Register Wednesday At 8 P.M. 250-300 New Voters Registering Per Day For Nov. 6 Election

By SCOTT JACKSON

Between 250 and 300 people a day have been registering to vote ahead of November's presidential election in anticipation of this week's registration deadline.

The deadline to register was Wednesday at 8 p.m. City Clerk Joe Shea said his office, located at 1259 Hancock Street near City Hall, would stay open past that deadline to accommodate anyone waiting in line.

"We won't be shutting anyone out," Shea said.

Any mailed registration forms that were postmarked Wednesday or earlier will also be processed, Shea explained.

Shea expects that between 600 and 700 residents would register to vote on

Class Sizes On Track For New School Year

By EMILY TAFT

Class enrollment sizes in Quincy public schools are on track with the exception of two classes in North Quincy High School, which has 1,224 students enrolled in the school, administrators told the School Committee at its meeting last Wednesday.

"We worked diligently to get these class sizes down but we do have, unfortunately, two classes of 31 in a class at North Quincy High School. They both happen to be honor classes, they are grade 12 classes, and they are electives," said Assistant Supt. Colleen Roberts. "As we always do we will continue to keep our eye on our class sizes, and we are pretty proud on how the numbers have lessened throughout the past few years."

There are 1,224 students enrolled at NQHS and 404 sections (classes) available to students, with the school committee guidelines for class sizes to be between 25-30 students. Of the 404 sections, 219 have 20 or fewer students, 111 have 21-25 students and 72 have 26-30 students. The two classes that Roberts mentioned that have more than 30 students are an Honors Expository Writing class for seniors, and an Honors Western Philosophy class for seniors.

Town Brook Culvert Reaches Major Milestone

The restoration of Town Brook in Quincy Center reached a major milestone in recent days as the delicate process of building a new culvert directly underneath Hancock Street broke through to daylight on its opposite end.

The breakthrough connects the culvert from underneath Hancock Street to another new section of culvert near the former Kincaid Furniture lot on the southwestern side of the Walter Hannon Parkway.

"This is a key moment in this complex, necessary and exciting project that will both restore the Town Brook and continue to unlock the downtown to economic growth," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "The contractors are doing tremendous work on a very difficult job – and we are on time and on budget."

The new culvert is replacing the aging and crumbling existing pipe that currently takes the Brook through downtown almost entirely underground with one that includes more than 200 feet of open channel. Contractor LM Heavy Civil Construction has been working for several weeks on the roughly 100-foot tunneling portion of the project – the most complex component of the restoration.

As the culvert construction moves forward, the focus of the work will then move along to Mechanic Street, where a former American Legion post will become the site one of two major daylight portions of that park that will ultimately include a new public park.

The project is funded entirely through the Mass-Works infrastructure grant program.

An expansive permit issued by the DEP earlier this year that allows the City and its Quincy Center development partner,

Street-Works Development, LLC, to transform a 1,700-foot section of the Brook's long-degraded downtown culvert into a dramatically improved waterway that will daylight more than 200 feet of the Brook, improve degraded smelt habitat, and create several new "pocket parks" in the Quincy Center area, according to Mayor Koch's office.

The DEP permit includes 47 detailed special conditions, specifying how the new daylight Brook culvert realigned on the Southern side of the Walter Hannon Parkway will provide for enhanced flood control and significantly-improved areas for smelt habitat.

$10M Contribution From Beale/Street-Works For Gateway, Public Space Improvements Koch Announces New Park Planning Program

Mayor Thomas Koch's negotiation of a $10 million contribution to gateway and public space improvements citywide from the City's private redevelopment partner was a key element of the 2011 master agreement to redevelop Quincy Center.

On Tuesday, the mayor announced plans to be ready for that payment with an extensive planning initiative that could begin as soon as this fall.

Koch plans to seek a $300,000 appropriation — half from the City's Community Preservation Fund and half from increased revenues in the hotel/motel room tax — to contract for the design and engineering work for the park and gateway projects.

The City is expected to receive the $10 million payment from development partner Beale/Street-Works next year, and Mayor Koch said that beginning planning work now will save as much as a year in the overall construction schedule.

The Community Preservation Committee voted to approve the Mayor's request this week, and the Mayor's Office will present the City Council with the full appropriation request at its meeting Monday.

"The first question we ask whenever a project comes before the Community Preservation Committee, is 'will the requested funds be used to preserve and improve our community's character and quality of life?'" said Coleman Barry, chairman of the CPC.

"That being said, the committee was delighted to participate in this endeavor, which not only expedites the City's efforts to revamp these 'gateway' sites, but will undoubtedly benefit a broader geographic area than we've been previously able to accomplish before in connection with any single funding recommendation," Barry added.

"This is an incredibly exciting time for our City, and we are doing everything in our power to ensure that these great projects — that will be paid for entirely with private financing — move forward in a timely manner," said Koch. "It only makes sense to start planning now."

The planning efforts will help the City define specific projects that will be included in the gateway improvements, but Mayor Koch suggested those areas are primarily defined by the public spaces that closest to the City's entrances, such as the areas around the Neponset River Bridge, East Squantum Street in Montclair, among others. The planning will include additional park projects outside of gateways that could be financed by the $10 million payment from Street-Works.

FUNDRAISER FOR FOOD PANTRIES — Mayor Thomas Koch is joined by Caryn Smith of Caryn's Corner and Jennifer Ormond of Coffee Break Café, both of the Mayor's Commission on Women, to promote a fund-raiser for local food pantries that is being sponsored by the Commission. The event, "Meet Your Neighbor/Feed Your Neighbor," featuring local businesses offering their products, entertainment and prizes will be held tomorrow (Friday) from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Sons of Italy on Quarry Street. Tickets are $20 and includes admission, refreshments and entertainment. Tickets can be purchased at any Coffee Break Café location, Caryn's Corner or at the door. All proceeds will benefit local food pantries.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Oct. 30, 1893, the World's Columbian Exposition closes in Chicago. Fairgoers were offered a chance to see the first gas-powered motorcar, an alternating-current power plant, a 46-foot-long cannon, a 1,500-pound Venus de Milo made of chocolate, and Juicy Fruit gum.
- On Nov. 4, 1922, British archaeologist Howard Carter and his workmen discover a stone sarcophagus containing three coffins nested within each other. Inside the final coffin, which was made of solid gold, was the mummy of the boy-king Tutankhamen, preserved for more than 3,000 years.
- On Nov. 3, 1930, the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel between the United States and Canada is officially opened to auto traffic. Each end of the tunnel had a 100-foot-tall ventilation tower; each tower held 12 huge fans, six for pumping fresh air into the tunnel and six for exhaust. The tunnel's ventilation system still works just as well today as it did 80 years ago.
- On Oct. 29, 1948, a killer smog continues to hover over Donora, Pa. The town's steel mills and a zinc smelting plant had released excessive amounts of sulfuric acid, carbon monoxide and other pollutants into the atmosphere. Over a five-day period, the smog killed some 20 people and made thousands more seriously ill.
- On Oct. 31, 1950, 21-year-old Earl Lloyd becomes the first black man to play in an NBA game when he takes the court in the season opener for the Washington Capitols. The Capitols had picked him in the ninth round of the draft. After seven games with the Capitols, Lloyd was drafted into the military and sent to Korea for two years.
- On Nov. 1, 1967, "Cool Hand Luke," starring Paul Newman as a tough, anti-authoritarian, poker-playing prisoner, debuts in theaters. The film contained the now-famous line: "What we have here is a failure to communicate."
- On Nov. 2, 1986, Norwegian distance runner Grete Waitz wins her eighth New York City marathon. She finished the 26-mile, 385-yard course in 2:28.6, more than a mile ahead of the second- and third-place women in the race.

One High School, Two Campuses?

Paul Bregoli thinks it's time.

The longtime educator, veteran high school coach and first-term School Committeeman strongly believes the city should consolidate the two high schools.

His plan would keep both Quincy High School and North Quincy High School open but would shift the enrollments at both schools. All of the city's 9th and 10th graders would attend North Quincy High and all juniors and seniors would attend Quincy High.

Bregoli, who has advocated the one high school, two-campus set up for some time, says the consolidation would unify the city, provide a cost savings and expand academic and athletic opportunities for students. He also said the concept would give all students access to the new Quincy High School, hailed as a state-of-the-art academic facility when the $126 million building opened in 2010.

One of the arguments against consolidation is the rivalry between Quincy's Presidents and North Quincy's Red Raiders. Bregoli calls that position foolish.

"People hold on to a Thanksgiving Day (football) game and that's one of the reasons they want to continue to have two high schools and that's a foolish reason to have two high schools.

"Having one high school would unify the city and then academically and athletically I think you can do better with more opportunities and stop hanging our hats on one football game. The rivalry between the two schools is not as big a deal as it used to be. It is for the athletes but after the game they all go out with each other.

"I just think having two high schools divides the city and I think it's time to bring it back together and have one high school. You can call it whatever you want: John Hancock High or Abigail Adams High School. I think it's a good thing.

"The issue is what's best for the city and in the long run it's best for all kids to have an opportunity to attend the new high school - and it's long overdue," he adds.

Bregoli, who graduated from North Quincy High School in 1966, said much has changed with today's youth and the lines between Quincy and North are now less defined.

"Nowadays, kids know each other. They are much more mobile. They are texting each other. There's not that separation that occurred back in the 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s. If you were from the north end of the city back then you probably didn't go to the south end of the city or vice versa. Now, they are much more mobile and much more able to communicate with each other and they do."

He also contends that making kids choose what high school to attend can be agonizing for some incoming freshmen.

"Parents can send their kids to either school not dependent on geography. Kids from Squantum go to Quincy High but then there are kids from Houghs Neck who go to North.

"What's the point? Why force a kid into that type of decision? And it's an agonizing process for some of these kids. 'I want to go here and be with my friends but I want to go there and play basketball and soccer.'

"It puts a lot of pressure on kids to make choices not based on academics or might not be best for them but rather what their friends are doing and maybe where their parents went to school and I think that's foolish.

"If we had one high school, it wouldn't be an issue. It tears some kids up. It's a tough decision."

Bregoli and others believe the city missed an opportunity to build one high school for all high school students when plans for a new Quincy High were on the drawing board more than a decade ago.

With the two-campus set up, he acknowledges some logistical issues.

"You have a house master or principal at each school and a headmaster that would oversee both so you have someone managing each school on a daily basis and then someone overseeing both. The difficult thing would be the kids who want to take career ed like culinary arts and fashion design and mechanics.

"We'd have to come up with some kind of plan to accommodate those 9th and 10th graders who want to study those disciplines."

Commenting on the one high school issue, Mayor Thomas Koch raised other logistical questions.

"I don't know where (one high school, two campuses) that's been done and I'd love to know because obviously you want to see how things work and you don't necessarily want to be the first in anything. What does that high school experience become? There are teachers that probably teach both 10th and 11th graders so how does that work with two campuses?"

He also thinks student drop-off at North Quincy would be compounded if every freshman and sophomore - who didn't have a car - attended school at North.

"Logistically, drop-off at any school is difficult. If you put all the 9th and 10th graders at one building, the drop-off at that building is going to be insane because a lot of your juniors and seniors have their own cars. Logistically, how do you deal with that at North in the morning? It's brutal right now."

The mayor also wondered how students would respond to acclimating themselves to two different buildings twice during their high school years.

"The 9th grade can be a very traumatic year for kids. They're going in from middle school to their first year of high school. Now you're doing that again at 11th grade to some degree. I don't know what all the social impacts and high school impacts would be if you break that up."

Koch, who also graduated from North Quincy High School in 1981, did not dismiss the consolidation idea. But, he added:

"I think there's a lot to think about and talk about before we get to that point and for me to publicly take a position on how I would come down on it. I respect Paul; he's been in the education field as a teacher, as a coach, and I certainly respect his thoughts and I'd be listening but certainly there's a long way to go before I would sign on."

Bregoli calls the consolidation issue the "elephant in the room" and suggests one of the reasons the issue has not gained traction is because of potential political consequences.

"I think people talk about it, they know it's there, they know it's probably the right thing to do but there is some fear that it's politically not the right thing to do if you are worried about your own political future."

A decision to consolidate the two high schools would rest with the seven-member Quincy School Committee. There is no motion to consolidate before the board at this time.

One thing is certain: neither North Quincy High School nor the new Quincy High School has sufficient classroom space to house all the city's high school students. The total enrollments for both high schools is 2,775 students, of which 1,224 attend North and 1,551 attend Quincy. The new QHS was built to accommodate about 1,500 students.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1910 POSTCARD is a view of the old wooden Wollaston School on the corner of Winthrop Avenue and Beale Street. This is how the school looked from a trolley coming up Farrington Street turning left onto Beale Street toward Wollaston Center. The small section of the building with the cupola was built in 1873. The two larger wingers were added in 1890 to accommodate the expanding residential development of Wollaston Heights. Demolished in 1912, the old school site is now known as Safford Park. A new school was built across the street. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Mural Contradicts Liberty, Represents Propaganda

The City of Quincy, one that has always been steeped in political tradition and prestige, has recently lost its shimmer and credibility. That shimmer, the same glow that dates back to the year of John Adams' birth, is currently buried under coats and coats of paint and graffiti in the form of a biased mural that currently hangs on the back-end of a Quincy Center building.

In what will be one of the closest presidential elections in the history of our country, the mural is an ever-present reminder of the one-sidedness that has taken place in newspapers, heard on radio networks, and seen on television screens since the rise of the Democratic party's candidate in 2008.

Try and think back to the late 1700's for a minute. Can you even envision a massive cartoon of John Quincy Adams, riding a horse, with his political slogan to the left of his face being painted on the side of the city's local saloon? Of course not. Or what about the image of John Quincy Adams, with a bandana, graffitied on to the side of City Hall? It simply would never have happened.

Certainly, times change over centuries, but ethics and fairness should never waiver. The fact that one campaign is allowed to have an obnoxiously large spotlight directed upon it in the busiest section of the city, while the other isn't, is a blatant reminder of how the poison of political bias continues to infect 2012 America.

One would have a strong argument in saying that the location of the politically motivated mural is no mistake, either. Hoards of impressionable youth line the bars and restaurants where the mural has been painted, and it has clearly demanded the attention of many others, as well.

The mainstream media has also painted their own portrait of what type of man the person depicted in the Quincy Center mural is. A man that is a sensational speaker, one filled with so much hope, and change. This mural is nothing more than just another example of a country that is currently saturated in sickening bias.

Since its prominent political beginnings, Quincy was a city that prided itself on the beauty of democracy. It encouraged and promoted fairness and the right for its citizens to choose a side that they believed in, without any intervention.

This mural is a brazen slap in the face to the presidents that were born in this city and the democracy that they fought for. This mural contradicts hundreds of years of liberty. This mural represents the types of propaganda that was never seen until 2008.

Yes, there has been a lot of "change" over the past four years, but frankly, this type of bias and change is alarming. It is unknown whether the mural will be taken down or not, but day by day, it looks more and more like it will be coming down on Nov. 7th whether people like it or not.

Glen Doherty An American Hero

I am writing on behalf of Ben Doherty,

Ben Doherty is one of my closest friends. We both graduated from the University of Massachusetts and since that time have attended many athletic events at UMASS together.

Ben became Boxing Commissioner of Massachusetts and we attended many boxing matches together including both Arturo Gatti/Mickey Ward fights.

Ben got married and had three children, one of whom was Glen Doherty who recently gave his life in Libya, defending the Ambassador.

When I went to the wake at St. Eulalia's Church, I held Ben in my arms and he kept saying over and over, "Why did they have to kill my son?" I told him his son was a real American hero and gave his life for this country. Glen truly was a wonderful son and we all should be very proud of him.

South Quincy MBTA T Station Opposed

The South Quincy Civic Association went on record this week in opposition to the proposed South Quincy-North Braintree MBTA station.

The vote came after presentations by Rep. Joseph Brett, Robert Frazier, chairman of the Braintree Board of Selectmen, and Ward 3 Councillor Ted McLelland.

Frazier told the association that instead of a station on the town line with Quincy, Braintree residents favored a station at the old town dumpsite on Union Street because it would allow for more parking and better access to the expressway.

McLelland urged the citizens to "fight this station with everything you have. About five percent of the South Quincy residents would use it, and the rest from surrounding communities with Quincy picking up the tab," he said.

Brett also opposed the station with association President Pasquale DiStefano making the motion for the opposition.

QUARRY ST. $30 MILLION DEVELOPMENT PROPOSED

The Kanavos Enterprises of Dedham announced plans for a $30-$40 million apartment development on Quarry Street at an afternoon meeting of the Planning Board.

It was at the Planning Board meeting that a restriction on 10 of the 76-acre parcel was removed. (The restriction would have limited construction on the 10-acre portion to single-family homes.)

Harry Kanavos, vice president of the company, said the project would provide the city with 1,200 new units of housing, covering both sides of Quarry Street. He didn't specify how high the buildings would be or when construction would start.

Mayor Walter Hannon said progress on the proposal would move slowly so each aspect of the project could be studied.

Kanavos bought the land from Herbert Duane who was given it by the city in 1962 in exchange for his filling of the quarry holes.

Garden Club Seeks Entries For National Essay Contest

The Wollaston Garden Club is encouraging entries from high school students from Quincy for the 2012 National Garden Club's Essay Contest on the theme of "Ways We Can Protect Aquatic Ecosystems."

Each year, a $1,000 NGC Scholarship is awarded to the national winner.

The contest is open to all high school students attending 9th through 12th grades. If the winner of the $1,000

Scholarship is an underclassman, the $1,000 Scholarship will be held by the NGC, Inc. without accrued interest, until such time that the student enters college.

The second place national winner will receive $100.

The Wollaston Garden Club will sponsor any interested Quincy student essay writer. Last year, Kelsey Fischer of Quincy High School won first place in the state and received a $200 cash prize.

The essay must be between 600 - 700 words. All entries must be typed and titled. Essays are judged for content (knowledge of subject, practicality of proposal, originality, well organized/ clarity of presentation); composition (vocabulary and conformance to length); and manuscript (entrant's information and neatness.) More detailed information is available at <http://www.gardenclub.org/Youth/Contests/EssayContest.aspx>

Students should write the essay so it is suitable to be published in the NGC publication, The National Gardener; all entries become the property of National Garden Club, Inc.

Local entries must be mailed to the Wollaston Garden Club, PO Box 147, Wollaston, MA 02170 by Thursday, Nov. 15.

The Wollaston Garden Club will send each entrant an acknowledgement of their essay submission. Essays will then be forwarded to the state and national chairs.

Social

Community Invited To Wollaston Garden Club's Programs

As part of the mission of the Wollaston Garden Club, the community is invited and encouraged to attend many of its monthly meeting programs.

Programs range from floral design to conservation, horticulture and garden study, and are held at the Wollaston Congregational Church Social Hall, 48 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston.

This month's program - set for today (Thursday) at 12:30 p.m. - is a floral design demonstration "Fall Arrangements" with Lisa Ahern from Cedar Grove Gardens in Dorchester.

Ahern is well-respected locally for both her unique, exciting arrangements, and her amusing, low-keyed presentation style. In this program she will focus on the fall holidays, with lots of ideas and the creation of beautiful seasonal floral arrangements.

Programs for the rest of the garden club season are held either during the day or evening on a rotating basis on the third Thursday of the month. Attending a program or two is a great way to get introduced to "garden club."

More information about each program can be found on the garden club's web site at www.wollastongardenclub.org.

- Nov. 15, 7:30 p.m., "Container Gardening"

- Jan. 17 (7:30 pm) "Butterfly Gardening"

- Feb. 21 (12:30 p.m.) "Hostas & Companion Plantings"

- March 21 (7:30 pm) "Gardening For the Spirit"

- May 16 (12:30 p.m.) "Introduction To Bonsai Design."

The Wollaston Garden Club, in its 85th year, is dedicated to promoting and encouraging the love of gardening and the study of horticulture, floral design and landscape design; and to aid in the protection and conservation of our environment and to continue civic beautification in the City of Quincy.

It is a member of the National Garden Club, Inc. and The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc.

Gluten-Free Brown Rice Pizza Wraps And Pumpkin Muffins

These days we hear so much about persons allergic to gluten – and also read more and more recipes that are gluten-free.

Some of the restaurants have gluten free entrees, and the supermarkets are featuring some products also gluten free.

So I have two gluten free recipes for today from my daughters Nancy and Suzie.

NANCY'S BROWN RICE WRAP PIZZA

Brown rice wraps (called Food For Life)
Olive oil for drizzling
¼ cup pizza sauce
Shredded rice cheese
Salt, pepper
Oregano

Preheat oven to 425 degrees

On a cookie sheet, place the wrap. Drizzle the top with olive oil, salt and pepper and oregano. On top, add the tomato sauce and the rice cheese. Bake for 12-15 minutes depending on how crispy you prefer.

If you want it to resemble a quesadilla, place another layer on top and sprinkle more cheese.

I was visiting Suzie one morning and the minute I walked in the door, I could smell the aroma of cinnamon. She had just finished baking pumpkin muffins. So she made me a cup of tea and the muffin was so delicious that I naturally had to have it for today's recipe in hopes you will bake and enjoy them as much as I did.

SUZIE'S GLUTEN-FREE PUMPKIN MUFFINS

2 cups gluten free flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 ½ cups organic pureed pumpkin
¼ cup organic applesauce
¼ cup organic virgin coconut oil
2 organic eggs
1 cup coconut sap crystals (sweetener)
Handful goji berries handful of raisins (optional)

Mix together the dry ingredients except the sweetener. In a bowl, add the eggs, sweetener, applesauce and melted coconut oil. Combine all together, then when mixed add the fruits.

Place in muffin tins and bake in a 350 degree oven until done, about 15 minutes, or until toothpick inserted in middle comes out clean.

Houghs Neck Community Council Good Neighbor Awards Night Sunday

The Houghs Neck Community Council will host its Annual Good Neighbor Awards Night Sunday, Oct. 21 at 5 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow Street, Houghs Neck.

A turkey dinner will be served.

This year's recipients are:

Lori Knopf as Good Neighbor, Bonnie Gorman as Distinguished Senior, and Quincy Police Lt. Bob Gilman for Community Service.

Special recognition will also be given to the Quincy

Police Department Marine Unit and also Bryan McGee.

Tickets are $12 per person.

Acoustic Open Mike Night At Library Monday

A free acoustic Open Mike night will be held Monday, Oct. 22 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Sign-up begins at 6:15 p.m.

Play an original or a cover song, read an excerpt or a poem, perform a monologue or short skit, debut your stand-up comedy routine or engage in any amateur style performance.

All musicians, poets and performers are encouraged to participate and all ages are welcome. One microphone will be available but no other sound equipment is supplied. If your instrument requires amplification, such as an electric bass, you will need to bring it.

For more information visit thomascranelibrary.org or call 617-376-1316.

Coping With Bullies Program At Crane Library Tonight

The Quincy Human Rights Commission will sponsor "Bullying Hurts: Coping With Bullies at School and At Work" tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The free program will feature two short films followed by discussion about school and workplace bullying and how to prevent it.

"Day of Silence" is an educational and moving film about elementary school bullying written, produced by, and starring 10-year-old Gerry Orz.

In the film, Orz's character is dealing with bullying at school while trying to protect his sister and support his gay parents.

The second short film, entitled "What is Workplace Bullying," is an overview of workplace bullying by Dr. David Yamada, professor of Law and director of the New Workplace Institute at Suffolk University Law School. Yamada is an internationally recognized authority on the legal aspects of workplace bullying, and author of model anti-bullying legislation—dubbed the Healthy Workplace Bill—that has become the template for law reform efforts across the country.

After the film screenings, state Rep. Tackey Chan will discuss the status of anti-bullying legislation in Massachusetts and Maura Papale, Quincy Public Schools Director of Student Support Services, will talk about bullying prevention and reporting procedures in the schools.

For more information, visit thomascranelibrary.org or call 617-376-1316.

Library Events For Children

Independent Review Of Furnace Ave. Purchase Sought

By SCOTT JACKSON

Councillors Joe Finn and Doug Gutro want the backing of their colleagues before seeking an independent review of the city's controversial purchase of a West Quincy property.

At a meeting of the council's oversight committee last week, both Finn and Gutro expressed their desire to have the Massachusetts inspector general review the administration's purchase of 20 Furnace Ave in April for $485,000 from realtor Daniel Flynn for flood control. The City Council didn't vote to approve the purchase, though the administration maintains approval was granted when they passed Mayor Tom Koch's $25 million Capital Improvement Plan (CIP).

On Friday, both Finn and Gutro told the Sun they want a council vote before sending it to the IG for review.

"I want to bring it back to the council," Finn said, adding that he would be interested in seeing how his colleagues would vote on such a decision.

"If I were in the IG's office I'd want to know that there was a broad sentiment from the legislative branch that this was worthy of review," Gutro explained.

Both councillors believe the key issue is whether the city charter or state law would allow such a purchase to happen without explicit council approval. At the oversight meeting, other councillors took issue with the appraisal used to set the sale price of the property. The appraisal found the site to be worth $595,000 while the city had assessed it for only $135,200.

"There are so many different issues, I want my key issue framed appropriately," Finn said. "We wouldn't be having those issues if it was done properly (with a council vote)."

"Whether or not the action taken complied with the charter or state law," Gutro said, "that's the threshold question."

Gutro, however, said councillors might be hesitant to refer the issue to the inspector general without hearing from the appraiser John McGovern first. McGovern wasn't at the meeting last week.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee, chairman of the oversight committee, also told the Sun he would support a review by the inspector general though he doesn't know if another committee meeting will take place. He reiterated that the city needed to be more transparent about the deal because Flynn had been a fundraiser for the mayor.

"Flynn was known to the administration and had been a fundraiser for the administration. That's why the standards should've been higher," McNamee said. "They should've chosen the maintain the highest level of transparency."

At the meeting, Finn said he intended to draft legislation outlining the council's role in approving real estate deals by the city in the future. He explained Friday that would any such legislation would clarify what's already in the city's charter.

"If there's any confusion about our charter, let's define what it means," Finn said. "Let's clear up any confusion the administration has."

Finn added that he wants the council to retain its job as a check on the mayor's power, regardless of who the mayor is.

"It's about respecting the authority of the City Council. You need that sort of check and balance, regardless of who the chief executive is," Finn said.

At the meeting, which lasted nearly two-and-a-half-hours City Solicitor Jim Timmins defended the purchase, reiterating that the council had endorsed it when they authorized the bond order for the CIP.

"What I saw was a council order following a council review of what was going to happen and understood that included a discussion of the acquisition of this lot and an appropriation of $900,000 to address the issue," Timmins said. "I understood there to be an appropriation and there to be a council order."

Timmins also said that explicit approval of the council wasn't needed, because of a 1949 Supreme Judicial Court case. In that case, Shea v. Inspector of Buildings of Quincy, Timmins explained that the SJC found that cities with charters like Quincy's are exempt from Mass. General Law Chapter 40, Section 14 which requires the city council approve land purchases and caps the price at 125 percent of the land's assessed value over several years.

"In the SJC said Chapter 40 Section 14 do not apply in cities such as Quincy that have charters," Timmins said.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said the purchase had been implied during the discussions on the CIP because there was no other way for the city to create a flood control system.

"If you didn't believe that this contemplated the purchase of land, where did you think they were going to spend nearly a million dollars to create a flow control system," Palmucci said. "I would love to hear the numerous ways you can build a million dollar flood control system with someone's land without giving them some sort of compensation."

Palmucci clarified that he didn't want to defend the administration, but rather defend himself because complaints that the process wasn't a public one were a criticism of his performance as a ward councillor representing the neighborhood. Palmucci had hosted a series of meetings on the issue of flood control, and said the purchase had been discussed in those meetings.

But Finn said the onus was still on the administration to gain council approval of the purchase before executing the sale.

"The bottom line is we could've spoken as much as we wanted to at that specific talk around the development plan. It could've been mentioned - I certainly don't recall a specific property being mentioned. But we could have had all of that and none of that frees the city and the mayor from the responsibility of coming back before this body," Finn said.

In calling for the inspector general to weigh in, Finn added that the administration's purchase of 20 Furnace Ave. wasn't the first time they'd agreed to a property transaction without council input. Earlier in the meeting he had mentioned Koch's lease of land on Town River to Thayer Academy for their rowing team. That proposal was later rejected by the state's Department of Environmental Protection.

"I certainly want to move beyond this in some way, but again this isn't the first issue that's come up - it's come up with other property transactions and granting certain rights on property where we have a fundamental difference," Finn said. "I'd be happy to work with Mr. Timmins to frame the questions related to this specific instance for the inspector general to get a ruling as to what is the appropriate measure the mayor's office should take in relation to this transaction and was it proper in the way that they came before us."

Gutro also disagreed with Timmins' reference to the city charter, and said he would abide by an outside opinion provided by the inspector general.

"Tonight I'm not satisfied, nor am I comfortable with the interpretation of the charter. It still to me feels like an end run of a City Council vote," Gutro said. "I would support Councillor Finn's suggestion for an IG review."

Awarding Prizes During October

Bank of Canton Celebrating New Quincy Branch Location

To celebrate its new location, Bank of Canton is offering a series of prizes that visitors may enter to win by visiting the new branch at 60 Mayor Thomas McGrath Highway throughout the month of October.

The month long celebration includes a different prize drawing each week that ties back to various elements of the City of Quincy's history. The first drawing took place on Oct. 6th, and Julianna O'Brien of East Bridgewater won a $100 American Express gift cheque; the prize was to commemorate Quincy being known as "Shoppertown USA" in the 1940s and 50s.

In the second week's drawing, which took place on Oct. 13th, Richard Fennessy of Quincy won a $250 gift cheque to the Top of the Hub at the Prudential Center, Boston. In 1845, the Old Colony Railroad gave Quincy residents their first public transportation to Boston.

On Oct. 20, the winner drawn will receive travel vouchers for a weekend getaway in Washington, D.C., to commemorate Quincy being the hometown of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

And on Oct. 27th, the Grand Prize winner will be drawn to win a tropical cruise to the Caribbean, in honor of Quincy's history as a shipbuilding center.

"We want to get the community excited about our new location and its expanded amenities and services," said Branch Manager Ken Anderson. "We invite the community to drop in and fill out an entry form to win one of our tremendous prizes, and learn more about the financial solutions Bank of Canton has to offer."

Quincy Resident Unveils New Look for Senior Living Community

Quincy resident Colleen Ferguson, executive director of The Village at Duxbury, along with Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, held a ribbon cutting celebration unveiling the senior living community's new look.

Residents and guests of The Village at Duxbury, South Shore's first continuing care retirement community, kicked up their heels with the sounds of the Bo Winiker Band. The menu for the night featured selections such as, Brochette of Lamb, lobster-filled endive, champagne and chocolate-dipped strawberries, as well as tours of the community's beautifully appointed common spaces.

Over 400 local leaders of the arts, business and healthcare communities as well as local government officials were greeted with a new glass-enclosed, sunlit conservatory, complete with black-and-white marble tiled floors. The conservatory serves as a wonderful new entrance to the distinctively styled and sophisti-

'Spirits Of Quincy's Past' Oct. 27 At Hancock Cemetery, Adams Crypt

Historic Hancock Cemetery, 1307 Hancock St., and the Adams Family Crypt at 1306 Hancock St. will be "haunted" by "Spirits of Quincy's Past" Saturday, Oct. 27 from 6 to 9 p.m.

The partnership program conducted by the National Park Service and the United First Parish Church Unitarian will feature park rangers, staff, and volunteers in period dress who will populate the city's oldest and most historic burying ground and "bring to life" some of the area's first, famous, and infamous residents including members of the Adams family who have "resided" there since the 17th century.

Visitors who dare to enter the ancient burial ground or the quiet granite crypt will be regaled with stories and anecdotes about the city's illustrious past and the historical characters, including the Adamses, who made the area a center of religious revival, patriotic zeal, and revolutionary fervor in the early days of the republic.

After an "other worldly" encounter with a spirit from Quincy's past, visitors may proceed to the Visitor Center, located at 1250 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, and warm up with a "witch's brew," watch the park's exciting new film "Enduring Legacy," or shop for books and gifts related to the lives and times of the Adams family.

The program is free and open to the public and will be conducted weather permitting.

Free parking in the garage at the Visitor Center, across from the historic cemetery and church, at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy.

City Registering 250-300 New Voters Per Day

Wednesday. They've been adding about 300 new voters to the voter rolls a day for the past several weeks, and removing around 50 each day as former residents register outside the city. On Monday, for example, 381 new voters were registered and 49 were removed.

Quincy will have more eligible voters in this year's election than in any other election. Shea expects the total number of registered voters to be in the high 50,000's.

The clerk's office has also begun receiving applications for absentee ballots for the election. The application - which is available on the city's website at quincyma.gov - must be received by Shea's office by noon the Monday before the election, in this case by Nov. 5. It is recommended, however, that the application be returned as early as possible.

Shea said the city is likely to have about 3,000 absentee voters this November, which would set a new record for the city. The previous high was 2,505 in 2008.

"We're ahead of four years ago in absentee ballots," Shea said.

The completed absentee ballot needs to be returned by the time polls close on Nov. 6. For voters located outside the United States, the ballot can be received up to 10 days after the Election Day, but needs to be postmarked before or on Nov. 6. Absentee voters can also arrange to vote ahead of Election Day at the clerk's office.

But Shea did stress that absentee voting is only for residents who will be out of town on Nov. 6 or can't vote because of physical issues or religious beliefs. Unlike some states such as Ohio and Florida, Massachusetts doesn't allow early voting where any resident can cast a ballot before the election. Illegal absentee balloting, including falsely filling out an application, is punishable by a fine of up to $10,000 and up to five years in prison.

Balloons Used To Deter Geese From New Track, Field

By EMILY TAFT

Forty balloons, six to eight inches in diameter, started going up around the new practice football field at Faxon Field on Tuesday to dissuade geese from walking on the new field and running track.

The balloons are a temporary measure that will help keep the geese off the real grass field as well as the track that surrounds the field. The track project is nearing completion.

"We haven't received any phone calls about a geese problem (at the new track)," said Park Director Kristen Powers. "We have a problem with geese on all of our fields in the city, they seem to go where the grass is, but we have never lost a field because of them."

Lifelong Quincy resident

Edward Gerstel, a resident of Palmer Street, called The Sun Tuesday about the geese issue and said he was concerned that they would ruin the new facility.

"If it was an old field I would let it go but this is a nice new facility and I would hate to see them make a mess of it," said Gerstel. "I really don't know what they could do to fix the problem, maybe get some type of noise maker to scare them away."

"Hopefully the geese don't find anything down there of interest and will quickly leave the area."

Powers said that they have used a number of different decoy methods to deter the geese from being on different fields throughout the city, recently even trying stuffed coyotes at one field.

Powers said that the company working on the track, Argus Construction Corp., put the balloons at the new track site to help keep the geese off the track, which is in its final stages of being completed. The asphalt base that was recently put down takes 14-21 days before the track surface can be installed.

The 400-meter track, $1.1 million project is scheduled for completion this month. One of the last major components of construction is the installation of the track surface itself, which will be completed once the current asphalt base, which has already been laid down, is allowed to cure.

"There is nothing we can do at the moment and we won't know until the spring if there is really an issue at that field," said Powers.

Class Sizes On Track

Quincy High School has 1,551 students enrolled in the school with 567 sections available. Of the 567 sections, 290 have 20 or fewer students, 196 have 21-25 students, and 81 have 26-30 students with no sections having more than 30 students.

School Committee Clerk Laura Owens said School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro is comfortable with the enrollment numbers at both high schools.

In grades K-3, the average class size is 20 students, the school committee guidelines are 20-25 for kindergarten, and 22-26 for grades 1-3. There are 36 classroom teachers at the kindergarten level, 37 in grade 1, 35 in grades 2 and 3.

In grades 4 and 5, the school committee guidelines are 24-28 students per classroom. In grade 4, the average class size is 20 students with 33.5 classroom teachers, and grade 5 has an average class size of 22 with 27 classroom teachers.

"At this time we are doing a wonderful job, and the teachers are doing an excellent job with the class sizes in our elementary schools," said Roberts.

In the middle schools, grades 6-8, the school committee guidelines are 24-28 students in a class. There are 483 sections in the middle schools, 131 sections have 20 or fewer students, 327 have 21-25 students and 25 sections have 26-28 students with none exceeding 28 students in a classroom.

"We've worked really hard on that. We had a big jump in our sixth grade numbers this year," said Roberts. "This sixth grade class was our first full-day kindergarten class. It says a lot that they stayed in Quincy Public Schools."

With 9,422 students enrolled in the Quincy Public Schools, class enrollment size is something schools have to focus on throughout the year. According to Roberts, they begin to look at class sizes in June when they roll over students from their current grade to the next grade level. Based on those numbers as well as kindergarten registration the initial determination is made for the number of teachers needed in each school and each grade level.

Fall Automotive Care

Replacing Batteries Before They Fail; Tire Pressure Monitors

Ask The Car Doctor With AAA's John Paul

Q. My Nissan 350Z roadster is a great car, and in excellent condition, with only 60,000 miles. For the past few months, randomly (i.e. twice in one day then not at all for several weeks) I push in the clutch, turn the key-the starter turns over, but engine will not start. Sometimes it will start on the next try, other times it takes 15 minutes. In any case, it starts fine and runs great. I had my alarm fobs recoded and the problem continues. My local mechanic and Nissan dealer have only suggested that, "If it doesn't start, have it towed and maybe we can figure it out." Any thoughts would be much appreciated. I would prefer not to be stranded!

A. The shops are correct; it would certainly be much easier to diagnose the problem if it happened in the shop. Possible problems could be a faulty computer, camshaft sensors, even a fuel delivery problem. Doing a little research online, it appears that the computer could be the most common issue-but certainly a very expensive guess. I hate to say it, but in this case "time" may be the best diagnostic tool.

Q. I have a question about my 2005 Jeep Grand Cherokee 4WD. A piece of rubber that is on the shifter has broken apart and fallen down into the shifter cavity.

JOHN PAUL

I took it to my mechanic who called the Jeep dealer and they said the piece of rubber is not sold separately. The entire shifter would need to be purchased at a cost of $800.00. I've searched eBay and most of the parts I have found cost about $400. Any ideas?

A. With a little research, I did find a technical service bulletin that states that the shifter bezel is now serviceable without replacing the entire shifter assembly. The bulletin is number: 21-016-06 REV. A. The problem with many Chrysler products is that, although this was issued in 2006, it may not be valid with the various corporate changes at Chrysler. Have your mechanic or dealer reference the bulletin and see if the parts are still available.

Q. I am replacing my six year old battery on my 2006 Buick Lacrosse before it lets me down. What will I lose, if anything, if I don't keep an alternate power source and just disconnect it? My other thought was to use my battery charger, hooked up to the battery clamps, until the battery is in?

A. Good idea to replace the battery before it fails. In fact, studies by AAA and others show that the average life of a battery is just over four years. You can safely replace the battery in your car without any problems. The only issue that you will have is that most likely you will need to reprogram the radio presets and on some GM cars you may need to enter the radio security code. This code should be in the vehicle owner's manual. Trying to keep the car powered with a battery charger-with a battery in the car, is in my opinion never a good idea.

Q. I've read that they are churning out Honda Accords in Ohio at three times the normal rate and that it's Honda's first attempt at a CVT (continually variable transmission). Would you still consider Accord as a first choice over a Toyota Camry or Nissan Altima? In the long run, is it best to get all the bells and whistles if you plan to keep a car long term?

A. Honda builds great quality vehicles and I have no problem recommending the latest Accord. If you are timid about the CVT in the Accord, you could always buy the model with the V-6 engine which has the conventional automatic transmission. In my opinion, if you keep a car forever, having all the "bells and whistles" will have little effect on the value of the car. On the short term, options such as leather seats and a moon roof will certainly affect the resale value. Once the car gets older they have far less value than just keeping the car well maintained.

Q. I recently had four new tires installed on my 2007 Camry Hybrid and ten days later the check tire light came on. The company that installed the tires evaluated the problem and said a sensor in the driver's front tire needs to be replaced at a cost of $190.00. They claim the battery in the sensors wear with time. I think it is more than a coincidence that the sensor went right after they changed the tires. Do you think they could have damaged the sensor during the install of the new tires? By the way the installer also put some scratches on my alloy wheels but they are too small to complain about but definitely didn't make me happy.

A. The tire dealer is correct that the batteries in the tire pressure monitors do wear out with age. Although, most manufacturers claim a 10 year life with the valve stem style monitors. I tend to agree that it is certainly possible that the sensor was damaged when the tire was changed.

Q. My 2007 Buick "locks in park" when I park it on a slope. I have been to two garages that could not solve the problem, but said they think the problem may be "in the transmission." What do you think and what do you recommend?

A. The issue is internal to the transmission and could be costly to repair, but only if you choose to repair it. There is a part that locks the transmission in park called a parking pawl, which may be starting to have some issues. All General Motors has to say about the issue is "owners concerned about this condition should be advised to apply the parking brake prior to shifting into park". This is the recommended procedure described in the cars owner's manual. Applying the parking brake first will put the load of the vehicle on the rear brakes rather than on the parking pawl. This is certainly the most cost effective solution.

24-Apartment Affordable Housing Project Complete

Ribbon Cutting Today At 45 Winter St.

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will hold a ribbon cutting ceremony today (Thursday) at its new Quincy housing development marking the completion of the largest project in the affordable housing agency's 30-year history.

To be held at 45 Winter St., the event will begin at 11:30 a.m. with tours of the new development, known as Winter Gardens, followed by the ribbon cutting ceremony and Neighborhood Housing's annual meeting.

Winter Gardens consists of 24 apartments that will be rented to residents whose income falls at or below 60 percent of the median area income. All of the units are handicapped accessible, with three units specifically reserved for individuals with disabilities. The building also features several hard-to-find three-bedroom units, creating much-needed affordable housing for families.

"The ongoing foreclosure crisis has resulted in a greater need for rental housing with more than two bedrooms," said Executive Director Robert Corley, who noted Winter Gardens also features a tot lot to provide a safe play area for families with children. "We're pleased that we can help alleviate some of the shortage in high-quality rental housing through the opening of Winter Gardens."

Nearly 400 families submitted applications for the lottery for Winter Gardens' 24 units, and the agency is currently working with city officials to assign the units, with occupancy expected to begin in December.

The project is a boon to the neighborhood, Corley added, as it replaces a blighted property that formerly stood on the site and allowed the City of Quincy to use stimulus funds to install a new water main for the entire street – a community benefit valued at an estimated $100,000.

"We are tremendously proud of our partnership with Neighborhood Housing Services and grateful for the work it does every day on behalf of our community," Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch said. "These projects providing affordable housing for our residents are a great testament to Quincy's sense of community, and we're going to continue to do everything in our power to make them happen."

Construction on Winter Gardens began in October 2011 and was completed last month. Funding for the $8 million project came from a variety of sources, including $4 million in investor tax credits, $1 million from the Mass. Housing Affordable Housing Trust and $1 million from the Department of Housing and Community Development's (DHCD) HOME funds. Additional funding came from DHCD Low Income Tax Credits, Mass. Rehab Community Based Housing and a mortgage through Mass. Housing Partnership.

The Winter Gardens project also incorporated energy efficient features including solar panels that provide domestic hot water and bolster the building's heating system with any excess capacity. There is also a separate array of photo voltaic panels (PV's). PV's work differently than those used for hot water by generating an actual electric current which is sent back to the electrical grid, essentially spinning the building's electric meter "backward."

The building has been designed to gain the Environmental Protection Agency's Energy Star rating as well as the new Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design for Neighborhood Development (LEED-ND) certification from the US Green Building Council, which awards points for incorporating renewable energy systems such as the solar installation described. The LEED-ND certification goes beyond an individual building and takes into account factors that include sustainable design like walkable streets, access to public transit, employment opportunities and other neighborhood amenities.

"Creating 'affordable' housing is not all about bricks, mortar, and rent," said Corley. "It's also about creating an overall affordable housing cost for families. Rising utility expenses are one of the major drivers of the ever increasing cost of living. Our goal is not only to make rents more reasonable, but to also reduce utility costs for working families. Energy efficiency and making the cost of operating a home more affordable go hand in hand."

NHS's building will also meet the state's optional energy code which increases a building's energy performance by approximately 20%. The so-called "Stretch" Appendix to the Massachusetts Energy Code was adopted by the Quincy City Council and became effective July 1, 2011.

Projects subject to the Stretch Energy Code include new residential construction, certain additions and renovations and commercial buildings over 5,000 square feet with certain exceptions. Since 2011, over 20 projects in Quincy, meeting this higher energy standard, are either complete or under construction totaling over 100,000 square feet and significant energy savings.

WINTER GARDENS is a 24 unit apartment building, developed by Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, which uses alternative as well as conventional energy sources and is LEED certifiable. A ribbon cutting ceremony marking the completion of the project at 45 Winter St. will be held today (Thursday).

ROOFTOP SOLAR PANELS will provide domestic hot water and photovoltaic electricity for the building.

THE LARGE TANK stores solar hot water, produced from the roof panels and supplies the conventional heat and hot water systems.

Fire Safety Focus At Department's Open House

By KRIS KALABOKAS

The Quincy Fire Department hosted an open house last Saturday to promote Fire Safety Week, offering safety materials, demonstrations, food, and fun to the public.

This year's theme, "Have 2 Ways Out!" stressed the importance of proper planning in preparation for a fire emergency. The National Fire Protection Association, a nonprofit organization and leading source on public safety, recommends two exit strategies be implemented in every home in the event that a major exit is blocked due to flames or debris.

Children were encouraged to explore the interiors of a fire truck and ambulance under the careful supervision of firefighters and EMTs. "We've got guys standing by so they can help the kids on and off," said Capt. Roger Kineavy, who estimated that "at least a couple of hundred" people came through the firehouse that day.

"After today's turnout we're thinking of doing it every year now," he said.

Making an appearance was Sparky the Fire Dog who, after a meet and greet, sat in as the driver in a car requiring disassembly using the jaws of life.

While the day's message focused primarily on fire education and prevention, representatives of National Grid, the Quincy Police Department, Operation Lifesaver, and Quincy Medical Center were on hand to distribute pamphlets advocating other aspects of child safety.

Ed O'Connor, executive director of Massachusetts Operation Lifesaver, provided promotional materials emphasizing increased vigilance around train tracks. Information targeting pedestrians, school bus drivers, professional truck drivers, emergency responders, and passengers of public transportation were available, along with pencils, crayons, and coloring books meant to entertain young minds, while instilling critical thinking skills when around accessible tracks.

"Believe it or not, a lot of times the parents get into a panic and they can't even tell you how tall their kid is," said Officer Terrence Downing, who attended on behalf of the Quincy Police Department. He and Officer Lauren Lambert helped parents fill out questionnaires requesting their children's height, weight, hair color, and other distinguishing features which would be kept on file along with fingerprints in the case of a missing or assumed abducted child.

Downing also offered free inspections of child safety seats. "About half the seats in the country, when we inspect them, are in incorrectly," he said. "I'll check their seat, I'll reinstall it, make sure it's in right and make sure the child leaves safely."

He also emphasized the importance of keeping children seated in the back of vehicles until they reach thirteen years of age. "That's one of the bigger problems I see all the time as people will drive past me," he said. "[Children] belong in the back seat mainly because of airbags."

Not all of the day's activities were targeted toward a younger crowd. Dr. Antonietta Mauri, MD, of Quincy Medical Center administered free blood pressure readings to adults. "We try to make it for everybody," said Kineavy.

Additionally, a representative of National Grid was available to discuss precautionary measures to be taken around natural gas lines, electrical outlets, and equipment.

"Today was a great success," said Fire Chief Joseph Barron, who hoped the event would help "open the firehouse up to the citizens."

His overall goal is to educate children, who he believes will then disseminate information to their parents, through future open houses and an increase in school related programs. "We're going to go back into the schools. We're working on a program for third graders to go into all of the public schools and to have them bring that message home," he said. "It works well to try to educate the children and then have them go home and talk about it."

"If the process was appropriate, fair, and thorough, so be it - I have no issue with that. But the ambiguity of what was in the Capital Improvement Plan and the decisions that were made, as a councillor that's casting votes on $25 million worth of bonding who reads state law and the charter differently it would be helpful to me to get some independent objectivity and clarity on where the reality lies."

McNamee identified key mistakes in McGovern's appraisal. The document incorrectly lists the lot's size at 52,822 square feet when it is actually only 43,480 square feet. And as part of a section on comparable sales, it lists two lots on Holmes Street as being sold separately for $415,000 each, when they had been sold together at a combined price of $415,000.

Timmins conceded that the appraisal had flaws, but said he didn't use the appraised value when he determined how much the city would be willing to pay.

"I didn't use the appraisal. The appraisal talked about a price of 595 (thousand)," Timmins said. "I went to the updated comparative sales adjustment grid, which is where [McGovern] took his four comps and I didn't analyze them. I accepted that a licensed appraiser was competent - Mr. McGovern certainly is, he made mistakes here but he certainly is (competent).

"He came down and said the values ranged from $6 to $47.95 per square foot for an average of $16.15 per square foot and I said 'good, we're at $12 or under.' And so I didn't use it."

In the end, the city paid about $11.30 a square foot for the property.

McNamee did ask Timmins at the meeting if the deal could be classified as a related party transaction because of Flynn's fundraising on the mayor's behalf.

"You're aware that this is what they classically term a related party transaction?" McNamee asked. "A related party transaction, an agreement, between parties who are not strangers. In this context related does not mean there is a blood relationship, it only means that the parties have a special personal relationship."

"And due to that special relationship the terms of the transaction - for example the purchase price, the use of one appraisal - are such that they would not be otherwise enjoyed by a stranger or someone at an arm's length relationship to the buyer."

Timmins disagreed, saying it "clearly wasn't" a related party transaction. But McNamee argued that the city should've handled it as a related party transaction because members of the public might see it as such.

"Some may view it as a related party transaction," McNamee said. "Don't you think because there is the potential for the public to view it that way, that you have you to make sure the disclosure standards and the levels of transactional transparency are that much higher to ensure that the public has confidence in the process and doesn't think that this was a sweetheart deal?"

In response, Timmins explained that the purchase only took place because the land met the requirements needed for the project.

"We wouldn't have purchased this lot if it weren't a one-acre lot located where it was in an area that had a serious need," Timmins said. "It's the only reason this transaction went forward."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall said he was concerned that McGovern, who was paid $1,500 by the city for the appraisal, wasn't in attendance. McNamee claimed it was because the administration didn't want to pay for him to appear, but Timmins said it was personal reasons.

"There was a document manufactured by a professional and it is very troubling that he was unable to make it here this evening and speak to the document he created," Croall said.

Timmins said that going forward, the mayor would welcome the opportunity to be more transparent.

"I think your expectations have been expressed," Timmins said. "Those expectations will be met. This particular mayor does not seek the praise when things go on and he's certainly not seeking to do the work in private. We're happy to have more discussions and transparency."

Defense Strong But North's Offense Stalls Against Sachems

By COLLEEN CASEY

When North Quincy's Matt MacPhail intercepted Middleboro quarterback Troy Rossi's pass near the end zone on Middleboro's opening drive to save a touchdown, he set the tone early for Red Raiders defense.

Despite the great defensive effort from MacPhail, Kevin Pappadopolous, Eddie Guinto, Matt Deagle and Vinny Tran, North Quincy (2-3, 0-1 Fisher Division) couldn't find an offensive spark, and dropped their Patriot League opener to Middleboro, 10-0.

The Raider's didn't take advantage of the interception on their opening drive. After two plays, Guinto fumbled and Dylan Adams jumped on it for Middleboro (3-2, 1-0).

Solid defense forced the Sachems to three-and-out, but North dropped the punt and Ryan Holman recovered it back for Middleboro.

Rossi was injured on the next play and sophomore back-up quarterback Cody DiBiase stepped in and led the Sachems to the 7-yard line. On third and goal, Pappadopolous swatted down DiBiase's pass to keep the Sachem's from scoring. The defense prevailed on fourth down, pressuring DiBiase to throw an incomplete pass.

Pappadopolous, a senior captain that's been leading the defense all year, is one of the few North Quincy players that strictly plays defense. Connor said he's an outstanding football player.

"He's a guy that could be playing offense but we're trying to be able to keep everyone healthy and put him one way right now," said Connor. "He's just a heck of a football player. He's going to make plays no matter where you put him. He's the kind of kid I wish I had a bunch of."

The Raiders had some trouble stopping the rookie QB in the second. Before the break, DiBiase was 4 of 7 for 88 yards passing. On the Sachems final drive of the half, DiBiase connected with Andrew Cart for a 42-yard blast pushing the team up to the 14. After a 2-yard run from Christian Dellarocco, DiBiase found Cart in the end zone for a 12-yard score and what proved to be the only touchdown of the game. Taylor Frazier's kick put Middleboro up 7-0 at the half.

"We went into a shell and got timid on offense as they got momentum," said North coach Jim Connor. "They kept shutting us down on offense and that give's them momentum. They scored a touchdown. That gave them momentum. We have three fumbles and we happen to make more fumbles and we dropped all of our passes. All of that gives them momentum and makes it harder to get things moving on offense."

The Raiders' offense looked promising the start of the fourth. They managed to move 25 yards their first drive, but on fourth and two, Antoine Allen's (45 yards on 10 carries) rush was an inch short of a first down, crushing their chances.

Middleboro responded with a 47-yard march up the field, capped by a 32-yard field goal from Frazier.

North quarterback Andrew Minton (6 of 16 72 yards passing) tried the best he could to find his receivers, but the receivers were frazzled and kept dropping on target passes.

North Quincy will face Scituate Saturday in Scituate at 2 p.m., rescheduled from Friday night due to the Eastern equine encephalitis (EEE) threat.

But for now Connor said his team will be focusing on themselves and not Scituate.

"We need to improve. It has nothing to do with our opponents right now. We're at a point where we need to play our football," said Connor.

"We're going to look at the film and find out what went wrong and then fix it. If it's mental we have to coach them up. If it's a physical thing we have to make sure we figure out everything that's going wrong and make our corrections. Then we'll be able to move forward. But right now we are our worst enemy."

Hall Of Fame Football Fundraiser Oct. 26

McCleary's Hat Trick Powers NQ Girls' Soccer

By COLLEEN CASEY

Shannon McCleary will remember her senior night at Veterans' Stadium Friday for a long time. The senior forward notched a hat trick with an assist to propel the North Quincy girls' soccer team past rival North Quincy, 5-0.

McCleary finished her career against Quincy similar to when she started. In the rivals first meeting her freshman year, McCleary had an assist and scored two goals.

"It's exciting. It's a good way to end it," said McCleary. "And it's always good to beat rival Quincy."

Even though the Red Raiders have already qualified for the state tournament, every win helps. A better record could give them home field advantage early in the playoffs. This victory puts them at 6-2-2 in the Patriot Fisher League, a close second to Scituate (6-1-1).

North came out aggressive in the beginning, but was evenly matched by Quincy's defense, led by Kayla McArdle and Colleen Andrews. Quincy goalkeeper Natalie O'Donovan was tested again and again, but made spectacular saves to keep the score even.

Sophomore forward Ciara Forde put North Quincy on the board with 21:07 remaining in the half off a feed from freshman Marisa McGue. Riding the momentum from the first goal, a minute later McCleary launched a shot from 30 yards out and found the top right corner of the net to give the Raiders a 2-0 advantage.

"I knew I could make it," said McCleary. "I thought I should take it. I wanted a goal."

Quincy had a few chances later on but Dominique Lucier's wide-open shot flew over the cross bar.

North outshot Quincy 13-2 before the break.

Red Raider coach Paul Bregoli's halftime talk seemed to inspire North.

"We talked at half time about playing good soccer, keeping our spacing, playing it with our feet and not getting in the habit of playing kickball," said Bregoli. "We did a much better job at that and we scored two quick ones the beginning of the second half."

McCleary scored again three minutes into the second. Then senior Caitlin Bulger scored a minute later that off a corner kick from McCleary.

With four minutes remaining, sophomore midfielder Courtney Campo was tripped in front of the net, earning North a penalty shot. Bregoli let McCleary take it because she was a senior. She put it past the diving O'Donovan to earn the hat trick.

"I've had a lot of bad luck with penalty shots," said McCleary. "But I stayed calm and took my time. We practiced them at practice so I just did what I practiced."

McCleary added, "This win is going to help a lot. We already made the tournament so this win was huge for us. We're trying to get a higher seed. Our goal is to be the Patriot League champs and get a banner up in our school."

North's junior varsity squad also blanked Quincy, 4-0. Emily Anglehart steered the offense, netting a pair of goals with an assist.

Nisreen Abo-Sido and Kara Carchedi each chipped in a goal. The Red Raiders defense was led by Annie Doherty, Faith Whooley and Molly Kate Cannon to earn the shut out.

O'Shea's Two Goals Lead Presidents Past Raiders

By JEFF OHLSON

With the weather getting cold and the season winding down, the Quincy boys' soccer team shut out rival North Quincy Saturday night at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The Presidents' offense was paced by James O'Shea who scored two goals for Quincy. Among North Quincy's defensive standouts was Robbie Routhier.

The game was all about a Presidents offense that saw frequent opportunity against the Raiders all day. O'Shea found the back of the net for his first goal in the first half and scored again in the second half. They both came on break-aways but the second one was a little controversial as it looked to be offside against Quincy but the referees did not call it. Quincy didn't play its best, but they played well enough to win.

"North is always going to be one of those battles that can go either way. I'm happy to get the first goal, even happier to get the second. I'm not sure we were at our best tonight, but we will take the two points," said Quincy coach Mark Spendlove.

Quincy added another goal late in the second to seal the deal and bring the score to its final of 3-0 Presidents.

North Quincy's defense was as strong as it could be but just looked tired by the end of the game and Quincy saw more opportunities.

"We just couldn't generate any offense. They play really solid defense. The first goal was great but I thought the other two were offside. My boys played great and gave it all they had but we're playing short handed with only 12 guys but I couldn't be more proud of my guys," said North Quincy coach Rich Hanlon.

North Quincy Goalkeeper Jameson McFarland played well once again for the Raiders and Stopper Robbie Routhier was all over the field.

"We've got the best goalie in the league in Jameson. He's been strong all season and he played well tonight.

On our defense, Routhier played great and so did Steve Beaton," said Coach Hanlon.

Felix Nampanya was the catalyst on offense for Quincy and Roy Bander played well for Quincy on defense for the shut out.

"Roy Bander was immense in midfield just closing everything down. Felix was great with those two assists and really just had intelligent use of the ball" said Coach SpendLove.

The Presidents host Duxbury today (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. and Plymouth North Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Quincy also has a home game Monday, Oct. 22 versus Middleborough at 3:30 p.m. and wraps up its regular season on the road at Randolph Oct. 24 at 3:30 p.m.

The Raiders travel to Silver Lake today (Thursday) for a 4 p.m. game and Pembroke next Monday at 4 p.m. before returning home for the final home game Saturday, Oct. 27 at 2 p.m. against Milton.

Sacred Heart Basketball Registration

Registration for the Sacred Heart North Quincy Youth Basketball Program will be held Saturday Oct. 27 from 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. in the Sacred Heart Parish Hall, 386 Hancock St. North Quincy.

The program is open to all boys and girls ages 5-18 (grades K-12) from the Quincy area. Players do not have to be a member of sacred heart parish or live in the North Quincy area to participate.

Children grades K-2 will play one hour a week of instructional basketball, usually on Saturday mornings or afternoons beginning mid-November at Quincy Catholic Academy or the North Quincy High School gymnasium.

Children grades 3-12 will practice once a week either on Wednesday, Thursday or Friday nights at Atlantic Middle School and will play a schedule of games on Saturday afternoons at North Quincy High.

The fee for children in grades K-2 is $50 and the fee for grades 3-12 is $100. There is a maximum family payment of $250. No child will be turned away for financial reasons.

Travel teams will be selected from certain age groups and will involve an additional fee.

Presidents Showcase Talent In 32-6 Win Over W-H

By COLLEEN CASEY

The Quincy football team showcased its all around talent Saturday, defeating Whitman - Hanson in their Patriot League opener in Whitman, 32-6.

Sophomore quarterback James Lam had an explosive second quarter to put the Presidents ahead. Lam connected with Alex Heffernan for a 75-yard touchdown pass to start, and had two more scoring runs of 15 and 7 yards before the break.

Lam stepped in as quarterback this season after senior captain Andrew Schaaf broke his leg. Quincy coach Bill Reardon said that Lam is "coming along nicely."

Lam's older brother Jackson was also instrumental in the win. The elder Lam had a 33-yard return to set Jalen Green up for a 15-yard score to start the game. Jackson also had an interception that paved the way for his younger brother's first touchdown run in the second.

"The whole family was working together to put points on the board," said Reardon.

Green scored on a 15-yard carry to put the Presidents up for good in the fourth.

A strong defensive performance from the Presidents limited the Panthers to only six points. Chris Ryan kicked a pair of field goals, a 22-yard field goal in the first and a 38-yarder in the third.

"Defense was outstanding. We applied a lot of pressure and ran a lot of blitzes. It was a good aggressive game by the defense," said Reardon.

The defense, led by Lam and senior Peter Cedrone managed to sack Panther quarterback Tom Sapienza eight times. Jaquan Harris was great in the secondary, containing Whitman-Hanson's lethal Dondre James all game.

Quincy (3-3, 1-0 Patriot Keenan) will face perennial powerhouse Duxbury (6-0) Friday at 7 p.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The Presidents are looking to snap the Green Dragons' 32-game winning streak.

Reardon added, "I gave the speech yesterday. We need everyone at practice every day this week. You leave a crack open for Duxbury they'll rip you apart. All burners are on for them."

IS YOUR JOB A REAL PAIN?

As studies reveal a strong association between emotional health and back trouble, there is growing proof that stress in the workplace can exacerbate that link. According to a recent survey of more than 1,000 small business owners by an insurance provider, nearly one-third of employees experienced stress-induced back pain. To further complicate matters, once employees take time off from work, their back pain often becomes worse due to inactivity. As a result, they often become even more downcast, which leads them to develop more negative feelings about work. As this negativity feeds a self-fulfilling prophecy, chances for recovery lessen. To break this chain of negativity, chiropractic treatment offers employees a way to alleviate back pain and develop positive coping skills. Back pain is probably the most prevalent musculoskeletal disorder of our time. At FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we can help correct the cause of your pain and restore your back to full function while preventing other back problems in the future. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're currently accepting new patients. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Stress leads muscles to tense up and nerves to increase activity, which further increases tension and decreases flexibility. Check us out on facebook: <http://www.facebook.com/familypracticeofchiropractic>

QYFL First-Round Playoff Action

Panthers Down Apaches, Elks Edge Mustangs

By SEAN HALPIN

The Quincy Youth Football League kicked off its first week of playoffs this past Sunday.

This season, the QYFL is using a three-round playoff system to decide who advances in the Championship game Nov. 4th.

There was a feeling of Deja-Vu in Veterans' Memorial Stadium this week, as the four teams who faced each other last Sunday matched up, again, in this weekend's playoff games. The weather was also very familiar as the afternoon opened with rain but, cleared out for the second game, as it turned out to be a beautiful afternoon for football.

The #1 seed, Squantum Storm had their second bye week in a row and elected to play an inter-squad scrimmage against each other. The Storm-Thunder Team took on The Storm-Lightning Team.

Team Lightning was led by the play of Max Storch, Andrew Airosus, Raphy Veras, Antonio Allen and Ryan Manning. Team Thunder was sparked by the play of Tim Layden, Cullen Walsh, Mark Monahan, Liam O'Connor and Ty Finn. The Storm will shake of the rust of a two-week layoff and take on the Milton Mustangs next Sunday at 2 p.m.

The first playoff game of the afternoon featured the #2 Seed, Quincy Point Panthers hosting the #5 seed, North Quincy Apaches. The Panthers scored on their first possession as Ronin Conteras ran for a 1-yard touchdown. Brendan Jenner rushed for the conversion to make the score 7-0, Panthers.

On ensuing series, the Apaches turned the ball over on downs on the 47 yard line. Two plays later, RB Domenic Coleman rushed for a 49-yard touchdown extending the Panthers lead to 13-0. Later in the second quarter, Panther RB Coleman scored from 50 yards out.

QB Jenner passed to Melvin Gonzales for the conversion making the score 20-0.

The Panther scored again before the half as QB Nick Mayberry connected with Jenner for a 21 yard TD pass. Melvin Gonzales kicked the ball through the uprights for 2-point conversion and the Panthers entered the locker room with a 28-0 lead.

Panther's return-man, Coleman took the opening kickoff of the second half back for a 72-yard touchdown. The Apaches fired back with a long drive capped off by a 20-yard TD run by Chris Mann. The Apaches defense held the Panthers throughout the second half.

Chris Mann scored again late in the fourth quarter on a 41-yard TD run. Apaches QB Shawn Kelly bootlegged around the end for the conversion. The Apaches ran out of time in their comeback, as the game ended with the final score Panthers-34 Apaches-13.

The Panthers were led by the play of Coleman (3 TDs), Robert Wilson, Kevin Phu, Jenner, Mayberry, Gonzales, Conteras, Bryan Hanly, Joshua Coughlin and Jayo DaRosa.

The Apaches got strong efforts from Mann (2 TDs, 107 yards), Shawn Kelly, Matt Eagles, Michael Dockery, Jake Roos (6 carries, 57 yards), Brendan Ganno and Brian Maloney.

The Quincy Point Panthers (4-1) have the bye next week.

The second playoff game of the day featured the #3 Seed, West Quincy Elks hosting the #4 Seed, Milton Mustangs. Elks LB John Teixeira recovered a Mustang fumble on the 48 yard line. The Elks capitalized as QB Angelo DePaulo mounted a nice drive capped off by a 9-yard touchdown run by RB Teixeira. FB Aaron Etienne rushed for the conversion and the Elks took the lead 7-0.

Both defenses held each other scoreless in the second quarter as the Elks entered the locker room with the lead.

The Elks kicked off to start the second half and pinned the Mustangs deep on their own 6 yard line. The Mustangs eventually turned the ball over on downs on their own 15-yard line. The Elks took over and RB Teixeira scored on a 12 yard TD run. The touchdown was called back on a penalty and the Elks turned it over on downs.

Later in the fourth quarter, Mustang DT Mike Corcoran recovered an Elks' fumble on their 40 yard line. Milton QB Jeff Wolffe orchestrated a long drive capped off by an 18-yard TD run by RB Paul Teagan. The Elks defense stopped the conversion attempt and remained in the lead 7-6.

The Elks drove the ball down the field to the Mustang 25 yard line. Elks QB DePaulo took a knee as time expired and gave his team the victory over the Mustangs 7-6.

tangs 7-6.

The Elks were lead by the efforts of Teixeira, DePaulo, Etienne, Davi Soares, Anthony Sances, Jamal Williams, Ray Rodriguez, Vagno Santos, Josh Rodriguez and Connor Ainsley.

The West Quincy Elks (4-1) host the North Quincy Apaches in the 2nd Round of the playoffs next Sunday at 3:30 p.m. The Milton Mustangs take on the #1 Seed, Squantum Storm (3-1) next at 2 p.m.

QYFL ~ JUNIOR VARSITY ACTION

Apaches-13 Panthers-7.

In a battle of undefeated teams, The Apaches (4-0-1) took on the Panthers (4-0-1) Saturday in JV action.

Mike Lommano Threw a TD pass to Andy Ryan or the Panthers. Win Tran and Dylan Malcolm scored for the Apaches in their victory over the Panthers. Nate Sleiman, James Corkery, David Olcott, Chris Donaghey, Michael Ladas and Connor Donaghey played well for the Apaches as they remain unbeaten at 5-0-1.

Elks-33 Storm-12. Davi Soares and Curtis Frazier scored for the Elks and London Williams and James Crump played well for West Quincy. The Storm were led by the play of John Paul Kelley, Andrew Airosus, Josh Dangora, Samantha Smith, Mike Adamson, Jonathan Knowles and Antonio Allen

TOOTHPASTE FACTS

Before the invention of toothpaste in its modern form, the ancients formulated their own versions from ingredients such as crushed eggshells and powdered pumice. It was not until the 1890s that Colgate introduced the first tube of toothpaste. By the 1950s, enamel-strengthening fluoride was added to toothpaste as an effective decay-preventive element. Today, whitening toothpastes are slightly more abrasive than regular toothpastes, which, along with ingredients like peroxide, help them more effectively remove stains. In any case, the primary purpose behind tooth-brushing is to remove plaque, which coats teeth on a daily basis. Unless this pale yellow biofilm is removed, it will continue to build up and harden, and acid produced by the colonized bacteria will attack tooth enamel.

It makes good sense to start preventive measures against dental disease as soon as possible. When was the last time you had a complete dental exam? We make a thorough evaluation of existing and potential problems. Nothing is more economical than regular check-ups. Small developing problems can be corrected before they become serious problems. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Bosworth

Time For One High School, Two Campuses?

Bregoli says he has spoken to several community leaders and athletic coaches who agree it's time for one high school.

"These are people who have been born and bred here and who have lived (with two high schools) and are now saying, 'it's time.' It doesn't make any sense anymore."

Bregoli says he would like to see a panel or ad hoc committee meet and study the feasibility about consolidating the two high schools.

The mayor acknowledged that Quincy High may be newer than North but the city has spent more than $2 million on upgrades in that facility in recent years.

"North is still in need of some TLC and over the past few years we've spent more than $2 million there on roofs and atrium and technology and other upgrades and we'll continue to do that but the facility is not that old — about 30 years. It's in good shape. The gymnasium is in great shape, it has some great facilities in that complex."

"I don't view it as this one is real bad and this one is sparkling brand new. Obviously you have a brand new complex in Quincy High School and it is magnificent and it should be for what we paid for it — $126 million for the whole high school project.

"If someone really wants to go to QHS, they can go there."

Another upside Bregoli points to is cost savings, especially in the athletics budget. With one high school, expenses such as travel to away games, referee fees, uniforms and equipment would conceivably be cut in half.

He says the consolidation would probably not reduce the number of teachers jobs but perhaps lead to additional hirings because a consolidated student body would allow — and justify — more academic opportunities.

For example, if there are only a handful of kids who want to study Russian at one of the high schools, you can't justify a teacher for that, he says.

"But, let's say there are six or seven kids at NQHS and five kids at QHS. Now you're getting near 13 or 14 students who want to study Russian and now you can offer that course where before you would have to say no because you can't hire one teacher to teach just four or five kids.

"I think those academic opportunities would expand," Bregoli says.

The same could be said for athletic programs. A handful of students at each high school combined could justify the return of gymnastics or starting up a ski or crew program.

What about the argument that fewer kids would play varsity sports if the student bodies were combined?

"They wouldn't necessarily not make a team," Bregoli says. "Back in the day, they used to have hundreds of kids on the football teams and what they did was offer a sophomore program and a JV program and a varsity program. They divided it that way."

"Are some kids not going to be able to make the team? Yeah, maybe, but that's part of life. Then there are other options. They can run cross country, they can play soccer, they can go out for the swim team... and for girls we could add field hockey in lieu of a huge soccer program."

Bregoli also said this set-up would allow kids an opportunity to develop instead of just being "thrown into the fire."

"Right now we're asking some freshmen — 14-year-old kids — to compete against 18-year-old kids who could potentially be Div. 1 athletes at a college next year and that's a recipe for disaster in terms of injuries. It happened to my own kid. He was a freshman at NQHS and he was tackling a kid who went on to play football at Syracuse University. He got a concussion."

"We put kids in jeopardy health-wise and that's first and foremost."

Bregoli believes there is a growing sentiment in the city to shift to one high school. He said it was among the top issues voters expressed to him while he ran for his school seat last fall.

Admission is $20. Home-made dessert refreshments are available.

For reserved tickets call Eileen at 617-821-4073, or reserve at Ebaker8991@comcast.net.

The other was residency — or ensuring only students from Quincy attend school here.

"I know there are people in the academic arena who have talked about having one high school. People on the street. Everyone I speak to asks me why don't we have one high school. It's more positive than negative. Out of every 10 people that I talk to, it's probably 8 who suggest it's time."

One idea to gauge public sentiment on the one high school, two-campus notion is to put a non-binding referendum on the city ballot. That would require signatures from five percent of the city's registered voters.

Another method would be holding public hearings and discussion from the City Council and School Committee.

"I think people are more afraid of taking the first step because they are afraid of the public reaction," Bregoli said. "But I think they would be surprised by the public reaction."

Electronic Payments: Best Way To Get Benefits

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Chances are, if you receive Social Security benefits, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), or any federal payment, you receive it electronically. More than 90 percent of people getting monthly Social Security benefits already receive electronic payments. If you don't yet, that's about to change.

There is a U.S. Department of Treasury rule that does away with paper checks for most federal benefit and non-tax payments by March 1, 2013. With a few exceptions, this mandate includes Social Security, SSI, Veterans Affairs, Railroad Retirement Board, Office of Personnel Management benefits, and other non-tax payments.

People required to switch have the option of direct deposit to a bank or credit union account or they can have their monthly payment directed into a Direct Express® debit card account (Treasury's debit card program). Please visit www.godirect.org to learn more.

So, why the push for electronic payments instead of paper checks received in the mail? There's a list of reasons an electronic payment is better than an old-fashioned paper check.

- It's safer: no risk of checks being lost or stolen;
- It's easy and reliable: no need to wait for the mail or go to the bank to cash a check;
- It saves taxpayers money: no cost for postage and paper and printing; Treasury estimates this will save taxpayers $1 billion over 10 years; and
- It's good for the environment: it saves paper and eliminates the need for physical transportation.

If you still get your check in the mail, don't wait for the new rule to go into effect next year — sign up for electronic payments now. Please visit www.godirect.org today and begin getting your Social Security and SSI payments the safe, easy, reliable way — electronically.

Stay Warm While Reducing Home Fire Risk

As temperatures begin to drop and consumers turn to alternative heating sources to stay warm, the Insurance Institute for Business &

Home Safety (IBHS) offers guidance on ways to avoid home fires this fall and winter.

"While space heaters, fire places and wood-burning stoves can help consumers reduce energy bills during the colder months, it is critical that they be used properly," said Julie Rochman, IBHS president and CEO.

Heating fires account for 36 percent of all residential home fires in rural areas every year, according to the U.S. Fire Administration (USFA). The majority of residential heating fires (87 percent) are started by a confined fire, such as from a chimney or fuel burner, according to USFA. Take the following precautions to stay safe:

Fireplace

- Have the fireplace inspected and cleaned annually by a professional chimney sweep.
- Have a removable cap installed at the top of the chimney to keep out debris and animals.
- Install a spark arrestor that has 1/4 inch mesh.
- Maintain proper clearance around the fireplace and keep it clear of combustible materials such as books, newspapers and furniture.
- Always close the screen when in use, but keep glass doors open during the fire.
- Use a fireplace grate.
- Never burn garbage, rolled newspapers, charcoal or plastic in the fireplace.
- Avoid using gasoline or any liquid accelerant.
- Clean out ashes from previous fires and store them in a noncombustible container with a tight-fitting lid.
- Keep the container outside and away from the house.

- Make sure the fire is completely extinguished before closing the damper.

Space Heaters

These appliances can be an affordable option for heating a small space, but they also are the leading source of house fires during winter months. Follow these guidelines when using space heaters:

- Look for products that have been tested by Underwriters Laboratory (UL).
- Buy a model with an automatic shutoff feature and heat element guards.
- Maintain a 36-inch clearance between the heater and combustible materials, such as bedding, furniture, wall coverings or other flammable items.
- Do not leave a space heater unattended.
- Electric heaters should be inspected prior to use.
- Check the cord for fraying, cracking and look for broken wires or signs of overheating in the device.
- Use only heavy-duty extension cords marked with a No. 14 gauge or larger wire.
- If the heater plug has a grounding prong, use only a grounding (three-wire) extension cord.
- Never run the heater cord (or any cord) under rugs or carpeting.
- Liquid-fueled heaters must be operated using only the fuel recommended by the manufacturer.
- Never use gasoline or any other substitute fuel.

- Allow the heater to cool down prior to refueling. Additional details can be found in IBHS' Alternative Heating Sources guide.

Electrical Fires

According to USFA, electrical home fires in the U.S. claim the lives of 280 people and injure 1,000 more each year, while home electrical problems account for $1 billion in property losses every year. Use the following information to reduce the risk of an electrical fire:

- Routinely check your electrical appliances and wiring for frayed wires or cords.
 - Promptly replace any cords that are frayed or damaged. Avoid overloading an outlet.
 - Replace any electrical tool that causes even a small electrical shock, overheats, shorts out, or emits smoke or sparks.
 - Keep electrical appliances away from wet floors and counters.
 - Don't allow children to play near electrical appliances.
- Visit DisasterSafety.org for more information about how to make your buildings more resistant to a variety of disasters, large and small. Follow IBHS on Twitter at @DisasterSafety and on Facebook.

IBHS is an independent, nonprofit, scientific and educational organization supported by the property insurance industry. The organization works to reduce the social and economic effects of natural disasters and other risks to residential and commercial property by conducting research and advocating improved construction, maintenance and preparation practices.

6 Ways To Save On Heating Costs

Temperatures are already dipping in colder climates, and weather experts are warning consumers everywhere to brace for a colder winter than last year.

That means homeowners may be paying more to heat their homes this winter — and even more if owners haven't sealed it up and/or taken other energy efficiency measures.

If you think energy efficiency steps aren't that big a deal, the founder of Angie's List says you should think again.

"The average heating and cooling system accounts for about 54 percent of the average home's total energy costs," says Angie Hicks. "Even small things can add up to big heating bill savings — and many of them are jobs you can do yourself."

Angie's List, a national resource for consumer reviews on local service experts, including HVAC companies, went to highly rated heating experts to compile 6 ways to save on your heating bill:

1. All systems go? Check your furnace filters each month and replace if necessary. A clean filter distributes heat better and cuts your energy costs. Plus, it's an inexpensive and easy task you can do yourself. An annual furnace checkup from a reputable heating system expert will help detect and fix small problems before they result in a system failure.

2. Block and tackle: Is your couch or a bookcase blocking a baseboard radiator? Take a look to be sure you have good airflow around registers and radiators to increase energy efficiency.

3. Drafting good for auto racing; not so much for homes: As much as 20 percent of the air moving through the average home's duct system is lost to leaks and poor connections. Sealing up leaks with caulk, spray foam and/or weather stripping will stop that. Check doors and windows, too and caulk, seal and weather-strip any drafts.

4. Solar power: The sun offers free energy that you can tap even without solar panels. Keep your blinds up and the curtains open on a sunny winter day to absorb heat. Close them up at night to keep the heat inside.

5. Through the roof: Heat rises, which means if you don't have enough insulation on the ceiling and in the attic, your heat is literally going through the roof. If you can see the floor joists in your attic, you probably don't have enough insulation. Be sure to get the right R-value for your area.

6. Programmed to save: Use a programmable thermostat to easily adjust the temperature while you're away or sleeping and save up to 30 percent on your bill, according to Energy Star.

Painting Tips

By SAMANTHA MAZZOTTA

Q: I'm painting my apartment next week, the first time I've ever done this. Do you have any painting tips? — Lana, Columbus, Ga.

A: Tons of tips, but limited space to list them all, unfortunately! First-timers often are daunted by the amount of paint and paint products to choose from, conflicting instructions from various sources, and sometimes a lack of helpful information from home-improvement store paint sections. Others feel it's simple enough to just buy a bunch of paint and brushes and just go for it. The reality falls somewhere in between.

Preparation is the most important rule to follow, however. You'll want to prepare the walls (and presumably trim) in the apartment for painting. You'll need to figure out not just what color paint to use, but how much of it to buy, and if the colors even work the way you think they will. Here are a few tips to get you started:

- Buy sample sizes of paint colors you're interested in, and paint a stripe of each in an inconspicuous section of the wall. Paint looks different when wet and when dry.

- How much paint should you buy? A gallon of latex paint covers 350 square feet. Measure the length of each wall and add the figures together. Measure the height of the room from floor to ceiling. Multiply the first number by the height of the room and you'll have your square footage.

- Wash all surfaces to be painted with a damp sponge soaked in a soap and water solution and then squeezed to remove most of the water. Let the surfaces dry for about a half-day, longer if it's rainy or humid.

- Remove protruding nails and patch nail holes and small (less than 1/2 inch) dents and holes with spackling compound. Once it's dry, sand the compound lightly and wipe with a damp sponge to remove dust.

- Mask off areas you don't want to paint using blue painter's tape, which comes off more easily than masking tape.

- Covering a dark wall with a lighter paint? Prime the wall first with a primer that is close to or matches the color of the new paint.

- Ditto for covering one type of paint, such as an oil-based paint, with a different type, such as latex paint. A primer coat will keep your new paint from bubbling, cracking or peeling.

- Make sure the area being painted is well ventilated; additionally, wear a filter mask (not a dust mask) to reduce inhalation of paint fumes.

New Agents On Board At Conway

New Jack Conway sales agents are getting a head start on their careers in a first-of-its kind "Onboarding Program" created by Chris Haraden, director of education for the 40-office real estate company.

"We've had the idea for a long time that new agents need a little more personal attention when they first join us," said Haraden. "We have so many technological tools to help them succeed in this business, but they don't know where to start or how to use them effectively. I think it helps them feel a lot less overwhelmed."

The Onboarding workshop, conducted by Technology Director Toni Manning, is now the first step in Conway's well-known training program for new associates. "I contact the agents as soon as they come aboard and invite them to meet with me one-on-one at our Norwell Headquarters," said Manning. "They tell me what tech devices they own. I set up their Conway email and show them how to log into our company website which allows them to conduct business from anywhere."

The Onboarding program, which Manning has dubbed "The Technology Fast Track," shows agents how to create a personal profile page on the Conway website, how to upload their photo, how their listings will be displayed on jackconway.com, and how to enter customers' information into Conway's database management system, which is available to agents at no charge.

As a second stage of the training, Manning visits the agents in their offices to teach them how to use the company's web-based program to create a comparable market analysis of a property, and how to order on-line prospecting postcards and fliers to market themselves and their business.

For more information on career or training opportunities at Jack Conway, Realtor, contact Chris Haraden at 781-871-0080, ex. 335.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE LT. DAN MINTON

On Tuesday, Oct. 9, at approximately 8 p.m., Officers Steve Kelly and Bruce Trieu were dispatched to the rear of the Kam Man Store on Quincy Avenue for a report of a man asking for "911" to be called. As the Officers were en route, dispatch informed them that the victim was in the Dollar Store next to the Kam Man Store. It was unknown who placed the call for help on behalf of the victim.

LT. DAN MINTON

Upon arrival, Officer Kelly was approached by the victim, who was known to the Officer as being homeless and hangs out in the wooded area behind the mall. The victim said that he was walking on Quincy Avenue when he was approached by another homeless male known to him.

The victim said that the suspect talked to him briefly and then said "I'm taking this," referring to his cell phone and PSP handheld PlayStation. The suspect then punched the victim in the head and took the two items. The suspect then walked away, heading toward the wooded area behind the Kam Man Store.

Officer Kelly asked the victim if he believed he was robbed and he said yes. The victim gave the name of the suspect to the Officers, who then headed into the wooded area to locate the suspect. After a brief walk into the woods, the Officers located the suspect and another male. The Officers recognized the suspect from past incidents where he was intoxicated.

The suspect was asleep on the ground and the other male was asleep in a chair. There were empty bottles of vodka and mouth wash nearby. The unknown male in the chair was awakened and appeared extremely intoxicated. Since he could not walk on his own and was belligerent, he was transported by ambulance to Quincy Medical Center.

Officer Kelly then awakened the suspect and told him that the victim wanted his cell phone and PSP back. The suspect then produced the two items from the pockets of his pants, explaining that he was holding onto the victim's "stuff for a couple hours and was going to give it back to him."

The suspect said that he argued with the victim earlier on Quincy Avenue and that the victim hit him first. The suspect said that he hit the victim in self-defense and then decided to take his cell phone and PSP. When asked why he would take the items under those circumstances, the suspect reiterated that he was only going to take the items for a couple hours before returning them.

The suspect, a 27-year old homeless man, was placed under arrest for "Unarmed Robbery." The cell phone and PSP were returned to the victim.

ANOTHER JOB WELL DONE

On Tuesday, Oct. 9, at approximately 1:10 a.m. Officers Thomas Gaeta II and Steve O'Donoghue were dispatched to Common Street on a report of a male/female disorder. Upon arrival, the Officers met with the caller at his residence. He stated that he left his home to pick up his girlfriend at her house but she wasn't home. When he returned to his home and walked inside, he found his girlfriend damaging his property, with the residence in complete disarray. As soon as he saw this, the caller/victim called the Police and stood outside until the Officers arrived.

The Officers proceeded to the rear of the residence and heard numerous items being smashed and destroyed from within the residence. The Officers entered the home to find the girlfriend now sitting on the couch in the living room. The residence was in complete disarray with objects strewn throughout it.

There were papers and mail all over the first floor, along with broken glass in the living room from a picture frame. There was a broken oak chair at the bottom of the stairs with an ottoman resting on top of it. Remains of an ashtray were scattered from the living room to the kitchen. A shelving display was pieces in the bathroom and a glass mug shattered in the kitchen.

The Officers asked the girlfriend what happened and she said "it's just one of those days - you know." The suspect, a 39-year old Weymouth resident, was placed under arrest and charged with "Wanton Destruction of Property over $250." The caller/victim said that they had been dating for a while but after this incident they would be parting ways. He refused a DOVE pamphlet and domestic violence service/options.

TIMELY FASHION STATEMENTS

By some estimates, 92% of Americans own cellphones. Perhaps not so coincidentally, only 42 million Americans purchased wristwatches for themselves in 2011, which is a decrease from the 55 million watches purchased in 2004. It seems that cellphones have somewhat replaced watches as time-telling devices. However, this hardly means that wristwatches are totally out of favor. In fact, watches are again becoming increasingly popular as manufacturers have recently switched from utilitarian watches to watches that make fashion statements. The most popular of these are nostalgia-inducing timepieces that remind people of the watches they used to wear in childhood. From there, interest turns toward vintage and classic timepieces. These new styles are worn to make personal statements, whatever the time.

Your wristwatch says a lot about you. This is one item of jewelry that you will see on men and women, young and old, and you will observe that each person expresses his or her true style with these timepieces. Our store is located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. Call us at 617-773-3636, and allow us to assist you. This is the place to mark the meaningful moments of your life!

Judy Izenberg, a board member of the Jewish Genealogical Society of Greater Boston, will be the guest speaker at the next Temple Shalom of Milton Brunch Speaker Series on Sunday, Oct. 21, at the Pierce Middle School at 10:15 a.m.

Ms. Izenberg's topic will be "A Taste of Jewish Genealogy."

Researching one's ancestry can be a complex endeavor, requiring persistence, patience, networking, research knowledge and some luck. Ms. Izenberg will share her experience of researching her family for ten years, showing the types of information she found, how she found it, and what she's still seeking.

Ms. Izenberg has been on the Board of the Jewish Genealogical Society for over seven years, has been its Co-President, and currently serves as Volunteer Coordinator. She has found family of her own in Ukraine and Argentina as well as in the U.S. She is a retired elementary school teacher, and volunteers teaching English as a second language and delivering food for Meals on Wheels and Metrowest Harvest.

The public is invited to the brunch, which begins at 10:15 AM, with the speaker starting at approximately 11 a.m. A $5 donation for the brunch is requested to defray costs, and a call to the temple office would help in planning. Temple Shalom's brunches are being held at the Pierce Middle School, 451 Central Avenue (entrance on Brook Road), Milton.

For more information, call 617-698-3394 or email: office@TempleShalomOnline.org.

Louis Rizzo, 85

Owned Louis Rizzo Hair Styles, Realtor

A funeral Mass for Louis "Lou" Rizzo, 85, of Braintree and formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Oct. 13 at St. Francis of Assisi Church, Braintree.

Mr. Rizzo died Oct. 7.

Born Luigi Rizzo in Aragona, Sicily, he immigrated to America in 1928 with his mother to join his father in Quincy. The first-born child of Calogero Charlie and Rosalia Rizzo, he was their only child born in their native town.

Mr. Rizzo lived most of his life in Quincy before moving to Braintree three years ago. A graduate of North Quincy High School, Mr. Rizzo enlisted in the U.S. Navy in his senior year of high school and served in the Pacific during World War II as Seaman First Class, where he received the WWII Victory, American Theater, Asiatic Pacific Theater and, Philippine Liberation medals.

An entrepreneur, he opened Louis Rizzo Hair Styles, Inc., in 1947, in downtown Boston. In 1972, he relocated his business to Quincy. Not one to sit still, Mr. Rizzo retired from hair-dressing in 1984 to pursue new careers as a realtor and mortgage originator and remained active in those pursuits until recently.

He had many talents and interests. At a young age he was selected as First Violinist in the NQHS Orchestra and carried a love of music his entire life. He enjoyed cooking, dancing, bowling, and golfing and family trips to Cape Cod. A true gourmet, he enjoyed wine and fine dining. He loved to replicate an entree he favored and gather his family around the table to share his culinary skills.

Throughout his adult life, Mr. Rizzo always found a place in his community where he could serve, often taking on a leadership position. He especially enjoyed his role as a Eucharistic minister and delivered communion to many local nursing homes. He was a daily communicant at St. John the Baptist Church and recently at St. Francis of Assisi. As a resident of The Glen at Grove Manor, he helpful nature earned him the title Honorary Mayor. A true steward, his community service crossed many paths and touched many lives. He will be deeply missed.

Husband of 63 years to Elaine G. (Fusco) Rizzo. Father of Eloise "Elly" Papile of Hingham, Karen B. Savino and her husband James of Nahant, Therese R. Nicklas and her husband Gerald of Quincy, Louis J. Rizzo of Mashpee, and Dean A. Rizzo and his wife Barbara Anglin of Plymouth. He was known as Grampy to 11 grandchildren; and Great-Grampy to 10 great-grandchildren. Also survived by two brothers, Salvatore Rizzo and Charles Rizzo; and one sister, Anna Mazola, all of Quincy, as well as many nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by his daughter, Lisa M. Rizzo, his grandson, Tyler Brack, granddaughter, Acacia Rizzo-Cugno and his son-in-law, Robert Papile.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This is a good time to speak out on a difficult situation. You're known for your honesty, so people will listen and, perhaps, begin to make long-needed changes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's sharp business sense alerts you to question the positions of those trying to push the Bull into a deal. Demand to see proof of what they profess.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your quick thinking helps you get out of a troubling situation that was suddenly thrust upon you. Later on, you can expect to learn more about why it happened.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel you've dotted all your i's and crossed all your t's regarding that upcoming deal. But there might be some facts you've ignored. Check again.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Time for the Lion to be more physically active. It will help shake off any lingering Leonine lethargy and restore your energy levels, so you'll be prepared for what lies ahead.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Helping those in need at this time is laudable. But don't ignore your own needs, especially where it concerns your health. A medical checkup is a wise move.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Good news: Your outspoken views about a controversial on-the-job situation could find unexpectedly strong support from a most unlikely workplace faction.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to draw on your reservoir of spiritual strength to help someone special through a difficult time. Your loving attitude makes all the difference.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your proven leadership qualities make you the perfect person to take on an important workplace task.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although some compromise might need to be reached regarding your stand on an important issue, you'll still be able to get the most crucial points across.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A chance to make a career change carries both positive and uncertain possibilities. Best advice: Check it out thoroughly and don't be rushed into a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're still a staunch supporter of one side of an important issue. But be prepared to deal with new information that could cause you to question your current stand.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're perceptive and quick to act when you sense that someone needs help. You are an always-dependable friend.

Montclair School Centennial Saturday

The Montclair School will celebrate its 100th Anniversary Saturday, Oct. 20 at 1 p.m. The public is invited to join the school community to celebrate Montclair with a dedication of the centennial walkway, a slide show through the decades, a performance of "Montclair Centennial Revue" by the current 5th grade students, and an open house to classrooms designated by decades to reunite with former classmates.

All are welcome.

Montclair School opened its doors in 1912 to 251 students beginning an educational tradition that would last into the 21st century.

Erected due in part to the population increase in the northwest section of Quincy, as a means of diminishing the overcrowding at the Wollaston School, Montclair's original structure was an eight room building hosting grades 1-8. Austin W. Greene served as principal from 1912-1914.

Quincy Quarry, Granite Workers Museum Open Meeting Oct. 24

The public is invited to attend the Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum's open membership meeting next Wednesday, Oct. 24, at 7 p.m. in the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

The meeting will cover general business along with ongoing projects of the museum. For those not familiar with the museum, information will be available along with photos of the model.

A power point presentation on the stabilization of the historic Lyons Turning Mill will be shown and discussed, and a separate power point on the Lyons Turning Mill's history will also be shown and discussed.

Meeting attendees are encouraged to bring their questions, comments, and ideas for moving the museum forward.

For Security Cameras At Three Local Schools Morrissey Awards $2,000 School Security Grant

National and local experts on school safety issues, ranging from violent intruder defense strategies and protecting schools from explosives to the more subtle violence of bullying in cyberspace and in middle school, recently came together with more than 150 local educators and police at District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey's 2012 School Security Summit.

Six from Quincy attended, and came away with news that the city was receiving a School Security grant from DA Morrissey again this year, this time $2,000 for security cameras at Broad Meadows Middle School, the Lincoln Hancock and Squantum Elementary Schools.

"We are doing all we can to make Norfolk County's schools as safe as possible, and we appreciate Quincy's partnership," District Attorney Morrissey said after the Summit, attended by Quincy Public Schools Director of Security Michael Draichio and Quincy police officers Sean Glennon, Stephen Burgio, David Coletti, Lisa Devine and Roger White.

"Tragic, deadly events in other areas of the country have taught law enforcement and school officials valuable lessons on what works and what does not to keep students safe," Morrissey said. "We were able to use monies confiscated from and forfeited by drug dealers to bring in experts from as far away as Texas to talk about the very real threats students face, and hopefully provide local officials with additional tools to avoid those problems."

Greg Crane from Response Options in Burleson Texas presented on best practices on violent intruders; Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives Senior Special Agent Jessica Gotthold from New Jersey spoke about protecting schools from those threats; attorneys Matthew MacAvoy and Michael Joyce from Marshfield provided guidance on information sharing among school districts and law enforcement. A trio from Deana's Educational Theater in Wakefield performed "Girl Chat," a play they perform at schools across the region to explore, and help mitigate, middle school girl-on-girl bullying and violence.

"We also took the opportunity to announce the new bullying and cyber-bullying resources that we have developed with the Norfolk Advocates for Children, which school departments can access at no cost," Morrissey said. "It is our hope that every school in every one of our towns is a little bit safer today because so many schools and police joined us in this effort, and came away with additional resources."

Trash Disposal Contract To Save City $10 Million

The City has reached a new 10-year trash disposal contract that will save nearly $1 million in the first year and more than $10 million over the duration of the agreement, Mayor Thomas Koch announced at a press conference Tuesday.

The new contract, reached with disposal operator Covanta SEMASS, will see the city's cost for trash disposal drop from $2.88 million in the current fiscal year to $2.04 million when the contract begins next July. The City's negotiating team secured annual increases lower than current rates, creating an additional $10 million in savings over existing rate hikes.

"This agreement provides tremendous cost savings to our taxpayers, and speaks directly to our efforts to find more efficient, cost-

Spring Start For Furnace Brook Drainage, Flood Relief Projects

By SCOTT JACKSON

Repair work on 94 different sections of Furnace Brook funded by Mayor Tom Koch's capital improvement plan (CIP) will begin next spring.

The plan, passed last year, included $10 million for drainage and flood relief projects. The largest share of that money, $2.5 million, is for inspection and cleaning of Furnace Brook. At Monday night's City Council meeting Woodard and Curran Senior Vice President Joseph D. Shea provided an update on the Furnace Brook project, and other flood-relief projects and studies funded by the CIP.

Shea explained that the Furnace Brook project was divided into different sub-projects - one is inspecting and cleaning the five miles of brook buried in pipes and the second was a similar project along two miles of open culvert. About 340 cubic yards of sediment, approximately 11 truckloads, were removed from pipes

Unauthorized Sewer Connections Could Drain Customers $5,000

Residents and businesses with unauthorized sewer connections may face a $5,000 charge starting next July.

That charge was approved by the City Council Monday night at the urging of Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi as part of an overhaul of the city's sewer code. Along with the fine for unauthorized use, the council also approved 20 other new fees for items ranging from new connections to denial of access to premises to prohibited discharge.

The fee for unauthorized connections is encouraged to force anyone with such a connection to have it fixed. But at a public works committee meeting before the proper council meeting, councillors explained that residents might not know about illegal connections. Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin said he was look-

Holiday Food Drive Saturday

The 10th annual Holiday Food Drive will be held Saturday, Oct. 27.

The food drive is sponsored by the City of Quincy, the Quincy Hunger Network and the U.S. Postal Service.

To participate, residents should leave all non-perishable food donations by their mailbox for pick-up by letter carriers Saturday, Oct. 27.

Suggested items include cranberry sauce, turkey gravy, canned vegetables, pie filling and boxed stuffing.

Donations are distributed to all participating food pantries in Quincy, including church organizations and private programs.

Two New Buildings – The Kilroy And Granite Trust Lofts – Will Add 306 New Residential Units • 30,000 Square Feet Of Retail Space • Underground Parking

$120M Downtown Project To Break Ground Early 2013

By SCOTT JACKSON

At a press conference last Wednesday, the city and developer Beal/Street-Works announced formal plans for the first phase of private development for the new Quincy Center. The $120 million project known as Merchants Row will include two new buildings and a renovated Granite Trust Building and will break ground early next year.

The two new buildings – The Kilroy and Granite Trust Lofts – will include 306 new residential units and 30,000 square feet new retail space. Additionally 186 parking units will be built underground. Beal/Street-Works submitted a certificate of consistency (COC) earlier this month, detailing the plans for the new first phase of construction. At the press conference, Mayor Tom Koch referred to the submittal as a significant step to achieving the destiny of a new downtown.

"At a recent Chamber meeting I used a quote from William Jennings Bryan which was 'destiny is not a matter of chance, it's a matter of choice.' We've chosen what our destiny will be and today is a step in the real vision, the real aspect of the private piece stepping up big time," Koch said. "Those non-believers out there will become believers."

The development will take place in a wedge-shaped block anchored by the Granite Trust Building and bounded by Hancock and Chestnut Streets and Cottage Avenue. Street-Works Managing Partner Ken Narva said the developers chose to start the project in that block because it will be the first part of the downtown people will see as they travel down Hancock Street.

"We think this sits in a very visible location, right on the new Quincy Square which is part of the green project," Narva said. "I sort of refer to it as the hood ornament on the racing car sitting behind it, which is the overall project itself."

The larger of the two new buildings is The Kilroy, which will be located in what is now a parking lot at the corner of Chestnut Street and Cottage Avenue. The building looks like a 'G' from above because it has four sides enveloping a central courtyard, with a small pathway to a newly created street. The eastern portion of the building, abutting Chestnut Street, will be 15-stories tall and the remaining portions will be five or one-stories high.

Much of The Kilroy's first floor will be occupied by street-level retail, mostly small shops and restaurants. The remaining floors will house 240 loft and studio units. The courtyard will include trees, a covered pavilion, fireplace, and even a dog washing station. Narva said The Kilroy would be a true loft, with brick walls and high ceilings.

"WE ARE VERY excited for the proposal you have just heard. In one way or another for the past 20 years the Quincy Chamber, and formerly as Quincy 2000, has been trying to champion a major master plan for the redevelopment of downtown Quincy," said Quincy Chamber of Commerce Chairman Sean Galvin.

"The taller unit is truly a loft product,"

New Trash Disposal Contract To Save City $10M

effective ways to provide basic City services," said Mayor Koch. "Our team at the Department of Public Works led by Commissioner Raymondi worked incredibly hard on these negotiations and we are thrilled to have such a willing partner at the table with us in Covanta SEMASS."

Covanta SEMASS is the City's disposal contractor, handling the City's trash when it reaches its Braintree transfer station and then delivering it to the Covanta SEMASS waste-to-energy plant in Rochester. The contract is separate from the City's landmark regional collection agreement with Braintree and Weymouth, which has also saved millions of dollars and substantially increased recycling citywide through the innovative "single-stream recycling" program.

The new contract will also provide the City $200,000 in outreach payments over the course of the contract, and provides for an optional 5-year extension at the end of the first 10 years. The City disposes of about 35,000 tons of garbage every year, and has been steadily decreasing annually.

"Covanta is excited to have the opportunity to continue its partnership with Quincy and to be able to provide the sound environmental solution for Quincy's solid waste. I would like to thank Commissioner Raymondi and his team for their efforts in facilitating the agreement over the past several months," said Covanta SEMASS Business Manager Thomas Cipolla.

"Covanta is thrilled to continue our relationships with the City of Quincy and the tri-town alliance of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth," said Stephen Diaz, Covanta Energy vice president and regional business manager. "We look forward to providing world-class service to these municipalities at the state-of-the-art Braintree Transfer Station and our Energy-from-Waste facility in Rochester in the many years ahead."

The Covanta SEMASS Energy-from-Waste facility, where waste from the Braintree Transfer Station is disposed, provides southeastern Massachusetts communities with an environmentally superior alternative to landfilling their municipal solid waste. Operating since 1988, the facility processes approximately one million tons of municipal solid waste and recovers nearly 50,000 tons of recyclable metals annually.

Recovering energy from waste after efforts to reduce, reuse and recycle is a critical component of managing residual waste. For every ton of municipal solid waste processed at Energy-from-

Waste facilities like Covanta SEMASS, greenhouse gas emissions are reduced by the equivalent of approximately one ton less of carbon dioxide emissions. This is possible due to the avoidance of methane from landfills, the offset of greenhouse gases from fossil fuel electrical production, and the recovery of metals for recycling.

MAYOR TOM KOCH (left) signs a 10-year contract with an optional 5-year extension with Covanta Energy Vice President and Regional Business Manager Stephan Diaz (right) in the Mayor's Office Tuesday. Officials said the contract will save the city over $10 million over the duration of the agreement and nearly $1 million in the first year.

COVANTA ENERGY Business Manager Tom Cipolla (left) presents a $25,000 check to Mayor Tom Koch. The check is part of a number of outreach payments the city will receive over the course of the contract, which will total $200,000.

Colonial Federal has mortgage money to lend...

In today's market, we are able to especially help...

- First-time homebuyers who want a loan they can live with
- Current homeowners who want to refinance at today's low rates
- Current homeowners who have a lender they're not happy with

At Colonial Federal, we never got involved with sub-prime lending, so we have plenty of mortgage money to lend to responsible homebuyers. Our loan officers are not on commission; their only goal is to help you get the loan that's best for you. We treat people right. And if you have questions after your loan closes, you can call us directly - we actually answer our phones - or you can come in and talk. Sound good? Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com (Have another loan or term in mind? Call us. We may be able to help.)

Some additional facts: Annual Percentage Rates (APRs) effective as of 10/17/12 and may change. Applies to 1-2 family owner-occupied homes. Assumes a maximum 80% loan-to-value and first mortgage position. A 15-Year non-Jumbo Loan would be repaid in 180 equal monthly payments of $6.90 per $1000 borrowed. A 15-Year Jumbo Loan would be repaid in 180 equal monthly payments of $7.03 per $1000 borrowed, which do not include taxes or insurance premiums, if applicable. So your actual monthly payment will be greater.

Big Changes For Downtown

Take a good look at the city's downtown. Things are about to change. Big-time.

Two new buildings called Merchants Row will start to breathe new life into the heart of Quincy's main business district after the new year. Construction is expected to begin by next March on the $120 million project near the 1400 block of Hancock Street.

Collectively, the two buildings called The Kilroy and Granite Trust Lofts will include 306 new residential units and 30,000 square feet of new retail space. Completion is expected in the fall of 2014.

The area closer to the City Hall end of Hancock Street will also see significant change. The Adams Green project that will incorporate new green space and traffic configurations in the area near Hancock Cemetery, City Hall and United First Parish Church will also get underway.

After years of planning, countless meetings, negotiations and thorough vetting by public officials and vested parties, the long-awaited revitalization of downtown Quincy is about to commence.

In fact, Merchants Row is ahead of schedule. At 15 stories, The Kilroy - the name inspired by the famous Fore River Shipyard inspector James Kilroy of "Kilroy was here" fame - will be the tallest building in Quincy Center when it's completed.

But probably not for long.

Mayor Thomas Koch says he expects one or two 20-story buildings will be constructed downtown over the next five to seven years.

"This is where you want density," the mayor said during a recent interview. "It's the center of the city. It's a dense commercial district. You don't want density in the neighborhoods. This is the place to put it."

"With the height comes value because the higher you go, the views are just incredible. You'll see Quincy Bay and Boston Harbor one way, and the Blue Hills the other way. It's taking full advantage of those views so the higher you go up in those buildings, the value goes up dramatically."

The Merchants Row project is full steam ahead because it's 100 percent financed and the city's redevelopment partner, Beal/Street-Works, has an equity partner.

"I don't think they're at a point where they're going to announce who their equity partner is because I think there are still some things to do between the two parties but everything is going very, very well. The project is 100 percent financed and that is their responsibility," the mayor said.

"From the perspective of the public, the construction of the buildings obviously is a visible thing that the developer is now moving forward. What they don't see is that the developer is in for $20 million. All the design for the public and private infrastructure was on their dime, all of the real estate they have under contract cost money, the buildings they bought."

"They are spending money and they have a lot of skin in the game. But now for the public this will be the first visible sign of the developer's - the private piece of it - coming to be. We've done the Hannon Parkway. We're in the process of constructing the new culvert for the Town Brook and we're in the design phase of the bridge over the Burgin Parkway so the public stuff has been moving along."

The mayor said Street-Works saw Quincy as a viable development partner for a host of reasons, including stable finances, the city's proximity to Boston and its rich history. They also pointed to the city's four MBTA stations, highway access and natural resources like Quincy Bay.

"These buildings will have water views which will be phenomenal and the other reality is the real estate was undervalued downtown. Real estate numbers in Quincy are not what they are in Boston and Cambridge so they could come in here and get real estate for a much better price even though we share the same market."

"I've always viewed Quincy as a sleeping giant. If Cambridge and those places can boom over the past 25 years, why not Quincy? We did have developments like State Street and Crown Colony and Batterymarch Park but now it's time for our downtown."

The mayor also said the city's historical component was an important factor.

"Our city is home to two U.S. Presidents. When investors see that when they come to Quincy, they are absolutely blown away. There are so many communities that try to make something up or take this little piece of history and try to make something of it."

They were also impressed by architectural and cultural assets like the Thomas Crane Public Library and Quincy College.

"All those pieces really add up. The bones are here. We just have to build on the bones."

The agreement between the city and Street-Works was carefully vetted by the parties.

On the city-side, the mayor has been authorized by the City Council to bond up to $289 million to replace all the infrastructure downtown, including sewer, water and drain lines as well as streets and parking garages. "Then we will buy it back a piece at a time and we only buy it back when the taxes (from new development) are coming in to do it."

"There is no risk for the average taxpayer of the city and the average tax payer in the city is not going to pay one dime toward the new infrastructure. It comes out of the new taxes generated by the new district."

After the bond is paid off, the mayor said it is estimated when the whole program is built out, it will generate $10 million in new tax revenue to the city every year.

Commenting on the process that led to the agreement, Koch said, "It was a tremendous experience. It was nip-and-tuck. There was some yelling and screaming. We had to stop the meetings. They threatened to walk, we threatened to walk. That was all our teams - legal, architectural, financial."

"It was back and forth, back and forth. This type of program hadn't been done before in Massachusetts. You're trying to tailor it to laws. Being all new it was all very interesting for one but more challenging legally to figure it all out."

Koch said the project could not have moved forward without the cooperation from the City Council and other public officials from the federal and state levels.

"We put all the right people in the right places and my colleagues in government have supported me every step of the way. I'm grateful for everyone working together," the mayor said.

Koch his vision for downtown is a viable commercial district and a new neighborhood featuring apartments, condominiums, a hotel, theatre and other every day essentials like a pharmacy and dry-cleansers.

"The key here is to have people living in the area to create a whole new neighborhood which makes it a 24-hour, 7 days a week district without that ghost-town effect in the retail area during certain hours of the night. Quincy, over the recent years, has developed the restaurant piece which has helped bring people down there during the evening hours."

"Our downtown has some valuable assets and some decent merchants but overall I think everyone would agree that quality has slipped over the years and that we could do a lot better."

He also said the real estate in the downtown area is undervalued and "we should be taking advantage of those properties."

"At the end of the day, we're going to take advantage of that marketplace which is going to give us a new neighborhood with a whole new living experience for a whole different group of folks - young professionals during this first phase and empty nesters in later phases.

"Stores, retail, restaurants that will serve the city well. Public spaces will serve the public well. All of those things are important for the quality of life for the entire community."

The development is also expected to generate thousands of construction and permanent jobs once companies locate here.

Quincy's future is beginning to take shape now.

"We're a city of 93,000. We're next to Boston. (Street-Works Principle) Ken Narva made a comment to me a number of years ago that has stuck with me. 'When people in the future - when this is all done - when we talk about cities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in the same breath it will be Boston, Cambridge and Quincy and I think that's absolutely going to be the case.'

"Not that I am not proud of my city today, but we have not grown to our full potential and I think that's going to put us to our full potential as a community," Koch said.

The mayor acknowledged there will be some growing pains when the projects commence.

"There will be good construction plans in place. There will be good parking plans in place. That's all part of the necessary exercise they have to go through as a developer. That's not to say there will not be disruptions."

"We are not living in some rural area where there are hundreds of acres of open field starting from scratch. This is an existing 300-year-old community and there's going to be some disruptions but in my view the disruptions will be well worth the end product. It's going to transform our city."

Koch is confident the entire redevelopment project - which he thinks will grow to $2 billion - will be completed.

"I don't have any doubt that it will not be completed. It may evolve and it already has evolved. We're on our third model since we started with Street-Works. Things change as the market place changes but the overall rehabilitation and change of the downtown is going to happen."

"How many housing units you end up with, that's a question. How many theaters do you end up, that's a question. Do you end up with one or two hotels? That's a question. But the retail experts have all this locked up."

He points out partners Street-Works has joined forces show how strong the project will be going forward. They include some venerable companies including Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance, Beal Companies and National Realty Development Co. The latter owns 22 million square feet of retail space in North America and is in charge of putting the retail component together.

"These are the best in the business in every phase of the downtown and they wouldn't be here unless they saw the opportunity here. . . In a few months, you'll be hearing (what retailers) are coming but I'm told that they have more than enough interest to fill the square footage for retail and I think that's phenomenal."

Koch says he's spent about 25 percent of his time during his five years as mayor focused on the downtown revitalization effort.

"There are people who ask me why do I spend so much time on the downtown and I spend some time with them and talk to them about it. It's jobs, it's transformation of a downtown with some beautiful public spaces for the families of our city to enjoy."

"At the end of the day, it's new growth and new taxes. We're constantly under demand for services. A lot of communities have gone to charging for rubbish. A lot of communities have closed libraries, have closed fire houses . . . we have held the line on those things and we have still provided great services."

"Going forward, that stuff doesn't get cheaper," he continued. "We've seen cuts in the federal government, cuts in the state government, so in order to keep taxes at a level that people can deal with and we're not going up these ridiculous amounts every year, a project like this helps us strike that balance."

"It provides more revenue for the city's coffers to meet the needs that we have therefore putting less pressure on the other piece."

The mayor also emphasized a revitalized downtown helps all property owners by increasing real estate values.

"A rising tide raises all ships and this the best property investment for people in the city that we could ever ask for is by what's happening in our downtown."

Saltonstall Urges Students To Support Vietnam War

Former U.S. Sen. Leverett Saltonstall denounced draft card burning and protest rioting in an address before seniors at North Quincy High School.

He urged support for the war in Vietnam and said that United Nations was the best means for achieving peace.

"Unlawful criticism of the Johnson Administration gives comfort to the enemy, and such comfort could mean one or more Navy or Army men could die in Vietnam," he said.

The senator was in the city to also speak at the United Nations Day ceremonies in front of city hall, where Councillor Vincent Smyth served as chairman.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL OWNERSHIP PROPOSED

The board of directors of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce voted to support the transfer of the city hospital ownership to a non-profit organization.

William O'Connell, executive vice president for the chamber, said that municipal hospitals were in the minority in the U.S. and that a private operation would place the hospital in a stronger position to fill future needs. It would also result in considerable savings for the taxpayers, he said.

WILSON NAME FOR NEW SCHOOL URGED

The Alumni Association of the John Hancock School began a campaign to name the new $1.7 million school in South Quincy after H. Forrest Wilson.

Wilson served as principal of the Hancock School from 1909-1929. Rev. Irving Fletcher, who served as president of the alumni, said he had the support of his membership and current principal John Osterman.

The new school would replace both the 81-year-old Hancock School as well as the 71-year-old Lincoln School.

THIS OLD REAL-PHOTO postcard reproduction is a view of one of the fleet of tanks operated by the White Bros. Milk Company that was based in Norfolk Downs. These trucks brought fresh milk daily to their bottling plant on French Street from dairy farms in Vermont and Northern New England. This smashed truck apparently was the victim of an icy mountain road at some unknown location. The company used horse-drawn milk wagons for local delivery until 1940 when they converted to motorized trucks. They had a large garage for their trucks on Hancock Street that is now occupied by the

A.E. Murphy Die & Machine Company. The company was well known for its slogan: "That Creamy Milk." Their milk was not homogenized and the cream rose to the top of the odd-shaped cream-top-bottles. It was delivered daily to homes and stores well beyond the greater Quincy area. Several years ago the Whiting Milk Company bought the business and closed the bottling plant, which is now the site of the Quincy Commons apartment complex. A Job Well Done, Quincy Park Department

I grew up in Quincy and probably never appreciated the way the city was kept up as I should have, I had no other frame of reference.

But after being out of the city for 30 years and returning 14 years ago, I can now appreciate it as never before.

I want to take this time to thank the people of Quincy who work for the Quincy Park Department for making this city as nice a place to live as I have seen. There are so many street islands and small areas that are planted, cleaned and maintained by the employees of the Park Department, as well as the places like Merrymount Park and Faxon Field that I don't think have a counterpart in Greater Boston.

These people are not leaning on shovels and brooms; they are working with pride, well-deserved pride in their endeavors. One only needs to take a stroll down Elm Ave. in Wollaston in the spring to understand what they do for us.

A Job Well Done should be written about the other departments in this city that do good work.

Thanks guys!

Mural Reaffirms Hundreds Of Years Of Liberty

I checked out the mural that so upset Mr. McKeon. One would have to be looking for it to see it.

It is not on the back end of the building, but rather on an alley side wall. It depicts President Obama in Jimi Hendrix attire, playing a guitar.

The owner explained it is a more contemporary advertisement for his business. It will probably not be coming down after the election, regardless. See for yourself. Decide for yourself.

As Mr. McKeon suggests, let's harken back to the presidential elections of 1796 and 1800. Was the winner decided by a game of mumble-peg, or jacks or rock-paper-scissors? These elections were two of the most knock-down, take-no-prisoners, dirty elections in presidential politics. These men lead a revolution, they were not genteel sissies. They were hard-bitten, experienced politicians.

Adams was portrayed as a clown, an English todgy, a traitor. He was viciously attacked in cartoons and editorials, as was Jefferson. Jefferson was denounced as an atheist and an immoral philanderer from many pulpits. this was bare-knuckled politics.

Mr. McKeon can be assured that over the centuries fairness and ethics in presidential politics has never waived. They are in the same sorry state they were in 1796 - non-existent.

On the contrary, this mural reaffirms hundreds of years of liberty.

We're No Longer The Greatest Country In World

There was a time not too long ago when the U.S. was the greatest country in the world.

We lived by the Constitution, part of which is the right of every person - no matter what the crime - is entitled to a trial by their peers, no matter how bad the crime was.

We are no longer the greatest country in the world.

When one person - no matter how powerful he or she is - cannot take the law in their own means. No matter how hideous the crime.

What gives a person the right to have a person murdered in his home and dumped into the ocean without a trial before a judge and his peers?

That one act by the man put in office by a vote of the people of America swore on a Bible he would abide by the Constitution of the United States.

We are now in the same category with North Korea, Iran and ever other Third World country.

Thank you, President Obama.

I am glad Bin Laden is dead, if in fact it was him who they dumped in the ocean.

We the people will never know.

Eye On Quincy TV Show Celebrates 3rd Anniversary

EYE ON QUINCY recently celebrated its third anniversary. The show appearing on Quincy Access TV is produced by volunteers of the Mayor's Asian American Advisory Committee. Shown above are members of the crew with Mayor Thomas Koch, the Committee was formed in 2008 when Mayor Koch took office in the same year. Three years ago, the Committee decided to produce a TV show to keep the Chinese residents in Quincy informed of Quincy affairs as well as Asian affairs. The TV Show also invites participation from the community to be more engaged in the City.

'Protecting Our Aquatic Friends' Topic For Garden Club Poetry Contest

The Wollaston Garden Club is announcing the theme "Protecting Our Aquatic Friends" and the rules for the national garden club's annual poetry contest for general grades K-9, as well as Special Education and English as a Second Language classes.

The garden club is pleased to sponsor any Quincy Public School classroom teacher that wishes to participate. Last year, two Quincy Point Middle School students won "first place" for the state, and one of them, a "second place" nationally.

Students may use any poetry form, and should consider carefully their topic/theme of "protecting our aquatic friends". All entries must be typed and titled, with name, address, age, grade, and school on the back of the entry. Poems do not need to rhyme and may include traditional verse, acrostics, blank verse, cinquains, diamond poems, limerick or Haiku. The scale of points includes: Title (10); Content (40); Creativity (30); and Style (20). Students in special education and ESL are judged separately from general education students.

The garden club expects that many Quincy students are familiar with ocean, beach, marsh, as well as brook and river aquatic wildlife. From bluefish, and horse shoe crabs to rainbow smelt, our local marine and freshwater environment is filled with wildlife, and many of our youth know it well.

The deadline for local entries is November 15th and all entries must be mailed to Wollaston Garden Club at PO Box 147, Wollaston, MA 02170. Interested teachers should contact the garden club president, Jan Clifford at <http://wollastongardenclub.com/about-us/contact-us> or speak with Youth Poetry Coordinator, Pat Artis at 617-328-5520 with your questions or to register your class for participation.

Woodward Celebrates Day Of The Girl

Liza Iolli, dean of Student Life and also the Spanish and Italian teacher at The Woodward School in Quincy, discussed the significance of the United Nations first-ever International Day of the Girl celebrated Oct. 11.

Iolli began her presentation by asking each student to think about the following question, "How would the world change, if every girl was educated?"

The Day of the Girl is a worldwide campaign sponsored by School Girls Unite & Youth Activism Project, a non-profit organization located in Washington, D.C.

Iolli explained that "millions of girls are not given the opportunity to go to school, and, out of the world's 130 million out-of-school youth, 70 percent are girls."

"Education brings hope and is a proven path for better future. Yet despite this certainty that education is essential, girls and women around the world today are routinely denied access to a basic education."

Iolli introduced ways that the members of Woodward's community could participate in Our Day of the Girl Proclamation Project as other schools across the country and globe are doing. She asked each student to write the following on a piece of paper "Girls + Education "=" and then asked the students to write one word that embodies that phrase and is significant to them. As a community, Woodward will highlight, celebrate, and discuss advancing the lives of girls across the globe.

Iolli further explained that "through a simple act, such as volunteering in an after school program for underprivileged children, one will help spread the word that educating girls is smart, for all of us."

Both Woodward's Middle and High School students filled out their respective sheet with words including "empowerment," "intelligent," "happiness" and "knowledge." Iolli will follow up by offering Woodward students opportunities to participate in various organizations such as Afghan Connection, A New Day Cambodia, CARE, UN Foundation's Girls Up, Partners in Health, Plan International, Room to Read, and World Vision.

In past years, Iolli has been instrumental in spearheading fundraisers to support El Hogar, an all-girls school for underprivileged children in Honduras, the emotional and physically abused children of the Italian Home for Children, and a school-wide collection of shoes for orphans in Afghanistan.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Ground Veal Cutlet, Peppers & Mushrooms

I was shopping at a market place recently, and found ground veal—usually not easy to find.

One of my favorite foods is a veal cutlet—so I decided to use the ground veal and cook it the way I would a cutlet. I know you can purchase veal patties, but most of the time, the meat and coating taste a lot different than today's recipe.

With it I sautéed a variety of peppers and served them with the cutlet.

GROUND VEAL CUTLET

- 2 veal patty thinly shaped (as a cutlet)
- 1 egg (mixed with a little milk)
- Corn flake crumbs (enough for coating)
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil

Shape the veal as a cutlet. Place the meat in the egg mixture and then the corn flake crumbs. In the hot vegetable oil, sauté the veal turning until crispy. Drain on paper towel,

If I were cooking more than a couple, I would bake them on a greased cookie sheet in a 350 degree oven turning once until done.

PEPPERS & MUSHROOMS MIX

- ½ pound steak mushrooms (optional)
- 1 green pepper
- 1 red pepper
- 1 yellow pepper
- 1 medium onion (sliced)
- 2 cloves garlic
- 3 tablespoons olive oil or vegetable oil
- ¼ cup white wine (optional)
- 2 tablespoons low sodium soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons ketchup
- Salt and pepper to taste

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and onion. Add the sliced peppers and mushrooms, salt and pepper. Cook for awhile, and then add the wine, soy sauce and ketchup. Cook until the peppers are tender. I have made the peppers so many times without the mushrooms, so whatever you prefer is fine.

Daria's Cranberry Meat Loaf

Last winter, my niece Daria was eager to learn how to prepare different foods to surprise her family with. And so each week, we made all kinds of entrees, from soups to stews.

We also baked pies, cakes and cookies. Last week when she visited me, she told me about a different recipe she found for cranberry meatloaf.

CRANBERRY MEAT LOAF

- 1 ½ pounds ground turkey
- 1 egg
- ½ cup seasoned bread crumbs
- 1 onion (chopped)

- 1 tablespoon fresh basil
- 1 tablespoon fresh parsley (chopped)
- ¼ cup ketchup
- ½ cup dried cranberries
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- Salt and pepper

Chop the onion, and sauté in the hot oil until soft.

In a bowl, add the egg, breadcrumbs, ketchup, salt and pepper, and herbs and mix. Then add the meat, the onion and lastly the cranberries. Mix well and shape like a loaf on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a 350-degree oven for about 50-60 minutes.

Project Manager To Speak At Quincy Historical Society Report On Hancock Cemetery Master Conservation Plan Oct. 25

Quincy Historical Society will host a special report on the Master Conservation Plan for Hancock Cemetery, commissioned by the City, by project director Chris Greene of Halvorson Design Partnership tonight (Thursday) at 6 p.m.

Hancock Cemetery, dating from the 1640s, is Quincy's earliest and longest-in-use burial ground. Among the many persons buried here are generations of the Adams and Quincy families and Reverend John Hancock, father of the Patriot leader. The cemetery contains outstanding examples of colonial gravestone art.

In 2011, the City, through the Quincy Historical Commission and the Planning Department, commissioned Halvorson Design Partnership to assess the condition of the cemetery and develop a master plan for its conservation.

The team assembled to conduct the project included experts in stonework, history, and landscape.

Greene will present an overview on the project and its findings, including the history and significance of the cemetery, an assessment of conditions, principles for managing and preserving the cemetery, and possible projects for improvements in the cemetery.

Greene is Senior Associate at Halvorson Design Partnership and a Registered Landscape Architect. Prior to joining Halvorson, for 16 years, he was Chief Planner and Historic Resources Director at Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management.

Halvorson Design Partnership is an award-winning firm of landscape architects, designers and urban planners. Among their many historic-site projects are Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge Common, and the Wayside Inn.

The public is welcome to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Haunted Basement Friday, Saturday At the First Church of Squantum

Boy Scout Troop 24 and Cub Scout Troop 24 will hold its first annual Haunted Basement Friday, Oct. 26 and Saturday, Oct. 27 from 6 to 9 p.m., at the First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue

Rd., Squantum.

Tickets are $5 per person and $20 for a family and will be sold at the door. This is a family-friendly event.

Proceeds from the event will go to support local Troop 24 members in a variety of upcoming activities and events.

Troop 24 is represented by boys from Squantum and North Quincy and is run by Scoutmaster Karl DeBisschop.

In the past few years the Scouts have preformed valuable community service including building a handicap ramp for the First Church of Squantum, cleaning of community parks, and assisting Father Bill's in "Spread the Bread."

Community Blood Drive Nov. 3

Quincy United Methodist Church will be hosting a community blood drive on Saturday, Nov. 3 to honor men and women in the military.

The blood drive will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church, located at 40 Beale St. Any donor is eligible to win a $50 VISA gift card as part of the Red Cross's Turkey-A-Day Giveaway to pay for Thanksgiving Dinner.

Board Discusses Marina Bay Construction, Health Food Store Move

By KRIS KALABOKAS

Concerned residents attended a public meeting of the Planning Board last Wednesday to discuss a proposed plan to construct two residential and retail structures with accompanying parking facilities off of Victory Road in Marina Bay.

The audience of roughly 100 people listened intently to landscape artists and architects who described the new buildings and surrounding greenery as having a "village" feel, yet seemed more interested in hearing hard facts cultivated from strenuous peer review processes.

"What I'm really going to be interested in as ward councilor is the science and engineering; the metrics," said Ward 6 Councilor Brian McNamee in addressing Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

"Mr. Harrington, I'm very happy that you're at the helm," he said. "I know that you'll hold the developer's feet to the fire. You have high standards."

While many residents of Marina Bay and neighboring Squantum spoke in favor of the project, they voiced fears of any possible impact an increase in population would have on traffic and parking in the already congested area.

Bryan Connolly, an attorney for proponents Flagship Marina Bay, assured the crowd that parking would not be an issue. In accordance with city zoning regulations, a minimum 649 spaces must be made available; according to Connolly, 719 spaces would be provided.

Kyle Warwick of Redgate Real Estate Advisors emphasized the importance of including the public in decisions regarding the design and overall aesthetic of the project, which is anticipated to double the length of the current boardwalk. "We feel that we're here to present a thoughtful undertaking; a great opportunity to complete the board walk," he said. "To introduce multifamily, fully amenitized apartment units on the waterfront."

Residents weren't the only concerned attendees of the public forum. Local business owners took the microphone to air concerns over whether additional public parking would be made available to restaurant goers.

"Some people are referring to Marina Bay as a ghost town, and one of the reasons they might say that is because parking is very inconvenient," said Denise Renaghan, the owner of Captain Fishbones. "When a restaurant patron comes in and gets their car towed and has to pay a hundred some odd dollars to get it back, they're not going to come to that restaurant again."

The buildings which have been given the monikers "Phase 1" and "Phase 2" will both range in height between five and six stories, contain approximately 400 residential units, and 18,500 square feet of retail space.

Planning Board Chairman William Geary indicated that for the proposal to progress further, it would need to pass through several approval processes due to Marina Bay being located on a flood zone within 100 feet of a coastal bank.

"This is a significant project, a complex project," he said. "It will be subject to a number of public agencies at the city level, not just the Planning Board but the Zoning Board of Appeals, the Conservation Commission, and of course other departments in the city."

Harrington indicated that while the project has been subject to "significant peer review," additional traffic studies would need to be conducted, and a storm water plan submitted to the board.

Luxury living accommodations and fine dining weren't the only items on the evening's agenda.

Applicants Good Health, Inc. of 1627 Hancock St., petitioned to occupy a 17,308 square foot building -- previously home to a Blockbuster Video and years ago Colman's Sporting Goods -- adjacent to their current location.

Representing Diane and Ralph Maturo, owners of the popular health food store, was Attorney Henry S. Levin of Levin & Levin, LLP, who indicated the couple decided on the move to take advantage of the larger, enclosed parking lot.

"This particular piece of property, except for probably other banks, Star Market, and Stop & Shop, may be the only other business in Downtown Quincy that has its own parking lot," he said.

Levin went on to state that suggestions made by consulting engineering firm Beals + Thomas to eliminate up to 16 parking spaces from the 43 space lot, in an effort to accommodate water drainage, would be counterproductive. "They have at any time over 30 to 40 people, not only employees but customers, that need those parking spaces," he said. "Any thought of eliminating parking as Beals + Thomas has suggested doesn't appear to be something that we would be willing to do."

The suggested addition of islands in the lot by Beals + Thomas was rebuked by the proponents as it would take up valuable space intended for parked cars, and make snow removal difficult during the winter months.

No official decision was made regarding the reduction in parking spaces, and as such, the matter will go before the board during future meetings.

Council Rejects Motion To Ask IG To Review Furnace Ave. Purchase

A resolution by Councilor Joe Finn asking the state inspector general to review the city's purchase of 20 Furnace Ave. was shot down by the City Council Monday night.

The city purchased the one-acre parcel in April for $485,000 from realtor Dan Flynn. No council vote was taken at the time, but the administration has maintained the council approved the purchase when it approved a capital improvement plan (CIP) in 2011.

Finn's resolution asked the IG to review three questions -- whether or not Massachusetts General Law and the city's charter mandated council approval before such a purchase; whether or not the approval of the CIP without specific language detailing the purchase could suffice as council approval; and whether or not the city was required to take the land by eminent domain because the purchase price exceeded land's assessed value of $135,200 by more than 25 percent.

The council rejected the motion by a 6-3 vote. Councilors Doug Gutro and Brian McNamee joined Finn in supporting the IG review. Before the vote was taken, McNamee reiterated that the purchase needed high levels of oversight because Flynn had been a fundraiser for Mayor Tom Koch.

"What we did have here was in fact a related party transaction and it required the highest standards," McNamee said. "The highest standards required a council vote, the highest standards requiring more than one appraisal. It didn't get those highest standards."

Three Fontbonne Academy Students Named National Commended Students

Fontbonne Academy Seniors Maretta Morovitz, Caroline Cabral and Jessica Baker have been named Commended Students in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

Of the top 50,000 of more than 1.5 million students who took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT) last October and entered the National Merit Scholarship Program, 34,000 are recognized as Commended Students (the other 16,000, or approximately one percent, are named Semi-finalists).

Fontbonne Academy Senior Julia Butts has been named a Semi-finalist and will have the opportunity to continue in the competition. It is an honor for any school to have a Commended Student, as they are chosen from a very competitive field; it is extraordinary that Fontbonne Academy has three Commended Students and one Semi-finalist.

"We are so proud of our scholars and their outstanding accomplishments," said Head of School, Mary Ellen Barnes.

Woodward School Student Artwork On Display During November At Library

The Woodward School will exhibit student artwork created in the School's art program during the month of November in the Coletti Reading Room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

An opening reception will be held Thursday, Nov. 8 from 6 to 8 p.m. for students, families, and friends. All are welcome to attend.

Art teacher Erin Massa instructs students in grades 6-12 through a strong art education curriculum and guides Woodward students individually, using directed and free creativity in the classroom so that students produce truly remarkable pieces.

Student talent is highlighted through unique pieces. Project themes focus on different ideas and creative impulses. Students are strongly encouraged to think "outside the lines" and to create their own artistic style.

Students are asked to experiment with new materials and subject matter. By mixing traditional art instruction, such as realistic portrait drawing, with modern ideas, students create a variety of extraordinary and unusual projects.

Penelope Donovan Honored As Visiting Angels' Caregiver Of The Month

Visiting Angels of the South Shore recently recognized Quincy resident Penelope Donovan as a the Caregiver of the Month for exceptional attention to detail and exemplary care to clients.

Donovan was also honored for her support and reassurance to a client and family during a medical crisis.

Nate Murray, managing partner of Visiting Angels of PENELOPE DONOVAN the South Shore, said "Dedication and compassion are key characteristics we look for when hiring caregivers, and when they go above and beyond for their clients, it means so much to us.

"For many clients, our caregivers are the only people they see on a daily basis and that relationship is so important to them and their families, especially during a medical crisis or hospitalization. We are very pleased to honor Penelope for all of her great care."

Donovan received a special citation and a gift card.

Affordable Care Act Topic At Crane Library Oct. 30

In the last 200 years, the United States Supreme Court has emerged as the world's most powerful judicial body, crafting decisions that have affected American policy at every point. Yet few people outside the law schools have the chance to reflect upon any of these major opinions, and the reasoning that led to their outcomes.

Professor Dan Breen of Newbury College will delve into the 2012 case of National Federation of Independent Businesses v. Sibelius case Tuesday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. The free lecture and discussion will be held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

'The Cabin In The Woods' Film Screening Tonight

"The Cabin in the Woods," the 2012 horror flick that Rolling Stone magazine called "a deliciously devious scare dance" will be show tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

In the film, five teenagers head off for a weekend at a secluded cabin in the woods. They arrive to find they are quite isolated with no means of communicating with the outside world.

When the cellar door flings itself open, they of course go down to investigate. They find an odd assortment of relics and curios but when one of the women, Dana, reads from a book she awakens a family of deadly zombie killers. There's far more going on however than meets the eye as the five campers are all under observation.

"The Cabin in the Woods" is 95 minutes long and rated R.

The screening is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Spring Start For Furnace Brook Drainage, Flood Relief Projects

during the cleaning process.

"What we found when we got into these areas was pipe that was full of silt, full of sand, full of debris, full of roots - full of things that prevent them from flowing properly," Shea said.

Additionally, they used a camera to inspect every foot of the pipes. Shea said they identified 26 areas of pipe that need repair, and that work will go out to bid in the spring. An extra 50 or so other portions of the pipe could also be repaired, if enough funds are left over.

The open section was also inspected, and 68 sections will need improvement. The permitting process for that work will start next month, and repairs will take place in September and August of next year, which is the brook's low-flow time. Before those repairs, the debris in the open channel will be removed.

"We see the first project as a heavy landscaping project - going in and dragging out the debris and the material that has fallen in the brook and sat there for ten years. You don't need much permits to do that," Shea said. "We want to get that done this spring."

"That will set the stage for a more structural project, publicly bid to a contractor, that is going to put equipment in the brook and along the brook that can move large, heavy granite blocks that weigh several tons."

In addition to cleaning and repairing portions of the brook, Woodard and Curran studied using the brook's headwaters at St. Moritz Pond for flood retention. Before heavy rain, the pond would be drained and then closed off, keeping the water out of the brook.

"The goal of dealing with St. Moritz Pond is that there's an outlet structure - this is actually where Furnace Brook begins," Shea said. "There's an opportunity, we believe, to actually drain down St. Moritz Pond before rain events and then close a tide gate or slide gate to use the pond for as much storage as possible."

There was no timetable given for the regulatory process that would take place before the pond could be used in such a manner.

Shea also addressed work that will be undertaken in the Miller Street/Cross Street/Furnace Ave neighborhood. The CIP allocated $900,000 for improvements in that area. Shea explained that hydraulic mapping was done for the area, and that mapping revealed problems to be worse than anticipated because Furnace Brooks actually flows out in the neighborhood.

"In some rain storms the answers is wait an hour, it just can get into the catch basins fast enough - that's not the case in this neighborhood," Shea said. "The water is flowing in the incorrect direction, it's flowing up and out."

To alleviate the problem, Woodard and Curran came up with both long-term and short-term solutions. The long-term solution is to build a large pump station on the one-acre lot the city purchased at 20 Furnace Ave. The pump station, however, would cost $8-10 million to construct and couldn't be funded through the CIP. In December, the city will apply for FEMA funding to pay for that pump station. FEMA usually takes six months to notify communities if they receive such funds.

In the short term, the brook will be made watertight to keep water from flowing out. But that would prevent water in the neighborhood from being drained into the brook. So Shea also said that re-route MassDOT drainage and use portable pumps to take water out of the bowl-shaped neighborhood.

"The longer-term solution is a large-scale pumping station for the neighborhood," Shea said. "On the short-term, we want to make the brook watertight, re-route the MassDOT piping and add a skid mounted pumping station to pump as much water as we can up and over Copeland Street, beyond Crescent Street, and then down to Furnace Brook."

The CIP also allocated $900,000 for a new pumping station in the Alrick Road neighborhood. Shea explained that the current system in place is designed to pump groundwater, which is almost useless at pumping surface water. Shea compared it to waiting for a wet sponge to dry without being able to ring the sponge out.

To remedy that, the pumping station at Joyce Road and Connell Street will be replaced by a new station that can pump both ground and surface water. Permitting for that project will begin next month, with construction anticipated to take place between May and November of 2013. An in-ground groundwater pump at the intersection of Joyce and Alrick Roads will be kept because it can still keep basements dry when groundwater rises during the spring.

In addition to those projects, Woodward and Curran began a trial program with Milton where some West Quincy water is piped into Milton's flood infrastructure. They've also started using some MassDOT piping under I-93 to move water away. Ward 4 Councilor Brian Palmucci thanked Shea and his company for the work they've done in the neighborhood.

"I appreciate the work you guys have done," Palmucci said. "It's a cliché term to say out of the box thinking but some of the stuff you guys have come up with and we're actually moving forward with now is really out of the box thinking, from the little things like our agreement with Milton and MassDOT to the bigger picture, master-plan picture we're all talking about."

Besides various projects in West Quincy, the CIP also provided funds for dredging and new tide gates in Black's Creek at a combined cost of $800,000. The current tide gates were blamed for a June flood that affected 30 homes in Merrymount.

Shea explained that those gates can only be operated during low tide because they swing back and forth and aren't strong enough to open or close if the water is too deep.

"These tide gates actually swing out towards the ocean - they're run by cables and pulleys and they're not strong enough to overcome the weight of the water," Shea said. "You can only open them during a very small window at low tide. That's an impediment to their proper operation."

The new tide gates will be vertical-lift ones that can be opened or closed at any time. The permitting process for their installation is ongoing and expected to be completed in March. Construction is anticipated to begin after boating season next September and should be complete in January of 2014. During the installation process, only one tide gate will be replaced at a time, leaving the other two in use.

The bulk of the money for the Black's Creek project is for dredging that will take place. The permitting process for that will begin next spring and take a year, and environmental studies are being conducted through next summer. Dredging isn't likely to begin until October 2014 and should be completed by February 2015.

'Spirits Of Quincy's Past' Saturday At Hancock Cemetery, Adams Crypt

Historic Hancock Cemetery, 1307 Hancock St., and the Adams Family Crypt at 1306 Hancock St. will be "haunted" by "Spirits of Quincy's Past" Saturday, Oct. 27 from 6 to 9 p.m.

The partnership program conducted by the National Park Service and the United First Parish Church Unitarian will feature park rangers, staff, and volunteers in period dress who will populate the city's oldest and most historic burying ground and "bring to life" some of the area's first, famous, and infamous residents including members of the Adams family who have "resided" there since the 17th century.

Visitors who dare to enter the ancient burial ground or the quiet granite crypt will be regaled with stories and anecdotes about the city's illustrious past and the historical characters, including the Adamsses, who made the area a center of religious revival, patriotic zeal, and revolutionary fervor in the early days of the republic.

After an "other worldly" encounter with a spirit from Quincy's past, visitors may proceed to the Visitor Center, located at 1250 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, and warm up with a "witch's brew," watch the park's exciting new film "Enduring Legacy," or shop for books and gifts related to the lives and times of the Adams family.

The program is free and open to the public and will be conducted weather permitting.

Free parking in the garage at the Visitor Center, across from the historic cemetery and church, at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy.

For more information, call the Visitor Center at 617-770-1175.

with a paying adult.

The fun family event will feature a delicious breakfast of pancakes and sausage, coffee and juice. A prize raffle featuring Red Sox tickets, gift certificates, prizes and more will also be held, while costumed characters and children's games will be available to entertain the children. The Lions Club

Eyemobile also will be on hand to provide free vision, hearing and blood pressure screenings.

Proceeds from the pancake breakfast will go to support Lions Club programs that fund eye research and provide free eye exams, eyeglasses and other services to blind and visually-impaired people.

Quincy Boys' Soccer Qualifies For Tournament

By COLLEEN CASEY

Monday was an emotional day for the Quincy boys' soccer team. With three games remaining on their schedule, the Presidents knew time to qualify for the state tournament was running out.

They defeated Patriot League foe Middleborough 4-2, and earned 20 points, the magic number that guaranteed their berth in the Div. 1 South sectional tournament. Immediately after the final whistle, the players and coaches gathered inside the center circle and had a moment of reflection for players Lamar Thompson and Bai Kanu.

Thompson, who immigrated to Quincy last year, tragically drowned this summer. Kanu, a senior midfielder was critically injured in a bicycle accident earlier in the month.

Other Sports Pages 20, 21, 22, 31, 34, 35

Coach Mark Spendlove said he's proud of his team.

"It's great," Spendlove said after qualifying. "I'm so pleased with boys. They almost had to play against fate to do it. It was always our goal to go back to the tournament. We wanted to repeat and now see if we can do a little bit better than last year."

Last season was the first time the Presidents qualified for the tournament in 10 years. They lost to King Philip 3-2 in the preliminary round decided by a shoot-out, and finished the season 9-7-5.

The Presidents are currently 8-6-4 and still have two games left to play, Randolph in Randolph on Wednesday at 3:30 and Hingham Saturday at home at noon.

"It'd be nice to win those two left and get 10 wins this season," said Spendlove. "It'd be nice to match what we did last year or do even better."

The past few weeks have been extra difficult for the team. Losing Kanu was hard enough, but things got worse after the Duxbury game when leading scorer Caique Reginaldo suffered a knee injury. James Abundis is also still out with a concussion.

Despite the struggles, everyone seems to be doing their part to help out. Junior striker James O'Shea has stepped up his game. He scored two goals and assisted on the other two in the win over Middleborough.

Spendlove said the injuries have given other players a lot of chances.

"Bjorn Amari has been playing great soccer," he said. "Felix Nampanya has been doing great as well. In general the whole team is stepped up."

"When I look at the game (Monday) we were without Bai, Caique and James Abundis. We ended up finishing without one of them on the field. I give credit to other boys," said Spendlove.

There is some other good news for the team. Spendlove reported that Kanu was moved out of the hospital last week and is now in a rehab facility in Braintree.

He added, "As the season wore on I really wanted the guys to do it, to qualify for the tournament. I'm very pleased for them."

Jim Cooke Portrays JQA At Bethany Men's Club

The Men's Club of Bethany Congregational Church presented Jim Cooke as John Quincy Adams Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. at the church, corner of Spear and Coddington Streets, Quincy Center.

The public was invited to attend. A free-will offering was taken at the door (suggested donation $3).

Light refreshments served following the performance.

THE DIAMOND FOR ROMANTICS

If you are constantly drawn to estate sale jewelry, you should know that a modern diamond with a certain cut can fulfill your romantic vision. The "cushion" cut is an antique cut that essentially combines the Old Mine Cut (popular in the late 19th and early 20th centuries) with a modern oval cut. Sometimes referred to as the "pillow" cut, it has the sensual shape of its namesake, with rounded corners and puffed sides. While this cut may not be as brilliant as a round brilliant, it may exhibit more fire and has a classic look that stands out in a crowd. The relatively large open facets on cushion-cut diamonds invite the selection of diamonds of high clarity and color.

Tremendously popular over a century ago, cushion cut diamond engagement rings are becoming chic again in modern rings. Attention is often directed towards the cushion cut's sensual shape and subtle sparkle. If you are planning to buy a diamond then we understand its importance and our staff will make your diamond buying a more easy and enjoyable experience. Browse our diamond jewelry selection located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center or contact our store at 617-773-3636. Symbolize your lasting love and indulge her in dazzling diamonds at fantastic prices!

Promises For Purple Walk Nov. 4

By EMILY TAFT

This year the 2nd annual Promises for Purple Pancreatic Cancer Walk on Nov. 4th will be geared towards bringing awareness to the disease.

"First and foremost I want to bring public awareness to pancreatic cancer, and other cancers. There is no holding me back this year, anything I can do to help the cause I am going to try and do," said Claire Muollo, a Quincy resident and the organizer of the walk. "People aren't aware of it so I would like to bring awareness to the masses. Any cancer is horrendous and every one knows someone with cancer. I think this has to be brought to the forefront."

The walk will feature more than it did last year, including more information, more prizes, and Muollo said they hope to have entertainment there as well. The walk will include a raffle like drawing that includes prizes such as a three-month membership to an ultimate boot camp and restaurant gift certificates.

"We are stepping it up this year," said Muollo. "We are stepping up marketing about 10 notches, and we are stepping it up with information and prizes this year. We are having an opportunity drawing with prizes such as a three-course catered meal for six at your home, tickets to the Barn Theatre in New York City, dinner vouchers in New York City, as well as various restaurant gift certificates from this area."

Muollo is working in conjunction with Dana-Farber Cancer Institute and the Jimmy Fund to make it easier for people to donate and participate in this year's walk.

Muollo said that they have set up a way for people to donate online and register to participate in the walk online, which is something they weren't able to do last year. They have also created a Facebook page and continuously updated the Promises for Purple website.

November is pancreatic cancer month and it is represented by the color purple, which is how Muollo's son Robert came up with the organizations name. It was also her son that encouraged her to start the walk in the first place.

"It's a name that identifies the disease by its designated color," Robert said last October. "The name has definitely been brought to life by this event."

For Muollo, the walk hits close to home because she has been battling pancreatic cancer for four years now. She decided to organize the walk after realizing that there has been no fundraisers set up for the illness.

Shortly after Muollo heard that the cancer had spread to one of her lungs last year is when she started talking to her sons about organizing a walk to raise money towards research.

Last year, the walk raised over $4,000 and Muollo and her team raised around $25,000 over the course of a year. This year Muollo said she hopes to double the number of participants and money they raise during the walk.

The registration fee is $30 and children ages 12 and under can participate for free. The three-mile walk will start and end at Braintree High School, 128 Town St., on Nov. 4th. Check in begins at noon and the rain date is Nov. 11th. For more information or to register visit www.promisesforpurple.org.

Kevin Coughlin Chief Probation Officer At Plymouth Court

Kevin Coughlin of Quincy has been appointed Chief Probation Officer with the Plymouth Division of the Probate and Family Court with courthouses in Brockton and Plymouth.

Coughlin, who also serves as Quincy's Ward 3 city councillor, took the oath of office at a special ceremony at the Covett Courthouse in Brockton with First Justice Catherine Sabaitis, Chief Justice Paula Carey and Commissioner Dr. Ronald Corbett in attendance. Also on hand were members of Coughlin's family, associate justices of the court, court staff and members of the Bar.

The gavel used to open the ceremony is an artifact from the USS Constitution.

Introductory comments by the justices and Commissioner Corbett pointed to Coughlin's innovative commitment to the service of the needs of the court and his persistent passion for service to the public "exemplifying the principle of being a man for others."

Mayor Urges No Vote On 'Death With Dignity' Question

On Nov. 6th we will head to the polls to make a number of very important decisions for our country and our Commonwealth.

While the elections for President and United States Senator certainly garner the greatest attention, there are other items further down the ballot that will have direct and drastic impacts in our society.

Today I write to discuss one such item - Ballot Question 2, the so called 'Death with Dignity' bill.

Question 2 seeks to make legal the prescription of a lethal amount of medication to a person deemed to have six months left in their life to live. The proponents of this measure tout the 'humanity' of such a decision, indicating that they mainly seek to ease one's suffering during this difficult period in a dying person's life. What they fail to say, however, is how fraught with peril and potential abuse this particular piece of legislation truly is.

I have many reasons for my opposition to this bill. First and foremost medical professionals readily admit that the estimates given to someone nearing the end of their life are often wrong, sometimes very wrong. A person given three months or 6 months to live can easily live for a year or longer. I know many people that outlived the estimate given to them by their physician, and those extra months of life were wonderful for the individual, but they also provided loved ones with precious time to say their goodbyes and express how much they meant to them throughout their lives.

When you drill down on this bill and try to understand the mechanics of how the decision to end one's life will be made, you will see that no psychiatric evaluation is required before indicating to a doctor that you wish to die. Many suffering people understandably wonder why it is that they are in such a situation while others older and perhaps less healthy throughout their lives are not. They become depressed, and because of that condition they wish that the end of life will come sooner.

Question 2 seeks not to address the lack of care for depression, but rather it bypasses treatment of depression for a quick fix. In Oregon where physician assisted suicide has been legal for some time now, less than 7 percent of those who have chosen physician assisted suicide received a psychiatric evaluation. I shudder to think of how many good people in Oregon died early because of a treatable condition.

You will also see that an heir or an abusive caregiver can serve as the witness to help the patient sign the documents to end his or her life. A 'yes' vote on Question 2 ostensibly legalizes a situation in which a depressed and dying individual can be intimidated by a person who has much to gain in the dying person's early demise. Is that the type of society we wish to create here in Massachusetts?

Finally, medical professionals have made tremendous strides in easing suffering through palliative care. These medical professionals demonstrate real compassion to their patients who are living through profoundly difficult times. They are the ones providing humane, dignified care to the very sick. If access to palliative care is an issue, we should make every effort to address that shortfall before we take the easy way out through the legalization of physician assisted suicide.

We all know that death is a very sad part of life. We have experienced watching friends and loved ones pass away. I remember as a younger man when my uncle came to live with my family while he battled cancer near the end of his life. He received caring treatment from hospice professionals to ease some of his pain.

'Fall On The Salt Marsh' Walking Tour Nov. 4

The Park Department's Environmental Treasures program is offering a free tour entitled "Fall on the Salt Marsh" on Sunday, Nov. 4 at 10 a.m.

The tour will be led by

Throughout it all we got to share in some of the most special moments any of us had ever had with him. We were able to tell him how much we loved him, how much he meant to us all, and how much we would miss him when he passed away. None of us would sacrifice those tear-filled moments for anything.

If this ballot question passes I think of how different these experiences might become for many local families. A loved one could be manipulated by a scurrilous relative or caregiver in a position of power; a depressed person could make an irreversible decision without the benefit of knowing if their depression could be treated; or a cancer patient could decide to die based purely on an estimate given by a doctor.

I ask you to join me in taking a stance against this incredibly dangerous piece of legislation. A 'No' vote on Question 2 will protect our sick and elderly from falling victim to making a decision that cannot be reversed.

NFPA Senior Seminar 'A Magnificent Day'

On Thursday, Oct. 11th I had the privilege of attending the Senior Seminar presented by the National Fire Prevention Association at their Batterymarch Park location in Quincy.

In addition to teaching us fire safety, they also presented "How to Prevent Falls." Both were important for seniors.

At the beginning of the program, every individual present had their photograph taken with "Sparky." The organizers of the program were Judy Comeletti, Shawn Gaymaine, and Barbara Dunn. All three did a terrific job with their presentation.

Although I may have missed a few names, and if I did I apologize, the helpers were Amy, Leah, Kathy, Kelly, Vaughn, Robert, Kathy, Linda, Amy, Meri-K, April, Ben, Sue, Paula, Lisa and Doreen.

After the presentation, the above group of helpers served a complete turkey dinner followed by and ice cream. Their efficiency and concern for the senior citizens was a pleasure to observe. Their enthusiasm for their company spoke volumes for both the employees and the company. They are both so lucky to have each other.

At the end of the day, the photos taken with "Sparky" were delivered to each individual by the helpers.

What a magnificent day. Thank you NFPA and each and every employee on behalf of all who attended.

Dependable Cleaners Opens Interim Store At 320 Quincy Ave.

Quincy Customer Appreciation Day Oct. 30

In July, a fire destroyed the Dependable Cleaners location at 320 Quincy Ave. in Quincy.

This week, Dependable Cleaners announces a temporary store has been set up in the parking lot of the original location. The temporary store will serve as a pick-up and drop off location, allowing Dependable Cleaners to meet the dry cleaning, tailoring and laundering needs of their customers until a new store can be constructed.

Quincy has been home to the family-owned Dependable Cleaners for over 65 years and the company has a commitment to remaining part of the Quincy Community. To express gratitude for all the support and encouragement shown by the city of Quincy, residents and customers, Dependable Cleaners will host Quincy Appreciation Day at the temporary store Tuesday, Oct. 30 from 2 to 6 p.m.

Individuals are encouraged to stop by the store for treats and refreshments and be entered in a raffle to win gift cards for dry cleaning and other prizes.

"We are so thankful for all the support we've received from our customers and the Quincy Community since the fire in July. Quincy Appreciation Day is a way for us to personally thank everyone for all their support over the past three months," said Christa Hagearty, president and CEO of Dependable Cleaners.

"Quincy is our home and we look forward to breaking ground on our new store as soon as possible. In the meantime, we will be able to meet the needs of our customers through the temporary storefront," Hagearty added.

The temporary store will be open seven days a week. Hours will be 7 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays.

Same day service will be available Monday through

The Moorings At Squantum Gardens Celebrates Fifth Anniversary

More than 100 people recently gathered to celebrate the fifth anniversary of The Moorings at Squantum Gardens.

Residents of the 223-unit Marina Bay housing community were joined by Cong. Stephen Lynch, Mayor Thomas Koch, Director of Quincy Elder Services Thomas Clasby, Moorings staff members and executives representing Peabody Properties, Inc., the company behind this affordable housing community designed to meet the special needs of seniors with a variety of programs, amenities and services, including access to the Peabody Resident Services Inc. program, which provides daily personal care and housekeeping services for Mass Health eligible seniors.

The Oct. 11th event was planned as a day of celebration and remembrance.

Peabody Properties Chief Executive Officer Karen Fish-Will was joined by her sister Melissa Fish-Crane, the company's Chief Operating Officer, in leading a toast commemorating the inception of the community and in remembrance of their late father, former Peabody Properties President, Edward Fish.

The Moorings at Squantum Gardens project was especially meaningful — both personally and professionally — to Mr. Fish.

Also in attendance were

President of Peabody Resident Services Inc. Doreen Bushashia, the firm's Director of Marketing, Jeannie Crane, Regional Manager Teresa Zingales and Resident Services Manager Martha North.

Peabody Properties organized the event in recognition of the many residents who have supported The Moorings at Squantum Gardens for the past five years.

"Our father was proud to have helped create this beautiful development," said Melissa Fish-Crane. "He would have been so happy to see the how The Moorings has served the needs of its residents and become an integral part of the Quincy community."

Chef Paul Wahlberg
Takes Home The Title

Local Chefs Battle For Title Of Best Chef

The heat was on at Quincy Community Action Programs' Best Chef Challenge, held recently at Granite Links Golf Club in Quincy.

The contenders: Some of the South Shore's most talented chefs including Chef Hao Ming Cao of Fuji 1546 Restaurant & Bar; Chef Tom Coleman of The Fat Cat; Chef David Todisco of The Tavern at Quarry Hills; Chef Marc Vierbickas from Siros, Port 305, and Blue; Chef Paul Wahlberg of Alma Nove and Wahlburgers; and Quincy School Committee member Barbara Isola, host of QATV's "Into the Frying Pan."

Emceed by Jenny Johnson, co-host of NECN's TV Diner, the event raised over $101,000 in funds to benefit the organization, which serves low-income residents.

"The event surpassed our expectations," said Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's Executive Director. "The chefs and their restaurants not only put on an amazing show but they also generously donated their time and culinary creations for our guests. We could not be more grateful to them, our judges' panel, our emcee Jenny Johnson, and all of our sponsors and donors who helped us reach our goal."

In front of an audience of 300 guests, the chefs squared off in a battle that tested their creativity and speed. The challenge was to use typical ingredients distributed at QCAP's Emergency Food Center, the organization's food pantry. Thursday's menu included chicken, potato flakes, fresh carrots, canned beans, and peanut butter. The ingredients were kept secret until they were unveiled at the event in front of the chefs, who had 45 minutes, and the use of a Mobile Pantry, to complete their dishes.

With time expired, and hands raised away from their portable cooking stations, Chef Paul Wahlberg was named QCAP's Best Chef with his citrus couscous with potato crusted chicken, Asian slaw, and Thai peanut sauce, which won over the panel of judges: Maria Ferri, editor, South Shore Living; Joan Wilder, food writer; and Chazy Dowaliby, editor, Patriot Ledger. Other creations included herb roasted chicken, honey glazed vegetables, potato and bacon wonton ravioli, and spiced peanut sauce; and bacon-wrapped roasted chicken breast with potato croquettes and roasted vegetables finished with a Thai chili peanut sauce, among others.

The chefs were paired with a celebrity chef, who helped to rush ingredients for their chefs from the Mobile Pantry. Donning the celebrity chef aprons were Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Belotti for Chef Coleman; state Rep. Tackey Chan for Chef Cao; Tom Fabrizio for Chef Vierbickas; Jim Fatseas for Chef Todisco; Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch for Ms. Isola; and longtime Quincy activist Archie Wahlberg for his nephew Chef Wahlberg. The chefs were also allowed the use of a sous chef of their choosing at their cooking stations. Ms. Isola chose Miss Elizabeth Hendry, a senior at Quincy High School, a member of the Future Chefs Program, the school's Culinary Arts Program.

The guests weighed in on their own favorite chefs as part of the "People's Choice" competition, which featured serving stations around the Granite Links ballroom with dishes that reflected the flavors and styles of the chefs' respective restaurants.

With his prosciutto-wrapped sirloin with a calvados-peppercorn demi glaze over lobster mashed potatoes, Chef Todisco came away victorious as the night's People's Choice winner.

Chef Coleman prepared a pork belly macaroni and cheese; Chef Vierbickas a pan seared sea scallop with limoncello cream sauce and micro greens; Chef Wahlberg a traditional bolognese with pasta; and assorted sushi was prepared by Tony and Jimmy Liang, owners of the Fuji Restaurant Group.

The night also featured raffles and live and silent auctions, including a personal tour of the White House by US Congressman Stephen Lynch, a trip and airfare to Aruba, a VIP package to NECN's TV Diner, and a suite to a Boston Celtics game with food and beverages included. Event proceeds will benefit QCAP programs, which serves more than 17,000

Ring mold

All Ingredients:

Box of potato flakes
Box of fine grain couscous
Half gallon orange juice
Corn oil
Salt and pepper
Coconut milk
Heavy cream
Chicken stock
Cucumbers
Green apple
Baby bok choy

In a large bowl, place couscous, and mix in orange juice so all of it is incorporated. After mixing, cover the bowl tightly with plastic wrap and store in a warm place, allowing time for the couscous to absorb the liquid and bloom. Add one of the mystery ingredients (canned green beans) into the couscous. Reserve until plating.

Bread another mystery ingredient - chicken - into a combination of the third mystery ingredient - potato flakes - and flour. Add salt & pepper to taste. In a large sauté pan, heat the oil and sear off the chicken giving it a light crispy crust. Reserve to the side until the dish is completed.

Taking the fourth mystery ingredient - peanut butter - thin out in a warm sauté pan using coconut milk and chicken stock, adding some sweet chili paste, whisking it to the right consistency and reserving until completion of the dish.

Taking the last mystery ingredient - carrots - slice thinly and then julienne into long strands mixing with cut cucumber, green apple, and baby bok choy to create a slaw, using sriracha and red wine vinegar, sugar and extra virgin olive oil to create a vin.

Finish off the par cooked chicken in a 375 degree oven. Finish cooking through, heat the couscous in a large saute pan, add a slight bit of orange juice to hydrate and butter to make creamy, reheat and transfer to a ring mold and form cylinder on each plate.

Remove ring mold, place cooked potato crusted chicken on plate, top with Asian slaw, and dress plate with the Thai peanut sauce to finish. Enjoy!

Prosciutto Wrapped Sirloin with a Calvados-Peppercorn Demi Glaze Served over Lobster Mashed Potatoes

Prosciutto Wrapped Sirloin Steak

1 Clove Garlic (Chopped)
1 T. Rosemary (Chopped)
1 t. Lemon Zest
1 C. Extra Virgin Olive Oil

Mix together all ingredients in small bowl.

Let sirloin marinate for 3 hours.

Sear sirloin on all sides and let rest for 10 minutes.

Take thin slices of prosciutto, and wrap around the seared sirloin

Roast in oven at 325, until the internal temperature is 125.

Let rest for 10 minutes, then slice to desired thickness.

Calvados-Peppercorn Demi Glaze

1 Shallot (finely diced)
1 Clove (chopped)
1 t. Fresh Thyme
1 T. Cracked Black Pepper
1 C. Calvados Brandy
1 t. Honey
1 C. Heavy Cream
2 C. Veal Stock
2 T. Unsalted Butter

First take the diced shallot and chopped garlic, and sauté for 5 minutes until golden brown.

Add peppercorns and thyme, then cook for 2-3 minutes. Deglaze the pan with calvados brandy, then reduce by 1/2. Add heavy cream and veal stock, and reduce by 3/4. Finish with butter & honey.

Lobster Mashed Potatoes

1 1/4 Lb. Lobster
2 C. Heavy Cream
3 T. Unsalted Butter
1 T. Italian Parsley (Finely Chopped)
6 Large Idaho Potatoes

First boil lobster for 10-12 minutes, then drain and cool. Take all meat out of lobster, and reserve shells & body. Take the shells and body, along with the heavy cream, and gently simmer for 20 minutes. Strain and reserve the cream.

Peel the potatoes & boil until fork tender. Mash potatoes with lobster-infused cream and butter, to your desired texture. Fold in lobster meat. Add salt/pepper to taste and finish with chopped parsley.

$120 Million Downtown Project

ARTIST RENDERING of The Kilroy that stands 15-stories tall once completed. The building will include 240 residential units, all lofts or studios. The building – bordered by Chesnut Street and Cottage Avenue behind the present Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock St. – will wrap around a central courtyard that will include a fireplace, pavilion, and dog wash.

CONSTRUCTION PLANS for Merchants Row, the first phase of private downtown redevelopment. Beal/Street-Works will spend $120 million on Merchants Row, which will have 30,000 square feet of street-level retail space, 306 residential units, and 186 underground parking spaces. Work on the project is expected to begin by next March and be completed by fall 2014.

Narva said. "It has a brick wall, it is 12-foot floor to floor, it has the feeling of being in a smaller community where you feel like you want to be in that environment."

The Granite Trust Lofts will be located on Hancock Street adjacent to the Granite Trust Building. The five-story building would include 66 residential units and additional street-level retail. Narva said the building would mimic the Granite Trust Building's look and feel on both the interior and exterior.

Both buildings will primarily cater to the wants and needs of people 40 or younger. Narva said that both Street-Works and Beal know that the younger crowd is a key demographic for any large-scale development like Quincy Center.

"The housing, we believe, does not exist in Quincy or Boston," Narva said. "It is a loft-product...really primarily geared to people under 40 years old. It's a needed demand in the market place and we feel very confident. We have executed this project before; Beal has executed this project before. We know and believe it is a necessary component of what makes the personality and the demographic of a downtown residential neighborhood."

As part of the first phase, the Granite Trust Building at 1400 Hancock St. would get a facelift. Windows would be replaced, and non-original features at the building's rear, including an ATM drive through and HVAC equipment would be removed. Narva also indicated that the building's first floor, currently home to a Bank of America branch, would be repurposed for retail use.

"This is 1400, the landmark office building. That building is obviously staying," Narva said. "If you've been in the first floor it has a landmark banking floor. That banking floor will become another use, not banking, a retail use appropriate for that space."

Narva did indicate that Bank of America would remain in the block, but would downsize to a smaller area. He added that other tenants occupying office space elsewhere in the building would be staying there for at least the next few years.

Narva was asked if any retailers had agreed to leases for the 30,000 square feet of retail space the plan would create. He indicated that no leases had been executed, but said there were more than enough interested parties.

"We have retailers – we have more than enough retailers to fill that space but we do not announce tenants until we execute leases," Narva said. "We will tell you it is a significant amount of food here and service. If you're living here on that block you would have pretty much everything you need."

Beal/Street-Works has also begun discussions with current retail tenants who may be displaced as a result of the project, gauging their interest in leasing land in the completed new downtown.

"We are talking to several other tenants as well who have leases in terms of relocating them in the program," Narva. "The office tenants are staying in place so there's really no need to deal with that, at least for the foreseeable future."

Quincy Chamber of Commerce Chairman Sean Galvin explained that the Chamber had also had conversations with current tenants.

"We're going to reach out to all of our members," Galvin said. "We've worked with a lot of existing tenants to see if we can find them new homes, make it more comfortable for them, move during construction. We've reached out to all those types of ways and anyway we can continue to assist Beal/Street-Works we will."

Galvin added that the last week's submittal was the culmination of more than 20 years of work by the Chamber.

"We are very excited for the proposal you have just heard," Galvin said. "In one way or another for the past 20 years the Quincy Chamber, and formerly as Quincy 2000, has been trying to champion a major master plan for the redevelopment of downtown Quincy. And facing a lot of naysayers over the last 10 or 20 years, we're excited that Beal and Street-Works are coming forward with this proposal."

In addition to the new buildings, a road linking Hancock and Chestnut Streets will be built. The road, labeled as Kilroy Way in the Beal/Street-Works plan, will feature street-level retail and runs between the two new buildings. The Kilroy's central courtyard will open up into the new road. Narva said the road, or via as he called, would be primarily for foot traffic and was important for dividing The Kilroy and the Granite Trust Lofts.

"We took what is a solid block and broke it in two. There is a new via that comes through. That is a via for cars but it is a via biased to the pedestrian," Narva said. "That penetration allows you to open up the block into two primary components."

Other buildings in the block won't be part of the Merchants Row phase. Alba Restaurant, at the corner of Hancock and Cottage, will remain untouched during the entirety of downtown construction. But the remainder of the block that won't be included in Merchants Row will be developed at a later date.

Groundbreaking for Merchants Row is expected to happen by the end of next March, but could be as early as January. The Planning Board still needs to approve the COC, but Narva the city's Planning Department had helped his team draft the submission.

"The Planning Board has to review and sign-off on this," Narva said. "But remember we evolved this with the Planning Department with the city everyday. So it's sort of like a joint submission."

In an interview after the press conference, Koch said he was "delighted" when he saw the renderings for Merchant Row. He said earlier proposals showed The Kilroy right behind 1400 Hancock Street which was too inposing for the 84-year-old art-deco building.

GRANITE TRUST LOFTS will have 66 loft and studio units. The five-story building will mimic the historic Granite Trust Building (seen here at left), which will be renovated as part of the project. A new public way (seen here on the right) will allow pedestrians and cars to cut-through the block.

"I'm delighted with the new plans. The first conceptual showed this massive building right behind 1400 Hancock St. that really enveloped the area and I wasn't very happy at all."

"The new plans are well-thought out. They got (The Kilroy) tower away from behind 1400 Hancock St. so when you're coming up the Square, it will be off to the left and not directly behind it. It protects the look of 1400 Hancock St. I thought the plan respects that building which I think is huge."

Beal/Street-Works must also finalize an agreement with an equity source to help finance construction. Narva indicated that such an agreement was in the works, but didn't name the equity source.

Beal/Street-Works is also working on COCs for other blocks in step one of the project. Those blocks are located in the area of the Ross Garage and will primarily house anchor retail.

"The other COCs will start to come in as early as December for Blocks 8 and 9 and subsequently for 7 and 11 — they're all moving right behind this," Narva said. "This is the first submission, another submission like this will happen in six or seven weeks from now."

Construction of Merchants Row should end by the fall of 2014, at about the same time work on the Adams Green project ends. The rest of step one is scheduled to be completed in 2015.
